Strike At Mersey

TAUNTON, England (CP) — Talent scouts for a British record company think they have the successor to the Mersey sound which gave birth to the Beatles — it's the Somerset sound. Already a group called Adge Cutler and the Wurzels have recorded Chew Magus Cha-Cha, and When the Common Market Comes to Santon Drew. Cutler's manager says he could become "the Bob Dylan of England."

Early Jumeaus sold as children's toys and mature adult figures, (shades of Barbie), and were outfitted with extensive wardrobes, right down to minute corsets, chemises and pantaloons.

Most Jumeaus were dressed in Paris in the latest styles and sent throughout the world for store display. Miss Moult's 1901 fashion model came from a Toronto store.

As the doll industry grew older, its products grew more youthful-looking. Adult dolls gave way to child-like figures about 1850. They were sold complete with stuffed cotton or composition bodies.

In 1899 a wholesaler's catalogue listed 14-inch dolls of this type as "your good 25 cent leader for Christmas". A tiny five-inch bisque doll, the favorite of Miss Moult's niece, sold for five or 10 cents.

Doll makers have always modelled heads after famous public figures. Shirley Temple was a case in point. An English doll manufacturer made a boy-doll's head bearing a striking resemblance to the late King George VI and the present Duke of Windsor as children. Miss Moult dresses her example in a sailor-suit like those worn by the young princes.

Not until around 1910 did cuddly baby dolls first put in an appearance. At last dolls were used for the purpose most people associate with them today — practice pieces for future mothers.

Brighton Man Draws Jury's Fire

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP)— A coroner's jury Wednesday held a young Newcastle mother partly to blame for the death of her two sons in a fire that destroyed their home last April.

The jurors said Shirley Linkie was negligent in allowing a man to take care of them when he was impaired by either alcohol or lack of sleep.

They also blamed Gerald Rowe of Brighton for assuming responsibility for the children and then falling asleep in front of a television set.

Rowe testified Mrs. Linkie left him in charge of her sons, aged 7 and 2, while she and a girl friend went out for coffee at 11 p.m.

He said he fell asleep and was awakened by flames and smoke but could not reach the boys' bedroom on the second floor. He admitted he had "a few beers" at a hotel before going to the Linkie home.

Toronto Woman Shot to Death

TORONTO (CP) — A young woman was found shot to death on a dirt road near suburban Clarkson early today after a man walked into a west-end police station and reported a shooting.

An hour later police found the body of Valerie Joanne Wilkinson, 17, of Toronto. She had been shot in the chest and head.

Her parents later told police she hadn't been home since last Friday. They said she had dated one man "quite steadily" in recent weeks.

Guiseppe Busato, 22, of suburban Etobicoke was charged with capital murder.

Hastings Man Remanded Again

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Paul Smith, 37, of Hastings, was remanded for one week when he appeared in magistrate's court today charged with the non - capital murder of Larry Reynolds, 26, also of Hastings. No plea was entered.

Reynold's body was discovered Dec. 3 in the wreckage of a car near Hastings and it was first thought he died of injuries suffered in the single-car crash.

However, an autopsy showed the man died of gunshot wounds. Smith was arrested four days later by provincial police.

Enjoys Temptation

HEDGE END, England (CP) The vicar of this Hampshire village criticized parishioners in his church magazine for not taking the duties of godparents seriously enough. He cited one godfather who, asked if he renounced the world, the flesh and the devil, replied: "I recommend them all."

Over Half Billion Being Spent On University Construction

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

You name it and some Canadian university either has it or is getting it.

Is it a 1,000,000-book library, a planetarium, closed-circuit TV classrooms, a machine for pecking into atoms, a giant-size computer, an astronomical observatory or a running track that sheds rain like a duck?

One or another of the universities is engaged in them all and many more of the swinging amenities that go into today's higher education. And multiplication of the more conventional facilities goes on simultaneously at the frantic tempo of the last several years.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates that well over $600,000,000 worth of campus projects is in some stage of realization—building, on the drawing board or firmly planned. That does not include Saskatchewan or Manitoba, where major programs are planned but officials are not releasing costs yet.

Institutions from the biggest to the smallest are getting in on the construction boom to catch the swelling wave of students, which has come close to tripling in the last 10 years. They but ambitious Trent at Peterborough, Ont., just past the 500-student mark, has $25,-000,000 earmarked.

Massive University of Toronto has spending of about $75,000,000 planned or in the building stage including work on three new colleges. Neighboring York, six years old, will be spending $30,000,000 in the next three years to get itself settled down.

In the West, the biggest spender will be University of British Columbia with $30,000,-000 to be laid out. Dalhousie at Halifax heads the Atlantic list with $36,000,000. In Quebec, Laval at Quebec City plans to complete two buildings at about $16,000,000 in the current academic year.

Biggest single project in the country is a $26,000,000 medical science building at University of Toronto, due for completion in 1970. Tenders were let late in 1966.

Whatever the size, university thinkers haven't hesitated about cutting loose with original and even far-out improvisations. University of Windsor, for instance, has converted a shopping centre into a temporary fine arts building; converted a biology building into a TV studio and closed-circuit classroom setup; installed ramps for paraplegic students at all new buildings, and invented a brick to match up new buildings with others on a 100-year-old campus amalgamated into the university. It also borrowed a horseracing invention for its $250,000 all-weather track.

GROW CROPS INDOORS

University of Guelph, which has recently cut loose from its attachment to the provincial government as the Ontario Agricultural College, is constructing a $5,000,000 crop science building unique in Canada. It will have facilities for growing outdoor crops the year around. Guelph expects to soar from its 3,500 students now to 15,000 by 1980 and plans expansion costing $30,000,000 in the next two years.

Several universities are going in heavily for atomic research. McMaster at Hamilton is acquiring a $2,300,000 linear accelerator, largely financed by the National Research Council and the Ontario government, for highly sophisticated experiments with the atom nucleus.

Queen's at Kingston, Ont., which is moving toward the final stages of an expansion program of some $28,000,000, is installing an electrostatic generator for more satisfactory study of the atom. Carleton has put in a nuclear accelerator for the same purpose, to be shared with University of Ottawa, and Memorial University at St. John's, Nfld., is setting up a building that can accommodate a neutron generator later.

Computers are also coming up strongly. University of Waterloo — whose projects totalling $23,900,000 number as many buildings as there were previously on the campus—has as its chief one a $7,500,-000 mathematics and computer science complex which in 1967 - 68 will house Canada's first mathematics faculty. Waterloo says it will have "the most sophisticated computer facility" in the country.

Manitoba, Carleton and Queen's also have installed computers during the last year. All can do triple duty in teaching, research and university administrative work.

Among miscellaneous items are a $2,300,000 planetarium for the University of Toronto to be completed in 1968 and a new observatory to be built near London, Ont., for which Western is having a 48-inch reflecting telescope built in California at a cost of $425,000.

LIBRARY DRAFTED

The 1,000,000-book library in 14 storeys is going up on the new campus of Brock at St. Catharines, Ont., early in 1967 but won't be given over to its main purpose until later. To combat the squeeze on other facilities, four of its floors are being used for such things as classrooms, study space and a cafe.

Medical facilities loom large in several universities' building programs. Western is building a health sciences centre, first of its kind in Eastern Canada, to combine the faculties of nursing, medicine and dentistry along with a cancer research laboratory and a $25,000,000 university teaching hospital.

Dalhousie has a 17-storey medical building going up at a cost of $11,000,000. Part of UBCs $30,000,000 expansion program includes a medical sciences building and the first unit of a new hospital.

Ontario Insurance Official Says New Rates Justified

TORONTO (CP)—Cecil Richards, Ontario superintendent of insurance, says he knew of the 1967 automobile insurance rate increases for the province before they were announced.

Mr. Richards said Wednesday he had discussed the rate increases with insurance companies and in his opinion they were justified.

He admitted he had not discussed the situation with Leslie Rowntree, Ontario financial and commercial affairs minister Mr. Rowntree's department is a new creation and he became responsible for the activities of the superintendent of insurance last month.

Mr. Rowntree said Tuesday he has asked the insurance industry for an explanation of the rate increases. He said he expected to be in touch with company spokesmen within the next few days.

Last week the All Canada Insurance Federation announced 1967 rate increases in Ontario varying from six to 24 per cent.

Mr. Rowntree said his request for an explanation was routine and not an indication that the government plans any action.

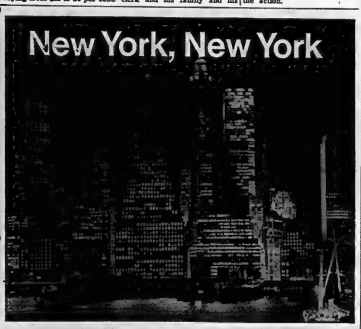
James Renwick, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Riverdale, said earlier the government had misled members of the legislature by tabling a report in November, 1965, by an automobile insurance technical committee.

The report said Mr. Richards was always consulted unofficially before car insurance rates were raised.

If the report was true, Mr. Renwick said, Mr. Rowntree should have had the explanation in advance instead of having to ask the companies to explain the increases.

Gouzenko Sues MacLeans

TORONTO (CP)—A libel action against Maclean's magazine by Igor Gouzenko, the cipher clerk who defected from the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa in 1945 with documents that uncovered a major spy ring in North America, began in Ontario Supreme Court Wednesday.



R. Alan Harris, Mr. Gouzenko's lawyer, said he would not call his client as a witness.

Since his defection, the whereabouts of the former cipher clerk and his family and his mode of living have been kept secret.

He is suing over an article in the Sept. 5, 1964, issue of Maclean's, written by Blair Fraser, the magazine's Ottawa editor.

The main defendant is Ken Lefolii, who was editor at the time. Also cited as defendants are Mr. Fraser, Borden Spears, Maclean's present editor, and Maclean-Hunter Publishing Co. Ltd.

Mr. Justice Alexander Stark and a six-man jury is hearing the action.

Water Shortage Capacity Project Given Approval

At its meeting last week, the Deseronto council approved the project. Total cost to that municipality will be $475.

NAPANEE — A project which will more than double the water storage capacity of the Napanee River was given approval by both the Napanee Town Council and the North Fredericksburgh Township Council the latter evening this week. Approval of the Third Depot Lake dam is necessary by three municipalities, Hinchinbrook, Loughborough and Kaladar must be received by the Napanee Region Conservation Authority before work can begin. In all approval from 17 municipalities must have approved of the dam before any steps could be taken.

Napanee will pay the lion's share, a total of $58,000 spread over a period of 13 years. When the Second Depot Lake dam was built, Napanee's share was $1.5 of the total cost, as against the approximately $1 per cent for the proposed project. Reeve Knight was secretary of the authority until his retirement this fall.

I. H. Jennings, field man with the Authority, has told the council the main reason for the water situation in the region.
Before Second Depot Lake dam was built, the average flow in the Napanee River was two cubic feet per second, engineers' records show. This was increased to a minimum flow of 20 cubic feet per second measured over a month when the water was lowest. When Third Depot Lake is completed the flow will be 47 cubic feet per second during the 'summer months.

Given Sentence For Passing Bogus Bills

NAPANEE — Changing his plea to guilty a Toronto theatre owner was placed on suspended sentence for two years for possessing and uttering bogus $20 bills.

Anolfo Angelosi, 53, appeared before County Judge Gerald
F. Smith here Monday.

OPP Detective Sergeant G. H.
Cooper was the sole witness. He described Angelosi as being cooperative, and said that all statements he made had proved truthful. His Toronto solicitor, N. D. Mercer, told the court that his client's only crime was that of carelessness.

Angelosi and his wife Maria were arrested by OPP Constable Ian Brodie September 12 in the men minutes of a bogus bill being passed at a service station. A suspicious 18-year-old motorist called police, and allossi had an additional 34 counterfeit bills in his possess when searched. Toronto revealed an additional $3,000 in counterfeit bills.

Prosecuting Crown Attorney
John A. Pringle agreed with Angelosi's attorney that the man was basically honest, and had been victimized.

Council Hires New Police Constable

NAPANEE — Napanee's police force is up to full strength for the first time since early September. At the last meeting for the Monday night, the Town Council accepted the recommendation of retiring Deputy Reeve W. J.
Douglas, chairman of the police committee, and hired Constable Michael L. Riches of Westbrook as constable at a salary of $5,600 per year. He will be on probation for six months.

Constable Riches has had two years' experience with the Prescott police department, and Mayor Lorne Smart stated that he was well recommended and was the best qualified of those who applied. He took up his new duties Tuesday.

The vacancy occurred December 1 when former chief Harry Bean, who had been re-hired as a first class constable, submitted his resignation, to take effect immediately.

C. L. Boyer came from Greenbrook to head the Napanee police force that day. Sgt.
Lawrence McTaggart was acting chief since September.

The vacancy for constable,
which Harry Bean filled after resigning as chief, had been created by the retirement of Constable Thomas McCoy, who headed the polls in his bid
for reelection.

Dealing with other matters in connection with the police department, council officially accepted Harry Bean's resignation and passed a bylaw appointing C. L. Boyer to head the police department.

In addition to Chief C. L.
Boyer and Sgt. L. V. McTaggart, the Napanee police force consists of Constables J. S.
Hall, Ronald Henderson,
Warren Richardson, and probationary Constable Michael L.
Riches.

OPP Gives Warning to Yule Drivers

NAPANEE — The Napanee detachment of the OPP will have no mercy on drinking drivers especially during the holiday period. Every available man will be on patrol in an effort to catch drinking drivers and lessen the accident rate, Information Officer Constable J.
Hall stated stated in his weekly report.

Last week safety talks were given to all classes in the Bath public school. The men spent 633 hours on duty, patrolling
1,800 miles of roads and highways. During this period they laid 8 charges under the Highways Act and performed 94 safety checks and issued 13 warnings. They investigated nine property damage accidents, with three persons injured in two of these.

The vacancy for constable, which Harry Bean filled after resigning as chief, had been created by the retirement
of Constable Thomas McCoy,
who headed the polls in his bid
for reelection.

Library Circulation 27,309

During November, the nine
City library branches serviced a total of 27,309 books exclusive of non-fiction titles.
The regional lending service addition was the Parkdale
School library which opened
Oct. 25. It circulated 600 books in its first day of operation.

The main branch display during Young Canadian Week proved a success, as did the reintroduction of class visits to the Corby library.

The popular Saturday morning story hours were highlighted by the attendance of 223 eiliz-ren at a puppet show program.

A marked increase was noted during the month in the number of inter-library loan requests, with books being sent to Stirling, Madoc, Tweed, Frankford, Bancroft, Bloomfield-Picton, Hastings, Tweed, Newcastle, Marmora, and Victoria
County lending services.

More than 100 delegates attended the 4-day regional workshop in the Corby Library, and the regional library board chose Belleville as location for Nov. 28. The next regional board meeting here will be Jan.

ADDS TO TRUCE PLEA

NEW YORK (AP) — Archbishop Iakovos, Primate of the to negotiations. Pope Paul issued a similar plea last week.

Rogers' Son Wants to Pattern Career After John Wayne

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sorry about this, Roy Rogers, but your son and namesake wants to pattern his acting career after John Wayne.

Roy Rogers Jr. is the latest of the second-generation performers to launch a show business career. He is doing so in a modest manner, playing a small role in a new western, The Bushwhackers starring Howard Keel and Vancouver - born Yvonne de Carlo. Young Roy plays a Kansas farm boy who expresses his distaste for Keel, a southerner who becomes the town sheriff during the American Civil War.

The lad is only beginning to act in films but already he knows where he wants to go.

"I want to be like John Wayne," says Roy. "If I wanted to act like dad, I could. But that would just be an imitation, and I don't want to do that. I'd rather be myself, which is what John Wayne has always done. No matter what the role is, he's still playing John Wayne, and that isn't bad. People like what he is. Some day I hope people might like what I am.", Roy is 20, a muscular six-foot-three at 200 pounds. So far his only experience has been in high school plays.

WANTS TO TRY

"That was enough to make me decide I want to try acting," he says. "But I'm not counting on it entirely. I've taken an examination at a local and din plant, and I qualified for a job."

Roy is the son of the cowboy star and his first wife, who died as the boy was born. After Rogers married his co - star, Dale Evans, the family grew to nine children.

Life among the Rogers family was spent mostly on the range—at the ranches in California's San Fernando and Apple valleys. All of the children took turns at riding Trigger. In fact, the famed horse sometimes carried six at a time.

Whatever happened to Trigger? He died last year, and Roy Sr. had him mounted for display in a future Roy Rogers museum.

"Mom was real mad about it," reports young Roy. "She figured Trigger deserved a proper burial, not to be displayed in public. She told dad: 'How would you like it if we had you stuffed and mounted after you die?' Dad was smart enough to have the job done before telling her about it."

Fine War Documentary Shows Battle of Bulge

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's Stage 67, which has had a staggering course this season, moved in a new direction Wednesday night with an extraordinary documentary film. It told the story of the German breakthrough dubbed lines in the winter of 1944-5 that ultimately turned into a German defeat and is called the Battle of the Bulge.

War documentaries are common enough, but this one was unusual for two reasons. First, it told the story of "the brave rifles" in terms of digging into rather than by charts and arrows or the recollections of generals. Second, it was produced, directed and written by Laurence E. Mascott, who fought and was wounded in the lines that terrible winter.

Mascott's film—credited as what he called the climactic battle of the Second World War, the struggle that made famous place names like Ardennes, Bastogne, St. Vith and Malmedy. It was Hitler's almost-successful gamble to reverse German fortunes by hurling 250,000 troops against 190,000 Americans. But that was merely the frame for a story of the exploits of some quiet heroes.

He told and illustrated the adventure of four men—"just a bunch of guys"—with a single gun held off a German tank column long enough for other soldiers to blow a crucial bridge. They all died beside the gun.

His told of a young officer who positioned three guns at the head of an enemy column and then organized snipers to terrorize the enemy rear. He died in a snowy forest.

One fascinating moment came when Mascott recalled being wounded — his surprise that turned into pain and panic and finally gratitude for being alive.

Mascott also found time to write about the misery of dry socks and warm feet and even to look with sympathy at the enemy.

Bob Hope's Comedy Special on NBC demonstrated that while travel may be broadening, it takes more than a junket to a Mexican film festival to make an interesting TV program.

Rapid Robert, golf club in hand, wandered around Acapulco greeting stars and starlets, entertaining a discotheque crowd with tequila, taco and enchilada jokes and participating in an extremely unfunny ballring sequence with Cantinflas.

He also conducted a series of stilted comedy interviews with the starlets and finally wound up on the deck of a Mexican navy ship telling jokes in English to a crew that spoke only Spanish.

Drama Series Will Be Renewed

TORONTO (CP) — Executive producer Ronald Weyman of CBC Television said Wednesday that the 10-part drama series' Wojeck and Hatch's MHI, a 19th century historical series still being filmed, will be renewed for next fall's TV season.

Weyman said, however, that he isn't sure if Quentin Durgens, MP, will be televised next season. "It will be decided later," said Weyman. "It costs a lot of money."

The Toronto producer, a driving force behind the creation of the three 10-part series, said that John Vernon, who plays a coroner in Wojeck, will be available next season for the series.

A Couple of Real Winners

U.S.-Russia Movie Slow Affair

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The first U.S.-U.S.S.R movie project is proceeding at a deliberate pace, says producer-composer Dimitri Tiomkin, off on his sixth mission to Moscow in a year.

The position of producer is new for Tiomkin, for 34 years one of Hollywood's most noted writers of musical scores for four Oscars and 20 nominations.

But he has leaped into it with customary gusto and appears to be succeeding where others have failed, in bringing about an American-Russian film venture.

Before flying on a Christmas journey to Russia, Tiomkin explained how the deal came about.

His originally had been signed to produce a dramatic musical subject for National General's proposed theatre-television system, to be used in the theatre chain's movie houses. Tiomkin came up with the idea of a trip of Tschaikovsky, which would be made in Russia. To his surprise, the Russians seemed interested.

National General dropped its proposed program, but Tiomkin wasn't dissuaded. He began negotiations with CBS and Lowell Thomas to do the Tschaikovsky project for television.

"But then I saw the success of My Fair Lady and The Sound of Music, he remarked, "and I thought to myself, it might be better to do as a moving picture."

The Russians were still interested, and Tiomkin decided he also needed the backing of an American studio. He solicited Warner Brothers and drew an enthusiastic response.

Russia will pay the production costs, which Tiomkin estimates between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000. Warners guarantees certain payments in return for rights to release Tschaikovsky throughout the world except in Communist countries and Finland.

"Most of the picture will be shot in Russia," said the producer, "but we will also have locations at Carnegie Hall in New York, and in Paris and Florence, Italy."

Higher CBC Fees Asked By Authors, Composers

OTTAWA (CP) — Higher charges to the public-owned CBC and a special rate for use of its works at Expo 67 have been proposed by the Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada.

Proposed new fee schedules by CAPAC and BMI Canada Ltd., a smaller group holding copyrights to certain works, have been submitted to the registrar-general and, along with objections, have been forwarded to the copyright appeal board, a government official said Wednesday.

Both CAPAC and BMI wrote and two-thirds cents.

In special tariffs to cover any their works used next year or at Expo 67 in Montreal. The CAPAC fee is $75,000 and BMI's is $25,000.

The CBC has objected to the proposed new fee schedules, arguing music, it broadcasts. The association wants a payment of one cent per capita of population, up from three

The new rate would bring CAPAC about $1,500,000 based on latest figures which show Canada's population has topped 20,000,000.

The rate set for the CBC by BMI is two cents per capita. Both copyright holders charge private broadcasting stations a percentage of the revenue they earn each month.

Brian Priestman Named Youth Orchestra's Conductor

TORONTO (CP) — Brian Priestman, conductor - director of the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra, will lead Canada's National Youth Orchestra in 1967.

He succeeds Walter Susskind, former conductor of the Toronto Symphony who founded the orchestra in 1960 and led it during a European tour last summer.

Priestman, musical director of the Edmonton Symphony since 1964, will take charge of the youth orchestra training session beginning July 1 and conduct it at its opening concert at Expo 67 and on a Western Canadian tour.

Leonard David Stone, general manager of the Edmonton Symphony, said Wednesday Mr. Priestman will probably return to direct the Edmonton orchestra in its 1967-68 season.

A Canadian Press story on Mr. Priestman's appointment Tuesday erroneously described him as former conductor of the Edmonton Symphony.

New RC Archbishop

War Hero Can't Remember Why

CALGARY (CP) — The new Roman Catholic archbishop of Kingston is a tall, lively war hero who says he "can't remember exactly" why he was awarded the Military Cross in Sicily in 1943.

Rt. Rev. Joseph L. Wilhelm, 57, to be consecrated archbishop Jan. 25, dismisses the war incident as "just carrying out my normal duties" as chaplain with the 1st Armored Brigade. He rescued two wounded soldiers under fire.

Selection of the bishop to succeed retiring Archbishop Joseph A. O'Sullivan, 80, was announced Wednesday. Bishop Wilhelm has been in Calgary since 1962 as auxiliary to Bishop Francis P. Carroll.

Born at Walkerton, Ont., Bishop Wilhelm has spent most of his church life in Hamilton, where he became first pastor—said developer—of the saints Peter and Paul parish in 1943. He left it in 1953.

A graduate of St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto, he was ordained in 1934 and in 1953 was consecrated bishop, one of the last nominated by Pope John XXII.

He attended ecumenical council sessions in Rome in 1963, 1964 and 1965 and says of his position on church matters:

"In some things I feel I'm progressive and in others I have a hankering for the traditional. But I don't say I sit on the fence . . . I think I'm still young enough to be progressive."

Centres of Government

Twelve regional centres will be responsible for the administration of various services when the New Brunswick government's municipal reform program starts Jan. 1. All 12 will administer assessment, tax collection, health and welfare. The eight centres shown in larger type will also administer justice. (CP Newsmap.

Separatism Within Judaism Could Be Disastrous: Rabbi

TORONTO (CP)—A separatist movement within Judaism could be disastrous to Jews, Rabbi Gunther Plaut of Toronto's Holy Blossom Temple says.

Rabbi Plaut says in the synagogue bulletin that a separatist movement led by some Orthodox Jews "is encouraged by the political power which Orthodoxy enjoys in Israel."

Judaism includes three branches: Orthodox, Conservative and Reform. The latter two are largely confined to Western Europe and North America.

Rabbi Plaut says that a segment of Orthodox Judaism insists on declaring Conservative and Reform branches out of bounds and "stands in danger of isolating itself from the total community."

"This has happened before in Jewish history, but it must not happen again," Rabbi Plaut writes.

However, Rabbi Walter Wurzburger of the Shaarei Shomayim synagogue here said in an interview Wednesday that Rabbi Plaut's reference to the political power of Orthodox Jews in Israel is irrelevant to the Orthodox isolation from the other two branches of Judaism.

Rabbi Wurzburger, editor of Tradition, the leading Orthodox journal in North America, said there is strong polarization taking place among the three branches, but a line of communication must be kept open among them.

BC Labor Asks Injunction Ban

VICTORIA (CP)—The 126,000-member British Columbia Federation of Labor has asked for legislation outlawing all injunctions in industrial disputes.

The request was made in a 13-page brief presented Wednesday to Attorney-General Robert Bonner and Provincial Secretary Wesley Black.

A month ago, the B.C. division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association mailed a six-page letter and statement to Premier W. A. C. Bennett urging retention of injunctions in industrial disputes.

This year, 14 union officials in B.C. have served jail terms for offences against injunctions.

Accord Not Yet In Sight

OTTAWA (CP)—Four hours of negotiations Thursday night left the air traffic controllers and the treasury board "still quite far apart" in attempts to resolve the wage dispute and avert a strike called for 8 a.m. local time Tuesday.

Talks were to resume today in the treasury board offices while in the House of Commons the government was ready to introduce a bill that would force the nearly 800 control tower and radar operators to remain at their jobs.

A strike would halt all commercial flying at most Canadian airports except for aircraft small enough to operate with only visual aids.

Revenue Minister Benson, who did not take part in the Thursday evening talks, would not comment on the progress of the negotiations, except to say, "We're still talking."

"We're still talking," was also the comment of James Conway, vice-president of the Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association.

CONTINUE TALKS

"We are still quite far apart, but we will continue to negotiate as long as the government is ready to talk," he said.

Mr. Conway said a bad situation would be created if the government was not able to negotiate a settlement and passed legislation forcing the controllers back to work.

"Morale wouldn't have been affected so much if we hadn't spent so much time waiting for the judge's report which we thought they would be ready to accept," he added.

Mr. Benson has refused to accept the wage recommendations in the report of Judge John B. Robinson of Haileybury who was named by the government to inquire into the air controllers dispute.

Mr. Conway said the workers would make no attempt to defy the legislation outlawing the strike, but the association will stick to its wage demands until the legislation is passed.

Martin Tries to Extend Truce

PARIS (CP)—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin of Canada has mounted an extensive behind - the - scenes campaign at the NATO ministerial talks in a reported attempt to extend the proposed Christmas truce period in South Vietnam.

Martin has held a number of private talks with U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk and while he declined to disclose the nature of the discussions, informants said they dealt mainly with the Vietnam war.

Martin already has concluded that a peace attempt through re-establishment of the 1954 Geneva conference is "not in the cards" and that the International Truce Commission, of which Canada is a member, can play a significant role since it has links with both Saigon and Hanoi.

Escalation of the American raids into the Hanoi neighborhood has caused much concern in Martin's delegation here. Nevertheless, Martin is reported to feel that an extension of the Christmas truce, with a halt in American bombings, could lead to a peace conference.

Pressures on the U.S. government to agree to an extended halt in the bombings are coming from other quarters—from political quarters at home.

The American government's attitude is that Hanoi also must show some reciprocal action if the truce period is to be extended.

Four Children Die in Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — Four children died early today in a fire that destroyed a two-storey combination store and house in Ottawa's west end.

Dead are Denis Doucette, 13, his brother Daniel, 10, and their sisters, Lise, 11, and Barbara, 7.

Mrs. Therese Doucette, 38, was taken to hospital with burns suffered in the fire which broke out before 12:30 a.m.

Also taken to hospital were her six - month - old daughter, Kim, and sons Ernest, 17, and Robert, 2. None was in serious condition.

Another daughter, Suzanne, 14, had gone to a movie and was not home at the time of the fire.

Firemen fought the blaze for two hours before they were able to enter the building to search for the four children trapped inside.

Alice for Adults Dull, Often Morbid

LONDON (Reuters)—A preview Thursday of the adult version of Alice in Wonderland, produced for television by young satirist Jonathan Miller, turned out to be funless, dull and often morbid.

The program, shown to the press here, was commissioned by the BBC but the network decided last month against showing it at peak viewing hours Christmas Day because of its "unsuitability for young children." It will be broadcast late in the evening Dec. 28.

Anne-Marie Mallik, 13, who played Alice, was the only child at a press showing and pronounced it "super."

But the fairy-tale quality was missing from her performance as Alice — flat - voiced, poker-faced, scampered from one eerie to another.

Miller, whose contract with the BBC ended this week, sent the preview a message from New York where he is producing a Broadway comedy.

He said his version of the Lewis Carroll children's classic sought to "capture the inner tone of Victorian infancy and their attitude to childhood through the tale of the little girl who dreams herself into a fantasy world peopled by such nursery favorites as the Queen of Hearts and the Mad Hatter."

The effect was to turn the story's unique collection of characters into bizarre humans, sometimes disturbing, more often tedious.

Gouzenko Awarded $1 Damages

TORONTO (CP) — A six-man Ontario Supreme Court jury Thursday awarded $1 damages to Igor Gouzenko, 47, in his libel suit against Maclean's magazine.

Mr. Gouzenko is the former Soviet embassy cipher clerk who 21 years ago defected to Canada and exposed a Russian spy ring.

The jury, after four hours of deliberation, decided that Mr. Gouzenko had been libelled in a Sept. 3, 1966, Maclean article written by Maclean's Ottawa bureau editor, Blair Fraser.

Mishap 'Looks Freakish' Two Men Are Missing

MONTREAL (CP)—Two men were missing today after the 3,883-ton coastal freighter Cabot capsized during the final stages of loading operations on the Montreal waterfront.

Nine men were treated at hospital for bumps and bruises caused when the ship, owned by the Clarke Steamship Co. Ltd. of Montreal, rolled over on its side.

There was a remote possibility the two men were still somewhere ashore, but there was no trace of them after an extensive check.

The missing were identified as Second Officer Gerard Leblond and Third Officer Marcel Cote.

Mr. Hutcheson, Clarke's general manager, said the company began an investigation into the capsizing almost immediately.

"There was no cargo shift. It looks sort of freakish right now."

Mr. Hutcheson said cargo doors of the side-loading vessel were still open when the incident occurred at about 2:00 a.m. just as stevedores were finishing loading the vessel with general cargo.

These doors were about two feet above the waterline at the nearest point.

He said there was no heavy object being placed on deck which would have caused the vessel to list enough so that water could enter the cargo doors.

The vessel rolled toward the dock and lay on its starboard side on the bottom in about 27 feet of water. Half of the 250-foot vessel remains out of the water.

The harbor master's office said no ship was sailing past the Cabot at the time to cause waves.

The freighter, which operates between Montreal and St. John's, Nfld., was to leave at 7 a.m. for the Newfoundland capital.

Jean Lavoie, 42, ship's engineer from Rimouski, Que., scampered to safety clad only in his shorts. His only complaint was the 30-degree cold.

He said most of the crew was asleep when the ship rolled.

"The noise of the ship hitting the pier woke us up."

The ship's emergency generator went on immediately, he said, so the lights aboard the vessel were working while it was over on its side. An automatic alarm system also went into operation.

Quebec Bank Robbed Machine-gunners Steal $50,000

BRYSON, Que. (CP)—Three masked men, armed with rifle and sub-machine guns, burst into a sub-branch of the Bank of Montreal here Thursday afternoon and escaped with $50,000 in cash.

Bryson is a village of about 650 people 60 miles northwest of Ottawa. The money was stolen for the payroll for construction workers employed at the nearby site of the new Consolidated - Paper Co. mill.

Quebec and Ontario Provincial Police set up roadblocks throughout the area as soon as they received the alarm.

Witnesses said the three men entered the bank and ordered the three employees and seven customers to remain still. Two of the "tellers' cages into a sandbag and while a third man, armed with a rifle, stood guard at the door.

A fourth man waited in the late model getaway car. The raid was over in about three minutes.

The robbers wore rubber masks over their faces. No shots were fired and no one was injured.

Heat Is On Saigon's Profiteers

SAIGON (AP)—The heat is on river-front theft rings, black marketing and war profiteering in Saigon, but the crime and pilferage of South Vietnam are far from solved.

U.S. and Vietnamese authorities are expanding measures to reduce the drain from these traditional byproducts of war.

In the wake of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's crackdown on corruption last month, the rickety stalls offering vintage champagne, transistor radios and U.S. Agency for International Development blankets have vanished from PX Alley, around the corner from the U.S. Embassy.

Even the Indian money changers have gone underground.

But a whispered order to a sidewalk vendor can still produce contraband goods.

Sevigny Suit Asks $100,000

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Sevigny, a central figure in the Munsinger sex-and-security affair, Thursday filed a $100,000 suit against Maclean - Hunter Publishing Co. Ltd.

The suit, filed in Superior Court, alleges invasion of privacy in an article published last July 22.

It was filed jointly by Mr. Sevigny, former associate defence minister in the Diefenbaker cabinet, and Mrs. Sevigny.

It names as defendants, in addition to the publishers of Maclean's magazine, Borden Spears, Maclean's editor, and Douglas Lellerman, author of the article.

Description of LBJ May Be Reason Jackie Opposes Book's Publication

This observation, by a highly placed official in President John F. Kennedy's administration may explain why Mrs. Kennedy opposes the publication of a book about the assassination of her husband. The former official describes the book as "beautifully written" with "a headline in every page."

The official described a secret conference which — inadvertently—may have led to Mrs. Kennedy's legal action to block publication.

"The question of a lawsuit was put down as a last resort," the official said. "It was only mentioned."

He said he is sure that the publishers of the book learned of the sense of the meeting. He said he believes they therefore concluded that they could resist further requests by Mrs. Kennedy for revisions or deletions in the manuscript of William Manchester's book, Death of a President.

When efforts to compromise failed, he said, Mrs. Kennedy brought the suit. Her lawyers will charge breach of contract, arguing that the Kennedys have not approved the manuscript of the book, as agreed upon in a "memorandum of understanding," signed by Manchester and Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

Further, Mrs. Kennedy objects to certain passages in the manuscript describing her emotions and actions in the aftermath of the tragedy in Dallas, Tex., one of her friends said.

The former official gave this version of the conference:

It was held last October in Senator Kennedy's New York apartment. It lasted five hours.

Mrs. Kennedy did not attend. Senator Kennedy was present "only a short time."

The meeting was called "because things had reached a difficult state with respect to certain parts of the book," the former official said. "The purpose was to work out compromises on them."

The group included Richard

Welfare "Dumping" Complaint of Neighboring Communities

Is the Belleville welfare office attempting to cut costs by trying to "dump" welfare applicants onto neighboring municipalities?

At least one Quinte district welfare administrator says this is the case and at least two families making applications for welfare claim office personnel made suggestions that they move out of the city.

A. Gordon Davis, administrator at the Trenton welfare office, says he has affadavits from two women who say they were offered food vouchers for two weeks if they would move out of Belleville.

Mr. Davis says the two women (from different families) moved from Kingston to Belleville where they later applied for relief. They received no welfare assistance but were given food vouchers when they moved to Trenton.

Another welfare official from a nearby municipality said that when Belleville-resident families moved into his township and later became relief recipients, there was considerable difficulty in getting the Belleville welfare office to accept the charges-backs.

He said there had been several such instances in the past six months.

The Trenton incidents were said to have taken place in August and Mr. Davis said he reported the "dumping" to welfare department headquarters.

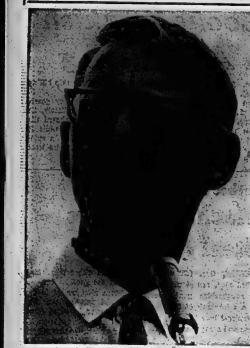
Mr. Davis says that "dumping" of relief recipients is not allowed under the welfare act.

Last week two Belleville families reported welfare officials at city hall suggested they move out of the city when they applied for assistance.

One woman with two teenaged children who faced eviction for non-payment of rent, says she was asked to move to Tamblyn when she applied for assistance.

This she declined to do. Over the weekend she moved to West Belleville where the welfare department has paid a week's rent and also supplied some money for heat. A church group paid moving costs and also to have the lights turned on.

Another family with four children applied for welfare while waiting for compensation payments after the husband hurt his arm.



Welfare assistance has been refused and since Nov 17 the family has received but $2 in compensation.

"We're behind in payments on our house and had to borrow money to pay the hydro bill and for my husband to go to Kingston for arm treatments," the mother said.

The mother said the welfare official asked why they didn't move back to Deseronto.

Provincial department of welfare figures for the month of September show that Belleville had 133 persons receiving welfare assistance during that period.

Trenton, with less than half of Belleville's population, had 223 on welfare. Prince Edward county, with a population of 12,000, had 185 receiving welfare.

Robert Nixon at Napanee

Nixon Says Liberals Ready for Election

NAPANEE (Special) — Robert Nixon, contender for the Ontario Liberal party leadership, last night predicted a provincial election next Spring.

The Brant MPP based his forecast on two specific points:

(1) Centennial celebrations starting in July rule out a summer campaign.

(2) Leadership issues in the federal Conservative party will become activated in the Fall.

And, Mr Nixon told a meeting of Prince-Edward-Lennox Liberals, Premier Roberts is now seeking leadership of the national Conservatives. Therefore, a Spring election was the only alternative left the Ontario government.

In that event, he promised, the Liberal party will have "good, strong candidates" in all Ontario ridings, standing on a "strong, simple platform" easily understood by the electorate.

The Liberals have a broad view of provincial problems; they represent, and draw support from, all levels and not just the one minority group," he said.

The meeting named delegates to the leadership convention in Toronto Jan. 6-7 at which Mr. Nixon will enter his challenge.

The standing executive of the Liberal constituency association was returned to office by acclamations

They are: Wilfred McCabe, president; Dr. Lionel Doerkin, and Allan Empey, vice-presidents; Kenneth Casey, secretary and Mrs. May Goode, treasurer.

Tells How Name Chosen

TRENTON — Controversy continues to rage in some quarters about the naming of Trenton's new bridge "D. James MacDonald Bridge."

Today, Jack Wilson, manager of the chamber of commerce outlined the steps by which the name was chosen.

Mr. Wilson said town council suggested some weeks ago the Chamber run a contest to name the bridge. The contest was run, and out of the 2,000 persons who submitted names, 58 struck on the name "D. James MacDonald Bridge." After council as a whole, (excluding the mayor) had approved this name, the names of persons submitting this name were placed in a hat and a contest winner drawn, (John Saylor).

Sandblasting Blamed for Leaks In Mount Pelion's Water Tank

TRENTON — Trenton's public utilities commissioners were told yesterday by utility manager James Page that the newly painted water tank on Mount Pelion had sprung leaks around rivets. This had been caused, year.

by sandblasting, Mr. Page said.

However, as experts in the field advise waiting until spring to mend the damage, it was decided to delay action.

The commission received two bids to place a fence around the tank. One for $963 would enclose the tank only. The other, for $1,454 would include a pump house. It was decided the pump house should be included. This work will not be done until after the first of the

The Mel Wills Construction Company will be asked to submit a new schedule for completion of the clearing of the land for the Murray Township water storage pond, held up when the commission could not complete arrangements to buy land owned by John Alyea. The dam will be finished this winter and the pond completed in the spring.

During the recent electric dryer campaign locally, 43 dryers were sold and 43 free electric blankets given to dryer customers.

The commission sold 240 waterheaters this year. There is some question about whether the commission will hold its inaugural meeting on Thursday, Jan. 5, (when commissioner C. E. Hilton, reelected, will be sworn in) or team up with town council for a joint inaugural meeting. Town officials will be checked and a decision made before Jan. 1.

PUC Seeks More Facts On Cable TV

TRENTON — The members of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission, meeting yesterday, voted to "go beyond Belleville to 3 or 4 other communities", to check arrangements where television cable has been installed in these centres, before stalled in these centres. The survey will be made by letter, entering into an agreement with Cablevue of Belleville whereby the company would pay only for hydro poples which did not carry telephone lines.

The general feeling was that Bell Telephone had no authority to rent hydro poles to another user. Bell and the PUC have a reciprocal agreement about the poles. Bell uses some hydro poles; the hydro uses some Bell poles; Bell pays the Trenton commission $1,500 a year for the difference.

Cablevue had supplied the commission with copies of its licence from the Department of Transport, a letter of intent from Bell Telephone and an agreement with Bell.

Commission members were told the installation of the cable would cost the household-owner $17.50 and $5 a month would be charged for the service.

Men Strike on Pay Day At Trenton CGE Plant

TRENTON — Management and union officials were scheduled to meet in Toronto today to sort out details of yesterday's pay - day walkout at the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., here.

About 180 production workers quit the job yesterday to protest the dismissal of what they charged was "indiscriminate firing and laying off" of other employees since the plant opened in July.

Local 509, United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America was certified in September as the workers' bargaining agent.

Yesterday's action followed the dismissal of Robert Davenport, member of the union's bargaining committee. He was reported to have received seven days notice Monday.

Union members at the plant have formally asked the management to reinstate him.

Fire Chief Issues Christmas Warning

In his warning Chief Poste said:

"A Christmas tree can change in a few seconds into a family tragedy where such precautions are neglected. Christmas tree electric lights and tinsel should be checked for frayed cords or short circuits. Use only C.S.A. approved lights and only approved flame proof decorations. Declare the tree area as a "no smoking" area and keep matches out of the hands of children. Never place lighted candles on a Christmas tree. Always keep the butt of the tree submerged in water after making a fresh diagonal cut on the butt.

"On Christmas day do not allow gift wrapping to accumulate under and about the tree. Dispose of these wrappings as soon as possible - even a moist tree will burn if ignited by burning wrapping.

"Place your tree in a safe place - never near a fireplace, T.V. set, radiator or any open flame. Be sure it does not block access to doors or sliding doors in the event of fire and always switch off lights before leaving home or retiring to bed."

Chief Poste also stated it is unsafe policy to string electric lights on a metallic tree as they may become a conductor of electricity. He recommends that they be illuminated with floodlights.

Some plastic trees are made from styrene materials and are highly flammable and are unlike those trees made from polyvinylchloride. Many of the imported trees made of plastic are known as the Hong Kong tree will burn violently. All trees should be removed from the home as soon as possible after Christmas.

Fire Chief Poste issued a special warning to parents during this Christmas holiday to recognize the fire danger of this season and not leave small children alone in a home even for a minute.

He pointed out that the Criminal Code of Canada forbids such action which endangers the life or health of any child under the age of ten years. He asks all parents to employ only a qualified baby sitter and make sure that they are instructed where the parent may be reached, the phone number and the fire department, and that they will remove the children from the home and to safety in case of a fire emergency.

"There has already been tragedy and the number will increase unless people take the necessary precautions and heed the warning herein," he said. "Let us, the citizens of Belleville, get together at Christmas to keep the festive season free from fire. And may you and your families have a Merry Christmas and a happy New Year."

Six-year-old Girl Reason Swim Club Started

A Belleville group, organized because a six - year - old was too young to take swimming lessons, someday might make a championship splash for the city.

At least, that's the ambitious intent behind the Belleville Centennial Swimming Club — which now is holding lessons twice weekly at the Tope Motel.

In fact, its coach, George Sulkevicius, of Batawa, even surmises the possibility of producing an Olympic contender from his young students.

"We have really good potential here. They're excellent material," he declares.

If the tested background of a coach is any indication, the youngsters now in the swim gesuilsely could be plying for big - time trophies some years hence.

George himself is an Olympic contender — he was entered in the 1936 Berlin games — and he also coached swimmers in Germany and Poland.

In Canada for the past 14 years, he is well - known to local air force families, whose children he has been coaching at the Canadian Forces Base pool in Trenton.

The teams he has entered from that organization have won a good proportion of medals at the Ontario swimming trials in Toronto during the last three years, he says.

His appearance on the Belleville scene was just one of those coincidental things.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pape, Belleville restaurateurs, have a daughter, Angela, who displayed a natural aquatic bent. She wanted to take lessons but, says Mrs. Pape, current city swimming groups, have a floor age of seven years.

Angela now is only six.

So the Papes went to see George about the possibility of having him coach their daughter.

The trainer, meantime, while successful with his air force group, says he was finding further ambitions frustrated by the constant movement of service families.

Too often this rules against conclusive, long-term training of potential championship talent.

They pooled their problems and came up with a solution — the formation of a new club in Belleville aimed at progressively training promising youngsters for competition.

The Papes got together with another Belleville couple, the Warren Whitleys, whose family also are interested swimmers.

They circulated the idea and found sufficient interest sparked among other city residents. They assembled, elected an executive and founded the club.

It was launched in the Tope' pool in September and now counts 45 student members from five to 15.

"We hope to produce a club for competition — it's the first time they've ever had one in Belleville," says Mrs. Pape.

George Sulkevicius is fairly confident of turning out championship challengers.

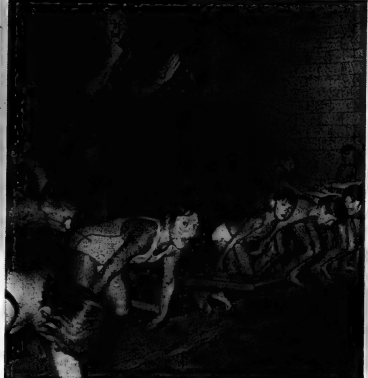
"It's a guess," he admits, "but if everyone works hard, everybody has a chance."

However, the coaching effort is something of a family affair.

Assisting George at the poolside during each lesson are three of his four daughters — Lela, 16, Regina, 15 and 12-year-old Peggy.

The club already is toying with one target — the Ontario swim trials next July.

If their trainer considers some students are ready "we hope to get some medals for the Belleville club," says Mrs. Pape.



Two of the club's young members are off to Florida this weekend to join a two-week Christmas swimming clinic.

Vicky Haggis 13, and Cindy Whitley, 10, will join George and his daughters Peggy and Lala for the event.

Also making the trip will be four members of the Trenton club.

Record Spending Spree for Christmas

Despite a late start due to unseasonably mild weather, Belleville Christmas shoppers embarked this week on a record spending spree.

Retailers polled by The Intelligencer expect a 10 per cent increase in sales this year over last year's record-breaking high. Women's apparel sales may soar even higher.

"Our cash register is ringing away," said one merchant. "Downtown businessmen have nothing to complain about this year."

His optimism echoes Canadian Press surveys predicting cross - Canada December sales 10 per cent in excess of last year's total of $2,323,000,000.

Shopping swung into high gear this week, with the peak expected during the last 10 days. The last two days before Christmas are their busiest, retailers say. By that time, however, shoppers are picking up last-minute stocking stuffers and total receipts fall off somewhat.

Stores have hired the normal number of seasonal employees to cope with the crowds. All report they are closing for the two days (Monday and Tuesday), following Christmas.

Many Belleville families will find a stereo record player in the Christmas stocking. Stereos are the hottest gift item in the appliance line. Color TV, a big seller in other parts of Canada, figured slowly in the local Christmas trade.

"Color TV won't be a big factor in sales until the cable is established," an appliance dealer said.

However, another merchant said he could sell more sets than he can obtain from wholesalers.

Refrigerators, a favorite gift in other parts of the country, fail to rate in Belleville.

"Bellevillians consider driers, freezers, dishwashers, which give the housewife a gift of leisure, a more suitable family present," commented a dealer.

A bonus feature of the mild wet autumn was a higher sale of driers in November and early December.

Toy retailers complain manufacturers and wholesalers underestimated the selling power of toys and games advertised on television.

"I think manufacturers create demands with their TV advertising which they don't and can't hope to fill adequately," said a toy shop owner. "Newly-created games and personality dolls sold out quickly."

Most men's wear merchants expect to top previous sales records, despite discouragingly spotty sales patterns early in the season.

Despite the Christmas demand, heavy men's apparel just doesn't move until a cold snap, said a retailer.

Mill strikes in summer cut into the Christmas supply of men's dress and sports shirts, both in greater than usual supply in some local stores.

Most jubilant of all are the women's apparel retailers.

"Our sales are riding more than 10 per cent higher than last year," reported one. "The high school crowd and young adults account for a good percentage of the increase. They have more money of their own and put most of it on their backs. We notice that each year parents try to exceed themselves in lavish spending on their youngsters."

The same retailer sounded a warning.

"High overhead costs are eating up the profit margin of manufacturer and retailer," he said. "Next year consumers can expect a five percent increase in the price of clothes."

Prince Edward Hospital Gets Accreditation

PICTON — Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital has received full accreditation for high patient-care standards.

The award is given by the Canadian Council on Hospital Accreditation and is the professional status symbol of hospital operation.

The new county hospital, in operation since 1956 with 85 beds and 28 bassinettes, has had provisional accreditation to this time.

"Only a few hospitals of comparable size in the province have received this award," notes an announcement from the hospital.

The accreditation applies for a two or three-year period at which time the council makes a return inspection before renewing the award.

Students Make Queen's Robes

TRENTON — The sewing class at Trenton High School has taken on the job of making Centennial Queen Susan Brown's royal robes, which she will wear to official functions during 1967.

No Salary Talks Yet

Secondary school teachers at Toronto and Hamilton are expected to ask for wage increases ranging up to 25 per cent for next year but teachers in Belleville still haven't gotten their salary inquiries.

At least not officially.

J. D. MacKay, chairman of the Belleville secondary school teachers' salary negotiating committee, had no comment today when asked whether salaries had been discussed by the committee.

"There is not much point in talking salaries until there is a board negotiating committee to meet with," he said.

Normally, the committee does not meet with the board until after the organization meeting early in January. Two teachers from each of the high schools in the city make up the teachers' salary negotiating committee.

Teachers at the four Bay of Quinte District high schools in Belleville are now paid from $5,400 to $11,100, depending on qualifications and experience.

The allowance for department heads is $500 and $1,000 depending on whether it is a minor or major department.

High school principals receive from $13,000 to $15,000 and vice principals $11,500 to $12,500.

TRENTON — Five-year-old James Whaley and his four-year-old brother, Randy, of 38 Ramsay Street, were treated for head cuts and bruises in Trenton hospital last night and released. Police Brutality Charged Chief J. B. McLauchlan today announced an inquiry into allegations of brutality against city police officers in the arrest of a Belleville man this week on burglary charges.

"This was brought to our attention yesterday and the investigation will begin at once," said the chief.

The allegations were reported made by a relative of the accused man, Patrick Marshall, 19.

Marshall, arrested early Wednesday, today appeared briefly before Magistrate T. Y. Wills on four counts of break and entry. He was remanded one week on bail of $1,000 cash or $2,000 property.

Chief McLauchlan said police officers are placed under a duty code of discipline similar to that of the armed services.

"If any officier is at fault he will be charged under the provisions of the Ontario Police Act," he said.

The chief added he would report on the complaints to a police commission meeting next week.

Marshall's case today was taken over by city lawyer Louis Marsakas under legal aid.

Rusk's Appraisal

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk has made some interesting comparisons between the Viet Nam war and other crises of the postwar years which help to place the Asian conflict in perspective.

Interviewed by David K. Willis of The Christian Science Monitor he said: "Think back for a moment, to the day when the Greek guerrillas were within 30 miles of Athens (presumably a reference to the communist insurrection in Greece after the last war), to the winter of the Berlin blockade, to the day the Huk-Bukalahap guerrillas had effective control of Manila, to the first week of the Cuban missile crisis.

"Compared with those times, this Viet Nam situation is much more manageable. We are committed in Viet Nam. We're there, and we'll stay there, until the job is done."

Mr. Rusk's appraisal of the American commitment in Viet Nam is understandable in general terms, but he betrays an unconscious cynicism in saying that the Viet Nam situation is more manageable than others the United States has faced.

In saying this the State Secretary forgets how completely unmanageable Viet Nam tends to be at times. There have been tactical errors aplenty, Americans killed by their own air support, civilians killed accidentally in the bushes, and all this quite apart from the trouble being caused by a skilful and ruthless enemy.

Mr. Rusk is right in his overall assessment of the U.S. commitment. There is no turning back from Viet Nam, because to withdraw would be to negate the whole purpose of the operation — the containment of communist aggression that threatens all of Asia.

The State Secretary makes no prediction as to when the conflict may be brought to a conclusion, other than to say when the end comes it may come suddenly. Mr. Rusk is not so naive as to believe in an outright victory, but the day may come when the North Vietnamese will agree to a negotiated settlement of the war.

Aussies' Escapade

Perth, in Western Australia, owes some of its impact on the world scene to the space age.

When United States astronauts started passing overhead in the course of their orbital flights, the citizens of Perth switched on the lights of their homes as a welcome to the globe-encircling Americans.

Perth came to be known as the "City of Lights."

A good place to live, one would think, quite apart from such other considerations as a warm climate and the broad sweep of the bay and attractive coastal scenery which are features of Perth's location on the big island continent.

But Australia, like other progressive countries, has its restless — and often bored — teenagers. And there are at least two of them who say of this fair city that "there is nothing to do" . . . 'in this mad town,' " as they call it.

And that is how Heather Vincent, 16, and Patricia Burgess, 15, found themselves tangling with the law recently. The girls stationed themselves on a pedestrian bridge over the busy Kwinana Freeway, handing down precariously from the railing while giving startled motorists below pieces of their rebellious minds.

Perhaps the Aussie duo got the idea for their hour-long escapade from the two Montreal sisters who performed a similar stunt on a Miami rooftop some months ago. A Florida judge sent the girls packing — to Quebec. The fate of the two Australians at the hands of the law was not revealed. Who knows, perhaps they were banished to Alice Springs amid the burning desert sands, or even to darkest Darwin.

Indeed, while pondering these two flights from the conformist mold, teenagers everywhere may agree that it is better to be a "square" and stick to the straight and narrow.

Moon Pictures

The recent pictures of the moon taken by the U.S. Lunar Orbiter are the most detailed and interesting published so far.

Earlier pictures made by cameras in both U.S. and Soviet space satellites were little better than those filmed through high-powered telescopes.

The latest American pictures show evidence that the moon, like the earth, has been subjected to volcanic violence. With this and other intelligence relating to its topography, the United States is drawing closer to the day when it will be able to send a manned flight to the faraway planet.

Prudential Loss $20,000,000

Angry Creditors Raise Cries of 'Gangsters, Bloodsuckers'

TORONTO (CP) — Angry creditors of bankrupt Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd., are demanding government action to bail them out from losses now estimated in excess of $17,000,000.

The creditors approved a trustee Thursday, but not before the elegant Royal Alexandra Theatre was rocked with shouts of "bloodsuckers", "gangsters", "corporate", "loan-Dushers" and even a call for a lynching.

It was their first meeting, and J. L. Biddell, president of Clarkson Co., trustee for the company declared in bankruptcy Dec. 5, told those now stand at $17,000,000, with more to come.

There were repeated demands at the meeting, attended by about 800 of 8,200 noteholders in Canada, that the federal or provincial governments, or both, bail out the creditors.

Resolutions called for attendance at the next creditors' meeting of Premier John Roberts, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart and C. C. Carrothers, a London, Ont., lawyer who was a director of Prudential Finance.

It took 30 minutes at the meeting to pass the first resolution which confirmed Clarkson Co. as trustees. The meeting lasted 3½ hours.

Mr. Biddell warned creditors it will take several weeks to sort out details, but losses will run between $18,000,000 and $20,000,000. Prudential Finance showed a book value of $25,000,000 when it was first reported in trouble about one month ago.

The creditors lashed out in all directions, some demanding the presence of Joseph Benoit Brien, Prudential Finance president, who faces six charges in connection with an investigation of the matter by the Ontario Securities Commission.

Mr. Biddell said Brien's lawyers had explained he was ill and unable to attend. Charges against Brien include theft and forgery. He is free on $10,000 bail.

Mr. Biddell said two or three of the dozen companies controlled by Prudential Finance may be placed in bankruptcy to protect the interest of creditors.

He said one of the companies would be Ontario Metal Specialties Co. Ltd. of Toronto.

To date, Prudential Finance-affiliated firms — Fitton Steel (Canada) Ltd., North American General Insurance Co., Wentworth Insurance Co. and Agency Insurance Services Ltd. —are bankrupt and in liquidation.

Mr. Biddell said Prudential Finance's operating losses between 1962 and 1968 totalled $11,000,000. The company had income of less than $3,000,000 in that time, he said, and it paid out $8,200,000 in interest.

The creditors elected five inspectors to work with the trustee on the future disposition of Prudential Finance's assets.

Various Reports Given at Red Cross Meeting

DESERONTO — Because of so much sickness among the members, this Christmas season the Deseronto Red Cross Society will attempt to send gift boxes to all senior citizens of the town this year. Instead, the Society is making a donation to each of the organizations doing this work for the less fortunate of the town; the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 280, the Lions Club, and the Salvation Army. The Society will however, remember with a small gift all the senior citizens who are in Hastings Manor, and in hospitals or nursing homes in Deseronto, Belleville Kingston and Napanee.

This decision was reached at the annual meeting held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Thomas Farrell.

A highlight of the meeting was the presentation to Miss Betty Merritt of the Badge of Service, the highest award the Red Cross Society makes. Teachers receive it for emphasis on Junior Red Cross in their classrooms for 15 years. Miss Merritt has received additional years of such work to her credit.

Most of the officers were returned for 1967, with only slight changes made. Mrs. Stafford Chase, Sr., is president; Mrs. William Parrott is first vice-president; Mrs. Gordon Walker, second vice-president; Mrs. George Stuart, secretary; and Mrs. George Robinson, treasurer.

The committee chairmen were all re-elected: Miss Ruth Lloyd, women's work; campaign, Mrs. George Walker; loan cupboard, Mrs. Leonard Wilson; Mrs. Donald Dawson, blood donor; Mrs. Gordon Welfare, Mrs. George Robinson and Mrs. Harold Trasnue; senior citizens, Mrs. Glenn Dafoe; Mrs. Lewis Gordanier, and Mrs. M. J. Ryan, with Mrs. Ryan named also as card convener.

Nova Scotia's Credit Laws Go Into Effect on Jan. 15

By IAN MacKENZIE

HALIFAX (CP) — Two acts designed to give Nova Scotians a better break when they borrow money will go into effect Jan. 15.

The acts, the Mortgage Brokers and Lenders Registration Act and the Consumer Protection Act, were passed at the spring session of the legislature and regulations were issued in November.

When they were passed, the acts were the first of their kind in North America. Only recently Massachusetts legislature also passed similar legislation this summer.

The first act provides that all mortgage brokers in the province register with the province and any mortgage broker, who lends on security of real estate and charges an interest rate of more than 10 per cent a year, must give the borrower a 24-hour cooling off period.

The second act requires that all other grantors of credit to consumers must disclose the cost of borrowing at an annual percentage rate, reflecting the actual out-of-pocket cost in the consumer.

PROVIDES YARDSTICK

Deric Burton of Halifax, registrar of credit for Nova Scotia, said in an interview Thursday the new acts give borrowers "the yardstick by which they can shop for credit freeing-fully."

"I think that's a free society if the interest rate is disclosed, the consumer is being given the information necessary to allow him to make a meaningful choice. It doesn't take anything away from the consumer's responsibility to look after himself."

Mr. Burton said there were no cooling-off periods similar to the one in Nova Scotia elsewhere in Canada, although the Prairie provinces are working on periods for purchasers from door-to-door salesmen.

Under the Nova Scotia acts, credit granters must register with the province and there are heavy fines for companies failing to comply with the requirements of the acts.

While there is a section in the Consumer Protection Act requiring certain disclosures by consumer salesmen-prior of goods, terms of payment, security, warranty and proper description of goods—it is felt the consumer "still is urging us to control close-to-door sellers," Mr. Burton said.

Description May Be Reason

Goodwin, Theodore Sorensen, Pierre Salinger, Arthur Schlesinger Jr., Burke Marshall, James Greenfield, John Douglas and John Siegenthaler, editor of the Nashville Tennessean.

Except for Siegenthaler, all those present had held important positions in Kennedy administration. Salinger, former White House press secretary, and Greenfield, former aide and assistant secretary of state, considered the group to be the conference had read the whole book. Others had read the parts of it which had come into dispute.

Referring to Manchester's interviews with Mrs. Kennedy the former official said "it's clear that Manchester took stuff from the tape recorder when Mrs. Kennedy was not in control of her sensibilities."

Nonetheless, he said, the sense of the meeting was to try to work out some compromise on disputed passages and not to take the case to court.

HEARD OF MEETING

He said he felt certain the Kennedy family would support it. "I'm sure somebody called and told them about it," he said. He did not say who he thought might have leaked the information.

Thursday, a informant, who is in the thick of the fight, said he had heard indications that Senator Kennedy may wish to dissociate himself with his sister-in-law's action.

"Manchester prepared a complete statement telling absolutely everything in complete detail," the source said.

"He intends to issue it today, but the lawyers have told him not to, to hold it in reserve. They're getting strong indications that the Senator feels he wants to get out and doesn't think it (the suit) was a good idea to go with it."

An aide to the senator, commenting on the report, said: "There is no connection conflict. He doesn't oppose the suit."

The complaint may be filed Saturday, or possibly today, Mrs. Kennedy's lawyer, Simon Rifkind, said.

Rifkind, a former federal judge, said the action is based primarily on the contention that the Kennedys have not approved the manuscript of the book as it stands. Only changes in the "memorandum of understanding," signed by Senator Kennedy and Manchester, says:

"The completed manuscript shall be reviewed by Mrs. John F. Kennedy and Senator Robert F. Kennedy and the text shall not be published unless both shall approve of them."

The question of breach-of-contract with respect to this paragraph may rest on two communications from Senator Kennedy.

A central figure in the pending action related this sequence of events with respect to the messages.

In late spring, when a number of revisions of Manchester's manuscript were requested, the author became "very distraught." The source said: "He wondered if the book ever would be published."

Manchester's representatives asked for assurances from Kennedy, and the senator sent a telegram saying the family would not stand in the way of publication. This, the publishers are expected to argue, constituted a release in the book.

But at the end of July or early August, Senator Kennedy sent a second telegram, countermanding the first.

"Since final approval was not given," a lawyer said, "I think there's little doubt that, in a straight breach-of-contract basis, Mrs. Kennedy will win."

Hydro Buys 6,500 Tons of Uranium

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro, building one of the world's biggest nuclear power stations at nearby Pickering, announced Thursday it is buying uranium to fuel it and another nuclear plant through the early 1980s.

George Gathercole, chairman of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, announced in a statement that agreements have been reached with Rio Algom Mines Ltd. and Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd. for purchases of approximately 6,500 short tons of uranium concentrates.

The uranium will be supplied on an expanding scale of deliveries running through to the early 1980s, the statement said.

"The two firms were the successful bidders on tenders called in September," said the statement. "Tenders were called on the understanding that terms would not be disclosed, in accordance with current policy in the uranium mining industry.

"Rio Algom will supply in excess of 80 per cent of the uranium and Eldorado the remainder. In the early years all the contracts Eldorado will also provide refining services at its plant in Port Hope, Ont.

"The contracts are estimated to be sufficient for continued fueling of the 200,000 - kilowatt unit at Douglas Point nuclear power station, the first two 500,000 - kilowatt units of the Pickering nuclear power station, now under construction, for operation in 1970-71, and additional generating capacity of 500,000 kilowatts of nuclear electric power each year thereafter to 1980.

"The Douglas Point station is expected to produce its first power in the next few weeks."

Douglas Point is on the east shore of Lake Huron, about 40 miles southwest of Owen Sound.

Fruit Salads for Bridge Parties

QUESTION: I would like a salad suitable for serving at bridge club. — Mrs. J.S.

ANSWER: The following is ideal for your purpose.

BRIDGE PARTY FRUIT SALADS

Lettuce Cups: Be extravagant when preparing the lettuce cups. Allow 3 well-cupped leaves for each individual salad plate, carefully drying them.

Have ready: 1) drained canned grapefruit sections. 2) drained canned pineapple rings, 3) bananas cut in halves, crosswise, spread with mayonnaise and rolled in chopped blanched almonds, 4) plump stoned prunes filled with white cream cheese, 5) choice dessert figs filled with cubes of Gouda or Swiss cheese, 6) small bunches of choice grapes — preferably Thomson seedless. To assemble: Put 1 ring of pineapple on lettuce leaves to form base. On both sides of it put 2 large sections of a canned grapefruit. At front of salad put a nut-coated banana half. In centre of pineapple ring put a stuffed prune. Then place a small bunch of grapes and a stuffed fig attractively where you think the arrangement requires them. Serve with Fruit Cream Dressing: Three tbsp. sugar, 2 tbsp. flour, 2 eggs, 2 tbsp. vinegar, 1 lemon, juice and grated rind, 1 cup juice from canned pineapple, 1 cup cream, whipped. Mix sugar and flour in upper part of double boiler. Add beaten eggs, vinegar, fruit juice and grated rind. Cook over gently boiling water, stirring constantly until thick. Chill; just before serving fold in 1 cup cream, whipped.

Ann Landers

Ann Not Always Right But She Is Fair

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you raised an interesting question: "Why would a person write to a newspaper columnist for help with a problem?" I would like to tell you why people write to Ann Landers.

You are the poor man's psychiatrist, the lonely man's confidante, the teenager's counsellor, the ignorant man's source of information.

In your forthright, sometimes painfully blunt answer, you dish out common sense like nobody else in the world — in language that everybody can understand. I am sure you have no idea how widespread is your influence — how much good you do.

You are not always right, but then who is? But you are fair. When your readers have disagreed with you, you have published their letters — and on occasion you have admitted you were wrong.

Your column is a great forum for public opinion. I have seen many vital issues debated in your space. And your column acts as a gradual cure-all in day-to-day living. You present your own opinions and the opinions of the experts. And you also print the views of ordinary, everyday folks who may not be educated but who have become wise from experience.

If you accomplished nothing else you'd be in line for a service medal for just letting thousands of lonely, frightened, unhappy, angry people get a load off their chests. I want to thank you, Ann Landers, for being there. — AN ADMIRER.

DEAR ADMIRER: It is reassuring to receive a letter like yours — especially after last week's "Drop Dead" — "Go Drown" messages from teen-agers who are mad at me because I don't like some of their music.

I really don't mind the angry letters because I know that often I am serving as the substitute whipping girl. When a reader unloads his anger on me he is letting somebody alone.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several months ago I became involved in a sordid affair. It occurred at a difficult time in my life when I was trying to recover from the loss of my husband. I fell in love with a married man in our church but I broke up with him when I came to my senses.

My parents were crushed. They spared no words letting me know that I had disgraced them. I became deeply depressed and finally consulted a doctor. He convinced me I must snap out of it and stop hating myself for what I had done.

I returned to my church and asked for forgiveness. Everyone has been wonderful to me and no one mentions the past. My parents, however, cannot forgive me. They were once faithful church-goers but now they say they cannot show their faces in church.

Every Sunday when I see their empty seats, I want to die. Perhaps I should not have returned to the same church but I felt if I could not hold my head up there, I couldn't hold it up anywhere.

Please tell me what to do. — HEARTBROKEN DAUGHTER.

DEAR DAUGHTER: Obviously your parents have decided that you haven't suffered enough and they are going to see to it that you suffer some more.

Now that you have shown your face I suggest you transfer to another church. When you sit and look at those empty seats, you are asking for it, Girl.

TRUDY

"Now, how could I have forgotten that?"

Honor Couple On 25th Anniversary

STIRLING — Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McMullen of Stirling, R.R. 2 were tendered a party by their family at their home on Sunday on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. A large number of relatives and friends were in attendance.

The two daughters, Mrs. Gerald Morgan (Murriel) of Port Hope, and (Shirley) Mrs. Ralph Carlisle of Stirling, and the son Jim received the guests as they arrived.

Mr. and Mrs. McMullen welcomed the guests in the living room. Also present were the attendants, Mr. and Mrs. Percy McMullen of Batawa and the bride's mother, Mrs. Percy Brownson of Marmora.

The rooms were decorated with an array of silver decorations, bells and white poinsettias. The dining table was covered with a white damask cloth and centred with a three-tier anniversary cake in white and silver decor. Floral arms and services with cups and saucers were used for the occasion and pouring tea were the bridegroom's aunt Mrs. Percy MacMullen; also Mrs. Earl Wallace, Mrs. George Carlisle and Mrs. Sid Morgan. A number of others assisted the daughters with serving. The Misses Joyce and Susan MacMullen of Belleville were in charge of the guest book which recorded guests in attendance from Delora, Madoc, Marmora, Foxboro, Belleville, Batawa and the surrounding areas.

The honored couple received a large array of greeting cards which included a message from Rod Webb, M.P. They were also the recipients of numerous gifts which included a silver tea service from the immediate family; a recliner chair from brothers and sisters and a special gift of linen from the neighbors.

Mrs. McMullen is the former Kathleen Brownsoch, daughter of Mrs. Percy Brownson, Marmora and the late Mr. Brownson, while Malcolm Alexander McMullen is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James McMullen. They were married May 7, December 13th, 1941 in Trinity United Church parsonage by Rev. Alfred Poulter.

They resided near Springbrook for several years and later moved to the old home instead, formerly the Sharp farm near Stirling. Both are members of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling and Mrs. MacMullen is an officer of the Laurel Rebekah Lodge.

On the night previous the daughters entertained several members of the immediate family at a turkey dinner at the McMullen home.

Readers Send Lines To Complete Poems

Dear Doris: With reference to the poem "Two Kinds of People" signed Author Unknown, the author was Ella Wheeler Wilcox and it was published in her "Poems of Power". — R.I.P.

Dear Doris: The poem "Two Kinds of People" or "Which are you?" has two additional verses:

"In which class are you?
Are you easing the load
Of overtaxed lifters, who toil down the road?

"Or are you a leaner, who lets others share
Your portion of labor and worry and care?" — Miss O.B.

Dear Doris: Trusting I am not intruding in your business, allow me to quote the poem as found in a book called "The Best Loved Poems of the American People". You will see there are four additional lines. — D. S.

Dear R.R.F., Miss O.B., and D.S.: —

Thank you for pinning this down for us; also for the four final lines.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox wrote many inspiring poems. She was the sort of person who would delight in sharing some of them with us if she were still here.

Dear Doris: Thank you for your column every morning with my breakfast.

Re the mother who has the eight-year-old who wants to sing: Here is a game she could play with the child. (Of course she herself must know how to sing a major scale.).

Count and sing the scale — "One - two - three - four - five-six-seven-eight." Then "one-four-one," and "one-five-one." Stay with that until facsimiling, then "one-three-five-eight."

No piano is needed as intervals are the same at any pitch. This could be lots of fun with a bunch of kids. When they can do the common chord, "one-three-five-eight", then it is fun to mix the numbers up, using the "one" quite often to get back to base.

How I wish I could get hold of some youngsters for myself but my town seems to have no niche for me. I have thought of trying an orphanage. It is a shame for me to go to seed. — Retired Musician.

Dear Musician: Lovely idea. In Record of Music," Marie used the same techniques with delightful results. I'm sending you the contact in your town who will surely put you to work on behalf of musical youngsters.

Dear Doris: What is a teenybopper? When I was going home from school with my boy friend, one of his friends called out "Leave her alone, she's just a teenybopper!"

The really bothers me. I don't like his friends. They are rude and dirty. — Fifteen

Dear Fifteen: According to my teen-age interpreters, a teenybopper is an innocent little girl. The idea is that these smart - aleck boys thought your boy friend might take advantage of you.

Readers: Any other suggestions?

Christmas Plant Care

Dear Girls: A little advice for the novice plant and flower lover that might help her keep her Christmas plants lovelier longer.

The beautiful poinsettia can still be enjoyed for another month after Christmas if given tender care. It is allergic to drafts and appreciates a steady warmth — not too close to the radiators though!

As humidity is the one factor which makes plants thrive so well in the greenhouse, besides heat, it is only natural to try and simulate these conditions as much as possible.

Rather than take a chance on chilling your plants, it is wise to warm the water slightly before pouring it on. Rain water and melted snow are preferable to sodium softened water — (if you have a water softener.)

When in doubt about whether a plant needs watering, there is a way to test, although I always feel foolish when I try it. A dry pot has a clear ringing note when tapped — a wet pot produces a dull sound.

For longer enjoyment of Chrysanthemums, Azalea, Cyclamen and Primulas, keep them in light and at a cool temperature (about 60 degrees). Water only if the soil is dry to the touch, or if the pot rings out with a ping on the first tap you give it.

Wonderful happy holiday wishes to you all. — Susanna

Dear Susanna: Did you know that beating eggs in aluminum pans will darken them? — Mrs. Festus E. Fairplay.

So that's what's been causing it! — SUSANNA

U.C.W. Meetings

HOLLOWAY STREET U.C.W.

An enjoyable skit was presented at the general meeting of Holloway Street United Church Women on Tuesday evening. The setting for the play was a living - room decorated for the Christmas season. Several girls arrive in after shopping, exhausted and each one felt that Christmas was a nuisance — that Scrooge had been right. One girl had a better idea. She was giving gifts of herself, giving each member of her family and friends a card listing what she would do for them. She offered to help her sister with her school work and piano practice and make fudge for her brother once a week.

Her advice was "If we thought less of things and more of making people happy, it would make Christmas merrier for all. Then we would have the real Christmas spirit".

Taking part were members of Mrs. G. Carlisle's unit, Miss Lenore Wilkes, Mrs. V. Halsey, Mrs. G. Carlisle, Mrs. E. Tilbrow, Mrs. H. Hutt, Mrs. J. C. Wallace, Mrs. Ron Barker assisted.

Holiday Coifs Give Quick-change Glamor

1. These party-going coiffures provide quick-change glamor in minutes. Then literally rise or fall as the occasion demands. For instance, the "Sprite Upsweep", worn by actress Raquel Welch, avoids any pre-set. Hair is simply swept to the crown and blade forward into a halo roll. Accenting the high-rise curvature is a glittering tiara, while a flurry of finger-shaped bangs scamper across the forehead. Trend - making news: pencil-x ears and brows will be in view again.

2. For the long hair beauty (and six out of every 10 girls prefer this length), asymmetrical coifs are the party-time answer. They not only do wonders for the contours of the face, but introduce easy-care, yet dramatic styling. In this shoulder-touching bob, hair is parted low, so one side will be full and shapely, the other clean-line and sculptured. Continuing the geometric guide lines, the bangs are parted off-centre. Strands are lightly teased to ride off eyebrows and follow the cupped line of the flip bob.

3. Another dazzle coiffure is a head-hugging upsweep that looks good from any angle. Hair is tumbled forward, so a swirl of curls circle the crown and a ring of bangs fan the forehead. Raquel, who co-stars in the 20th films, "One Million Years, BC", keeps top ringlets large, loose and overlapping for lifted shapeliness. As her mirrored reflection shows, the strands are softly highlighted with streaks of spray-on gold, which is still another way to send off sparks during the holiday party whirl.

P.S. If you'd like set, style and comb out suggestions for eight new hair styles that are designed to flatter short, medium and long hair, send for our photo-illustrated booklet, "New Look Coiffures".

Enclose 20 cents and a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Youth Parade, Reba and Bonnie Churchill—New Look Coiffures. The Intelligencer, Room 1310, 80 King St. W., Toronto 1, Ont.

CARS Gives Party For Area Patients

The annual Christmas dinner party given by the Belleville Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society was held in Christ Church Hall on Wednesday evening. Those in charge had transformed the room into a real Christmas fantasy.

The president of the Auxiliary, Miss Gladys H. McDonald, welcomed the guests. Vice-president of the Board of the local society, Mr. Don Grant, asked the blessing. Dr. J. S. Loynes, president of the Belleville Branch brought greetings from the Board and expressed appreciation to the Auxiliary not only for the lovely banquet but for the wonderful work they have done over the years.

Conveners of the dinner were Mrs. A. A. Gemell and Mrs. Don McKinney. Entertainment convener was Mrs. A. W. Hume.

There were patients present from Madoc, Springbrook, Stirling, Brighton, Belleville and Point Anne.

Christmas carols were sung, led by Mrs. Nina Veale with Mrs. Evelyn Bannon at the piano. Two pairs of dancers, Miss Colleen Clancy and Miss Luann Bell, and Miss Carla Christy and Miss Mary Ellen Belanger delighted the audience with their terpsichorian abilities. Mr. Phil Grant played a selection on the accordion.

Gifts were distributed to the patients by Mrs. A. W. Hume on behalf of the Auxiliary.

Tickets were sold on two tone pillows, donated by Mrs. Saben Arnott, and these were won by Mrs. H. Neill and Mrs. C. Both.

Chemical Treatment For Cancer

LONDON (AP) — A British scientist said Thursday chemical treatments can cure certain types of human cancer in a proportion of cases.

The claim was advanced by Sir Alexander Maddow, director of the Chester Beatty Research Institute. He told a press conference that "Over the last year we have for the first time applied chemical treatments which can completely cure two types of human cancer in a proportion of cases."

One type, he said, is called choriocarcinoma, a tumor which sometimes follows pregnancy. On this one "the rate of success is 80 per cent," he added.

The other type is lymphoma, found mainly in African children. There the rate of success was about 16 per cent.

"In neither case does the chemical treatment necessarily have to start early in the history of the disease for it to be successful," Sir Alexander said.

He suggested that the chemical treatments also had ancillary benefits. For instance, he said, the remedy could impede the growth of other cancerous growths and while not curing the original malady completely, the impediment would give patients "many more years of life."

Ouimet Bombarded

TV Sex Sparks Senate Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — Television programs about sex sparked a spirited debate Thursday between CBC President Alphonse Ouimet and the Senate finance committee.

Indignant senators accused the new CBC program called Sunday of invading Canadian homes with immoral, obscene and dangerous films and panel discussions.

For three hours, they bombarded Mr. Ouimet with barbed questions. They suggested that Sunday producers be disciplined and that CBC programming be controlled more tightly by management.

The CBC president defended Sunday and said it would be impractical to have internal censorship of TV programs. "There has always been a consensus in Canada that broadcasting should be free and uncensored."

He repeated his earlier statement that a seven-minute British film shown on Sunday Nov. 27 was a mistake and that it should have been cut. But the program had generally improved and more time was needed to pass final judgment.

The Nov. 27 film clip, showing an unmarried couple in bed, was bitterly denounced in the Senate and Commons and led to the Senate committee hearing Thursday.

PURPOSE QUESTIONED
"What is the purpose of your sex programs?" asked Senator Harry Hays, former agriculture minister. "What are you trying to do? You can have the complete breakdown of marriage if that is your purpose."

Mr. Ouimet replied that Sunday informs the public about rapid changes in manners and tastes. Half the population was under the age of 25 and teenagers generally were "much more permissive and tolerant in matters of morals and standards than the older half."

Senator Louis-Philippe Beaubien (PC — Quebec) suggested that Sunday producer Daryl Duke and his aides be called before the committee to explain their objectives.

Mr. Ouimet replied with heat that it would be "deplorable" if individual producers were hailed before parliamentary committees.

No action was taken on Senator Beaubien's suggestion.

Senator Gordon Inmor (L—Nova Scotia) praised the CBC for doing "an exceptionally fine job."

The Way Around France

Without France, how successful will the North Atlantic Treaty Organization be in 1967? France's withdrawal could leave a "neutral belt" across Europe, comprising France, Switzerland and Austria, with all but the most innocuous NATO air flights having to fly around the three countries. (CP Newsmap)

Virtual End of Hope

Didn't Trust Bankers, Prudential Creditor Says

TORONTO (CP) — "Later some of my friends asked me why I hadn't gone to my bank for advice before I invested," said Rev. Allan Ferry, one of the 800 noteholders of the Prudential Finance Corp. attending a creditors' meeting Thursday.

"The truth was I didn't trust bankers."

Mr. Ferry, who retired from the United Church two years ago, and many of Prudential's other 8,500 creditors in three provinces, appear to trust almost no one.

At a three - hour meeting, where much of the affairs of the company declared bankrupt Dec. 5 was paraded amid the red-plush elegance of the Royal Alexandra Theatre, the creditors provided most of the drama.

Clutching microphones, many declared they no longer have faith in lawyers, governments, trust companies, the Clarkson Co., who are trustees for Prudential, or Metropolitan Trust, trustees for the noteholders.

The meeting spelled the virtual end of hope of much recovery for the noteholders, who will share Prudential's estimated $20,000,000 loss.

Like Mr. Ferry, many had invested their total savings.

"I'm not worried for myself, it's my family," said Ed Mackey, a motor company worker now on a workman's compensation pension.

"It was to be my retirement money. I have six children. I figured if anything happened to me this would be something for them."

He pulled a photostat of a debenture for $24,750, payable Feb. 1, 1967, from his pocket.

Mr. Mackey said that on the advice of his lawyer he took his money from government bonds and put it into Prudential, which was offering 7¼ per cent interest.

In the theatre lobby, Mrs. G. Scaif, who said she is 75 and has lost $2,000, couldn't quite understand it.

Albert Ivitza, 70, held out his light raincoat.

"This is what I have left," he said.

A retired machinist, he sank his life savings of $32,000 in Prudential, $14,000 in a short-term note bought in September.

Collapse Blamed on Government Neglect

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, leader of Ontario's New Democratic Party, said Thursday night the provincial government has "forfeited its right to govern" because of the collapse of Prudential Finance Corp.

"All of the damage has been caused because of the government's neglect," he told a news conference. "Much of that damage remains irretrievable."

Mr. MacDonald said the government must assume immediate responsibility for the administration of Prudential Finance and its subsidiaries and called for a royal commission to inquire into the default of these related companies.

All policy holders in Ontario of North American General Insurance Co., Wentworth Insurance and Agency Insurance Services "must be insured immediately by the government."

He said adequate compensation must be established for Prudential Finance noteholders to make certain they don't suffer "the tragic consequences of action they took in good faith."

FREDERICTON (CP)—E. E. Trudeau of Toronto, president of Canadian Acceptance Corp., said Thursday he expects to see stronger security laws to guard against failure of finance companies.

Mr. Trudeau said in an interview Thursday the laws should call for disclosure of how such companies as Atlantic Acceptance Corp. and Prudential Finance Corp. invest and otherwise handle their money.

One of the causes of the bankruptcies, which meant considerable losses to many small investors, was probably too fast a rate of growth and use of inexperienced staff.

TORONTO (CP) — Vernon Singer, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Downview, said Thursday night Premier John Robarts should set up a judicial inquiry into the collapse of Prudential Finance Corp.

"The premier owes them a public investigation and a promise . . . that gaps in the province's securities laws will be closed."

Cyprus Force Remains

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations Security Council decided unanimously Thursday night to keep the UN peacekeeping force in Cyprus for at least another six months, until June 26, 1967.

The 15-member council accepted on the request of Secretary-General U Thant, who said withdrawal of the force this month would almost certainly have resulted in a war between the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

The UN force, sent to Cyprus in March, 1964, includes Canadian troops. Until the council acted Thursday, its mandate was to have expired Dec. 26.

"The persistence of the unsettled situation in Cyprus points" forcibly" to a further six - month extension of the force's mandate, Thant said in making his request to the council, "for there can be little doubt that the removal of the force at this time would create a quite unwarranted risk of the renewal of fighting in the island."

Turkey complained to the council that "arms and armored equipment are being secretly imported into the island from abroad, under the ridiculous pretext of arming the Greek police."

"It is interesting to note that these arms and equipment, which include armored tanks, heavy mortars and bazookas, are of a kind which are commonly used for military aggression and not for policing," Turkish Ambassador Orhan Eralp said.

MD Has History of Pioneering

By JOE DUFUS

TORONTO (CP)—Trying the unfried is the big weapon in the medical arsenal of Dr. William T. Mustard, 52, Toronto's world-renowned cardiovascular specialist.

When Dr. Mustard operates next week on Allyson Burleson, five-year-old San Jose, Calif., girl with a heart defect, he will be using a procedure he developed at the Hospital for Sick Children here in 1964.

Allyson is suffering from a transposition of the great blood vessels which reduces the blood supply and causes progressive thickening of the blood. Dr. Mustard's method involves redirecting the blood flow through an artificial baffle sewn inside the heart.

Only 22 when he graduated from the University of Toronto's medical school in 1937, Dr. Mustard, a boyish - faced, balding man, has a history of pioneering in surgical procedures.

His first attempt at bold experiment came in 1964 on the Belgium battlefields of the Second World War when he used glass tubes to save the arteries of the blast-shattered legs of a Scottish officer and a New Brunswick soldier. It was him the British Empire Medal.

In a unique operation in 1953, he operated on a polio-stricken California boy, snipping one end of a good muscle in the boy's hip and stretching it around to the back. The method became known as the Mustard Procedure.

He was part of a Toronto team that used an artificial heart and a monkey's lung to keep babies alive during heart surgery.

Recently, Dr. Mustard performed an operation on siamese twins, born in a Guelph couple, whose hearts protruded outside their chests after they were separated. One twin died. The other is at home.

Auto Anti-Pollution Ten-Year Problem

MONTREAL (CP)—The automobile, North America's largest single source of air pollution, will probably continue that role until at least 1980 in the United States, an air pollution expert said in an interview Thursday.

John A. Maga, chief of air sanitation of the California department of public health, was in Montreal for a panel on pollution.

He said that since the average age of cars in the U.S. is about six or seven years, it will take probably until 1980 before all cars on the road will have anti-pollution devices on them.

Mr. Maga said the only solution is enforcement of anti-pollution legislation.

NEW YORK (AP) — This planet ultimately will become unfit for mankind unless the pollution of air and water is held in check, a Washington University scientist told a conference on pollution Thursday.

"We are at a new and perilous point in the history of the human habitation of the earth," said the scientist, Dr. Barry Commoner, director of the Washington University Centre for Biology of Natural Systems, in St. Louis.

In pre - industrial days, he said, it was reasonable to expect that smoke emitted into the air and wastes put into rivers would be diluted by clean air and clear water.

"But now we have begun to run out of environmental reserves; there is simply not enough air and water on the earth to absorb current man-made wastes without effect."

Dr. Commoner mentioned Lake Erie as an example of an over - accumulation of wastes, which has reduced the central portion of the lake's oxygen to zero.

"The lake's life cycle has been forced out of balance and what was for tens of thousands of years, a beautifully clear and productive inland sea, in a decade has become a foul and decaying sink. How and when the balance could be restored is a matter of conjecture."

C. R. Smith To Probe Port Tie-Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The promised federal inquiry into the West Coast ports tie-up will be conducted by Mr. Justice C. Rhodes Smith of the Manitoba Appeal Court, Labor Minister Nicholson announced Thursday.

Mr. Nicholson promised the inquiry in a settlement formula that ended the three-week tie-up last week. The dispute centred on demands by foremen to form their own collective bargaining unit.

Mr. Justice Smith, a former Manitoba labor minister, will be assisted by two assessors, H. J. C. Terry of Vancouver, former president of Northland Navigation Company, and Joseph Morris, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress.

The commission will not only look into the latest dispute, but will make recommendations designed to forestall such disputes in future.

In his Commons statement, Mr. Nicholson also said the cabinet has framed a directive to guarantee all stevedores eight statutory holidays a year under the Canada labor standards code.

The order-in-council put into force regulations based on an amendment to the code given royal assent Wednesday.

Under amendment, people who work for more than one employer are specifically included in the requirement for eight paid statutory holidays and two weeks' vacation with pay for employees whose firms operate under federal jurisdiction.

Many stevedores missed out on both benefits because they worked for several employers, none of whom was legally responsible for providing the holiday and vacation pay.

The annual Christmas party for Batawa children was held on Saturday evening in the Community Centre.

A half hour of movies was shown and Santa Claus distributed Christmas stockings to the children.

Watch Parcels, Warn Police

With the Christmas shopping season about to go into full swing, Inspector Harold Reid of the city police department, reminds shoppers to make sure their presents are not lost through carelessness.

"Between stops, each lot of packages should be put in the trunk of the car, rather than piled up in the back seat. By far the safest place for parcels at this, or any other time of year, is the trunk."

Walt Disney Dies of Lung Cancer

His Studio to Follow Guideposts for Growth

BURBANK, Calif. (CP-AP)—The Disney empire will keep on growing, says the older brother of producer Walt Disney, who died Thursday 10 days after his 65th birthday. He suffered from lung cancer.

Roy Disney, 73-year-old president and chairman of the board of Walt Disney Productions, said:

"Walt Disney's preparation for the future is a solid creative foundation. All the plans for the future that Walt had begun through motion pictures, the expansions of Disneyland, television production and our Florida and Mineral King projects will continue to move ahead.

"That is the way Walt wanted it to be."

Besides multi - million - dollar additions to Disneyland, the projects include a $150,000,000, 27,000-acre Disney world at Orlando, Fla., and a $35,000,000 summer and winter recreation facility at Mineral King in California's high Sierra.

Walt Disney Productions reported earnings of $12,000,000 on gross revenues of $118,000,000 for the year ended Oct. 1. Company revenues, at an all-time high, come primarily from theatrical film (45 per cent) and Disneyland (28 per cent). Television shows, music, records and publications are other sources.

Disney and his wife owned about 13 per cent of the company stock. Disney family members own 20 per cent of the stock.

Walt Disney, a onetime Missouri farm boy whose creative genius delighted a troubled world, died 5½ weeks after a lung operation.

An informed source told The Associated Press that the removed portion of the lung was cancerous and that the cancer had spread.

In 40 years, Disney's enterprises ranged from such screen delights as Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and Snow White to the world-famous amusement park, Disneyland — with more projects ever in the works.

Disney was born in Chicago but moved as a boy with his family to a farm near Marceline, Mo., and later to Kansas City, where he studied cartoon lag and began experimenting with animated fairy tales.

Arriving in Hollywood in 1923 with $40, he formed a partnership with Roy and in time founded an entertainment kingdom on an animated cartoon mouse named Mickey.

Based on a rodent that used to sport around his Kansas City studio, the character was named Mortimer by Walt but renamed Mickey by his wife. Walt supplied its voice for the screen.

Donald Duck, Goofy, Pluto and other cartoon characters followed under Disney's imaginative leadership.

Disney dominated his studio, which branched into fairy-tale classics like the hugely successful Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, the first feature-length cartoon.

Then came part-animation, part-live-action films and finally all live features climaxed by Mary Poppins, one of the most successful movies of all time.

Disney was a stubborn nonconformist who brought his imaginative dreams to reality. In the 1965 annual report of Walt Disney Productions to shareholders and employees, he wrote: "We're interested in doing things that are fun — in bringing pleasure and especially laughter to people."

Success and honors piled up in profusion for the creator-tycoon. From organizations and governments around the world he received more than 900 awards, including 31 of the Motion Picture Academy's Oscars.

President Johnson gave him the presidential medal of freedom, the U.S. government's highest decoration for a civilian.

Cold War May Resume

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

The Soviet Union's guns-before-butter budget portends new political strains for Moscow.

The budget, reflecting for 1967 the highest rate of military spending for a decade, indicates a substantial hardening of attitude toward the United States and resumption of some of the more chilling tactics of the cold war.

There are several causes.

First—According to information coming from Moscow, the Kremlin is uneasy about the U.S. government, as if fearing its past performances in Vietnam and the Dominican Republic means it is ready and willing to intervene anywhere in the world in a revolutionary situation.

Second — Official Russians, the same sources say, have concluded that underdeveloped areas of Asia, Africa and Latin America — independent all too soon—are so unstable that there may be a succession of small wars. The U.S.S.R. itself may be involved in one, just as the Americans now are involved in Vietnam.

Third—The U.S. is far ahead in experience with guerrilla war, as well as in experimenting with new weapons, new tactics and strategy, new deployment and logistics techniques and the like learned from such developments as Vietnam and the Dominican Republic. The Soviet military has had none of this.

Russia's military men are believed demanding more preparation for what might come. To attempt to deflect this pressure might lead to a situation which could endanger the rule of Party Chief Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin.

Perhaps, then, it is expedient to bow to military-conservative pressure rather than listen too attentively to demands of a younger generation and a public hungry for more consumer goods.

There have been growing signs of a burgeoning debate between Soviet intellectuals representing a new generation, and conservative Communist party people who are the backbone of the government bureaucracy and who, to a large extent, are responsible for drawing up policy guidelines.

Indications are that the conservatives, resisting political and economic change which might endanger their standings, would like a strong party reassertion of control over all aspects of Soviet life and less stress on a promise of abundance.

With a public whose hopes had been raised by a decade of stress on a future flourishing economy, refreezing the cold war will be unpopular.

Foxboro Race Car Designer Turns It Into Family Affair

By Harry Mallall
(Staff Reporter)

It's not a widely-known fact, but car racing is the second biggest spectator sport in North America.

But, if ever a Canadian driver in a wholly-built Canadian car steers into the big-time, there's a fair chance the vehicle that rockets him there will be built on Belleville's doorstep.

Even if it does, chances are people will have difficulty defining how it happened.

Certainly, says Roy Hayman, they seem to have problems right now believing he already may be the only man in Canada wholly designing and assembling cars geared to competition on the continent's race tracks.

Even few of his own neighbors on the Foxboro Road, less than a fair-size lap north of Belleville, realize his achievements to date.

To do that, they would have to follow him to the nearby Canniffon workshops of drilling contractor D. G. Kleinsteuber where his latest self-constructed track contender is now being assembled.

When its modified Chevrolet motor is ensconced under the low-slung aluminum skin, the model may yet be seen taking a Canadian track at speeds up to 180 mph.

Roy Hayman is confident of the potential prowess of what he calls his Hayman SR 3.

The SR designates sports racing. The numeral means it's the third car of its kind he has turned out — working nights at the Canniffon shop.

A sheet-metal craftsman working at Canadian Forces Base Trenton, he came here from England in 1953. A dedicated track enthusiast, he launched his wholly-home-built car project in 1964.

That Hayman SR 1 had a dramatic end — it crashed at Mosport during the Indian Summer Trophy trials. Its driver escaped unhurt and it had already developed a speed of 150 mph to prove its designer's ability.

His second production piece — the Hayman SR 2 — is now in Montreal, delivered to driver Russell Murray and being readied for next Spring.

Building the perfect sports-racing challenger can be a cumulative process, building toward the perfect model through a series of designs.

"The things that wins most races is workmanship," says Roy Hayman.

Now assembling his third he feels confident of its challenge potential.

"We could win the Canadian championship — with the right backing," he says.

Therein is revealed his second driving ambition — to find a sponsor willing to back one of the Canadian-built cars he can build for a Canadian driver to contest a track triumph.

"That's the hardest part of Canadian racing. We don't get any backing whatsoever."

"You need somebody to build and race a Canadian car, with a Canadian driver sponsored and backed by a Canadian firm."

He ponders on the possibility of some business magnet or company seizing on the idea as a Centennial Year advertising project.

To produce a top - flight winner can be costly - particularly in terms of labor and design.

But working alone in the shop at Canniffon - with his own designs and enthusiasm — he figures his cost "somewhere between $7,000 and $8,000" per model.

He is frank about how he meets his initial investment before a car is ready for delivery.

His enthusiasm for the track is matched by his wife Jean and their four children. Mrs. Hayman is a Belleville office - worker and helps subsidize the cost budget.

"Jean and the kids are crazy about racing," he reveals.

(The kids — Alan 14, Susan 12, Ian 11, Janet 10 — readily agree. In fact they look forward to a possible holiday next year around the tracks with a junior sports racer which father may yet modify).

But a portion of that outlay is not lost locally. While parts are cast to his specifications notably in Morrisville, Toronto and Kingston, much of the machining is done in Belleville at Morch Manufacturing Ltd.

The frames are manufactured from chromalloy tube — a tough combination of chromium and molybdenum. Roy also insists on welding the frames — instead of the more widely practised brazing.

It "takes a lot more trouble" but it results in a stronger skeleton on which to assemble a racer's powerful anatomy.

Sometimes he will work through the early hours of morning, meticulously shearing the body sheaths of aluminum to gauge, painstakingly placing parts in position.

However, he has no desire to change his personal contact with the workmanship demanded.

"I don't want to build cars on a production line basis to make money," says Roy. "You can't start employing people—I like to do everything myself."

Neither does it particularly worry him that few people know or even believe — his work.

(Recently a wealthy Canadian track enthusiast had his car badly damaged in a crash. Roy wrote offering to build another body.

"He didn't even reply.")

However, he adds: "I can do it. I don't have to prove it to anybody."

Ready to Roll--and All His Own Work!

Roy Hayman sits at the wheel of his SR 2 — the second sports racer he built at Canniffon workshop. The car later was delivered to Montreal in preparation for next year's track season. Meantime, Roy now is working to complete his third model — titled the Hayman SR 3, of course.

William Fairbairn Lives It Up... But Only One Week Every Year

Preparing for Christmas and your birthday all in one week is a test of any man's endurance.

But William Fairbairn can take it in his stride better than most, for he's had lots of practice at the chore.

Tomorrow, you see, it will have been happening to him for the 90th time.

And just to demonstrate the point, not too long ago he sawed down a tree in his back garden at 325 Charles Street!

Activity has been the keynote of his life.

A railroader who first entered service in 1901, he recently was hailed for his service to the railroad brotherhood itself; he's been prominent in community affairs and has a record of more than two score years as a Belleville church elder.

And by his fresh-faced looks, activity may be a recipe for agile longevity the world could borrow.

Born Dec. 17, 1876, at Kingston, where he also flourished as a sportsman, he started railroading with the Grand Trunk in Belleville and by 1905 had received his engineer's classification.

He retired in 1941 while operating fast passenger trains between Belleville and Toronto.

The keenness which he still displays may also have played a role in the highlights of his railroading life.

In the late 1930s when King George VI and Queen Elizabeth were visiting Canada, he was selected to crew the Belleville-Brockville leg of the royal tour.

The choice was repeated the same year when President Roosevelt journeyed to Canada for the opening of the Ivy Lea Bridge.

The president made a vivid impression on him — one that still lingers.

"He was a man that as soon as you looked at him he drew you right to him — just like a magnet," Mr. Fairbairn recalls.

Besides the essential railroad job of piloting trains to their destination, he also served railroaders for 21 years as divisional secretary of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

From that association he now is the proud possessor of four service pins — the last awarded recently in Belleville by his fellow railroaders for 50 years loyalty to the brotherhood.

His community service includes 24 years on the former joint public - secondary Belleville school board; eight years on the board of health and 44 years an elder of St. Andrews Presbyterian church.

Today he's readying to step across the threshold of his life's ninth decade. Tomorrow, he's confident that stride will be as spry as ever.

Appearances don't lie — he is as vigorous as he looks.

His secret: "I look care of myself in my younger years."

On the Threshold of His 90th Christmas

City Police Happy if Motorists Warned of Radar Unit

By Maurice Switzer
(Staff Reporter)

Police don't really want to catch speeders in this weather, or for that matter, in any weather. It's just that traffic statistics seem to indicate that accident occurrence is closely linked with the number of city court Highway Traffic Act convictions.

In other words, the more motorists that get tickets, the fewer are involved in accidents.

Statistics compiled by the city police department show an increase in local traffic convictions this year has been accompanied by a decrease in the number of road mishaps on police books in 1965.

In the first nine months of this year, 2100 traffic convictions were registered in Belleville. There were 588 accidents on city streets during that time.

In 1965, during the corresponding period, 1823 Highway Traffic Act convictions were made, but 664 accidents appeared on the books.

Speeding seems to be by far the most common misdemeanor, with one-third of the city traffic convictions falling in this category.

One fact revealed by police records is that the incidence of speeding during months of poorer driving conditions is not less than in balmy seasons.

In fact, during January and February of 1966, there were a total of 26 more radar-detected speeding infractions than in the next four months combined.

This despite the fact city police employ radar less frequently in inclement weather, giving the average driver credit for some lota of safety consciousness.

Many drivers, whatever the weather, are somewhat skeptical about the efficacy of police radar units. Some are certain that they can "beat" the radar by pulling strips of tin-foil in their hubcaps.

It doesn't work, nor do any of a number of other such gimmicks, say police officers. The accuracy of the device has been established by the courts.

The portable radar unit used by city police operates off a car battery and consists of three components.

The first of these is the one seen by the motorist — a metallic, spotlight-shaped instrument with two prongs protruding from it. Attached to the side of the police cruiser, this device emits a radio beam, which, when it hits the nearest moving car within a distance of 600 feet, changes wave length.

A control box measures this change and relays the data to a meter box, which calibrates the information in terms of the speed being travelled by the object detected by radar.

The unit is always tested before use with a tuning fork, the vibrations of which give a reading of 65 miles per hour when held several inches from the detector.

Radar clocks vehicles travelling both toward and away from its location, and if so desired, may be locked at a maximum reading so that drivers stopped for speeding can see the reason for their ticket.

Certain fallacies have it that police get upset when motorists are forewarned of radar locations. But there is no commission on traffic tickets.

City police traffic officer Ralph Petrie says: "We find it's a great deterrent just for radar to be seen on highways and streets. Our function isn't actually to look for drivers to charge — it's to keep traffic moving as safely as possible.

"When motorists who have passed through radar installations flash their headlights to "warn" oncoming traffic, they are actually performing a service to the police and other drivers. If they slow speeding drivers down to be on the lookout for radar, there is always the chance that those motorists will remain driving at a sensible speed."

Constable Petrie cited an instance when a citizen posted a sign several hundred yards in advance of a police radar checkpoint. Police made no attempt to remove the sign.

As for police using "scare" tactics in nabbing speeders with radar, Constable Petrie says: "We don't hide behind trees or signs. We are most often no more than 10 feet from the road side, because it is from that position that the radar unit sends out the most effective beam."

Radar checks are made in high accident and complaint areas, in addition to general patrol locations.

Through such techniques as radar, police are trying to reduce last year's record high traffic death toll of 4,879. The effort will have been worthwhile if several hundred can be cut off the 395,000 traffic accidents on Canadian roads in 1965. So the more drivers that try to "beat" radar, the better.

Handy Gadget for Christmas Warns of Speed Trap Ahead

By Lenny Williamsen
(Staff Reporter)

A gift for the man who has everything has reached the market in time for Christmas season shopping.

It's a battery-operated, alarm-clock-size radar detection unit to clip on a car's sun visor.

When you approach a police radar-trap the device blasts out a "beep-beep" warning to ease up on the accelerator.

At $59 the device was a hit seller in Kingston the day after it hit the stores.

Belleville shoppers can order the unit for Christmas delivery from two city car accessory dealers.

"We have none in stock," said one dealer. "With $50 you can pay a lot of fines and we thought the thing wouldn't sell."

He said two Toronto auto-equipment salesmen sport the unit on their sun-visors.

Kingston police are in favor of the device.

"If it stops speeding I hope they sell a million," one said.

"It's taking the practical view," said another dealer. "Until the device is approved by the Department of Transport it's not a legal accessory on motor vehicles."

The same man came up with an electronics-age solution to the problem of speeding motorists.

"Police could easily make a device of their own to fool the midget detector," he said. "Install on trees at 500 foot intervals along highways it would agitate the car unit into uninterrupted beeping. A mad game of double-deception might be just the ticket to shock motorists into sane driving."

A psychologically sound idea," commented Belleville police.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Should by the grace of the gods that watch over hockey; courage, ability, guts and Gilbert, the New York Rangers win the 1966-67 Stanley Cup and the accompanying emoluments, there will be the damndest upheaval in the Gotham sports pages, since the yacht America slaughtered the British out of the championship that now bears its name.

During my August junket to "east side, west side, all around the town," I dropped into the editorial offices of the New York Times. I introduced myself — and was given the red carpet of hospitality. I was escorted through the various departments and wound up in that which houses the sports-scribbling fraternity of the organ that uses "all the news that fit to print."

I was invited to join the sports boys at their regular "elevenses" cooling-off period held in a nearby watering-place, over a "typewriter tornado" (four layers of rum, Pyrkiller, Scotch and portland cement) I talked shop with a handsome grey-thatched youngster.

The rest of the gathering gabbed about the Mets, Jets, Giants, Yankees and Knicks. I ventured a stab in the dark at my companion.

"Do you fellows ever talk hockey down here?"

He looked at me a trifle surprised, I thought.

"Hockey? Oh, yes, there's a team here they call the Rangers. I am a member of your National Hockey League — and I might add one of its stopping stones."

"We cover the games," he said, "but I must say the sport doesn't rate here with basketball, football and baseball although it must be admitted the Rangers have a good following among New Yorkers."

That was last August.

In the columns of the New York papers the streamers barked out loud with the exploits of the Mets and National and American baseball league. The show but sure put the fear of the cellar dungeons of the American drew columns of type — and features by columnists.

Now it is December. The National Hockey League is under a full head of steam. So are the New York Rangers, enjoying the strange experience of looking up and seeing nothing there.

Credit the Broadway Boys. Their league-leading antics have lured them from the hideaway pages of Gotham's dailies to the prominence of eight-column streamers and pictures. The New York scribes are rearing true to form. Give them a team that hits the top — and they'll give it the space.

Sleepy-eyed Gothamites (non-hockey fans) wakened the other morning and rubbed their eyes in amazement, what kind of clap-trap is this?

Across the back page of the Daily News ran this big black streamer, "Wow, We're First!"

The Times lifted the Blues from a usual single-column coverage in an eight-column banner with a column-long story and a four-column picture of Ranger Kurtenbach pushing the puck past a surprised Canadiens Charlie Hodge.

Last week the World Journal Tribune, New York's newest newspaper, published a huge cartoon showing the Rangers being "read out of the club" by the Bruins, Habs, Leafs, Yankees and other lowly sports teams. The point was the Rangers are not fit company for such bottom-flushers as the Mets, Jets and cousins.

Now in a few short weeks they are the darlings of Broadway. Top-team hungry New York scribes scent a new copy mother lode. The Garden is en fete, the venerable walls laden with Ranger home date. Crowds wait to greet their conquering heroes as they emerge from the dressing rooms.

The Rangers are riding high and if as was noted they win the Stanley Cup or even finish atop the league standing there won't be enough ticker tape on Wall Street to do them proper homage.

And don't be surprised either to see them paraded on that cloth of "cheese."

This would be the first time a Gilbert and Sullivan show was ever costumed in hockey paraphernalia.

Hull Repeats; Athlete of Year!

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Bobby Hull, blonde thunderbolt of the Chicago Black Hawks, has been named outstanding Canadian male athlete for the second year in a row.

Hull, who fought a tight race with runner Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., in the 1965 voting, this year swept into first place by a comfortable margin over quarterback Russ Jackson of Ottawa Rough Riders.

Crothers pulled only one vote — for third place — this time.

The 321 sports writers and broadcasters who voted in the 32nd annual Canadian Press year-end poll gave the 27-year-old left winger from Point Ame, Ont., 232 points — 71 more than Jackson, Canada's football-player-of-the year.

Gary Cowan of Kitchener Ont., who won the Canadian amateur golf championship this year, was third 43 points behind Jackson.

Voters were asked to name the top three individual athletes in order of preference and points were computed on a 3-2-1 basis.

Hull polled 56 first-place votes, 25 seconds and 14 thirds. Jackson had 18 for first, 44 for second and 19 for third.

Cowan had 18 first-place votes, 20 for second and 24 thirds.

JEROME IS FOURTH

Harry Jerome of Vancouver, world-record sprinter who won a gold medal in the 100 - yard dash at Kingston, Jamaica, in the 1966 British Empires Games, was fourth with 91 points, 27 behind Cowan. Jerome shares the world record of 10 seconds over 100 metres with four others.

George Knudson of Toronto, the Winnipeg-born golfer who won individual honors at the Canada Cup matches in Tokyo, came on late to move into fifth spot ahead of swimmer Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C.

Knudson had 66 points on 14 firsts, seven seconds and eight thirds. Hutton, who won a gold, five second-place silvers, and two bronzes at Jamaica, had 61 points on two firsts, five seconds and nine third-place votes.

Hull, five-foot-10 and 193 pounds, broke the NHL scoring record last year with 54 goals and with a total-points record with 97.

The 27-year-old, who moved into the NHL 10 years ago from junior hockey, had tied the old 50-goal record in the 1961-62 season — sharing it with Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geffrion, both of whom hit the mark playing with Montreal Canadiens.

One of the strongest players in hockey, his biceps are bigger than those of heavyweight champ Cassius Clay.

Jackson, Hamilton - born vice - principal of an Ottawa high school, won the player-of-the-year and top Canadian player awards in the Canadian Football League for the way he led the Rough Riders into the Grey Cup championship game.

Ottawa was defeated for the championship 29-14 by Saskatchewan Roughriders, quarterbacked by Ron Lancaster, who got two third-place votes in the best-athlete balloting.

Below sixth place in the balloting, there were only scattered votes for a variety of athletes.

Tied at three points apiece were Moe Norman, Kitchener, Ont., golfer; George Athans Jr., Kelowna, B.C., water - skier; Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wings; Gary Leiberra, Edmonton Eskimos, Western Football Conference rookie of the year; and Avelino Gomez, Toronto, jockey trying for the North American riding championship.

Bracketed at two points each were Fergie Jenkins, Chatham, Ont., pitcher with Chicago Cubs; Lancaster; Terry Evanshen, Calgary Stampeders flanker; Jim Day, Toronto, equestrian.

Single third - place votes went to Crothers; Bobby Rousseau, Montreal Canadiens; Ron Northcott, Calgary, skip of the world championship curling rink; Bobby Orr, Boston Bruins defenceman; Ken Neilson, and with Winnipeg Blue Bombers; George Faulkner, Bishop's Falls, Nfld., scoring leader with the national hockey team.

Senior "A" Hockey

How They Stand

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dave McComb of Collingwood Georgians didn't score a goal or get an assist last week in Ontario Hockey Association Senior action, but still held on to a nine-point lead in overall scoring.

With 29 points on 17 goals and a league-leading 22 assists, McComb stayed ahead of teammate Herc Brainard, who has 20 points on a league-leading 22 goals and eight assists.

Collingwood leads the league by the scoring power of these two, but Woodstock Athletics are second, with much of the credit going to rookie goalie Ray Reeson.

Reeson let 21 goals in last week, but also managed to maintain his league - leading goals - against percentage, although it rose to 2.88 a game from 2.62. His nearest rival is Hook Jewell of Collingwood with a 3.10 percentage.

The closest rivals to McComb and Brainard are Jack Price and Bob Bishop, both of Oakville Oaks and both with 29 points. Price has 16 goals and 13 assists and Bishop 20 goals and 19 assists.

Scots To Represent Toronto?

TORONTO (CP) — Steve Stavro, owner of the Toronto franchise in the new North American Soccer League, Thursday said he would like to see Hibernian, a Scottish First Division team, represent Toronto in the league.

A spokesman for Hibernian said in Edinburgh that they would accept an invitation to represent Toronto in the 11-team league, Stavro said.

A decision on who will represent Toronto will be made at a meeting of league directors in Houston Dec. 28-29.

"Numerous clubs from Europe, Mexico and South America have made applications and it is up to the directors to decide which teams they want," said Stavro, who also is a league director.

Other teams in the league will be from San Francisco, Vancouver, Cleveland, Houston, Detroit, Dallas, Los Angeles, Chicago, Baltimore and New York.

Mo-Hawks, Face Test

Woodstock Here Tonight

The Mo-Hawks reach the half-way point in their OHA Senior "A" 40-game schedule this weekend by meeting two of the loop's toughest teams.

Ted Powers leads his second-place Woodstock athletics into town for the first time tonight for a nine o'clock battle.

Saturday the Mo-Hawks trek to Galt where they hope to make up for an 11-2 pasting the hands of the Hornets. That game starts at 8:00. Galt holds down third position, one point back of Woodstock.

Galt will be remembered here from his hey-day with the old Chatham Maroons. He is playing coach of the Woodstock crew, a team this corner figures to be right in their battling for league honors come March.

Woodstock tripped the Mo-Hawks 5-1 in the opening game of the season and has strengthened since then. But so has the Mo-Hawks.

Coach Floyd Crawford expects to have a full squad ready for tonight's battle. He had four defencemen back in action for the first time in two games. Peterborough's Greg Marchen has been given the medical O.K. to play. The big youngster, once he regains his skating legs, is the club policeman. It is a job he may have to prove in the next couple of days against the Athletics' roughie, Pat Bester, and Galt toughie Larry Ziliotto.

"The boys are rounding into shape and look more like a solid hockey club every time out," coach Crawford said not too long ago.

However, the positions are not yet set. If Bobby Attersley can be obtained and either Keith Montgomery or another defencemen that Floyd has contacted work out, the second half of the schedule should provide Belleville fans with some great hockey.

Right now the club owns a won-and-lost record of 9-9, good enough for a fifth-place tie with Guelph Regals. The Mo-Hawks hope to better that mark but it won't be easy. Every game will be that much tougher as the season progresses.

"We look for a tough one tonight and hope for our usual strong fan support," says Crawford.

The Mo-Hawks will likely stick with the lines of Bob Taylor between "Wiener" Brown and Eddie Martineau; Ralph Plane centring Bob McAlpine and Wayne McConnell; Gary Darling giovaning Minnie Menard and "Shaker" Baker. That leaves Lou Senske and Gary Grendahl as extra forwards. Smrke has been hobbled by injuries most of the season but his hockey know-how makes him a valuable asset. Grendahl, too, will be impossible to keep out of a regular spot if he can locate his scoring eye.

Following the weekend games, the Mo-Hawks go to Hamilton Tuesday and Galt is back here next Friday.

St. Louis Blues

Cards Must Win; Cowboys Crumble

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The staunch defensive unit that has carried St. Louis Cardinals' flickering title hopes on its broad shoulders for six weeks in the National Football League will be battling for half a loaf Saturday.

Not only must the Cardinals defenders stop the Cleveland Browns in their survival test, but New York Giants' defence —most maligned in NFL history —must turn back Dallas Cowboys' potent attack Sunday if St. Louis is to sidestep elimination in the Eastern Conference stretch race.

The Cowboys, leading the East by a full game going into the final weekend of the season, can lock up their first division championship if second-place St. Louis doesn't get past the Browns. Even if the Cards win their game, Dallas will need only a tie at New York to finish on top.

Stacked against the St. Louis defence, which has kept the Cards alive since quarterback Charley Johnson's knee caved in at New York on Nov. 6, will be Cleveland's hard - driving ball quarterback Frank Ryan and hard-running Leroy Kelly.

The Browns were ousted from the eastern race by Philadelphia Eagles last Sunday.

The Eastern winners earn the right to play host in the NFL's title game Jan. 1 against Green Bay's Western Conference champion, Packers.

Washington Redskins, who stalled Dallas 34-31 last week, entertain Philadelphia in their season finale Sunday while Minnesota Vikings visit Chicago Bears. Green Bay is at Los Angeles Rams, Baltimore Colts are at San Francisco 49ers and Pittsburgh Steelers are at Atlanta Falcons.

Fight Tonight

Torres 12-5 Favorite

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Tiger, who showed signs of old age in his last fight eight months ago against a welterweight, moves into more dangerous territory tonight when he takes on Jose Torres in a light heavyweight title fight.

Torres, 30, making a record fourth defence of his 175-pound crown this year, is a 12-5 favorite over the 37-year-old, former two - time middleweight champion from Nigeria, in the 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

Torres predictions of a knockout victory over a steel-chinned foe who has never been stopped has spurred interest in the match.

It may draw a crowd of 15,000 and a gate of $125,000. Torres has been guaranteed $75,000 against 40 per cent of all receipts. Tiger will collect 20 per cent of all receipts.

In his last fight on April 25, the 180-pound Tiger was floored for the first time in his 14-year professional career and lost the decision and middleweight title to the 150-pound Emile Griffith, then the welterweight champion.

Tiger has a 53-15-3 record, including 25 knockouts. Torres's record is 39-11 including 27 knockouts. His only defeat was a fifth round knockout by hard-hitting Florentino Fernandez in San Juan, P.R., May 28, 1963.

A year before, the wide-hooking Fernandez met Tiger head-on and was chopped up in six rounds.

Aces Whip Bears 4-2

QUEBEC (CP) — Robert Rivard scored two goals to lead Quebec Aces to a 4-2 victory over Hershey Bears in a rough American Hockey League game before 6,581 fans Thursday night.

The victory was Quebec's 16th of the season against 10 losses and three ties and moved the Aces to within two points of the Bears, who lead the league's Eastern Division with 33 points.

Jean-Guy Gendron and Claude Mortson scored the other Quebec goals, Ralph Keller and Bruce Cline scored for Hershey.

A total of 24 penalties were called during the game, including three majors and a 10-minute misconduct in the first period.

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says that Frank Johnston, former assistant coach of British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference, will join the Eastern Conference Toronto Argonauts as offensive coach for 1967.

Toronto coach Bob Shaw would not confirm the report. "I still have two more workouts for me," Shaw said in an interview Thursday night. "That's all I can say at this time."

The two men referred to by Shaw are assistant coaches Bob Dennis and Gord Atkerman.

Wings "Stingers" Blank Bruins 4-0

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pittsburgh Hornets have provided the sting for Detroit Red Wings.

Three players, sent to the Red Wings' American Hockey League farm club for sharpening, celebrated their return to the fold Thursday night by leading Detroit to a 4-0 National Hockey League victory over Boston Bruins.

Sid Abel, general manager and coach of the Red Wings, has been shuffling players back and forth between Detroit and Pittsburgh most of the season in an effort to get his club out of the NHL basement.

Andy Bathgate, having trouble getting the puck in the net, was shipped to Pittsburgh for almost two weeks.

And Parker MacDonald, who had 33 goals for Detroit in the 1962-63 season, didn't even start the current campaign with the Red Wings. He and Ted Hampson started off with the Hornets.

Another player the Red Wings haven't been happy with most of this season is teminder Roger Crozier. Although Crozier hasn't been sent to Pittsburgh, he has been benched twice.

Bathgate, in his second game since his recall from Pittsburgh, scored two goals Thursday and Hampson and MacDonald scored one each. Crozier played a brilliant game in nets as he kicked out 21 shots to register his third shutout of the season.

Bathgate got only three goals in his first 17 games with Detroit. He had four goals and six assists in six games with the Hornets.

MacDonald scored his second goal in four games since being recalled to give Detroit a 1-0 first-period lead. Bathgate made it 2-0 with his first goal of the night at the 15-minute mark of the second period and then pushed it to 3-0 near the halfway mark of the third period with a blistering slapshot.

Hampson closed out the scoring with his sixth goal of the season at 11:31 of the third period.

The victory was Detroit's second in its last three outings and extended Boston's winless streak to 10 games as the last-place Red Wings climbed to within one-point of the fifth-place Bruins. Boston has 17.

Crozier, whose shutout ties him with Ed Giacomin of New York Rangers for the league lead in that department, made spectacular diving saves on Joe Watson and Jean-Paul Parise in the third period and also stopped Pit Martin on a break-in.

The Red Wings had 32 shots at Boston netminder Gerry Cheevers.

In Saturday's action, Chicago Black Hawks will clash with Montreal Canadiens in Montreal and the Rangers will be in Toronto for a game with the Maple Leafs.

Sunday Montreal is at Boston, Toronto at Chicago and New York at Detroit.

"It's About Time"

Carl Brewer Now "Simon Pure?"

WINNIPEG (CP)—"Man it's about time!"

That statement by Roger Bourbonnais of Canada's national hockey team summed up the feelings of all concerned when Carl Brewer was re-instated as an amateur Thursday.

It marked the end of more than three months of bickering between the nationals, professional hockey and Brewer, former all-star defenceman with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

Brewer is expected to play his first game as a member of the national team against Russia's touring B team in Victoria Sunday.

"It's a boost not only to Carl, but to the whole team," said Bourbonnais, the nationals' veteran centre.

Coach Jackie McLeod said he realizes that Brewer is not in top shape and it will take time to get him into form. He wasn't able to practice with the nationals prior to obtaining his release and while he skated to keep in trim, "it wasn't the best of ice and couldn't take the place of workouts with the team," McLeod said.

"He is bound to help us experience-wise and in many other aspects," said Gary Begg, assistant manager of the nationals.

"He is going to be a fine teacher. We'll learn a lot from him."

Defenceman Terry O'Malley said Brewer should mean at least one less goal against the Russians. "Yes, he's that much of an asset to us."

Brewer, 27, played 433 regular-season games and 63 playoff games with the Leafs before walking out of the Toronto Junior Canadiens in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, just isn't having any luck in Montreal.

The Canadiens lost their ninth game of the season Thursday night, this time 3-1 to Hamilton Red Wings. The loss leaves them in last place in the nine-team series, three points behind Peterborough Petes.

In the other OHA Junior A game, three third-period goals enabled the Petes to defeat St. Catharines Black Hawks 5-3 at Peterborough.

M. Rivers scored on a solo effort for the Canadiens.

It was announced that Christmas holiday skating instructions will be held daily for boys and girls, Monday, December 26 to December 30, inclusive. American Football

Babe, Boston's Best Bet

NEW YORK (AP)—Don't be surprised if Boston Patriots, who'd like to wrap up the American Football League's Eastern Division crown against New York on Saturday, try to do it primarily on Babe Parilli's strong right arm instead of Jim Nance's churning legs.

The Jets can be expected to concentrate their defence on Nance, who needs 120 yards to track the 1,500 mark for the season. And that could leave some inviting targets open for Parilli, who proved last week that the Patriots' offence can travel as well in the air as it can along the ground.

The last time New York's defensive lins faced Nance, it held the big fullback to 56 yards in 19 tries, one of his lowest outputs this season. That and the fact that Parilli completed 13 of 21 for 265 yards and three touchdowns against Houston Oilers last week could mean the Patriots will throw against the Jets.

One thing is certain. The Jets, with Joe Namath at the controls, will throw against the Patriots. Namath riddled the Pats for 26 completions and 336 yards the first time the two teams met. That game ended in a 24-24 tie and a similar result would clinch the Eastern title for the Pats.

New York must beat Boston if Buffalo Bills are to stay alive in the eastern race. If the Jets come through, the Bills can take the division championship by beating Denver Broncos Sunday. A Boston victory or tie against New York Saturday eliminates Buffalo.

Howie Young Paces Blades

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Howie Young, former National Hockey League defenceman, scored on a 55-foot slap shot and added two assists to lead Los Angeles Blades to a 5-2 Western Hockey League win Thursday night over Victoria Maple Leafs.

The victory gave the third-place Blades 26 points in the WHL race, while the Maple Leafs remained in sixth spot with 20 points.

Young's pair to Tommy McVie set up Los Angeles' first goal at 2:17, but Victoria tied the score on Milan Marcetta's shot a few moments later.

In the second period, Young cut loose from just inside the blue line to whistle a 55-footer past the Victoria goalie.

Bruce Carmichael tied it 2-2 for the Leafs, but the Blades finished strong with three straight goals by Mel Pearson, Dick Meissner and Norm Johnson.

Italian Director Finds England Difficult

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The lean, long-faced Italian gazed mournfully at the wild scene: Film stars and lesser-knowns, dolled up in miniskirts and mod clothes, writhing on the dance floor to the ear-splitting music of a rock 'n' roll combo.

"I can direct better scenes in my films," muttered Michelangelo Antonioni.

The great Italian director, whose films include: The Red Desert, La Notte and L'Avventura was guest of honor this week at a London-style bash given by Vanessa Redgrave and David Hemmings, co-stars of Antonioni's first English - language film, The Blow-Up.

Antonioni occasionally lapsed into a smile as he met such guests as Rosalind Russell, Natalie Wood, Rock Hudson, Rex Harrison and Warren Beatty.

But most of the evening he viewed the scene dourly, as seems to be his custom. In the quieter surroundings of his hotel suite, he took a dim view of filming outside Italy. He shot The Blow-Up in England earlier this year.

"Mentally it is difficult to work in England," he said in his halting English. "The system of work is so much different from Italy. I need around me a climate of enthusiasm, and that is not easy to have when you work in a studio. It is like working in a bank or office.

"It is impossible to shoot fast in England; the unions do not allow it. You have the tea break in the morning and in the afternoon; the English drink gallons of tea.

"I like to shoot in the streets, but in London you run into problems from Scotland Yard and other authorities. One night I started filming in Regent Street at 9 in the evening and the police came up and said 'Stop!' I was forced to halt production until two in the morning.

"In Italy that would never happen. You would slip some money to the policeman and go on shooting."

How did he fare in his first directorial job in England?

"It was difficult," he admitted. "When you are not working in your native tongue, you feel unsure and you worry that you might get the wrong intonation.

"But I understand English better than I speak it. When I heard the lines being said, I could tell whether they sounded right or not. And I would change them if they didn't sound right."

BBC Responsibility 'Not Clear'

OTTAWA (CP) — The government must spell out clearly areas of jurisdiction for the CBC and the Board of Broadcast Governors in proposed new legislation, a Commons committee was told Thursday.

Dr. Andrew Stewart, BBG chairman, said the government policy white paper issued during the summer did not outline just how the authorities of the BBG and the CBC's board of directors would be divided.

It is most important to find out "how these things are going to be meshed in a workable way," he added.

The white paper, forecasting revised broadcasting legislation, says the publicly-owned CBC "will be subject to the regulatory power" of the BBG in "all matters affecting general broadcasting policy." This would include standards of quality and "the nature of the service" of the CBC.

Dr. Stewart told the Commons committee on broadcasting he is unable to interpret these "generalizations." The government would have to outline clearly the "lines of demarcation" between the two bodies.

He suggested the approach should be to study every function performed by each group and make a ruling on which one should have ultimate control of that function.

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Templeton, broadcaster and journalist, has been appointed director of news and public affairs for the CTV television network, it was announced Thursday.

Murray Chercover, CTV general manager, said Mr. Templeton will join the network Dec. 22.

The appointment follows the dismissal last week of Michael Hind-Smith as vice - president of programming for CTV.

Mr. Templeton has been involved in recent speculation about succession to Andrew Thompson as leader of the provincial Liberal party.

He finished second to Mr. Thompson at the party's leadership convention in 1964.

China Ousts Reporters

PEKING (Reuters)—China today ordered three of the six Russian news correspondents here to leave the country before Christmas, the New China news agency reported.

They were accused of "anti-China reporting."

The agency said Chen Weifan, deputy director of the Chinese foreign ministry information department, today summoned the acting Soviet charge d'affaires V. N. Razdukhov, and told him three of the six Russian correspondents resident in China should leave before Dec. 25.

The agency report today did not name the correspondents nor disclose whom they represented.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate

"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Occasionally, a letter is received that is outstanding. The following is in this category. In a few words, it vividly illustrates that the whole science of urban economics is still in the experimental stage.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: For ten years, the experts have been telling us what is wrong with our neighborhood. The more they do, the worse it gets.

First we were told that the neighborhood lacked recreational facilities, so they ripped out a block and created a park, which is now overgrown with weeds and worth one's life to go any where near at night.

Next we were told that the cause of our trouble was that the streets were choked with automobiles. More houses were torn down and a parking lot built. Now it is piled high with abandoned cars and is also a collecting point for city dumpers.

The experts then diagnosed the problem as a lack of play areas for small children. More houses were ripped down to create "tot lots". These small lots have no children in them, but are a excellent place for dumping rubbish.

Then an Urban Renewal project was started. We were supposed to get new houses and apartments. To date, all we have are rubble strewn blocks that look like a fought over battlefield.

Now we are told that the neighborhood requires, "total treatment," and application for funds is being made. With my high school education, I'm reluctant to dispute the planners and scientists that keep studying us, but, humbly, I say "You don't know what you are doing." The cure of the doctors is worse than the sickness. They are making our neighborhood unlivable.— Mr. D. U.

ANSWER: The above letter is one of the most thought provoking I have ever received. While being somewhat harsh in its criticism of the planner, it also contains its own commentary.

Actually, situations similar to these details can be seen in most cities. It does not mean that we should give up our fight against blight, but rather, many of our present approaches require reexamination. We are slowly coming to the realization that mere spending of money will not solve our problems, but what is needed—are new concepts and ideas.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm a small builder. I've just completed an industrial building and a reputable company wants to rent it. Since they will install special machinery, they need at least a 20-year lease to amortize the equipment.

I'm satisfied with the rent they are offering. However, I know with the passage of time, the present rent will be inadequate in the future. I speak from experience for I now have two other buildings in this situation. Is there an easy method to protect the income against inflation? — Mr. B. E.

ANSWER: The most convenient, easiest and least controversial way I know is to provide that the rent paid be adjusted periodically, based on a published index. The two indexes most often used are either the Cost of Living Index or the Rent Index. It has been my own experience that periodic adjustments every two or three years are most practical.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I would like to buy a house, but I have no idea of what price house I can afford. I am employed as a foreman and make $7,200 per year. — Mr. D. K?

ANSWER: An accurate reply to the above requires a complete analysis of the debt, obligations, income, savings and prospects of a family. However, there are general guides. For a family in the lower middle income group, such as described by the letter, the price of a house based upon factors in the current market should not exceed twice annual income.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I've followed your advice from beginning to end in building my new house, but I'm still sitting in a smoke filled living room. I picked a good architect, a reputable builder, and a helpful bank as you recommended. One year later and $45,000 poorer I have a well-built house.

However, every time I light a fire in any of the two fireplaces, the smoke pours through the house. The architect says that it is not a fault of design, and he cannot understand the trouble. Can you? — Mr. S.

ANSWER: The above trouble arises not because of the poorly built house, but because the house is too well built. A modern house of good construction is so weather tight (caulking, weather stripped, storm windows), that no air leaks through to feed the fire hence inefficient burning and smoking. Opening a window or door slightly will quickly remove the problem.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have a simple question, not really a problem, but I'm sure many other persons besides myself are curious about the answer. Why does water condense on a windowpane in winter? — Mr. C.

ANSWER: This common phenomenon has intrigued many people, and the explanation is quite simple. Air contains water in the form of self-invisible gas, and it is called vapor. The warmer the gas, the more invisible vapor it is capable of holding.

In winter, the temperature of the inside air may be, for example, 75 degrees and the temperature of the glass may be 40 degrees (depending on the outside temperature). Forty-degree air is capable of holding less vapor than 75-degree air. Therefore, the warm air striking the windowpane loses some of its invisible gas in the form of vapor, and it is condensed out and becomes visible water.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

CUB PARTY

MELROSE — On Monday evening, the Cub leader arranged a special "fun" night for members of the Pack. Each cub was accompanied by his father who was invited to take part in the games. The boys enjoyed, the adults participating in the activities.

At this meeting, A.C.M., Mrs. Thomas Howard, was presented with a ten - year service pin and badges. Mrs. John English, who has also served for ten years, and was to have received a like award, was unable to attend so the presentation will be made at a later date.

The boys willingly helped serve refreshments and joined the lunch committee in cleaning up the kitchen.

Sunday School Lesson

Preparing for What?

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Billy Graham is undoubtedly the best known evangelist in the world today. Millions have heard him preach. Other millions have heard his messages over radio and television. Thousands have responded to his invitation to surrender their lives to God.

Before Billy Graham goes to a city to preach, many persons go ahead to prepare for his coming. Some go to set up special prayer meetings. Some go to train special counselors. Some go to train a mass choir. Some go to promote attendance by advertising. This does not take away from Billy Graham's image as a great evangelist. This is just good evangelism. If Billy Graham's preaching is to be effective, people must come to hear him preach. Everything that excites people about his coming only to strengthen his ministry when he gets there.

In a far more significant way, this was to be the work of John the Baptist. He was to help prepare the way for the ministry of Jesus. As he himself was later to declare, he could not do what Jesus would do. He would only be the introducer of Jesus when He appeared on the scene. He would point the way to the coming of one greater then himself. (Matthew 3:11) His would arouse in people an expectation of Jesus' ministry. (Luke 3:15) His work would be to "make ready for the Lord a people prepared." (Luke 1:17 RSV)

The Christmas story, then, is the story of two births, not just one. It is the story of the birth of the Child of Bethlehem to Mary. It is also the story of the birth of a son to Zechariah, the priest, and his wife, Elizabeth. Both births are preceded by a vision. Mary is promised the birth of a son who will be called "the Son of the Most High." (Luke 1:32) Zechariah is promised the birth of a son who will be called "the prophet of the Most High." (Luke 1:76) Elizabeth's son will be a foretoller. Mary's son will be a fulfiller. Elizabeth's son will call for repentance. (Luke 3:7-8) Mary's son will offer forgiveness. (Matthew 1:21)

MANY PEOPLE PREPARERS

Many people are called to be preparers. Parents help to prepare their children for life. Teachers help to prepare their students for a life of scholarship and service. Counselors help to prepare men for devotion to God. Worship is a way of preparing people to face the problems of life with faith, and to live in keeping with their faith. Writers prepare material to influence the thinking of others. And so it goes.

There is no doubt that as people approach Christmas they are being prepared to enjoy its commercial aspects. Stores are decorated to attract hordes of buyers. Advertisers urge the purchase of attractive, and often expensive, gifts. Everything is done to remind people of Christmas as a holiday. How many are prepared to think of it as a holy day? All too little is done to prepare people for the deeper meaning of Christmas.

To Zechariah and Elizabeth, and to Mary, the mother of Jesus, the birth of their children meant nothing less than the fulfilment of hopes expressed by the prophet Isaiah. Their religious training prepared them to give God the praise for their blessings. Words of scripture came readily to their minds. Many parents today are prepared for little more than to rush to the hospital for the birth of their children. They could not think of a single verse of scripture to express thanks to God for such a blessing.

One way to be better prepared for the spiritual meaning of Christmas is to re-read the Christmas story as it is found in Matthew and Luke. The simplicity of the story with its supernatural overtones is a reminder of how God works through humble events, and of what He has done through the Christ Child. There is also the opportunity to prepare the way for others to enjoy Christmas more deeply by offering them in advance the love and good-will Christ came to bring.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for December 18: "The Prophet of the Most High," Luke 1.

The question naturally raises itself, for what are people today being prepared? Are they being prepared for a life of devotion to God or a life of indifference to Him? For a life of service or a life of selfishness? For the acceptance of responsibility, for life where they expect happiness to be handed to them on a silver platter? Are they being prepared to live or to be coddled and entertained?

U.C.W. Meetings

BETHEL-ZION UCW

Bethel-Zion unit of the United Church Women held their December meeting at the community hall. Mrs. Don Sills was in charge of a short business period, followed by a program and devotional based on the Christmas theme. Mrs. Doug Sills and Mrs. Ken Cranston were in charge. The Misses Donnie Howe, Susan Ray, Bonnie Marvin and Anne Ketcheson contributed vocal selections.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For December 17

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): A degree of seclusion today is favored. Best not to be overanxious to press matters. Hold back . . . take personal survey . . . get lay of the land. Find out where you stand — and why.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Some friends may confide money problems. Make suggestions. Offer encouragement. Draw line at giving, lending, inviting. Otherwise you could lose good associations.

Talk May Cost MPs Part of Holiday

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs may have talked themselves out of a big chunk of their Christmas vacation.

Government House Leader George McIlraith said in an interview Thursday night there's been so much debate on the government's guaranteed income measure that the Commons may have to delay the start of its proposed 11-day vacation by one day.

It also might have to come back a few days earlier, he said.

Mr. McIlraith accused the opposition parties of conducting a filibuster against the guaranteed income legislation which will add as much as $30 monthly to needy old age pensioners.

The Commons Thursday approved only two clauses of the 33-clause bill and was debating an amendment to the third when it ended the second day of committee study. The House previously spent four days giving the measure second reading —approval in principle.

RESUMES DEBATE

Today as the Commons resumes debate on the pension bill, Mr. McIlraith warned he might have to interrupt the debate to introduce emergency legislation to prevent the threatened strike by air traffic controllers.

But that wouldn't be done until all hope had vanished for a negotiated settlement today.

Under original plans, the Commons was to adjourn Thursday, Dec. 22, and return to work Jan. 3. Mr. McIlraith indicated the MPs may remain at their desks until Friday, Dec. 23, and come back earlier than Jan. 3, perhaps even before New Year's Day.

There seems little hope of MPs picking up any speed in their clause-by-clause study of the pension bill. Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) said his party plans to move amendments to several clauses of the bill and Conservatives indicated they have some up their sleeves too.

Mr. Knowles' first amendment, moved late Thursday, would make the $30 supplementary payment a permanent piece of legislation. The government wants it restricted to Canadians born on or before Dec. 31, 1910.

NDP Leader Douglas said the government's guaranteed income plan for the elderly had been hailed in some newspapers as the start of a plan for all Canadians.

Yet the government now is restricting the plan to those born on or before Dec. 31, 1910.

The government was relying on the Canada Pension Plan to wipe out the need for the supplementary payment. But what about the thousands of housewives, small businessmen and others who are not covered by the Canada Pension Plan?

Earlier, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker led a demand by Conservatives that the government declare its policy on what would happen if the Quebec government enacted legislation in the old age pension field.

QUESTIONS SUBSIDY

Mr. Diefenbaker said Quebec had a perfect right to do so. Would Ottawa provide a subsidy to cover the Quebec plan?

Martial Asselin (PC—Charlevoix) said there is a possibility of double taxation of Quebecers if Premier Johnson goes through with his announced intention.

Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) suggested the government refer the constitutional question to the Supreme Court of Canada.

While Ottawa was acting correctly in enacting its plan now, the proposed Quebec legislation might conflict with the federal bill. And under the British North America Act, the provinces had priority.

Maurice Allard (Ind — Sherbrooke) said Quebec doesn't accept constitutional rulings by the Supreme Court. That wasn't the answer.

Both he and Howard Grafftey (PC — Brome - Missisquoi) said a parliamentary committee should be set up to discuss bringing the constitution into with modern times.

Bombs Fall on Targets, Not Homes, Says U.S.

SAIGON (CP)—U.S. fighter-bombers stayed away from the Hanoi area Thursday as controversy continued to rage around the world over American attacks in the vicinity of the North Vietnamese capital.

The U.S. military command in Saigon flatly denied that American bombs fell on anything but military targets within the Hanoi city limits in raids this week.

Responding to reports from Hanoi that U.S. planes attacked residential neighborhoods and killed more than 100 civilians Tuesday and Wednesday, an American spokesman said aerial photos showed that all bombs dropped on those days hit their intended targets.

The main objectives were a truck depot five miles south of the city centre and railway yards six miles northeast of the centre.

The Hanoi newspaper Nhan Dan today published photos it described as bomb - damaged buildings, including a school, in or near the centre of the city. Hanoi, Moscow and Peking have charged that bombs rained on civilian housing.

In New York, UN Secretary-General U Thant expressed fear that the U. S. bombings "might lead to a wider war." He issued a statement deploring "the loss of lives and the worsening of the situation resulting from the intensification of the bombing of North Vietnam."

In London, 56 Labor members of Parliament asked President Johnson in a cable to "stop these attacks now involving main population centres. . . ."

The Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, asked if the "intense aerial bombings ever closer to Hanoi contribute to formation of a propitious climate for a longer suspension of hostilities?"

The paper was referring to Pope Paul's Dec. 8 appeal for a prolonging of the Christmas and New Year's holiday truces.

No Oil, Arms or Cars Can Go to Rhodesia

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The Security Council Friday night adopted mandatory economic sanctions for the first time in United Nations history in a move to bring down Rhodesia's white-minority government. But failure to provide for enforcement machinery immediately raised doubts the boycott would work.

The 15 - country council ordered all 122 UN members to boycott 12 specific exports from Rhodesia and embargo shipments of oil, arms, aircraft, motor vehicles and parts to the breakaway African colony.

It decided that they "shall prevent" the forbidden transactions "by their nationals or in their territories," notwithstanding prior business contracts to the contrary.

The action was embodied in a British resolution modified by African amendments to include an oil embargo and adopted by a vote of 11 to 0 with four abstentions.

In favor were Britain, the United States, Nationalist China, Argentina, Uruguay, Japan, Jordan, The Netherlands, New Zealand and two of the sponsors of the amendments —Nigeria and Uganda. Abstaining were the third sponsor, Mali, plus France, the Soviet Union and Bulgaria.

The purpose of the resolution was to end the rebellion against Britain that began when Prime Minister Ian Smith declared Rhodesia independent Nov. 11, 1965, in the face of British pressure for equal votes for Africans. It put mandatory sanctions in place of the voluntary sanctions the council adopted shortly after that event.

Rejecting five of 13 African amendments, the council refused to deplore Portuguese and South African "support to the rebel regime," to deplore Britain's refusal to use force against the regime and to invite Britain to use "all means" in preventing oil from reaching Rhodesia.

But through the amendments the council adopted, it bound all members to prevent their nationals, land or air transport facilities or flag vessels from helping supply oil to Rhodesia and it called on all countries to deny Rhodesia economic or financial aid. Finally, it asked UN Secretary-General U Thant to report back by next March 1 on "the progress of the implementation of this resolution."

Chief S. O. Adebo of Nigeria said force was essential and expressed fear that the resolution would prove futile. He said he voted for it only because no action at all would have strengthened Smith's hand. And if Smith is still in power on March 1, Adebo said, "we shall come again in the Security Council" for stronger action.

The Soviet Union, Bulgaria and Mali expressed similar doubts that the resolution would prove effective.

But Lord Caradon of Britain said he hoped the council had made a major step toward a just solution for Rhodesia.

Britain's stated goal is majority rule in Rhodesia, where Negroes outnumber whites by about 4,000,000 to 220,000.

The British brought the Rhodesian case back to the council Dec. 5, after Smith turned down last - ditch compromise proposals. But throughout eight days of intermittent debate, they fought shy of dealing with South Africa and Portugal, which disregarded the council's previous voluntary oil embargo against Rhodesia.

Britain is admittedly fearful of losing its large trade with South Africa, to the disadvantage of the pound sterling.

Government Offer Is Accepted By Air Traffic Controllers

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiators for almost 800 air traffic controllers agreed to accept a government wage offer late Friday and called off a strike set for next Tuesday.

The break came less than two hours before the Commons was to start an emergency sitting to deal with a government bill outlawing the walkout.

Revenue Minister Benson, his voiced choked with emotion, announced in the Commons that the strike was off.

Later, outside the chamber, he said that the settlement will mean an average wage increase of about 13 per cent. This would be on top of wage increases of 15 per cent the controllers had received under normal civil service pay awards since July, 1965.

The extra pay would be designed to compensate the control lower crews for the mental stress involved in their specialized radar and radio work that guides planes in and out of Canadian airports.

The Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association had "called off the strike for a n.m. local time Tuesday to back demands that the government accept pay recommendations made in a report last month by Judge J. B. Robinson.

Mr. Benson said the Robinson report would have meant a pay increase of 24 per cent. The government had refused to adopt it because the judge's inquiry was not supposed to deal with specific pay raises.

After the strike was called the government said it would introduce an emergency bill to prevent it.

Friday the Commons gave unanimous consent to a motion for special sittings Friday night and all day today to handle the legislation. The sittings were cancelled when Mr. Benson reported the settlement.

Mr. Benson said the increase will boost the maximum salary for the main operating category to around $10,800 a year from the present $9,528.

Under the Robinson plan this maximum would have jumped to $11,800.

The minister, who spent four hours in negotiating sessions Friday, said he didn't think the increase would disturb other civil service pay schedules because of the fact that an allowance for stress was involved.

This had increased sharply in recent years with heavier traffic and the introduction of larger aircraft on commercial routes.

Mr. Benson said he did not think the threat of special legislation forced the settlement.

J. D. Lyon of Winnipeg, association president, said his group decided to accept the government offer after a two-hour negotiating session with Mr. Benson Friday afternoon.

Ratification was being sought from members and the executive expected to have the results later tonight.

Mr. Lyon said the national council had recommended that the settlement be accepted. If the membership reject the proposal a new strike date will be set sometime after the middle of January.

Kennedy Book Hearing Will Be Held on Dec. 27

NEW YORK (AP)—A judge has ordered author William Manchester and two publishers to appear before him Dec. 27 to show cause why an injunction against the book, Death of a President, should not be granted.

The injunction against the book about the assassination of President John F. Kennedy is being sought by late president's widow.

Justice Sault S. Strait of the Manhattan Supreme Court said he would decide on the matter "shortly" after the hearing.

It was reported Friday the book contains, among other things, "a most unfortunate picture" of President Johnson.

Mrs. Kennedy submitted a 10-page affidavit in the court Friday in her petition to forbid publication of the book. She said in her complaint publication would cause her "great and irreparable injury" and "result in precisely the sensationalism and commercialism which we—Robert F. Kennedy and I—have sought so strenuously to avoid."

Senator Robert Kennedy (Dem. N.Y.), the late president's brother, submitted a supporting five-page affidavit.

Neither the senator nor Mrs. Kennedy appeared in court. Senator Kennedy declined twice to discuss the book or the court action with reporters.

The Book's publishers are Harper and Row Publishers Inc., which plans to bring out the full, 300,000-word book in April, and Cowles Communications Inc., publisher of Look magazine. Look is reported to have paid $665,000 for the right to bring out an 80,000-word portion of the book in a four-part serial, beginning Jan. 10.

A spokesman for Look said that Mrs. Kennedy's case is upheld, a substitute Jan. 10 issue will not be published. He said there would not be enough time to prepare another issue.

Also involved are plans for publication of the work abroad in book and serial form. Mrs. Kennedy said she understood that Manchester granted Michael Joseph Ltd., London, the right to publish the book in Britain.

In a related development, Dell Books offered $1,000,000 Friday to Harper and Row for the book's paperback rights. Donald Fine, editor-in-chief of Dell Books, said he believes this is the largest offer ever made for paperback rights.

A spokesman for Harper and Row said it is company policy not to accept a paperback offer until the hard-cover edition has been published.

They Were Expert Drivers But Were They Good Drinkers?

TORONTO (CP) — Any amount of alcohol is likely to impair motorist's ability, says Prof. H. Ward Smith, director of the Ontario attorney-general's centre of forensic science.

Dr. Smith was commenting in an interview Friday on drinking - driver experiments which were shown on the CTV television network Friday night in a program called Point Zero Limit.

The most important new information was that alcohol affects the muscles and tendons controlling posture and balance in a way that makes it difficult for a driver to keep his car on a steady course.

"It makes for unsteady, choppy and dangerous driving," he said.

In the program, eight Canadian racing drivers acted as guinea pigs at Harewood Acres, an abandoned airfield near Jarvis, Ont., now used as a racetrack.

They first drove through a marked course that included turns, obstacles, lights and sudden stops. Then they gulped down liquor and drove through the course again.

"One driver with a .07 rating did the course with 22 faults. Before he drank he did it in eight. Another driver with only a .04 rating did it in 43 faults. Before drinking he did it in 31."

Police contend that .08 indicates serious impairment. But even this level, determined with a breath-analysis test, not necessarily brings a conviction in court.

"I think our tests did prove that a .08 level is too high for safe driving," Dr. Smith said. "It should be lower than that."

NATO Will Lower Shield But Keep Sword Sharp

PARIS (CP)—The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has decided to make a vigorous effort to court Soviet friendship and to study ways of reshaping the alliance to take full advantage of improved East-West relations.

While keeping its sword sharp, the NATO shield is to be lowered a bit. Even West Germany, which in the past had made a strong bid for a bigger share of Western nuclear power, now will concentrate on extending warmer, peaceful relations with East Germany.

The 15-country alliance will increase emphasis on the economic health and the welfare of members and east-west peace with security.

So strong was this emphasis on Soviet friendship that External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said Friday there is greater concentration on the detente than at any previous NATO ministerial session he had attended.

Even France, which had withdrawn from NATO military commitments, joined in approval of the general ministerial political commitments, with certain limitations.

The softer approach to the Soviet Union appears to be based on hopes that an East-West pact may be signed to ban the spread of nuclear weapons. Martin continued to express his optimism all through the meetings.

The 17 - country United Nations conference on this issue is to meet again in Geneva in February.

Australian Woman's Life Saved By Running Blood Through Pig's Liver

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuters)—Cynthi McPhail, 22, regarded almost certain to die two months ago, walked out of a hospital today—thanks largely to a pig.

Two months ago she had a stillborn baby and her liver and kidneys failed. Doctors said the odds against her survival were more than 100 to one.

Doctors, unable to revive her from unconsciousness, decided to use a pig's liver to take over temporarily the work of her liver. Pigs, unlike some animals, have germ-free livers.

A pig was brought into the hospital, its liver removed, and tubes were tied from the liver to a vein and artery and her right arm.

Her blood condition showed a sudden improvement, and today she walked from the hospital arm-in-arm with her farmer husband.

"I'll soon be swimming, skiing and horse-riding again," she said.

The operation was first tried two years ago in the United States. But Mrs. McPhail is believed to be the first person in the world to survive.

Frogmen Find Second Body in Ship Lying on Side in Montreal Harbor

MONTREAL (CP) — Frogmen recovered a second body early today from the coastal freighter Cabot, which capsized early Friday while being loaded in Montreal harbor.

Police said identification of the body was expected later today. It was found in the cabin of missing crew member Gerard Leblond of Cap Chat, Que., the vessel's second officer.

The body of Marcel Cote, of St. Simeon, Que., third officer on the 3,835-ton freighter, was recovered Friday afternoon.

Nine of the ship's 31 members were injured when the ship keeled over.

Federal investigators today were trying to establish why the 400-foot, $8,000,000, 18-month-old ship suddenly capsized. She now lies lying on her starboard side in about 30 feet of water.

At the time, the Cabot was in the final stages of loading at Shed 66 for one of her regular runs to St. John's, Nfld. This is a few hundred yards from Shed 55 where the package freighter Fort William caught fire and sank following an explosion Sept. 14, 1965, causing the deaths of five men.

An official of the vessel's owners, Clarke Steamship Co. Ltd., said Friday the cause was not a shift in cargo.

James Hutcheson, general manager of the company, said the company had begun an immediate investigation. He believed the cause was a leak although the lowest of the ship's cargo loading doors, all open at the time, was two feet above the waterline.

Most of the crew members were asleep when the ship rolled.

They escaped, some in underclothing, some in nothing at all. Some were taken off by firemen using ladders.

Central School for Reserve in Offing

A long-time ambition of Indians on the Tyendinaga Mohawk Reserve may now be nearer reality.

Councils and chiefs in recent years have been working to replace the reserves three one-room schools with a central building.

Today, Chief John R. Brant says indications are that a start on this project couldbe in the offing.

A recent letter from the Indian Affairs Branch of the department of citizenship and immigration indicated the possibility that teachers for a two or three room addition to the new east of the school buildings might be called in the near future, said the chief.

The Mohawks feel such a central education unit is necessary to stabilize the school population within reserve boundaries. There are about 200 pupilsin school students on the reserve.

Meantime, Chief Brant says, the reserve hopes to start its first kindergarten school early next year.

DEAD LETTERS — Acting Postmaster Jack Smith and Mrs. J. Watson check out some of the 20,000 undeliverable cards which will be received at the Belleville office this Christmas.

Mailmen Moan at Mistakes

Mmbers at the Belleville p... office are keeping right up with the annual Christmas mailing rush but there will be about 20,000 Yule cards which will not be delivered.

But it won't be the fault of the post office.

The onus for non delivery will be on the people who mailed the Christmas cards without the proper address.

Acting Postmaster Jack Smith says that anywhere up to 20,000 pieces of undeliverable Christmas mail will be received at the Belleville office during the Christmas rush period and that most of it will go back to the dead letter office.

The biggest problem is the lack of street numbers, while other mail may be addressed just to "Belleville" with no street or number. Still other cards lack the East or West designation required for the complete address.

First class mail gets what is called directory service and has a fair chance of reaching its intended destination, but this is not the case with third class mail.

Sorting during the Christmas rush period is done mostly by "extra" staff which sorts mail strictly by street number.

They are not expected to know whether John Jones actually lives at the address on the envelope.

The biggest mailing day so far this year was Wednesday of this week, when 104,000 letters went through the stamp cancellation machines. This is to say the volume dropped to about 101,000 letters and Mr. Smith feels the peak is about over.

The peak for incoming parcels for local delivery is expected to be reached over the weekend.

Friday 2,500 small cheese were received from the Black Diamond Cheese Company for delivery all across Canada.

The normal staff at the Belleville post office is about 60 regular workers. During the Christmas rush however, an additional nine letter carriers and about 13 extra sorters are hired. The sorters work around the clock on eight hour shifts.

Rock Hounds Hear Talk On Oil, Gold Mining

Members and friends of the Quinte Gem and Mineral Club who met on Wednesday evening heard a talk on geology, prospecting, mining and world travel. The speaker was Mr. S. Lebaron, a teacher at Moira Secondary School.

Before becoming a teacher, he had seven years experience as a member of a seismographic team in the oil fields of Western Canada, two years in the country north of Sault Ste. Marie as a member of a party investigating copper mining in the area, and further time in Western Canada and in the Yukon. Additional time in the desert oil fields of Iraq as a member of an oil survey crew qualified Mr. Lebaron to speak to those interested in rocks and minerals. He was introduced by Jerry Blackwell, one of his pupils at Moira Secondary School.

Mr. Lebaron illustrated his talk with some fine color slides of the various areas in which he had worked. Preceding his presentation, he appealed to the school-age members of the audience to consider geology as a career, reminding everyone that in the future the geologist is in become more important than ever.

Of special interest was the series of slides of the Yukon showing hydraulic gold mining which is still carried on in the summer months. Water from a source far upstream is piped to the gravel and sand beds where the tremendous hydraulic pressure washes the deposit thoroughly, bringing gold flakes, and the occasional nugget, into the sluice boxes where it can be collected. Extremely large dredges are also used to wash the beds in place and send on one end, wash out any gold, and discharge the sand at the opposite end in a continuous operation.

In spite of this mechanism, a few of the old prospectors are the main who pan for gold in the mountain streams, some of which are of considerable potential as a gold producing area.

Mr. Lebaron took his audience by camera and description to Iraq. Exploration here is said to be the ultimate in hardship with the cold and storms and temperatures of up to 120°. Nevertheless, the oil exploration crews were able to function with the modern electronic equipment now being used for oil detection. However, the desert with its sandy salt lakes was not the only place in Iraq where exploration took place. Mr. Lebaron showed pictures of the swampy area bordering the Euphrates River where air boats and huge amphibious "marsh buggies" provided the only means of transportation for the survey crews. Any high ground of any size provided room for a hut or a village where the natives still manufactured reed mats as they did in Biblical times.

To conclude his presentation, Mr. Lebaron showed further slides of the area north of Sault Ste. Marie, near the shore of Lake Superior. Here he was able to collect many fine samples of copper ore and associated minerals, many of which he had on display at the meeting. Cauliflower like masses of barite, bugs crystals of calcite, rare bornite crystals, and native copper were of special interest and greatly admired.

Alf. Arthur thanked Mr. Lebaron for a most unusual and interesting presentation.

Sales Tax Exemption For Reserve

Sales tax exemption certificates are now available to Indians of the Tyendinaga Mohawk reserve.

Persons entitled to the certificates may obtain them from Chief John R. Brant on the reserve.

To obtain exemption all articles purchased must be delivered to Tyendinaga.

Chief Brant said this morning he believes this means small domestic items will not be affected.

"However, there will be a lot of big purchases than can be delivered here that would be exempted," said the chief.

"This includes such things as cars, household furniture and building supplies."

He said any members planning such purchases in advance should contact him to obtain a certificate for presentation to vendors.

Temporary Heat Allows Plastering at Hospital

Exterior brickwork at the new Belleville General Hospital addition is now approximately 40 per cent completed and temporary heating is to be put in operation this week on the basement and first floor levels.

The windows are installed almost to the fifth floor level and the concrete roof slab over the mechanical penthouse atop the main structure has been poured. Aluminum wall siding for the penthouse is expected to be complete by next week.

Installation of interior partitions and door frames is underway at various locations up to the fourth floor.

Installation of pneumatic tube and conveyor systems is well under way and other mechanical equipment is also being installed. Roughing in of electrical wiring, plumbing and heating is continuing throughout the building while sheet metal ductwork continues on all floors.

The temporary heating for the basement and first floor levels will permit plastering, flooring and other finish work to be done during the winter months.

Renovations to the laundry, including installation of a new equipment is under way without seriously interrupting operation of the laundry service.

Two of the parking lots on the east side of the existing hospital had the base coat of asphalt applied recently but further paving will be delayed to next summer.

Man Must Pay Medical Bills

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday, Robert Bell, charged with committing an assault occasioning actual bodily harm, was placed on a three months' suspended sentence by Magistrate R. C. Jackson and ordered to pay restitution of $40 to Lyle Carr for doctor bills.

Cpl. Bell was charged Sunday, Nov. 6, after he struck Mr. Carr on the head with a golf club at the Trenton Country Club. The offence occurred after the death by drowning of Mr. Bell's son Billy.

Chamber Lists Guides to Shopping

As a service to Belleville shoppers now that the Christmas season is in full swing, the Chamber of Commerce has included a buying guide in the current issue of its monthly bulletin.

The following list of 10 buying tips, issued by the New York Department of Law, is equally as applicable to the shopping habits of Canadians.

- Don't be misled by the dealer who lures you to his establishment with an attractive advertisement of a standard brand item and then tries to talk you into a higher priced off-brand article.
- Don't be blinded by "bargains" offered at prices which are hard to believe.
- Don't be rushed into buying anything by talk of a "golden opportunity."
- Don't allow a door-to-door salesman to leave merchandise with you on an "approval receipt" until he returns.
- Don't permit a household appliance to be taken from your home for repairs without first receiving in writing an estimate of repair costs.
- Don't use the article delivered to you if you find that it is not the same as you ordered but immediately notify the seller.
- Don't accept an oral guarantee. Get it in writing. Make sure you understand what it says and that it applies to you fully.
- Don't sign a contract without reading it carefully — especially the fine print. Never sign a blank contract or one containing blank spaces on it.
- Don't make financial commitments which you cannot possibly meet.
- Don't hesitate to investigate before buying. If you have any doubt about a dealer, check with either the local police or the Chamber of Commerce, or some other community organization which works to protect the consumer and the legitimate businessman.

The bulletin also makes special mention of a singularly novel development of the nation's inflationary trend. One leading manufacturer has stopped production of penny piggy banks. The replacement? Banks geared only to the saving of nickels, dimes, and quarters.

Hello, Dad, in the same old way.
To hear your voice, see your smile,

A Christmas Quandary

Mrs. William Pape (right) can't decide which of a wide assortment of Christmas cards best suits her purpose. Beverly Cousins, a James Texts clerk, displays some of many cards available.

Traditional Greetings Tops

More Cards on Way Than Ever

Some customs just never seem to become outdated, and one of the most popular of these is the sending of Christmas cards.

This Yuletide season, shoppers are mailing thousands of the most varied assortment of cards ever offered to the public.

A poll of Front St. businesses which sell greeting cards revealed two significant trends — people are buying more cards than ever before, and seem to prefer the more traditional variety.

Among the novelty items, modern "sick" cards which might bear the inscription "Santa is a fink," enjoy their share of sales among teenagers, but, as one store-owner noted — "Some of them are so big it's an effort to jam them into a mailbox."

A stationery store proprietor noted that a trend is developing toward "formal" Christmas cards. She explained that, rather than attempt to choose an appropriate verse for the intended recipient, most people find it more convenient to purchase cards expressing an all-purpose "season's greetings".

By far the largest sellers are cards by the box, designed to be economical as well as attractive. A druggist said "For people who send 100 or more cards each year, price is a prime consideration in their selection. One can always go to a specialty shop to pick out personal cards for special friends or relatives."

Probably the most popular under the special categories are children's cards, most of which depict brilliant reproductions of Santa Claus in a number of poses, but always with the same twinkle in his eye, and the same color in his cheeks.

Whatever the choice and individual preference, senders should have kept one thing in mind — unless cards were mailed by today, postal authorities would not guarantee delivery before Christmas spirit has somewhat abated.

Placement of Bibles Discussed

Bible placement in the Province of Quebec was the main topic of discussion at the December meeting of the Belleville Gideons. President Elmer Votcary welcomed to the meeting a field secretary of the Gideons International, William MacLeod, who was doing educational work in this area.

Mr. MacLeod told of the challenge to provide copies of the scriptures in hotels, motels, and the other areas served by the Gideons, for the use of the visitors to Canada during centennial year.

While the larger hotels in Quebec's major cities have long been supplied with bibles, there are many roadside motels which have not yet been served. In part, this lack is due to the fact Gideons are business and commercial men who work on a voluntary basis, and as time may be available.

A discussion of considerable length took place on the matter of hospital testaments which the Gideons provide for each bedside. Harold Robinson, a recent patient at the Belleville General, spoke to this, as did also Dr. Edward W. Dow, a Trenton member of the Gideons.

Plans being laid by Vernon Weir for Gideon participation in Brotherhood week, February 1967, were discussed with enthusiasm and the efforts being made by Ted Schwab were endorsed.

Beverley Foster requested the provision of bibles and testaments for the recently expanded Harmony Public School. At the same time, arrangements were agreed upon to provide bibles and testaments for the Kente Public School, Ameliasburgh.

Holidays Ahead

Home Stretch for Christmas

The Quinte area is entering the Christmas season home stretch.

In the next few days Christmas activities — from shopping to celebrating — build to a peak in what promises to be the busiest Yuletide on record.

Cash registers continue to chatter out a merry money tune on Belleville's Front street and suburban shopping centres this morning as the buying spree continued unabated.

Downtown crowds will be swelled late next week by the junior set — when public and high schools close their doors Thursday until Jan. 3.

Secondary schools students alone will add nearly 4,000 to the crowds.

Meantime, community groups also are gearing for a peak activity period.

One of the most consistently busy centres will be the YMCA.

Among other holidays events planned is a marathon swim in the Y pool for school-age youngsters from 8 to 17 years. Depending on the weather there will be surprise outdoor junkets, including a possible trip to a local ski club.

Purchasing Agents Hold Meeting

The Canadian Association of Purchasing Agents, Eastern Ontario District held its annual Christmas meeting and fellowship night at the 401 Inn in Kingston on Wednesday.

Bruce Nickson of Corby Distillery was master of ceremonies for the evening leading the group in the singing of Christmas carols. Other highlights of the evening's entertainment included a performance of the "P. A.'s Lament" by the Kingston - Pen 'Trio comprised of L. B. McBrien, D. A. Laundry and R. Alarie plus a color film of Colonel John. Glenn's first orbital flight of earth.

A DIFFICULT CHOICE — Pamela Watson, 3, selects one of nearly 100 dolls displayed by the Belleville Women's Progressive Conservative Association, in a Front Street store.

Women's Groups Are Santa's Helpers

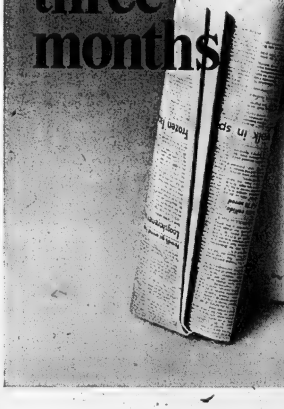
As countdown to Christmas Eve begins, Santa Claus has beguiled a legion of extra helpers into his workshop. But the annual Belleville Kiwanis-Firemen toy project could scarcely get off the ground without the feminine touch in the little-girls' department.

Fortunately, the jolly old gentleman has a harem-full of helpers to call on. Their job — to stitch a bit of personal concern into every doll's outfit they make for Santa's pack.

Miss Laura Drake, physical education instructor at Moira Secondary School, made Santa's assistants of the 75 girls in her grade 12 health course. As a home project in the child study part of the curriculum, each girl made a stuffed toy of her own design or from a commercial pattern. New materials were forbidden — the girls had to utilize scraps of cloth and yarn they found around their homes. Miss Drake handed over the completed toys to the Kiwanis-Firemen Project this week.

Christmas began in August for Santa's helpers in the Conservative Women's Association. That's when the group bought new dolls and distributed them to members for dressing. Some of the eight dozen completed so far this year are now on display in the Front St. window of the former Vanessa Shoe store.

"Because we are community-minded women, we make these dolls our service project," says Mrs. S. E. Powell, president of the association. "Besides, it helps keep our members together in the lulls between elections. Instead of a gift exchange at our annual Christmas party, our members bring toys suitable for boys on the Firemen's list."



While their husbands collect and repair donated toys, the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary takes over the doll department. The 25 active members scrub and repair used dolls and wash and mend second-hand dolls' clothes.

"We have beautiful dolls donated," says Mrs. G. Prinsgle of the auxiliary, "But how little girls love to paint them with ball-point pens!"

This year 43 members of Gamma Mu and Phi Psi Chapters of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority helped the auxiliary members with their ink-removers and clothes-making chores. At the annual auxiliary Christmas party about 100 refurbished dolls were on hand for the dressing bee.

Their patient stitching ends this week for Santa's feminine helpers. Next week at the Belleville output of Santa's workshop, otherwise known as the Kiwanis Centre, Santa's sleigh, disguised as a firemen's truck, will be loaded for its Christmas journey. Last year Fire Chief Ted Poste reports, it delivered boxes to 900 Belleville area children. This year's total will probably be just as high.

for the price of a morning paper electricity can cook your breakfast for three months

It's a fact. A dime's worth of electricity will make three months worth of bacon and egg breakfasts for two people. That's the kind of bargain you get with electricity.

Low-cost electricity has hundreds more uses today than it had back in 1906 when hydro first began. Yet, surprisingly enough, it costs less now than if did then. As a matter of fact, you pay less for electrical power here in Ontario than you would almost anywhere else in the world. Any way you figure it, electricity is the biggest bargain in your family budget.

The above example is based on the average cost to Ontario Municipal residential customers of 1.13¢ net per kilowatt-hour.

Tweed's Council

The village of Tweed may not have succeeded in bringing off its all-woman council coup, but at last its citizens do have an administration — and at its head is a woman.

In Mrs. Barbara Allen, Tweed has a Reeve of whom any community might be proud. A cheerful and attractive woman, Mrs. Allen is also an articulate speaker who combines political acumen with common sense.

For one thing she realizes that while an all-woman council might have been interesting, and could have accomplished much for Tweed, the community has struck a sensible balance by electing two men as well.

Two years running it has taken Tweed not one, but two, nomination meetings to drum up the necessary community interest in an election. But in a sense this has worked to the village's advantage. When the prospect of an all-woman council was mooted, in the absence of sufficient male candidates, Tweed became the focus of nation-wide attention.

All of a sudden the interest that was lacking initially came to the fore. It was as if Tweed had been given a collective shot of adrenalin. And it makes sense of Mrs. Allen's observation that in a democratic world people are entitled even to their apathy. It makes sense also of her view, which we share, that the present municipal system should be retained. She says the retention of local government in small municipal councils keeps the people in touch with their governors and ensures the democratic process. And yet, today, the reins of local government more and more are falling into the hands of provincial boards and commissions.

We see this centralization process occurring in educational and regional government. In theory it may make for more efficient administration, but in practice it is not long before the all-powerful board is making all the decision (albeit democratically), while the views of the people at large, those "outside," as it were, are largely ignored. As Mrs. Allen suggests, there are dangers in "any great, big monolithic organization."

What has happened in Tweed is a vindication of the democratic process, and of the municipal system as it operates in this province. The village would appear to be in good hands, and Mrs. Allen and her fellow councillors deserve the support and interest of the community at large.

Democracy and Freedom

We have been talking about the tendency nowadays to integrate, centralize — call it what you will — groups of small democratic bodies into one big whole, or into what Mrs. Barbara Allen, the Reeve of Tweed, terms a "great big monolithic organization."

In this trend, we have suggested, there is a danger of the administrative juggernaut taking precedence over the real needs of the people it is supposed to represent.

Bob Temple, former Liberal member for Hastings South in the Liberal parliament, has also expressed concern over this trend. At the recent Liberal organizational meeting, when he was mentioned as another possible successor to Andrew Thompson, Mr. Temple affirmed his party's dedication to individual freedom.

This freedom, he said, was being threatened by the establishment in Ontario over the past 23 years of a series of boards and commissions "from which there is either no right of appeal or a very limited one."

"We like to govern ourselves . . . but under these boards and commissions this is not true."

Mr. Temple claimed a Liberal government would make the right of appeal mandatory. By this he likely means the appointment of an ombudsman, or similar official, from whom the individual citizen could seek redress when he feels he has a grievance against established authority.

The idea of an ombudsman has been tossed around for some time now in Canada, but as yet little has been done about it. However, at least one community, Levis in Quebec, has appointed one. Overseas the idea is commonplace in Scandinavia and in New Zealand, and their value as watchdogs of the democratic process has been found to be invaluable.

In any event, Mr. Temple has done well to remind Canadians that the price of freedom is eternal vigilance. This, of course, starts at the grass roots level of local politics, and extends all the way through the provincial administrations to the federal government. Wherever there is democratic government, we should be on our guard to see that the rights of individuals, as well as communities, are protected.

Ottawa Offbeat

While Tories Convalesce, Grits Take Apart the NDP

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — One of the oddities of the current political situation at Ottawa is that the Liberals are worried about the state of the Conservative party.

After nothing under the tongue of Tory leader Diefenbaker all these years, the Liberals now look at him with some sympathy.

From hating and fearing John Diefenbaker the Grits have come to treat him with considerable respect.

As the Liberals see it, he is not now the main enemy, nor is his party.

The Grit hierarchy suddenly woke up after the recent National Conservative convention to discover that the Tory party was in deep trouble.

They saw their traditional political rivals apparently hopelessly split in two groups and Mr. Diefenbaker in serious difficulty.

The Liberals realized that if an election had come along at this time, the Conservatives would have been shattered.

At first thought this was a delightful consideration. And happy Grits pondered the thought of grinding the Tories into the dust and really giving Mr. Diefenbaker his lumps.

But there were sober second thoughts among senior, responsible Liberals, not excluding many cabinet ministers.

For, what they saw was that the Conservative party in its present state of shock, very likely could not fulfil the role of providing the alternative government for Canada.

NEW STATUS

Instead of the Tories looking eagerly to taking power, the Liberals saw another prospect — the New Democratic party making for an election to make it the official opposition party in the Commons.

The government envisioned the NDP, sitting back and watching with great satisfaction as the Tory party tried to destroy itself.

For the New Democrats were convinced that if the struggle between Mr. Diefenbaker and Conservative Association president Dalton Camp were to be prolonged, they would gain in large measure indeed.

If the New Democrats were to become the official opposition in the Commons, they would be in a favorable position to push the Liberals to the political right.

The Liberal strategists then, could see the danger of their party becoming, in a sense, the Conservative party of Canada, while the NDP claimed the left-of-centre, progressive role.

And, the NDP having once become the official opposition party, the Liberals had to consider that one day there would be a very good chance of the socialists forming a government.

Perhaps that prospect doesn't worry some Liberals but it scares the Grit government.

And having been scared, the Liberals at Ottawa decided to do something about it. And their course of action has been in general to leave the Tories alone to lick their wounds and to take after the NDP.

FIERY ATTACK

The first real sign of this strategy was seen in the Commons on November 21 when Richard Cashin, parliamentary secretary to Fisheries Minister Robichaud really, walloped NDP leader Tommy Douglas and his party.

Just for an opener he referred to them as "that little band of malcontents who confuse complaint with reform."

And of Mr. Douglas in particular he commented that he "exploited habitrude to the maximum and distributed misleading information."

Mr. Cashin even charged the NDP with aiding and abetting an insidious campaign to "challenge the institution of Parliament."

He spoke of Mr. Douglas playing the part "of a parliamentary god" and declared that, just because he was a party leader in the Commons, he had no right to be irresponsible.

"Someone has suggested the leader of the NDP is an anachronism and that is the kindest thing I can say of him at this time," Mr. Cashin added.

All this time the mild-mannered Mr. Douglas sat back and listened with some amazement. He seemed to be thinking — what is going on here?

But as a very astute politician, it didn't take Mr. Douglas long to realize that Liberals were turning their guns on the NDP.

The Grits, if well satisfied with this initial onslaught, soon had another worry on their minds. For in Toronto, where they have been battling the rising NDP strength in constituencies, William Dennison, elected and abetted by the New Democratic organization, was elected mayor.

So, up in the Commons on December 9th was Bryce Mackasey, a powerful Irish orator from Verdun, Quebec. And what did he say about the NDP — "they are a party of false propaganda."

Mr. Mackasey declared that the NDP were trying to be all things to all people. "They cannot be the voice in the Commons of labor, management, our senior citizens and young capitalists and everybody else," he argued.

Then Verdun MP suggested the bumptious NDP were trying "to woo Bay Street, in view of the fact that the official opposition is at loggerheads with that eminent group of people."

And Mr. Mackasey sallied on to give the socialists a good going-over.

There'll be more of the same from the Grits, trying to keep those upstart New Democrats in their place until the Conservatives can recover — mind you not too much of a recovery.

Girl of 11 Bruises Easier Than Most

By JOSEPH G. HOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 11 and full of black and blues, and this is ugly for a girl. At the slightest bump I get deep purple bruises. Is there a reason for this? — S. V.

Of course there's a reason. The question is which reason.

A bruise is bleeding underneath the skin — we have a vast network of capillaries, or very tiny blood vessels. A bump hard enough to break some of them lets a little blood leak from them, and that is a black and blue mark.

Sometimes a person has unusually fragile capillaries, gets a black and blue spot from a bump that wouldn't bother someone else.

Or the blood may not have enough particles called platelets, which are important in causing it to clot when a vessel is broken. Therefore such a person bleeds longer and the black and blue spot is bigger. He or she will also bleed more from a cut. A special study of the blood is necessary to see if this is the situation.

Calcium is also essential in healing these small breaks (or big ones, of course.) Milk has a lot of calcium, and most youngsters drink plenty of it. Among older folks, bruising is excessive sometimes because they don't get enough calcium.

Finally, Vitamin C (from tomato juice or orange or other citrus fruits) has a good deal to do with the strength of the capillaries, so if you aren't getting enough of it, you will be better off by drinking some juice every day.

Your parents should have your bruising checked by the doctor; it may not be serious and if the exact cause can be diagnosed, there is excellent chance of correcting it.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a girl of 11. My mother makes me go to bed at 9 o'clock and then complains when I wake up at 7:15 in the morning. She says that is too early. I have tried to reason with her but she just says, "I know what's best for you! Don't you think she's wrong? — S. M.

I don't like to say that mother is wrong. Growing girls need sleep, and I'm not at all pleased with the way many youngsters are allowed to stay up much too late.

However, an hour (from 9 p.m. to 7 a.m.) is a reasonable amount for a girl of your age, and I do wish your mother would agree that so long as you go to bed at a reasonable time you should be allowed to get up when you've had your sleep. When people wake up, they wake up.

Dear Dr. Molner: I acquired the strange and terrible habit of pulling my eyelashes out by the roots. I have broken myself of the habit but my eyes now look flimsy and very weird. Will they ever grow back? — E.

Yes, they should grow back, but it will take some time. Lashes grow very slowly.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 12 and have a pot belly. When I am older will this still be there? I am five feet two. — T.

It's not unusual for kids your age to be a bit "potty" and then thin out as they start the growing spurt, but I can't say whether that will happen in your case because I don't know how much you weigh or whether you get plenty of exercise.

If you are overweight, then you'll probably keep that pot, unless you start gradually getting your weight under control. Fat youngsters don't automatically turn into slim people. They stay fat — unless they start exercising more and eating less.

Band Concert At Collegiate

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Having enjoyed the Christmas presentation by the BCIVS Band many times I would like to bring to the attention of others that here is a very fine program that could be enjoyed by many more persons.

These young people, under the direction of Mr. Temple, work very hard to prepare this program each year and it is truly wonderful to see the talent displayed.

Any who can spare an hour this coming Sunday at 2.30 p.m. at the Belleville Collegiate will be rewarded by the efforts of the band, glee club and other artists, who will offer for the enjoyment of all the beautiful Christmas music.

Peterborough Examiner

When the Ontario Conservatives held their convention at the Royal York Hotel recently, the newspaper of the Ontario Liberal Party, 'Liberal Action', sent along a representative to report it. His report makes good reading: It will provide plenty of opportunity for the faithful to cry their hosannas and their opponents to make sarcastic remarks.

A couple of comments caught our attention. "I found the delegates to be a very complacent group of individuals," wrote the correspondent. "Neither individually or collectively were there signs of defiance or enthusiasm or vitality."

He continued: "This is an old party. The preponderance of delegates were much older than their Liberal counterparts. Even the young Tories seemed old. You couldn't really appreciate this until you saw an 84 - year - old delegate parading under, saying that you young people who are causing the trouble over the leadership.' The young whippersnapper was only 54."

Yes, very funny and no doubt most altogether untrue. But if the Conservatives are so doddery, senile and decrepit, eh, why the devil can't the Liberals beat them?

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

One of the busiest places in the city this week is the Belleville post office where, commencing this morning, the temporary employees were taken on to assist the regular staff in taking care of the Christmas rush which has already commenced.

Well-known Trenton garage operator, Claude Wallace was named president of the Hastings-Prince Edward branch of the Ontario Garage Operators' Association at their annual meeting held at the Hotel Quinte recently.

Back to almost normally since the piping days of pre-war distribution, drug stores of the city are revelling in one of the heaviest volumes of holiday trade in years.

Color Talks

We began to discover what an enormous influence an sales color has, I found that it is possible to build a window to call one's attention to the wet and depressing days people find bright colors irresistable. I began to experiment with the psychology of color. I learned how to arrange colors so that one predominated and zoomed out to such an extent that I could guarantee this would be the color people would buy. I suppose it is this sort of thing that is the secret of women's het success — British designer Mary Quant.

University Autonomy Threatened

Ottawa Journal

Reports that a provincial commission has advocated the amalgamation of all publicly-supported Ontario universities and seeks an instance in private immediate criticism from some university presidents.

In effect it is suggested that all 14 provincial universities would become branch campuses of a University of Ontario from which all administrative wisdom would flow.

The main argument for centralization is that provincial control probably will be more efficient than if would endure duplication of highly expensive facilities.

The centralizers might also argue that faculty rivalry would be less flagrant — and less expensive.

As theory it commands some respect. The case, however, is not unlike Defence Minister Hellyer's plan to integrate the armed forces into a single service.

It is the case with autonomy.

Autonomy encourages the drive to excel and to compete; and competition, while it may be its excesses, is not all bad. A made-in-Toronto policy might deprive universities of strength. This is the danger — not sentimental stuff about alumni associations, school songs or football teams.

There is need for co-ordination and co-operation among the provincial universities. But it has yet to be demonstrated that the only way these admirable goals can be achieved if by doing away with the precious concept of university autonomy.

A Lift for Living

A Prayer to Help Keep True Christmas Spirit

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Our Heavenly Father, another Christmas rapidly approaches, exciting our thoughts, warming and gladdening our hearts. And another Christmas will soon be gone, leaving us little better than we were before, unless we find some way of keeping Christmas.

Let Us Keep Christmas, O God; Let Us Keep The Peace of Christmas.

Grant us the inner peace of knowing that we are serving a purpose worthy of the sons and daughters of God; that there will be light enough for the next step of our journey; that there will be strength enough for each day's tasks and testings; that there will be redeeming love enough to cover all our frailties and failings.

Bless us with the peaceful confidence that all unexplained mysteries have their answer in Thee, and all evil can be overruled by Thee for good, as was Herod's evil will that first Christmastime.

Bring loving goodwill among all the sons of men. Show us how we may better follow the Prince of Peace so that quarreling of nation with nation, strife amidst races and conflict within our own breasts may cease. Hasten the day when nations will need no armaments, and national boundaries will need no patrols, and they who above our heads will not be blemished by bombers and missiles.

MUTUAL HELPFULNESS

Rid us of unfeeling selfishness and greed, and fill us with mutual helpfulness, that plenty in the world's goods may prevail everywhere, and contention for life's barest necessities will be no more.

Let us never forget, between one Christmas and the next, that "In Thy will is our peace."

Let Us Keep Christmas, O Lord, Let Us Keep In Mind always The Glory of Commonplace Things.

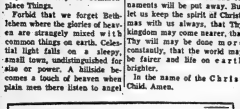
Forbid that we forget Bethlehem where the glories of heaven are strangely mixed with common things on earth. Celestial light falls on a sleepy, small town, undiscovered for size or power. A hillside becomes a touch of heaven when plain men there listen to angel voices. A cattle stall becomes a place where wise men worship there. A hay-filled manger becomes a holy of holies, more sacred than golden altars, when Christ is there. How splendor-filled the plain things are at Christmas!

Not only at Christmas, but in all our common days, let us expect Thee to work wonders through commonplace things and imperfect people. May we attempt to achieve great purposes with ordinary talents, tools and powers. Preserve in us an appreciation for the durable, homely joys of fireside and friendship and family ties. May we never forget the Christmas lesson of doing ordinary things with uncommon grace to make people extraordinarily happy.

Let us remember between Christmas and Christ often the Highest is revealed in the lowliest.

Let Us Keep Christmas, O God; Let Us Keep The Christmas Faith.

ALL IS POSSIBLE



At this holy season we remember how all impossible things are possible with Thee. Now dawns on our minds the wonderfully unthinkable things this Christmas story tells. Thy promises come true amidst unpromising circumstances; the power of mighty Rome is pitted against that "helpless" Infant, and Rome declines while the Baby grows and conquers the hearts of the world.

In Christ the far-off, transcendent God comes into our midst; the unseen becomes visible in Bethlehem's manger; the Almighty is expressed in frail flesh like our own. Through Him our hopelessly strained lives are miraculously cleansed.

If the true Christmas can be believed, nothing is too difficult for Thee. Let us keep that Christmas faith, O Lord.

We will not keep Christmas as trees and wreaths and glittering ornaments for long, O God. Soon trees will be discarded and ornaments will be put away. But let us keep the spirit of Christmas with us always, that Thy Kingdom may come nearer, that Thy will may be done more constantly, that the world may be fairer and life on earth brighter.

In the name of the Christ Child. Amen.

Lighting the Way

IT'S WHERE YOU ARE

Mr. and Mrs. Rodion Slipyj (pronounced Slippay) moved to their new home in Los Angeles, in 1961. They soon found it was impossible to grow anything in their backyard. After a year, they detected what they thought was a gas leak. The Gas company checked, but found nothing was wrong.

Then one day, crawling under the house for something, Slipyj discovered a pool of oil. He then realized this was the reason why nothing would grow in the back yard. Constructing a seepage reservoir, he then devised a system to tap the oil into his tank. For some time now, each Saturday, a truck has been hauling away 2000 gallons of quality crude oil from his back yard. This nets Slipyj $500 a month!

Holy Scripture speaks of the "oil of gladness." Too many folks are wandering all over the face of the earth in search of happiness, when it could be had right where they are. Yes, in fact, many may come nearer, that most of us can "strike it rich" in our own back yards!

BRIDGE ST. U.C.W.

On Tuesday the United Church Women of Bridge St. Church held its Christmas meeting. It was announced that at the general meeting in Jan. 17 a movie of Dr. Robert McClure's work in India will be shown.

Mrs. S. Leslie presented names of officers to replace some whose terms is over. The Rev. R. L. Davis conducted the installation service and paid tribute to the work of the U.C.W.

A short play Gifts That Money Can't Buy was presented by members of the supper units.

These taking part were Mrs. H. Sulman, Miss Daisy Young, Mrs. J. Hodgson, Miss J. Tickell, Miss Grace Young, Mrs. J. Flanagan and Mrs. R. Morden.

Mrs. A. Clare conducted the worship service, showing the contribution made by those of other tongues and nationalities.

Mrs. C. Franklin assisted at the piano and Mrs. J. Deneza contributed a solo.

Others taking part in lighting candles of friendship were Mrs. M. Brown, Mrs. C. Massey, Mrs. E. Fairman, Mrs. F. Kitcher, Miss O. Elson and Mrs. D. Williams.

EASTMINSTER U.C.W.

The final meeting for year of the U.C.W. of Eastminster United Church was held recently in the church auditorium, with the president, Mrs. Harold Eddy, in the chair. She reported that the Christmas tea and holiday cookie fair, was successful, and thanked the ladies of the church for making it so.

Two members of the U.C.W. brought gifts for distribution by the Canadian Mental Health Association.

In keeping with the spirit of Christmas, Mrs. W. Finseth's group presented the worship service in the form of a candle lighting ceremony.

While Mrs. S. Martin, at the piano, softly played Christmas carols, Mrs. Linton Read narrated the story of the birth of Christ, and the impact of His birth on the world. In Canada alone, 19 nationalities will hold Christmas services in their own language throughout the United Churches of Canada.

Participants in the service lit candles for the friendship and goodwill of the Canadian Jews for the Indians and Eskimos, for the French Canadians, for all those whose allegiance comes from foreign countries, and for the immigrants who come to Canada to escape persecution. The last candle lit was for Christian love.

Interspersed in the narrative were two solos, sung by Mrs. E. C. Smith. Mrs. W. S. N. Throop concluded the service with a prayer.

Those taking part in the program were: Mrs. A. Morrell, Mrs. R. Graham, Mrs. R. Thropp, Mrs. J. Cameron and Mrs. E. W. Vanamen.

A social hour followed, with refreshments served to more than 50 members.

EGGLETON U.C.W.

MADOC JUNCTION — Mrs. Bruce Stapley was hostess for the December meeting of Eggleton United Church Women on Thursday afternoon.

The president, Mrs. Harlow, opened the meeting and assisted by Mrs. Murney Kirkey, conducted the devotional. She read a letter received from a missionary friend in Angola.

Mrs. Burton Sharpe and Mrs. Ford Stapley sang a duet.

Mrs. Kenneth Weever, president of the Belleville Presbyterial U.C.W., was introduced by Mrs. McMullen and thanked for her talk by Mrs. Bruce Stapley.

A gift exchange and refreshments followed.

A potluck dinner, followed by the January meeting, will be held Jan. 12 at the home of Mrs. Harlow, with Mrs. P. Stapley in charge of the program.

NOT THE ONLY KEY

Proportionately as many women with managerial positions in Canada have only elementary school education as completed high school.

Kiwanis LA Entertains White Cane Club

The Kiwanis Centre was the scene of the annual Christmas party recently, when members of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary were hostess to the White Cane Club.

President Vi Waite welcomed the large gathering and Mrs. Maude Rollins played the piano for the opening songs.

Mr. Clyde VanAllen, teacher at the Provincial Conservatory of Music in Belleville, introduced seven of his pupils. They provided music on their steel and Spanish guitars, and all joined in singing a favorite carol. Harvey Bailey thanked the young musicians for the fine musical entertainment.

The names of members having a December birthday were read by Artie Scott. Elizabeth Davis won the prize and the birthday song was sung.

Mrs. Maude Rollins read interesting Christmas messages from Mary G. Patterson, National President of C.N.I.B. and Mrs. Ethel Townsend, Dominion Provincial C.N.I.B. president.

Winners of a contest were Ted Rowe and Gerald Marsden, both drinks with straws and enjoyed during the evening.

The exchange of gifts between the members was a highlight of the evening. The Kiwanis ladies served special Christmas refreshments and also presented each member with a box of chocolates. Sara O'Shea thanked the ladies for a most enjoyable party.

President Vi thanked the Lions Club for transportation and extended the Season's Greetings to all.

Lines on Life

Good Parents Defined

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Someone has said that good children are those who make as little trouble as possible for their elders.

Maybe a little light can be thrown on the problem of juvenile delinquency by paraphrasing that proposition: Good parents are those who make little trouble for their children.

We are not the first to blame the younger generation for the troubles of our time. In a museum in Istanbul, there is a tablet, almost 8,000 years old, on which is inscribed: "We have fallen upon evil times and the world has waxed very old and wicked. Politics are very corrupt. Children are no longer respectful in their parents."

Children often become the convenient scapegoat for the misdeeds of their elders. But instead of blaming the "invisible delinquents", we ought to think about delinquent parents. Parents possess more than the French call "noblesse oblige"—the special obligations that come with special gifts and talents.

For there is no greater glory or grander beauty than the privilege of parenthood. And for this gift, parents must pay the price in terms of sacrifice, responsibility, dedication, and steadfastness.

When Sokowski came to Philadelphia to conduct the city's symphony orchestra, he was told that, on the whole, the orchestra was a good one. "But," his advisers added, "only the first violins are first rate. The other sections are poor. You ought to spend more time with those, to bring them up to the level of the violins."

Whereupon, Sokowski replied, "Oh, no, my friends, I shall do just the reverse. It will be my task to help make the violins even better. As the leaders improve, to keep pace with them the others will, too!"

And so with parents, the leaders of our homes, and ultimately, the shapers of our societies. As long as parents are not held too busy, or just too unaware of the need to raise their own standards of thinking and doing, they cannot expect much more of their children. The defects of the original show up clearly in the copies.

When parents know who they are, and what they are, whence they came and whither they are going, children are usually not problem children. That's so because their parents were not problem parents.

BELLEVILLE'S BUSINESS COLLEGE

"Wherever you may travel you will be likely to find former OBC graduates." — Ontario Business College brochure.

"Ontario Business College operated in rented quarters in various parts of Belleville's business area for 97 years," says Mrs. O. A. Brown, enthusiastic principal of the college, who feels this work in which she is engaged is "work for which I was born—I enjoy it so . . ." A former OBC teacher and an experienced business woman, now president and owner, she continues:

"In 1964 the College was moved to its present location of 54 Victoria Avenue. This was formerly the site of the Emmanuel Episcopal Reformed Church Manse.

"Since it was at one time dedicated church property, it was rededicated as an institution, where practical education would be conducted in accordance with Christian ideals.

"The Manse has been remodelled. Here are classrooms for secretarial and IBM students, and for washrooms on the second floor. A typewriting room and supply room on the first floor.

"A large new building has been attached to the older building, where an office and other classrooms are provided.

"The Church Hall was torn down, there being no further congregation, and unsuitable for other purposes. The property provides a parking area for students, staff and visitors.

"Thus the grounds and complete building, beautiful and dignified, we feel, truly represents both the dignified age of Ontario Business College and the necessary change in instruction to meet the demand of the modern business office.

"As you may well imagine, the courses given today are a far cry from the ones taught even a few years ago."

The work of each reveals the modern type of courses available to the students of today. These conducting the various classes are:

Mr. Phillips Buell — Born in Ireland, he left the life up in snow in various management positions, including ownership, in two mills, in the United States, South America and Provinces of Quebec, New Brunswick and Ontario. He teaches cost accounting.

Mrs. Mary Hobson — A former OBC student and business partner with her father, she teaches IBM keypunch training, and the newest subject being taught: introduction to automation.

Mrs. Olive G. Jones — A former OBC student and an experienced office worker, she teaches typewriting, business English and letter writing, penmanship, office procedures.

Miss E. E. Prentice — An honorary ORC graduate and business woman teaches shorthand and the new "Nancy Taylor Phinship School" course which emphasizes skills as well as appearance, poise, personality and charm; Mr. Executive course for men, which teaches salesmanship, management and proper conduct for the executive type of person along with many other subjects.

Miss N. R. Reynolds — Honor OBC graduate and former public school teacher, gives bookkeeping, rapid calculation, English, spelling, etc., as well as speedwriting, shorthand.

Mrs. E. M. Watson — Assistant to the principal and honors OBC graduate teaches commercial arithmetic, economics and bookkeeping and accounting.

Mr. R. B. McCulloch — well known local lawyer, is part-time teacher of commercial law.

Mr. Kenneth Higginson — controller at Miller Brothers Paper Co. holds B.A., C.A., C.I.S. degrees, teaches business administration of evening classes.

Mr. Michel Thiffault — A French Canadian student who remained in Belleville after graduation from OBC to work and live here, now assistant to the product manager of the American Optical Co., teaches conversational French for the evening class.

Mr. Frank J. Leach — office-equipment-trained lad to retire from active participation because of ill health.

Today's students are coached by Mrs. Brown, "must hurdle high educational standards underneath of in the days forever gone when a mere penmanship or bookkeeping course sufficed as a key to the business world."

(Added note: The rented quarters in which the OBC has operated are: St. Agnes Hall, The Toronto-Dominion building, the Bryce building and the Knights of Columbus Hall.)

DaVinci Improved Crude Hand Spindle for Spinning

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Spinning wheels were not really invented by Leonardo da Vinci. He did improve the crude hand-turned spindle that was in use. The first thread was spun on a stick or spindle that was twirled by hand. Da Vinci designed a pulley, bobbin and spindle device, but it was never put to practical use. A German invented a slightly different type of spindle and bobbin in about 1530. It was the basis for many of the more elaborate spinning wheels that followed.

A seated housewife used the small spinning wheel to spin flax into linen, a process that required 20 different operations. The large wheel was used to spin wool. The housewife walked about 20 miles in an average day of spinning.

Q. Someone told me a Chinese teapot made in the 1700's can be recognized by the top. How?

A. The oriental potters and makers of the 18th century had more experience than their European counterparts. The English maker only had a short history of making porcelain. To form a teapot he first made a pot, glazed and fired it, then made the top and glazed and fired it separately.

The Chinese maker was skilled enough to take a short cut. He made the pot, put a top on it, and glazed and fired both together with the top in its correct position. The 18th century oriental teapot has no glaze on the inside of the rim of the teapot because of the method of manufacturing.

Q. A Bible printed in 1859 by the American Bible Society of New York has been handed down to me from my great-grandparents. Has it any value?

A. Selling antiques and old books is a process based on supply and demand. Bibles have been printed for centuries. Many families hand the Bible down from one generation to the next. Elaborately illustrated Bibles or very early editions of special Bibles have more value.

The family genealogy written in the Bible is often of more value than the book itself. The condition of the Bible and its rarity determines the value. A surprisingly small percentage of the available old Bibles are of monetary value today.

Music Teachers Show Audio-visual Technique

VANCOUVER (CP) — The piano teachers are playing blackboards in city schools these days.

The Vancouver school system has a new musical board that teachers say is just that.

Music teachers are able to play the Japanese - built transistorized board that is their classes just as if it were a piano.

Music comes out of a speaker mounted below the board to correspond with the notes chalked on the music board's surface.

Students are able to see and hear the notes simultaneously.

"It's a perfect audio-visual tool," says Enid Turner, the school board's music supervisor.

"When youngsters see a teacher chalk on a treble clef, then a note and then by touching the note hear the tone, they will never forget it as long as they live," Mr. Turner told about 25 school music teachers in a recent demonstration.

"It's the finest tool I have seen for wiping out musical illiteracy in the schools."

CHEAPER THAN PIANO

Teachers operate the board simply by holding a metal pointer attached to the chord. When the student touches the board with his finger, an electrical circuit is completed and the note is sounded.

"You can tell a student about tone and interval until you are blue in the face, but the music board will immediately communicate the idea that notes stand for sounds," Mr. Turner said.

He said the board will overcome the piano's limitations in music teaching. The piano takes the teacher away from the class and creates an artificial gap between the sight of the note on the blackboard and the sound of it when played.

The music board has a blackboard surface with a five-line staff printed on it. Invisible carbon-impregnated strips separated by non-conducting material carry the low - voltage charge allowing teachers or students to complete the circuit with a touch of the finger.

The portable board costs about $300—"less than a piano," said Mr. Turner.

Vancouver school board has bought one of the devices and plans to buy more if it proves successful.

The University of British Columbia and the school board in nearby New Westminster are also using music boards.

Baby-sitting Not Responsibility Of Children's Godparents

Dear Doris: Twice in the past my husband has been asked by young couples to be a godparent to their children. I was not asked. In both cases the couples have parted amid much confusion and I have been asked to care for the children temporarily at various times. In one of the cases I am still a sort of permanent free sitter to one of the children who lives alone with his father.

What does this make me: step-godmother, godmother-in-law or just a free sitter? I like the kids and had never thought about it this way before, but now another young couple has asked my husband to be godfather to their little girl. They have asked another lady to be godmother.

I feel a little hit hurt, but perhaps I am foolish to feel so. Is this the normal procedure? — A Question of Etiquette

Dear Question: Etiquette demands nothing of you; what you do for these youngsters is a labor of love. Perhaps the father could do with a reminder of this.

By tradition, godparents just carries with it some concern for the spiritual development of the child; and some responsibility for his welfare in the event of a crisis. But there is nothing legally binding about this, nor even much expected any more.

Usually husband and wife are invited together, but this is not necessarily so if the parents are close friends of a husband but only nodding acquaintance with the wife.

Dear Doris: There are six kids in our family. Dad could not afford to give us all an elaborate education. He said he'd educate us but each child was supposed to help the next one. My sister told Dad I could live real free with her and her hubby to finish high school and this would be her part in paying for my education. Dad is a farmer so they get their meat free.

My sister's husband is always bothering me. Last night he kept bugging me about washing the floors. Then he said he was kicking me out side this winter. Then he said to a pal of his, "Jack, maybe you'd like a boarding place." I said, "But you'll have to do a bit of housework." He then said, "But he'll be paying board; he won't be getting it free."

Well, this hit home. It was not me who asked for free board. They asked me.

DORIS CLARE

He isn't funny. He's mean and rude. — Grumpy

Dear Grumpy: It seems Brother-in-law regrets Sister's bargain. Does he want to surrender the meat privileges and your help around the house?

His slacks are unkind, when he knows how little chance you have of being independent. You simply must talk this over with Mum and Dad.

Confidential to Puzzled Parent: Before closing the door on your 13-year-old with a resounding "No!", try finding out what other parents are doing. Growing girls need fun as well as the three "r's". You needn't believe the cry "Everybody's doing it" — but be sure you know all the facts.

(Doris knows Canadian resources and can guide you to the help you need. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Dark Rich Fruit Cake Repeated by Request

QUESTION: Please oh please repeat your 1964 Dark Rich Fruit Cake. I've lost my recipe and my grown up granddaughters want it too. —Emily B.

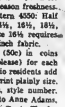
1964 DARK RICH FRUIT CAKE (repeated from November 11, 1964)

Makes over 7½ lbs. of cake.)

4 cups dark seedless raisins
2 cups washed, dried currants
3 cups seeded Muscatel raisins, separated, lightly packed
½ cup (two 2-oz. slices) candied pineapple, sliced
½ cup whole red glace cherries
½ cup whole green glace cherries
1½ cups chopped mixed candied peels (including citron)
½ cup brandy or strong tea (see below)
2 cups sliced blanched almonds
1½ cups flour (room temperature)
2 cups light brown sugar
8 large eggs
1-3 cup molasses
1 tsp. vanilla
2½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. baking soda
1½ tsp. salt
4 tsps. cinnamon
¾ tsp. ginger
¾ tsp. nutmeg
½ tsp. mace
¼ tsp. cloves
(NOTE: There is no baking powder in this cake.)



Combine all fruits and peels (not nuts). Sprinkle with tea or brandy. (NOTE: I brewed 2 tea bags in ¾ cup boiling water 7 minutes and measured ½ cup strong tea.) Let soak while you proceed with next step. In very large mixing bowl, or preserving kettle, cream butter until light, then beat in sugar until blended and light. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well between additions. Stir in molasses and vanilla. Sift the unsifted flour with the baking soda, salt and spices. Mix all of this flour mixture into the soaked fruits, adding almonds. Use your clean hands, if you like, to mix well. Then add all to creamed mixture and be sure they are thoroughly combined.

Line two 9" ring pans neatly with single layer of aluminum foil and butter the foil. (NOTE: If you use angel food pans with removable centres, you must protect the crack at the bottom by using long sheets of foil or triple wax paper which cover the crack — otherwise a little batter from the cooking batter might leak through.) Or use 3 standard loaf pans 4½ x 8½ x 2¾ inches, triple-wax-paper-lined and buttered. Smooth tops of batter. Bake at 275 deg. Fahr. 3¼ to 3½ hours with waterpan below during entire baking period. Replenish water in pans as it evaporates. Cool on cake racks in pans. See above for storage directions.

Ann Landers

Big Dogs Are Nuisance As Bridge Partners

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I belong to a bridge club. We meet once every two weeks in one another's homes.

ANN LANDERS

A couple (I will call them The Z's) have two dogs the size of mules. When we play bridge at the Z's home these animals are running loose, loping over the furniture, crowding us off the sofa during refreshment time, fighting us for the corned beef sandwiches. They sniff around under the tables and on one occasion tore my nylons.

My husband and I both like dogs but these animals are a nuisance. Do you feel that as guests, we have the right to ask the Z's to keep their dogs out of the living room when we are in their home? — DOG-GONED.

DEAR D.G.: I do. People who have pets should ask guests if they mind having animals around. If they sense a lack of enthusiasm, the livestock should be kept out of sight.

DEAR ANN: I stood up and cheered when I read your advice to the "Interested Friend" who wanted to wise up a neighbor about her husband's extra-curricular activities. She may be "Interested" but she is no friend.

I had "Interested Friends," too. I also had a husband with a great many fine qualities, but unfortunately he had a weakness for pretty girls. Every so often he just had to go off and sow a few oats. We were married six years when I first learned what was going on, but by then we had three children and I wasn't about to throw out the babies with the bath water.

Next month we will celebrate our silver wedding anniversary. My husband still strays every once in a while but there are so many rewarding and wonderful aspects of our marriage I'd be crazy to throw him out.

The last time an "Interested Friend" said, "I want to tell you something about your husband," I replied "There's nothing you can tell me about my husband that I don't already know. Why don't you tell me something about your husband?"

Please spread the word, Annie, it might make life easier for other women who have decided as I have to live peacefully with that which we cannot change. — RESIGNED AND CONTENT.

DEAR R. & C.: Great answer and one worth remembering.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a bachelor, new in this town and still living in a hotel. There are no unmarried girls at the place where I work so a fellow has to make his contacts where he can.

Friday night I was sitting in the lobby (reading your column, in fact) when a good-looking gal struck up a conversation. She said she was free for the evening so we wound up doing the town.

The next morning my wallet was missing. I have no proof that she took it, but I think she did. I know where she works and I wonder if I should call and ask if she can help me find my wallet. It's not the money but the credit cards I need. — XYZ.

DEAR XYZ: If you have no proof, forget it. In the meantime, I hope you have learned that a girl who is free for the evening can be pretty darned expensive.

Waste Tank For Boats Set for '68

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government announced Friday that pleasure boats with sleeping accomodation after June 1, 1968, will have to have holding tanks to store toilet wastes.

"All boats sold in Ontario after this date will be required to be similarly equipped," said J. R. Simonett, minister of energy and resources management.

"Some discharge - type equipment . . . may be allowed if the boat owner obtains a temporary permit to use the device from the Ontario Water Resources Commission. "These temporary permits will expire June 1, 1971."

It was previously intended to put the law into effect next July. A spokesman said Friday it would have been difficult for owners to meet that deadline.

No Damage Caused By Minor Fire

NAPANEE — Firemen were called out Thursday morning to Smart's Flower Shop on Dundas St. where smoke was reported in the basement. They discovered a smouldering jute bag below the grating in the sidewalk, probably ignited by a cigarette. Only supplies are kept in the basement, and they were undamaged. There was no damage to the store or the stock.

Work Stoppage Ups Cost Of School Construction

NAPANEE — Business dealt with at the meeting of the Napanee and District Collegiate Board was routine.

A new system of cafeteria rentals was approved, in order to make up the deficit. A committee retired to discuss this, and their recommendations were adopted. For dinners, the fee will be $75, for use of the coffee maker and dishwasher access $40, and for the coffee-maker only $25. There will be no refund in the charitable organizations as in the past.

Each request for use of the gymnasium will be dealt with individually.

The delegation which had visited the Department of Education the previous day had received authority to give a sub-contract to a Belleville firm for electrical work on the new building, and a sub-contract to Fox Plumbing of Kingston for the land. Construction of the $2,500,000 29-room addition by A. Wilker and Co., Ltd., came to a stop at the beginning of November. Since that the Board has been able to keep some of the work going under separate contracts. A number of lawsuits are pending in connection with this work stoppage.

To protect the sub-contractors, the Board authorized its solicitor W. A. Reid, Q.C., of Belleville, to obtain a bond under the Mechanics' Lien Act, so that their equipment could not be seized because of previous liens.

When asked about the statement which had been made by Reeve William Wagar that this work stoppage would cost the county an additional $40,000.00, Chairman Dr. A. E. Fyffe replied that nobody yet knew whether extra expenses such as letting the new contract, lawyers' fees and expenses connected with the lawsuits would be that amount, more or less. But whatever the additional cost is the county would bear only part of it, as grants would cover the major portion.

Elburn Zeran was appointed clerk of works to check the construction progress.

1966 Council Problems Deferred Until New Year

NAPANEE — At its first meeting January 9, the Napanee Council for 1967 will have its hands full with problems willed to it by the 1966 council which expired this week.

As Mayor Lorne A. Smart put it, "All these things take time. We can't just do them overnight. Besides, they take money."

The OWRC would like to know Napanee's opinion regarding the building of a pipe line to furnish chemically pure water from Napanee to Deseronto and other municipalities. The full outline of the proposal is now being studied by each council member in each municipality involved. Napanee, like Deseronto, wants more time to study the question and make up its mind.

Fire Chief F. W. Paiton would like the 1962 pumper replaced, but he will have to wait until next year for it.

Marshall Vanalstyne of Clarksville is up in arms because dogs destroy his shrubs in winter as in summer, and Napanee has no dog catcher in winter. This, too would take money.

Man's Body Found in Ditch

NAPANEE — The body of Roy Parks, in his 70th year, was found Thursday morning partly submerged in a ditch in front of a restaurant on Bolin's Hill, about 200 feet from his home.

Dr. Brant Bergstrome, coroner, was called to the scene and ordered a post mortem. It was performed in Kingston General Hospital by the pathologist Dr. David Anderson. The question of an inquest will not be decided until the report from the Attorney General's office is received. There was no evidence of a struggle, observers said, but the man's hat was found 12 feet away from his body.

Parks was unmarried, and was housekeeper with his sister, Mrs. William Aikenbrack. He was employed by Harry Vine, who described him as a good worker, and an expert in special work with concrete. He was also a stone mason and a brick layer.

Mrs. Walter (Phyllis) Gerow recently acquired this property and is demanding a right-of-way over a strip of waterfront property 30 feet in width bordering three 66-foot lots which extend to Water St. It is assessed for $100 and the owner pays a bit more than $7 taxes.

Mrs. Walter Gerow states that she has no access to her land, but Mr. Donaghy says that there is, and always has been, a 20 foot right of way to the west of her property.

Because of its shape and size, the property is unsuitable for building purposes. Originally it was marshland, but has filled in over the years.

Mrs. Gerow walked on Council once more at its last meeting, to ask what would be done. On previous occasions she had been advised to put the matter in the hands of a lawyer who would deal with the town's solicitor, W. K. Pearce. She stated that this had been done and that no reply had yet been sent to her lawyer, J. E. Madden, who had referred it to Mr. Pearce. She was told that the matter is now out of the hands of the council and that she must go to her solicitor for answers to her questions.

Vanier Medal For Brant Descendant

OTTAWA (CP) — Gilbert Monture was presented with the Vanier Medal of the Institute of Public Administration of Canada in a ceremony at Government House Friday.

Dr. Monture, 71, was honored as "an administrator, consultant, scientist, technologist, author and editor and as a diplomat for excellence in public service.

Dr. Monture, a descendant of the Mohawk Indian leader Joseph Brant, had completed 30 years in the public service on his retirement in 1956. At present he serves as an economic adviser to the Atlantic Development Board and governments of several developing countries.

Benson Gaining Reputation in Settlement of National Strikes

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue ministers usually gain their reputation as the men who keep reaching in your pocket for tax dollars.

Edgar John Benson, the youngest federal revenue minister in history, keeps popping up as the man who keeps mail flowing and phones flying.

Mr. Benson, 43, a former accountant and professor from Kingston, Ont., has become deeply involved in labor matters in his secondary role as president of the treasury board.

Friday, his efforts at the head of the government's negotiating team in the dispute with air traffic controllers resulted in a tentative settlement and the withdrawal of a Tuesday strike deadline.

A few weeks ago he burst into the parliamentary press gallery to announce an 11th-hour settlement of a postal pay dispute that would have crippled the mail service.

In his new role of treasury board president, Mr. Benson is the management voice in the government's relationship with its employees. The board is a select committee of cabinet that reviews and recommends all expenditures.

As he relaxed shortly after reaching the settlement with the controllers, Mr. Benson answered reporter's questions on his job.

At times it's pretty tough, he conceded.

Then he reflected for a moment—perhaps thinking back to the almost 24-hours of on-off negotiating—and added that it's more than tough, "it's just crazy."

His secretary answered the question on how much time the minister puts in at the office: "Twelve, 13, 14 hours a day."

His wife and three children live in Kingston—the riding he has represented since 1962—and it's difficult to visit them often enough. An older child attends college in California.

Born at Cobourg, Ont., Mr. Benson served overseas in the army from 1941 to 1945 and graduated with a commerce degree from Queen's University in 1949. He became a chartered accountant in 1952 and from then until 1962 was an associate professor at Queen's.

He was named parliamentary secretary to the finance minister in 1963 and was appointed revenue minister on the death of John Garland in 1964.

About two years ago the government began planning a major reorganization involving creation of new portfolios and changing internal administration of all departments.

Mr. Benson already had a reputation for reducing complicated tax measures to their simplest terms, moved into the new post of treasury board president Oct. 3, 1966.

"But I've held the job in effect for almost two years."

Mr. Benson likes his job, though he misses the golf and hunting which he once was able to do. "I've had a couple of days hunting, for deer, in the last two years."

But "at least there ain't no strike deadline on the horizon," he added with a smile.

Finance Firm Secretary Amazed at Fast Losses

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—C. C. Carrothers, former secretary of the bankrupt Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd., said Friday he is amazed at the mounting losses being revealed in preliminary investigations of the company.

At the first creditors' meeting in Toronto Thursday, J. L. Biddell, president of Clarkson Co. Ltd., the trustee in charge, said losses are $17,000,000 and will likely eventually be more than $19,000,000.

Mr. Carrothers, who resigned as secretary of Prudential Finance shortly before the company was placed in bankruptcy Dec. 1, said in an interview he could not understand how a company could lose so much money in 11 months.

He said he had had nothing to do with investments of Prudential Finance. The sale of notes and debentures was the responsibility of three other men.

The creditors' meeting in Toronto was called for the appearance of Mr. Carrothers, Premier John Robarts and Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

Mr. Robarts is a member of the law firm in which Mr. Carrothers is a partner. He is on a leave of absence from the London firm of Carrothers, Robarts, Betts and McKenzie.

He said earlier that he "welcomed" act of the firm Nov. 8, 1961, when he was sworn in as premier, and has had no business dealings or communications with it since that time.

Mr. Carrothers said Friday he would have no objection to appearing before the creditors.

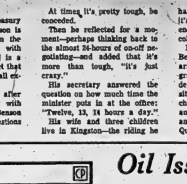
Investor to Continue

TORONTO (CP) — Mildred Walker says it will take more than the loss of $17,000 in personal savings to stop her from investing.



"There isn't a crook in the world that's going to knock my spirits down," Mrs. Walker, one of 8,500 small creditors who lost more than $17,000,000 when Prudential Finance Co. Ltd. went bankrupt this month, said in an interview Friday.

"I've always looked after myself—even when I was crippled —and I'll do it again," said the 42 - year - old bookkeeper, who was on crutches for five years following a car accident.

The loss of her life savings, however, left Mrs. Walker bitter about the failure of the government to protect her investors.

"If I can't trust the government, who the hell can I trust?" she asked.

"I figured the government was my watchdog," she said. "So I was protected. Prudential Finance was supposed to be operating under government regulations. This whole thing makes a complete fool of the government."

A Big Year on Farm

With wheat the dominant factor, gross farm income is expected to hit a record $4,000,000,000 in 1966, with the net farm income about half that figure. However, little or no increase in either gross or net income is expected in 1967. (CP Newsmap)

Oil Issues Show Daily Fluctuations

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rumors of further oil discoveries in the Rainbow and Zama Lake regions of northwestern Alberta kept attention focused on oil issues on Canadian stock exchanges this week.

Although there was little change in the weekly oil index the day-to-day fluctuations were of the spectacular nature, and changes of a point or more within the span of an hour were not uncommon.

Great Canadian Oil Sands moved up 1¼ to 10½ while Scurry-Rainbow dropped 1¾ to 19¼, Canadian Superior 1 to 30¼ and Hudson's Bay ½ to 24¾ .

Oils have been flying high for the last month as a result of the recent sale of oil and natural gas leases in Alberta and also in anticipation of a further major sale of leases scheduled next month.

Industrials were slashed as investors withheld support from the buoyant issues as well as anticipated tax increases in Finance Minister Sharp's mini-budget Monday.

They said this uncertainty along with tight money is responsible for keeping volumes down and only 13,062,000 shares changed hands compared with 13,179,000 last week.

Inco led the list lower, tumbling 4¾ to 92. Bank of Nova Scotia fell 2¼ to 62¼ and Texaco 2 to 67¼.

Trans-Canada Pipe Lines retreated 1¼ to 24¼ after the staff of the United States Federal Power Commission recommended that the company start over again in its bid for permission to build a pipeline south of the Great Lakes.

Massey - Ferguson advanced ¼ to 23¼ and Canadian Breweries ¼ to on 213,879 shares

Lake Dufault, drilling on its Nurrabi property, moved up to 11¾. On Friday it jumped 2.07 to 11¾ after touching a high of 13¾.

A spokesman for Falconbridge, which holds 51.1 per cent of Dufault shares, said the company encountered 5.06 percent copper on a 14.4-foot section in its deep drilling program. The company said it also found 4.85 per-cent zinc.

Falconbridge was off 3¼ to 88¼.

Among other base metals, Cominco slid 1¾ to 30¾ and Denison ¼ to 54¾.

New Imperial, which announced it encountered copper averaging 4.47 per cent at its Whitehorse mine, rose 29 cents to 2.62 on 806,000 shares. Copper-Man added 8¼ at 25 cents on 713,000 shares also in speculative mines.

Among golds, Kerr Addison moved up ¼ to 23¼ and Hollinger ¼ to 23 while Giant Yellowknife slid 45 cents to 7.55.

On index, golds were down .81 to 145.70, base metals .36 to 84.17 and the TSE 2.13 to 140.72.

At Montreal, industrials were down 2.36 to 147.51, utilities 1.17 to 129.22, banks 39 to 226.77 and papers .57 to 105.31. Volume was 4,375,000 shares compared with 3,711,000 last week.

Failing to remain at the scene of an accident Nov. 11 cost a city man a $100 fine in city magistrate's court today.

Roy Victor Robbs of 30 Gilbert St. pleaded guilty to the charge, laid by city police after they investigated a report of an accident on Pinnacle St.

An estimated $100 damage was done to each of the two cars involved in the mishap.

Employment News

By C. E. W. HUSER
Manager of Unemployment Insurance Commission Office

Commencing Monday, Dec. 19, if you become unemployed and wish to make application for unemployment insurance benefits, you may obtain the necessary application form by writing to or telephoning the Unemployment Insurance office in Belleville.

You need not visit the office for the purpose of filing a claim. The application will be sent to you on request and may be completed in your home.

This practice has been followed by many of you living at distant points. It will now include everyone who wishes to make an application for benefits, no matter where you live.

The objective of this system is to reduce traffic in the local office to a point where most, if not all, applications will be obtained by other than a personal visit to the local office, and the application will subsequently be completed without the assistance of the local office personnel.

This system will make it easier and more convenient for the you. Just phone and the application will be sent to you.

In the area served by our office, application forms for benefits may be obtained at the Canada Manpower Centres at Picton and at Belleville. Our authorized agent at Bancroft is available for claims for anyone in that area who wishes to use that service.

Other methods of distribution of application forms for benefit will be utilized, such as through employers, unions and post offices, if the need arises in the future.

In order to avoid your claim for benefits being delayed or a disqualification being imposed may I emphasize the following points.

1. Complete your application form for benefit as soon as you receive it and return it immediately.
2. It is essential that you answer every question and that each question is complete and accurate.
3. Make sure the application form for benefit is signed by you; if it is not signed it will be returned. This will cause delay.
4. It is important that your insurance book is sent in with the application form. We are finding that almost 50 percent of the applications made at present, the insurance book is missing. This causes a delay and a disqualification may be imposed. You should endeavor to obtain your insurance book immediately on separation from your employer or arrange to pick it up and send it in to us as soon as possible. If you are unable to obtain your insurance book let us know.
5. Any additional forms, questionnaires sent to you, should be completed fully and returned as soon as possible.

In connection with your claim for unemployment insurance we pass your name as a person actively seeking employment to the Canadian Manpower Centre serving the area in which you reside. The Canada Manpower Centre, previously known as the National Employment Service, will retain your name on its files and consider you for vacancies listed with them for 30 days only, unless you communicate with them prior to that time and advise them that you are still actively seeking employment.

As long as you are claiming unemployment insurance benefit you are required to renew your application with the Manpower Centre every 30 days. Failure to do this may result in suspension or denial of your unemployment insurance benefit.

We respectfully seek your cooperation in all three matters in order to avoid delays or possible disqualifications.

In closing, may I repeat, commencing Monday, Dec. 19, if you become unemployed and wish to make application for unemployment insurance benefit you may obtain the necessary form by writing or telephoning the Unemployment Insurance Office in Belleville.

You need not visit the office for the purpose of filing a claim. The application will be sent to you on request and may be completed in your own home.

British Minister Powerless to Save Heifer Voted Too Beautiful to Die

LONDON (CP)—The champion heifer voted too beautiful to die by hundreds of British animal-lovers must, it seems, meet her date with the slaughterhouse despite an appeal by a member of Parliament to Agriculture Minister Fred Peart.

A spokesman for the agricultural ministry said Friday the minister has "no power to interfere" with the rules of the Royal Smithfield Fatstock Show which require the champion steer and champion heifer to be slaughtered within a certain period after purchase in the interests of better beef production.

The appeal to reprieve the heifer, a 30-month-old Aberdeen-Angus named Pride Morneta of Thorn, was made by Dafyrd D. Morgan, Labor MP for the Welsh city of Cardigan, after protests showered on Cardigan butcher Jack Evans, who bought Pride Morets for £1,200 ($2,900) at the Smithfield Christmas show last week.

DEC. 23 DEADLINE

Evans and Pride Morets's exhibitor both signed a Smithfield regulation binding the purchaser to have the animal slaughtered by Dec. 23.

But after the heifer was shown parading round the ring on national television, the traditional British outpouring of sympathy for animals in peril began.

Housewives cancelled orders with butcher Evans for Christmas roasts and a petition was signed by 600 citizens of Cardigan. The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals offered to provide Pride Morets with "a home for the rest of its natural life."

Workers in Evans' slaughterhouse refused to kill the animal and Evans himself said he would not order them to do so.

He announced earlier this week he would auction the animal for charity if Smithfield released him from his slaughtering contract.

Unmoved, Smithfield authorities maintained the rules would not be broken.

J. G. Yardley, secretary of the Royal Smithfield Club, said: "It was made quite clear by the auctioneers before the sale and as the animals went into the ring that the champion steer and champion heifer must be slaughtered, and both the exhibitor and buyer signed an undertaking to that effect.

"We are only interested in meat animals and this regulation was introduced last year to put a stop to the selling of animals for breeding purposes.

"If the certificate signed by the slaughterer is not in my hands by Dec. 31, the matter will be reported to my council and they, will decide what action to take."

Yardley said a similar outcry occurred at last year's show over the champion heifer The boyer, a butcher from the Berkshire town of Reading, sold the animal back to the exhibitor. The new regulation was introduced to stop such loopholes and ensure the animals are sold for their intended purpose, Yardley said.

The Royal Smithfield show, generally acclaimed the world's premier fatstock show, was first held in 1799.

Man Who Wrote Kennedy Book Is Scholarly-looking Ex-marine

NEW YORK (AP)—Tall and scholarly-looking, William Manchester has spent most of his 44 years with his nose buried in a book or writing one.

Known to acquaintances as "very intense," Manchester, because, he's a most unlikely figure to be the centre of a swirling controversy.

But Manchester, whom Mrs. John F. Kennedy once trusted enough to let him her innermost thoughts and feelings and let him put them on tape, now faces Mrs. Kennedy — and behind her the family of the late president — across a chasm filled with lawyers, court papers and angry statements.

Both Harper and Row, who plan to publish the book "The Death of A President, and Look" magazine, which plans to serialize excerpts from it, are standing by their publishing schedule despite a planned lawsuit filed by the former first lady.

But while Mrs. Kennedy publicity spokesman Manchester's good faith and accuses him of exploiting the emotional state in which she has been suffering, Manchester remains almost incommunicado in his 150-year-old grey clapboard house in Middletown, Conn.

WAS A MARINE

Manchester was born in Attleboro, Mass. He had put in three years at the University of Massachusetts when he joined the U.S. marines.

He became a sergeant and saw wounded at Okinawa, for which he got the Purple Heart and spent a long period in hospital.

Returning to Massachusetts, he was graduated from university in 1946.

Manchester was a graduate student in journalism at the University of Missouri when an earlier-developed interest in the irascible Henry L. Mencken, the sage of Baltimore, led him to do his master's degree dissertation on Mencken.

In the fall of 1947, he was summoned to Baltimore by Mencken, given a job as a reporter on the Baltimore Sun. As a foreign correspondent he spent some time in New Delhi.

He also turned out a series of novels including City of Anger, about an honest police commissioner surrounded by corruption.

In 1948 Manchester married Julia Marshall of Baltimore. They now have three children.

In 1953 he moved to Connecticut, where for 10 years he was an editor for Wesleyan University's American civilization publications. Since 1959 he has been a fellow of the Wesleyan Centre for Advanced Studies.

5 Attempts to Modify Pension Bill Rejected

OTTAWA (CP)—The opposition failed five times Friday to modify the government's bill to provide a guaranteed-monthly income of $75 for old age pensioners—but served notice that it will make another try Monday.

"We will find another opportunity to deal with the matter," said Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) when the last of his three amendments was ruled out of order. His first two were defeated on standing votes.

TO BRING IN BUDGET

Debate on the pension supplement is to continue Monday but will be cut short when Finance Minister Sharp presents his mini-budget to the House at 8 p.m.

Friday's pension debate covered a wide range of topics, even the failure of the Prudential Finance Corp. group a week ago.

A clause allowing use of income tax records to verify applications by persons applying for the supplementary payments—which reach a maximum of $20 a month in addition to the basic $75 old age pension—brought charges that snoopers would descend on all applicants.

Transport Minister Pickersgill called the charges "a gross distortion" and an opposition that was shedding "crocodile tears."

Closest vote on any of the amendments was on the first proposed by Mr. Knowles, which would have made the supplementary payments a permanent feature rather than a transitional measure that will be phased out as the Canada Pension Plan comes into effect. It was defeated by a standing vote of 66 to 81.

His second amendment to make the benefit available to persons living permanently outside Canada lost by 75 to 74, but only after Bryce Mackasey (L—Verdun) had to rise hurriedly for 10 minutes while Liberal MPs were recruited for the vote.

A Conservative amendment to increase the maximum allowable income of persons qualifying for the benefit was rejected 60 to 42 and another NDP amendment to ensure other welfare payments wouldn't be reduced by the measure lost 68 to 21.

The opposition presented a united front on the first three votes but two Creditistes supported the government on the final amendment.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Retirement Trip to Europe: Here's What You Can Expect

By THOMAS COLLINS

This season of the Christmas spirit, for thousands of people who will be retiring after the first of the year, is the season also for dreaming.

You who know about this are dreaming of some grand adventure to celebrate your Golden Years. Maybe a trip to Europe. Just for the fun of it, or maybe to stroll down the streets there where your ancestors strolled.

Many of you have enough money to manage it. But you're apprehensive. A foreign land, funny money, a strange language, oppressive officials, and of course, expe.

For reassurance, if you'd like some, here is what a retirement trip to Europe can be like. This trip, which has about what you'd find on a similar trip in any of the Western countries, is a 1,000-mile tour from Paris, through the Channel ports through Belgium, Holland, down the Rhine Valley, down the Moselle Valley, through Luxembourg and the battlefields of northern France, and back to Paris. The trip lasts for three weeks, and overall it costs about $2,000. You can get by for a lot less . . . on an organized tour and in second-class hotels. But for a couple who is accustomed to first-class accommodations and wants to be independent, the $2,000 figure is about it.

FLY ANYBODY'S JET

You fly from New York to Paris (about seven hours) on anybody's jet in economy coach class for about $700 round-trip for a couple. Let a travel agency get your tickets, and also get you hotel reservations for the two nights after you arrive and the two days before you come back.

The airline will wink at your overweight luggage, and try to keep you amused for the seven-hour journey. You reach Paris, have a glum fellow stamp your passport, then have a happy fellow — often an Algerian—smile and wave you through customs, probably without opening your bags. You hail a cab, as in New York, state in English where you're going, and pay about $3 to, a downtown hotel. You register just about as in America; can city, find your room about the same, then go back to the lobby to turn some traveler's cheques into French money (at about three per cent cost).

You speak English all the way. Do some gawking and shopping, then phone an auto rental agency (American) and rent a car (French) for two weeks. You get all sorts of maps. And if you'll get full insurance coverage and behave yourself while driving you get into no trouble.

You leave Paris without having been cheated out of a dime, unless you've gone in for the night-life routine. But you've spent maybe $25 a night for your hotel and about the same for dinners for two. France is expensive.

You head northwest on a good road, stop for the night maybe at Boulogne on the Channel ($3 a night at the Meurice Hotel for a double room overlooking the fishing port), then head north through Dunkerque and into Belgium, with a smile and a wave from the border guards. The Belgian cities are slightly cheaper and considerably duller than France. It's only a few hours from Belgium to Amsterdam, where prices go about back as high as in Paris and where they speak English better than you do. Buy your gifts here.

At the German border you get only a smile and courtesy again. And the upper Rhine grim and industrial, the city of Bonn the start of delightful countryside (if you can get hotel rooms where you can watch the fabulous barge traffic on the river). German prices are about like New York or Chicago. From Koblenz southwest through Trier (one of the most charming drives in Europe), into Luxembourg, then into France's Metz, Verdun, and Rheims.

You switch into local currency at each border crossing. You speak English all the way. You get stuck occasionally in a sorry hotel for the night because you have made no reservations along the way — and don't need to. You find people and officials everywhere more friendly than in America. You don't get pickpocketed nor beat your way through Dunkerque and into Belgium, with a smile and a wave from the border guards. The Belgian cities are slightly cheaper and considerably duller than France. It's only a few hours from Belgium to Amsterdam, where prices go about back as high as in Paris and where they speak English better than you do. Buy your gifts here.

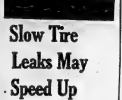
Johnson Hears Lodge's Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has received from Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge a report of progress in Vietnam and a prediction of further gains in 1967.

Lodge, home from his Saigon post for the holidays, gave this account to reporters at the White House Friday night during discussions with the president and his top advisers.

Lodge said he sees no signs yet of North Vietnam being interested in peace. But he added he anticipates enough headway in 1967 to be able to see "light at the end of the tunnel" by then, even though the fighting is still going on.



He said there are "four kinds of wars" in Vietnam—conventional arms, political development, economic development and pacification of terrorism. The pacification program was making the least progress and "is not yet rolling as it should be."

Lodge said Johnson made an historic decision in committing U.S. forces in Vietnam and the effect of American activities there has been to deny to an expansionist China "the great edge of Asia" from Korea to Burma.

This had kept 370,000,000 people out of Communist domination and contributed to world peace because it gave credibility to the word of the United States.

He said "in the military war we are doing very well." The effort for political development is going "quite well," the curbing of inflation has been "a satisfactory accomplishment" though still imperfect and the campaign against terrorism is "going least fast" despite "some progress."

Slow Tire Leaks May Speed Up

By EUGENE E. MILMOE

Don't neglect a slow tire leak — it may suddenly pick up speed. Many times, a tubeless which had been losing just a slight amount of air each day has gone dead flat overnight, or on the road.

A slow leak in a tubeless tire has only three possible causes: a punctured or cut tire, a defective or damaged valve or a poor seal between rim and tire. The latter trouble can be pretty frustrating.

Some motorists solve the problem by installing an inner tube, but that should be a last resort. If a bent, dirty, pitted or gritty rim flange prevents a perfect air seal, it can usually be repaired. So can a faulty weld or rivet leak. Replacement is the only answer, however, if the rim is cracked, split, chipped or eroded, and it's not a big investment.

When the tubeless tire has only recently been mounted on a rim, keep this in mind: Sometimes, excessive rubber lube or soap is used, and then, when the wheel is started or has hard braking, the tire slips slightly on the rim thus breaking the air seal and bringing on a slow leakage.

S.B. asks: "Would the cylinder head or the cylinder block crack when the coolant freezes solid?"

Both can be damaged

From O.M.: "When I'm on the road, my car runs smoothly, but if I'm idling at a standstill, the engine misses."

A leaky valve can bring on such symptoms.

R.S. WRITES: "Sometimes, when I apply the brakes my car will pull to the left, at other times it pulls to the right."

That usually points to a gummy brake lining, coated with oil, grease or brake fluid, which is affected by temperature. When such a lining is cold, there's much greater friction than when it is hot.

T. O. asks: "Our '64 hardtop steers a bit hard. I tried more air in the front tires and had the steering gear lubricated, but it didn't seem to help."

The kingpin bushings or bearings might be binding or running dry.

MPs to Consider Landreville Case

OTTAWA (CP)—The government Friday took another step in proceedings to remove Mr. Justice Leo Landreville from the bench with the naming of 12 MPs to a parliamentary committee to investigate the case.

Six senators were appointed earlier to the joint Senate-Commons committee, which will advise Parliament whether or not to have him ordered from the Ontario Supreme Court.

Of the Commons appointees, six are Liberals: Richard Cashin (St. John's West), Jean-Thomas Richard (Ottawa East), Harold Stafford (Elgin), Donald Tolmie (Welland), Orville Lallamme (Quebec - Montmorency) and Auguste Choquette (Lothiniere).

The others are Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood), A. B. Patterson (SC—Fraser Valley and Conservatives Richard Bell (Carleton), E. Davis Fulton (Kamloops), Robert C. Coates (Cumberland), and Edson Woolliams (Bow River).

All 18 committee members are lawyers except Mr. Patterson, who is a Protestant minister.

The committee is expected to start hearings next month.

The former Sudbury mayor has refused to resign despite a royal commission report by retired Judge Ivan C. Rand which declared him unfit for the bench.

The report questioned the propriety of his acceptances of stock options from Northern Ontario Natural Gas, which was putting a pipeline through Northern Ontario while the judge was Sudbury mayor.

Ship on Coin Is Bluenose

HALIFAX (CP)—Capt. Angus Walters, former skipper of the famous Nova Scotia schooner Bluenose, says there's no question that the vessel on the back of the Canadian 10-cent piece is the Bluenose.

N. A. Parker, master of the Canadian Mint in Ottawa, said earlier this week there were no assurances that the ship on the dime is the Bluenose. He said official proclamation of the coin, which first appeared in 1937, referred only to the vessel as a fishing schooner under sail.

"The mint master wouldn't know," Capt. Walters said Thursday. "He wasn't on the job in 1937."

Capt. Walters, 83, said he had been "officially notified" at the time that the schooner on the back of the coin was the Bluenose.

Capt. Walters said Wednesday he objects to the decision to remove the Bluenose from the dime next year in favor of a marker-el. The change is one of several being made in Canadian coins to be issued during the centennial year.

Women Want Hart House Open to Them

TORONTO (CP) — A committee of women students at the University of Toronto says the males-only ruling on admission to Hart House, last male stronghold on the campus, is outdated and degrading.

In a brief to Warden Arnold Wilkinson and three members of the Hart House debating team, the women said the ruling fails to take into account the increased interest by women in politics and other subjects discussed there since the law was set down in 1910.

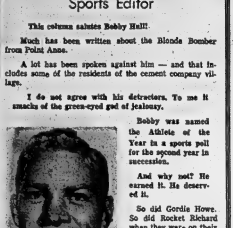
The Intelligencer



BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1966

This column salutes Bobby Hull!

Much has been written about the Blonde Bomber from Point Anne.

A lot has been spoken against him — and that includes some of the residents of the cement company village.

I do not agree with his detractors. To me it smacks of the green-eyed god of jealousy.

Bobby was named the Athlete of the Year in a sports poll for the second year in succession.

And why not? He earned it. He deserved it.

So did Gordie Howe. So did Rocket Richard when they were on their heyday.

I didn't hear any squawks about their selection. Floral, Saskatchewan went wild over Howe's selection. Montreal taverns dished out free suds when their perfectionist Richard was given the honor.

Point Anne especially, Hastings and Prince Edward counties should be, and are, proud of the honor won by Bobby for the second year in a row.

And in case his detractors yelp, Hull's honor was earned on the ice. The selectors picked him strictly on performance. There was nothing personal in their choice.

The first time I saw Bobby he was a golden-haired "rene" with the wings of Mercury in his heels, a shot that even at his post-toddling age blasted bulges in the net. Seven-come-eleven he was a "natural."

And one day along came a stranger. He did not as has been reported "discover" Bobby on an outdoor rink making monkeys out of the rest of the kids. Bob Wilson, then the chief scout for the Chicago Black Hawks, liked what he saw.

Hull wears the halo of a champion in a modest way.

The fact that he is one of the National Hockey Leagues outstanding stars has not affected him. He takes his honors in modest stride.

He is not "High-hat." Unlike some other NHL stars I can name, Bobby is his own personal self. He loves kids — and friends. The kids adore him. And Bobby stops for a child to give him his autograph.

He stepped once among a milling crowd to pat the head of a crippled kiddie in a wheel chair. Fellows like this are born — not actors.

The Point Anne family of Hull shares that great big spot Bobby keeps in his heart for his own immediate brood.

Not long ago reports over the air and in the public prints anent certain injuries Bobby was alleged to have suffered, caused his mother some concern.

She phoned Bobby at Chicago to check on the veracity of the stories.

"Now Mom," gently chided Robert, "You know you cannot believe and you should not believe all you hear and read about me."

There has been some talk of Bobby retiring within a few years to devote his full time to his farms and growing herds of prize beef cattle.

Bobby won't confirm nor deny the rumors and his comments have often been distorted. But if does seem passing strange that such a splendid athlete at the peak of a sensational career, and who loves his sport with a fierce intensity, should decide to retire at such a time.

Garry Alexander, a close friend of Hull's and the family pays this tribute:

"Personally speaking, I regard Bobby and Gordie Howe as not only the two finest hockey players I have ever watched but two of the greatest athletes.

"I have known Bobby since he was 12 years old and am proud to call him a friend. To me, he is the same sincere and co-operative person today that he was before gaining recognition in the world of sport.

"Hull brings honor to hockey and to this Quinte district."

Three In 5 Minutes ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Stop Mo-Hawks 5-3

"A's" Struck Swiftly In Overtime!

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

A bed-bot goalie and three quick overtime goals sent the Mo-Hawks down to a 5-3 defeat at the hands of the OHA Senior "A" group's second-place Woodstock Athletes before about 1,700 fans here last night.

Ray Reeson, enjoying a great rookie year in the Athletics' nets, was never better.

He faced 43 Mo-Hawk shots, many of them labelled, until his mates clicked in the extra ten-minute period.

The loss was Belleville's 10th compared to nine wins. The club faces another toughie when they meet the Galt Hornets in Galt.

Bobby Robinson broke a 2-2 tie after just 34 seconds of overtime play. He sunk a 15-foot backhand into the top corner behind Ladgero Doucet.

Pat Baxter added what proved to be the winner at 2.34 with a low drive from 20 feet inside the blueline. Dino Leggio swept around Taylor and dekd Doucet neatly, for a 5-3 game at 5.32, and the fans began to pour out.

The Mo-Hawks continued to battle, using Wayne Brown on defence for extra scoring punch in an attempt to climb back. Eddie Martinez cut the margin at 7.06 — too late and too little.

Back in the first period,

GARY DARLING

the losers appeared to leave their legs in the pre-game warmup. They failed to skate, got caught out of position for breakaway goals by Art Sullivan and Leggio, and were weak no end in their own zone.

Despite this, the Mo-Hawks outshot the shortstaffed Athletics 13-7 but found Reeson stingy right from the start.

Ralph Plane, one of the club's best in the last two games, got credit for a goal at 11.35 to tie the game 1-1. Bill Mc-

Alpine's side-boards shot deflected in off Plane parked in front of Reeson.

Marineau, Taylor and Brown were robbery victims in the first. At the other end Doucet faced his attackers about 4 times. The defence was caught up ice on both goals.

Playing coach Floyd Crawford moved Bob Taylor back on defence for the game's remainder and ran the club from the bench. "I know I wasn't helping out there," Floyd said after the game but refused to blame a tightly-bandaged knee for his problems.

"And I told the boys they played well enough in win, too. Surely we can't run into another goalie that hot tomorrow night," he added in reference to the Galt game.

The Mo-Hawks came to life in the second, led by Plane's hustle and several dangerous rushes by Minnie Menard, but Reeson booted out 15 shots and Doucet nine in a great period for the netminders.

Reeson robbed Brown twice and Taylor went the length of the ice to test him before Gary Darling brought the crowd up roaring with the equalizer at 14.13. Menard and Baker were battling for the puck behind the net when Darling pulled it loose and jammed it past a surprised Reeson on the short side.

The same player forced Reeson into a terrific leaping save on the next rush; Doucet pulled off a couple of bonones; Menard's bullet hit a post and bounced off the inside of the goalie's leg — and stayed out — in the final torrid minutes of regulation.

Robinson's overtime goalkie changed the pattern although Bradford and Menard came close at 1.46.

The game's only penalties were fighting majors to Greg Marchen and Jerry Harrigan in the first period.

Ivanhoe Takes Over Loop Lead

Ivanhoe Knights moved into undisputed possession of first place in the Centre Hastings Hockey League standing by one point last night.

The Knights trimmed Glen Ross Rebels 5-2 before a good crowd in Stirling and now lead the Rebels and Wallbridge by a single point in the race for top honors.

However, it was reported this morning that Glen Ross is professing the game between Ivanhoe's use of Dave Muir. Muir has played on a part-time basis with Bellecroft Steel, a "B" club during the past two seasons.

Muir fired two Ivanhoe goals, as did Clare Hagerman, while Richard Chapman got the other one.

Andy Faulkner potted both Glen Ross tallies.

Petes Hang Collar On Junior Macs!

A couple of underdog victories turned the OHA Eastern Junior "B" league race into a mad scramble for the top last night.

Belleville's Quinte McFarlands shocked a 6-0 whitewashing from Peterborough Don Byes in Port Hope, while Oshawa whipped Trenton and Kingston upended first-place Cobourg, both by scores of 3-2.

Following the full slate of games, only two points separate the top four clubs and Kingston is closing fast behind the pack.

Cobourg has 17 points, Quinte 16, Oshawa and Peterborough 15 each, Kingston 11 and Trenton 5.

Peterborough took a 1-0 first-period lead against the Macs and rammed home five without a reply in the second stanza.

"We were just not skating or checking in the second period," said Quinte coach Flori Goegan this morning.

"The boys came to life in the third and had some good scoring chances but couldn't put the puck behind the goalie. And Forrester played well for us too, we certainly couldn't blame him for the loss," Goegan added.

The Don Byes outshot Quinte in every period, blasting 45 shots at Bob Forrester who had been hit in the head by a pre-game warmup shot. Randy Reid kicked out 20 Mac shots to earn his shutout.

Quinte played without the services of Billy Hopkins, John Todd and Ivan Stringer, leaving the club with only 12 players.

Ron Chittick sparked the Don Byes attack, scoring three consecutive goals in the second period.

Defencemen Jim Blastorah scored a power play goal at 6.25 of the first heat. Chittick struck quickly in the second with goals at 1.33, 2.54 and 5.55, the first of these also while the Byes were up a man.

Bob MacInnes upped the count to 5-0 at 18.07 and Bill Stabler added the final one at 19.33 with Chittick picking up an assist for his fourth point of the night.

Neither club could manage a goal in the third when the winners held a slim 10-7 shooting edge.

Included among ten Quinte penalties was a second-period misconduct to Bob Forrester and another of the same to Al Claver, in the third. The winners drew six minor sentences.

The McFarlands are idle now until Thursday, December 29, when they meet the Ottawa Cruishmen in Picton.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

When I first joined the Red Wings, Sid Abel, now our manager-coach, was captain of the club. In the '51 seasons I've been with the team, the Wings have had five captains, including myself.

First it was Sid, then Ted Lindsay. Ted was followed by Red Kelly and I took over from Red. Alex Delvecchio, our present captain, took over from me.

I enjoyed being captain and, of course, you get a little extra on your contract for the job. There is also more to it than arguing with the referee on the ice. Your main job as captain, I would say, is being a liaison between the players and management.

Hockey clubs are like any business where a group of men are employed. Problems and "beefs" crop up and they must be dealt with. In some clubs, the captain can iron them out or find a solution. Sometimes the beef has to go to the management. This is where the liaison comes in.

The captain also has the job of making certain everyone is at the team meeting on game days. On our club, the captain sometimes conducts the meeting with Sid away.

It's fairly well known that on the Wings, Sid has a unique setup. It's commonly called his "cabinet." It's made up of senior players whom Sid calls in for discussion on various problems that arise.

The cabinet this year included Alex, myself and Norm Ullman. At one time it included Bill Gadsby and Marcel Pronovost. Bill has retired and Marcel was traded to Toronto. When Bill decided to hang them up, Sid moved Normie into the "cabinet."

Personally I think the cabinet is a good idea. It emphasizes team spirit.

Sometimes when I look back across the seasons, I chuckle about my first year with the Wings. I held Sid in awe because he was captain. In fact, I held everybody in awe and wanted desperately to hang on for a full season so I could go back to Saskatoon and brag about it.

I'll never forget going back to Saskatoon after my second season with the club. I was into an old school buddy and his first question was: "Hey, Gordie where have you been spending your winters?" I haven't seen you around."

That nipped my idea I had of having a big head.

Hawk "Twins" Together Eight Years

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Togetherness is paying off for Chicago Black Hawks.

While other teams break up lines with the efficiency of Xerox divorce courts, Hawks are winning by keeping Stan Mikita and Ken Wharram together.

While they have had different mates on left wing, Mikita and Wharram have been skating and scoring together for almost eight seasons.

They'll be out to fill the net tonight when the Black Hawks clash with the Canadiens in Montreal. In tonight's other game, league-leading New York Rangers meet the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

In Sunday's action, Montreal is at Boston, Toronto plays in Chicago and New York is at Detroit.

Mikita and Wharram have started fast this season, with Mikita showing the way as the league's top point-getter with 39, including 27 assists, tops in the NHL in that department.

Wharram has 14 goals and nine assists this season, including four goals against the Canadiens in four games. Mikita, winner of two scoring championships, has one goal and five assists against Montreal.

Wharram has been Mikita's right winger since they broke into the NHL, Wharram from Buffalo of the American Hockey League and Mikita directly from St. Catherines Juniors.

Their first left winger was Ted Lindsay and then Al MacDonald came along. And finally, Doug Mohns, the former Boston defenceman, was placed at left wing and last season he enjoyed his best scoring year with 22 goals and 27 assists.

The Hawks, who share second place with the Maple Leafs, have won three of four games against the Canadiens this season. The Hawks have won 5-0, 5-3 and 3-1.

The Canadiens downed the Hawks 3-1 the last time the two clubs met in Montreal.

Montreal's lines have been hot and cold this season and have the lowest scoring record in the league with 54 goals in 34 games. However, coach Toe Blake doesn't plan any changes for tonight's game.

Netminder Gump Worsley's status is still indefinite. The Montreal goalie has another date Monday with the club doctor for an examination of the small cartilage tear in his right knee. He suffered the injury against Toronto 10 days ago.

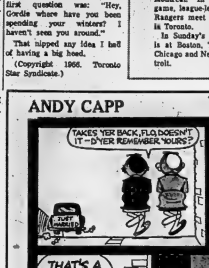
As a result, Charlie Hodge will start in nets tonight with Gary Bauman as backup netminder.

The Maple Leafs will face the high-flying Rangers with Bruce Gamble in nets.

Gamble will replace veteran Johnny Bower, who has a sore shoulder. Bower took a hard shot in Wednesday's game against Boston.

SAWCHUK IN HOSPITAL

Terry Sawchuk, the other Toronto netminder, is still in hospital for tests on his back. Gary Smith, up from Rochester of the AHL, will serve as the backup goaltender in Gamble.



Gamble came close to not playing in tonight's game. He was hit on the throat by a puck in Thursday's practice. However, it wasn't serious.

The Rangers have lost only one game in their last 10 outings and they will be out to increase their lead in the standings. New York has 30 points, one more than Toronto and Boston.

Rod Gilbert has been leading the way for the Rangers with seven goals in his last four games. He leads the league in the goal - scoring department with 18. He is also tied for third place in the individual scoring race with Norm Ullman. Both have 24 points, one fewer than Phil Goyette, Gilbert's teammate.

The Rangers are also getting some outstanding netminding from Ed Giacomin, who has a 2.26 goals - against average. Giacomin also has three shutouts and shares the lead in that department with Detroit's Roger Crozier.

Keep Television Watch

Day of Decision For Cowboys, Bills

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dallas Cowboys, with everything to gain, and Buffalo Bills, with everything to lose, keep a television death watch today while their futures are decided at St. Louis and New York.

Dallas, gunning for its first National Football League division crown, was sitting pretty at kickoff time in St. Louis, where the Cardinals battled for survival against Cleveland Browns.

The Bills, however, had some thing to fidget about as Boston Patriots sought to the Bills' two-year American Football League reign by downing the Jets at New York.

Regardless of the Cards-Browns outcome, the Cowboys know they still will be in the driver's seat Sunday, when they meet New York's defenceless Giants in their regular-season windup.

The Bills had no such assurance. Anything short of a Jets victory would make Sunday's Denver-Buffalo game a purely academic affair.

JUST NEED A TIE

Boston (8-3-2) went into today's game having dropped only one of its last 11 starts. Either a victory or tie at New York was all the Patriots needed to eliminate Buffalo (6-4-1) and clinch their first AFL Eastern Division title since 1963.

In the NFL's Eastern Conference stretch race, Dallas (9-3-1) took a full game bulge over St. Louis (8-4-1) into the climactic weekend.

Waiting in the wings for the eventual winners are Green Bay Packers and Kansas City Chiefs, who already have nailed Western Conference titles in the NFL and AFL, respectively.

The Packers warm up for the Jan. 1 NFL championship with a visit to Los Angeles Rams Sunday while Baltimore Colts are at San Francisco 49ers, Philadelphia Eagles at Washington Redskins, Pittsburgh Steelers at Atlanta Falcons and Minnesota Vikings at Chicago Bears.

Houston Oilers invades Miami Dolphins and the Chiefs prey for their Jan. 1 title date by visiting San Diego Chargers in Sunday's other AFL regular-season finale.

Still at stake in the NFL are second spots in each conference and an additional payday in the league's Playoff Bowl at Miami.

Decisions Jose Torres

Tiger Wins Light-Heavy Crown!

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Tiger, who appeared all washed up eight months ago, today has a fresh career ahead of him at light heavyweight champion of the world at age 37.

The first fighting business ahead for the former middleweight king from Nigeria probably will be a return bout with Jose Torres, the 30-year-old New Yorker he dethroned Friday night on a unanimous 15-round decision at Madison Square Garden.

With the victory, Tiger became the first former middleweight champion to win the light heavyweight crown in 61 years. Bob Fitzsimmons did it first in 1903.

"I'll fight anybody," the jubilant Tiger said after the fight. "It's up to my managers."

"Return with Torres? Why not," said Lou Burston, one of Tiger's American handlers. "This time we'll get the big money."

"I'd like ta fight him again," said Torres, "but it's up to him."

Torres, who had predicted he would win every round and then knock out Tiger, said: "I thought I won the fight even though I fought a bad fight, a very bad fight."

Said Tiger:

"I knew he was talk, talk all the time. I knew I could beat him. I was much stronger at 157 pounds."

Tiger said making the middleweight limit of 160 pounds hurt him last April 25 when he lost that title to then welterweight champion Emile Griffith. At 157 pounds, Tiger scaled 159 pounds.

A 5-to-1 underdog to Torres, winner of three title defences earlier in the year, Tiger took the lacing lesson from the tall leader in the first five rounds and then came on like a tidal wave.

Referee Johnny LoBianco had it 10-5 in rounds, Judge Frank Forbes had it 9-6 and Judge Pete Castellano 8-6-1. The Associated Press also had Tiger the winner by nine.

During the first five rounds Torres spurned the retreating Tiger with left jabs and whacked him with left hooks and rights to the head and body.

But in the sixth, Tiger began to score inside with both hands to the head and body.

In the eighth, the tide changed completely. Tiger, who had been lying back, moved in. He forced Torres to trade punches and began to get the edge in the exchanges.

From then on, Tiger dominated the fight and the champion grew more and more listless. The crowd of 13,654, which had cheered Torres at the start, roared for Tiger to keep charging.

When the unanimous verdict was announced, it was greeted with rending cheers.

There were no knockdowns.

Torres had a 13-fight victory streak ended and his record now is 30-2-1. Tiger's record is 55-15-3.

The gate was $100,638. Television added about another $50,000. Torres received a $75,000 guarantee. Tiger earned about 30,000 on his 20 per cent.

Northern Pickerel Fishing Won't Change Open Date

TORONTO (CP) — A department of lands and forests spokesman said Friday the department had reversed its decision to change the opening date of the pickerel fishing season in parts of Northern Ontario, and the 1967 season will open May 13.

It had previously been decided to open the season May 20 next year. The move brought strong protests from tourist operators in the North Bay-Sudbury area who had already begun their publicity campaigns and were making reservations based on this year's earlier opening.

The decision was made by Rene Brunelle, lands and forests minister, in consultation with his department officials, after representations from outfitters in the area concerned.

Mr. Brunelle said in a statement:

"The necessary steps are being taken to establish May 13, 1967, as the opening date for angling for walleye or yellow pickerel, in those areas of northern and western Ontario north of Highway 17 for which a spring closed season exists."

The May 20 opening had been supported by conservation groups in the North Bay district. In a statement Friday signed by 80 persons, the conservationists argued that earlier opening interferes with spawning. If the opening is continued, it will be too early "it will not be long before the pickerel population of Lake Nipissing will be depleted."

Full details of the opening dates for the fishing season in all of Ontario have not yet been announced.

Davey Unfolds Impressive Plans

TORONTO (CP) — Senator Keith Davey, commissioner-elect of the Canadian Football League, says he will promote the game by upgrading its fan appeal.

Dick Beddoes, writing in the Globe Magazine, a weekend supplement of The Globe and Mail, says Davey advocates wrapping up defensive football with the garbage, paying officials more money, making the teams help the have-nots, giving the game back to the fans.

Davey replaces Sydney Hutter of Winnipeg as commissioner Jan. 1. Beddoes, in an interview with Davey, deduces that the commissioner - elect will leave no stone unturned in his bid to promote football, with everything from better stadiums to pretty girls.

The story quotes Davey:

"I first have to affect one league. I've got to implement the C.O.O.L. report to bring East and West into a genuine football confederation."

C.O.O.L. is the Committee On One League, comprising the presidents of the nine CFL clubs. The committee, formed last winter, has failed to agree on the controversial areas of gate equalization and sharing television revenues.

ARGOS GIVING TROUBLE

"In fairness to others, the haves give to the have-nots. We are having trouble getting Toronto Argonauts to give all the way.

"I can understand the reluctance of the teams clubs to give up money. They're all privately owned, and contributions are found in the somebody in the private wallet.

"Out west, where the clubs are community owned, contributions come from the community pot, with no one individual suffering.

"But the CFL will remain balkanized until the eastern clubs, with their bigger revenues, realize they must share equally.

"It's ridiculous that there were 4,000 empty seats for the Grey Cup game in Vancouver, ing that in air playoff games, three in the East and three in the West, we weren't even close to a single sellout.

"It's no baffling secret why our attendance is off. We're hit by the availability of the U.S. product on Canadian television, so easy to get on the CBC-TV set.

"It's incredible to me that a network that is predicated on establishing a national identity, can be plied by a game, directly harming a Canadian game. I look on this as fiendish.

"... We've got to get more of our product on the CBC, and we've also got to improve that product. We need more scoring and more stars. I put the onus on the teams to produce more offence."

"We need more consistency in officiating, especially as it relates to the two divisions (Eastern Football Conference and Western Football Conference). Plays are called more closely in the West than in the East.

"I have some ways the officiating can be improved, but I'm not prepared to reveal them now. Mr. Halter's public attitude was that officials could do no wrong and he stood behind them 100 per cent. I can say I will stand behind them, but I hope we can improve their public relations."

Player Assaults Referee

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Danny Patrick of Newmarket, a member of Johnstown Jets of the Eastern Hockey League, Friday night hit a referee with a hockey stick, sending him to hospital.

The referee, Ed Pantalone, was labelled in fair condition. The extent of his injuries was not known immediately.

Pantalone called Patrick for tripping in the third period of a game with Clinton Comets.

Patrick charged Pantalone, knocked him down, then hit him with the stick. He was ejected from the game.

Patrick, 28, has been with the Jets since 1961. He previously played with Eastern Hockey League franchises in Washington, D.C., and New Jersey.

He scored one goal and assisted on another in Clinton's 8-5 overtime victory.

Lou Marsh Trophy Won By Elaine

TORONTO (CP)—Elaine Tanner of Toronto, 15-year-old star of last summer's British Empire Games, today was named 1966 winner of the Lou E. Marsh Memorial Trophy as Canada's outstanding athlete.

Miss Tanner, who will be 16 Feb. 24, brought home seven swimming medals at the Games in Jamaica. She is the youngest winner in the 31-year history of the trophy, awarded annually in memory of a former sports editor of The Star.

Miss Tanner's performance at the BEG earned her four gold medals and three silver. She also holds the women's world backstroke record for 220 yards — two minutes 29.9 seconds—and the U.S. 100-yards backstroke in 1:07 seconds, and is a member of the Canadian 440-yard relay team which holds the world freestyle mark of 4:10.8.

Win Three From Napanee

Moira Wins Hoop Openers

By DAVE BRANNER

Moira opened its 1966 basketball season with a triple victory over Napanee last night. Playing at Napanee, the seniors drove to a comfortable 58-36 victory over Napanee, the juniors took Napanee 38-34, and the bantams won a thriller 30-28.

In the senior game, Moira scored first and never relinquished that lead. Moira carried the play in the first quarter as Napanee lacked finishing power. At the end of the first quarter Moira led 14-9.

In the second quarter Moira continued to outplay Napanee, and began to pull away from the opposition. However, Napanee never gave up, and stayed within striking distance. The score at the end of the half was 27-18 for Moira.

In the third quarter the game was hard to get tough with many fouls being called. Napanee had only six players still active by the end of the third quarter. In the scoring department Moira had now built up a comfortable lead, partly because of a great number of fouls imposed on Napanee. At the end of the third quarter Moira led 42-27.

The fourth quarter was all Moira. The senior Trojans outscored Napanee 17-6 in that quarter and the final score was 58-36 for Moira.

The junior game followed much the same pattern as the senior game although Napanee led for most of the first quarter. At half time, however, Moira led 23-16. The second half was a bit dull as both teams seemed to be tiring. The final score was 38-36 for Moira.

The bantams won their game in the last seconds as they held off a Napanee rally. The score was 30-29 for Moira.

The scorers in the junior game were: Moira, Bill Probert 16, Bruce Jarvis 14, Pete Bishop 10, Terry Cretney 7, Rolston Davis Loder 4, Don Curnoe 4 and Steve Hunter 3.

John Cunningham led the Napanee juniors with 17 points and Bob Taylor netted 12.

The scorers in the bantam game were: Moira, Bill Lowndes scored 15 and 10 points respectively to lead the bantams to victory. Gary Lee led Napanee with 12 points.

The line score for the senior game: Moira, Ron Sandiford 21, Jim Risling 18, Gary Snarr 12, Paul Loder 5, and John Hayes 2; Napanee, Bob Austin 12, Ron Taylor 10, Terry Woolsey 5, Jim Cechetto 4, Lary Roblin 3 and Bob Lee 2.

BCI Turns Back Moira

By BOB GILL

Belleville Collegiate Institutes basketball squads opened the season auspiciously here last night defeating Moira S.S. teams in a triple-header.

BCI seniors took their tilt by an 84-31 score; the Juniors captured a 54-41 victory and the bantams won by a 54-18 count.

In the bantam game B.C.I. began with an early lead re-straining the Saints to a very low score. As the game progressed Quinte made a bid to catch up but B.C.I.'s bantams pulled ahead and kept a fast pace to win the game 54-18.

For B.C.I. the high scorers were Wright (24), Cass (12) and Gill and Gahupe both with 6. Lebarron played well for B.C.I. for Quinte, Middleton paced the Saints with 8.

B.C.I.'s junior game was a thriller with the lead changing hands many times during the first half. Around the half quarter B.C.I. regrouped to obtain a small lead which lasted to the end and they won the game 52-41. For B.C.I. Cass paced the team with 16, Lockin (11), Shaw (10) and Drumm (6). Shea and Bridget played a fast game and were good playmakers for B.C.I. For the Saints Hamilton played hard and led the Saints with 13.

The senior game was an exceptional one as the experienced players on both teams fought hard. B.C.I. began with an early lead which they held and increased as the game went on. This fact, however, did not discourage the fast and exciting play typical of the senior teams.

B.C.I. went on to win the game by a score of 84-31.

For B.C.I. Chalmers and Thibeau played exceptionally well netting 21, and 20 points respectively. Lornie was a close third with 17. Other scorers for B.C.I. were Harder with 8 and McCreary and McDougall both with 7. Smith worked hard and was a key in many plays. For Quinte Duncan and Buddle paced the Saints with 7 and 6 respectively.

A Montreal Junior Canadiens scoring spree and Gordon Bolduc's spotty defence helped Hamilton Red Wings into first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The Canadiens, lacking punch for most of the season, exploded Friday night to end Kitchener Rangers' seven-game winning streak with a 9-7 victory.

And, the Nationals gave up three goals while they had a man advantage as Hamilton won 5-3.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

BY BOB BLAIND

Thursday, December 15th closed the bird hunting season for 1966. Ducks, geese and all migratory birds, pheasant and pheasant hunting has had the bird and as far as I am concerned this year has been a poor year for the late season duck hunter.

Partridge hunters had a fair to good season and if it had not been for the Provincial Game Preserves very few pheasant would have been taken.

The weather had a lot to do with the poor fall duck hunting inasmuch as we had very unseasonable warm weather, and not very much in the way of windy and stormy climates that we usually have in the fall.

The ducks were and still are in goodly numbers in Lake Ontario but are sitting offshore in huge flocks.

Although some of these birds fly around a bit they do not come inshore to feed, but stay out on the lake feeding off the shoals and bars.

They do not decoy very easily. Because the huge flock offshore is a more natural pool for them to go into. Even sets of 100 decoys could not attract too many of these ducks.

Ice fishing is just around the corner and the weather is also holding this sport back a bit but I have no doubt we will have a good winter. One of the Indian sign for this is the height of the muskrat houses in the marshes. Even though we have high water for this time of year the muskrats have built their houses two to three feet higher than the high water level.

This usually means lots of snow and cold weather for the coming winter.

If you are planning on buying equipment for the ice fisherman or woman there are many items you may purchase for this purpose, such as, ice augers, snow machines, fishing rods, portable ice huts, stoves, lanterns or warm clothing. All these articles make for a comfortable fishing trip.

Our first fishing through the ice is for pickerel, pike and perch around the Quinte area. It's a pity we have to wait for the end of February to do some fishing for trout but the powers that be have seen to it that Hastings and neighboring Counties open at this late date.

If you want to do some early trout fishing you must go to Haliburton or Nipissing for early January opening of these fine fish.

Chuvalo Wins In Third

LABRADOR CITY (CP) — George Chuvalo of Toronto knocked out Willie McCormick of Digby, N.S., and Seattle, Wash., here at 2:30 of the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round non-title fight in this Labrador mining centre Friday night.

Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight champion, floored McCormick early in the round with a right hand and ended it with another right.

It was the eighth straight victory for Chuvalo since losing a 10-round decision to world heavyweight champion Cassius Clay earlier this year.

"It's that right hand that's making the difference now," Irv Ungerman, Chuvalo's manager said in an interview after the fight.

"Freddy Brown has been working on it since the Clay fight and now George has learned to polish them off."

Brown is a seasoned trainer who has worked with such world champions as light heavyweight Archy Grantene and heavyweight Rocky Marciano.

Ungerman said proceeds from the fight were donated to a fund for crippled children in Labrador City. Top seats sold for $10, he said.

Studies Scholarships Plan

By JIM CRERAR

TORONTO (CP) — Athletic scholarships may be a reality in Canadian universities by next fall.

Ivor Wynne of McMaster University in Hamilton, president of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union, said Friday he is heading a committee which will study the adoption of athletic scholarships.

He made the statement at a press conference marking the conclusion of a three-day meeting of the CIAU. He said the committee plans to have a recommendation ready for the CIAU at its annual meeting next June in Montreal.

Only one university in Canada, Simon Fraser of Vancouver, permits athletes to receive financial help in the form of bursaries and scholarships because of their abilities in sports. Simon Fraser is not a member of the CIAU.

Wynne said he will meet with representatives of the five groups making up the CIAU—the Maritime Intercollegiate Athletic Association, the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Intercollegiate Athletic Association, the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association, the Ontario Intercollegiate Athletic Association and the Western Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

If the CIAU decides in favor of athletic scholarships in June, Wynne said, the decision would probably be submitted to the Association of Universities and Colleges in Canada for approval.

ACCEPT DECISION

Wynne was not certain what reception such a move would get from the AUCC but said it was possible universities could make the idea collectively or individually.

Wynne said there has been pressure on the CIAU to study athletic scholarships.

Dr. F. W. Kennedy of the University of Manitoba in Winnipeg, and president of the Western Intercollegiate association, said directors of the WIAA have submitted a brief on athletic scholarships to presidents of universities and colleges in Western Canada meeting this weekend in Regina.

Dr. Kennedy said athletic scholarships have received favorable consideration in the West and added that the brief is intended to sound out the presidents on their feelings.

He pointed out that several schools in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia have players on their hockey teams receiving some financial help in their studies from a Canadian brewery.

But he said as far as he is concerned the WIAA would not put the idea to athletic school authorities are voted down.

Wynne said the Canadian College Bowl, an annual game in Toronto between two invited college teams, may also become an athletic championship affair.

He said the bowl's management committee, consisting of representatives of the CIAU and the Canadian Save the Children Fund to whom the proceeds go, will study the idea.

Miners Edge Poles 2-1

HANNA, Alta. (CP) — Veteran Sid Finney fired the winning goal in the second period Friday as Drumheller Miners warmed up for a trip to Europe later this month by edging the touring Polish national team 3-1.

Broadcasting Innovator Ken Soble Dies at 55

HAMILTON (CP) — Kenneth David Soble, 55, one of Canadian broadcasting's most imaginative innovators, died Friday night after a short illness.

He had been chairman of the Ontario Housing Corp. since 1954 and was president and general-manager of (Niagara Television Ltd., operator of television station CHCH in Hamilton, and owner and president of Hamilton radio station CHML.

Mr. Soble was taken to hospital three weeks ago suffering from overwork and exhaustion, but was released Wednesday.

Secretary of State Judy Lamont was broadcasting, said in Ottawa that Mr. Soble's death was "a great shock" to her.

"Ken Soble was a very likeable man and a great broadcaster. His death is a tremendous loss to broadcasting in Canada."

His broadcasting innovations ranged from production of Canada's first coast-to-coast radio amateur show in 1931 to the proposition this year that Canadian television shows could be beamed domestically in Canada through use of a space satellite.

The amateur show loosed until television appeared it out, but the Board of Broadcast governors still was considering his space broadcasting plan—proposed in Ottawa in late October.

In association with Power Corp. of Canada, Mr. Soble suggested that the $70,000,000 project would create a third Canadian television network with shows produced in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver beamed to customers through repeater stations across the country. His entry into broadcasting set the trend he was to follow the rest of his life.

He joined CHML as manager for the late Senator C. H. Hardy in 1936 when he was 25. Eight years later he exercised stock options available to him and bought the station.

From there he went on to originate or produce the first radio reports from Parliament Hill, Canada's first on-the-spot sport broadcasts, the first crippled children benefit shows in Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto and a Canadian concert at Carnegie Hall, New York.

He also was one of the prime movers in the establishment of Broadcast News Ltd., a radio and television news subsidiary of The Canadian Press. He served for several years on its board of directors and on the board of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters.

In 1953 he challenged newspaper magnate Roy Thomson and Jack Kent Cooke, internationally-known financier and sportsman, and beat them to the CHCH licence in Hamilton, on the provision that it become an affiliate of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

But in 1961 he announced he was taking the station from under the CBC umbrella and would operate it as an independent entity.

With the need for 55-per-cent Canadian content in domestic television, it was believed that CHCH would fail to hold its licence, but Mr. Soble was able to meet the standard.

In 1961 the mayor of Hamilton asked him to become chairman of a committee being established to review the city's urban renewal problem and to convince the ratepayers that it was a worthwhile and essential project.

So successful was he that later, in 1962, the provincial government asked him to head its proposed housing advisory committee and in 1964 appointed him the first chairman of the Ontario Housing Corp.

Again his flair for trying something new showed through. He determined that families living in government - subsidized housing should neither be made to feel nor appear to be second-class citizens.

Starting with a crash program that encompassed building huge apartment developments with rents geared to income, his plan soon evolved into scattering low-income families throughout urban areas.

Rather than create low-income ghettos, he felt it better for the government to buy up specific houses, groups of houses or developments and make them available to those who could not normally afford them.

Born in Toronto, June, 12, 1911, Mr. Soble left school at 15 to sell biscuit door-to-door to help the family weather an illness to his father.

His first contact with the broadcasting industry came when he gave advice to a young woman who couldn't find transportation to her work at a radio station.

Jane Gray gave him an unpaid job and he soon found himself selling radio advertising and announcing. This lasted until the idea for the amateur show boosted him to national prominence.

Movies Again Dip Into TV

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Much has been written about how the movie companies supply movies to television. Less publicized is the fact that television is also providing features for theatres.

This is nothing new. Back in companies tried to cash in on the immense success of stars and programs in the new medium. Only one was a success. Dragnet was expanded to feature length and it grossed $3,000,000, a whopping figure in 1954.

Other efforts failed. Warner Brothers starred Milton Berle in Mr. Television, in Always Leave Them Laughing, he didn't. Features were made of Our Miss Brooks, The Lone Ranger, The Goldbergs, etc., all with scant success.

Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz starred in The Long, Long Trailer at the peak of their TV fame, though they did not play their I Love Lucy roles. Another film with the pair, Forever Darling, was a failure.

TAKING ANOTHER TRY

Now the studios are taking another flyer at mining film subjects from TV. The most successful venture has been Columbia, which has released 48 features made from the hour-long segments of the Bachelor Father series, Blue Light, which starred Dana Andrews, and Cowboy, which starred Jock Mahoney. They were released under the title Deal in Danger. For also tempted a feature-length version of the freak hit, Batman, but it failed to create bat-brilliance at the box office.

With rare exceptions, these movies seldom score a bonanza at the theatres. But they help fill the bottom half of double features. Theatre men find features a product as scarce nowadays, they'll consider anything —even if it has played on television.

GIFT WRAPPED, NOW THE BILL — Finance Minister Sharp knots the ribbon on a Christmas present, reminding Canadian taxpayers of the $260,000,000-plus package destined for needy pensioners next year. Non-op Workers Win 24 Per Cent Increase MONTREAL (CP) — Labor Minister Nicholson is to make a statement at the opening of the Commons today shortly after federal mediator Carl Goldenberg reports to him about tough weekend bargaining sessions that brought tentative contract agreements for 75,000 railway workers.

Mr. Goldenberg sounded tired but elated Sunday night as he spoke about the lengthy negotiations that lasted well into Saturday night and brought agreement after a year of bitter bargaining.

"It was the most intensive and most difficult bargaining I've had in 30 years of work as a mediator," the labor expert said of his sessions with representatives of two large union groups and the nation's major railways.

The agreement reached is understood to give wage increases of 24 per cent for unskilled and 28 per cent over a three-year contract for skilled workers, belonging to the 20,000-member Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the 35,000-they "resided" non-operating group.

These figures include the 18-per-cent wage raise granted 130,000 railway workers by parliamentary legislation passed Sept. 1 to end a nation-wide strike on seven railways including the CNR and CPR.

Fringe benefit improvements are also included in the new agreements.

Earlier this month Mr. Goldenberg reached similar settlement terms on wages and fringe benefits with the 23,000-member shop-craft union group.

Ratification ballots which went out to the shop-craft workers following the Dec. 1 agreement are due back at the union's Montreal headquarters by Dec. 22.

Ratifying of the other two groups' members is expected to be well into January.

Mr. Goldenberg said Mr. Nicholson's address to the Commons today will deal with the agreements reached with the three union groups. It would also include a statement on the position of the 20,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers, which withdrew from mediation Nov. 24.

CBRT officers have declared themselves willing to submit to government arbitration to settle the dispute but a reliable source said Sunday the militant union will likely re-enter mediation.

The CBRT represents sleeping, dining car and parlor employees, accounting and auditing clerks and wharf and freight handlers, all employed by the CNR.

Decisions reached during mediation are arrived at freely by both parties acting with an advising mediator, while under arbitration proceedings the outside arbitrator imposes a compulsory settlement.

The parliamentary act ending the nation-wide strike provided for arbitration if a settlement was not reached with Mr. Goldenberg by Nov. 14. This deadline was extended twice to Dec. 17 and could possibly be extended again.

In Montreal, CBRT spokesman J. A. Pelletier said Sunday his union's negotiating team will gather in Montreal next week but will wait for results of the membership vote among the other three groups before taking any action.

"Settlement with the other groups would put us in a very precarious position," he said. "I doubt arbitration would win for us more than the 24 per cent the other groups accepted and we might get less."

Mr. Pelletier said CBRT members might insist their negotiating team re-enter mediation once all the terms reached with the other groups were made clear.

Wages are the main point still at issue between the CBRT and the railways, he said.

Mr. Pelletier said CBRT members might insist their negotiating team re-enter mediation once all the terms reached with the other groups were made clear.

Wages are the main point still at issue between the CBRT and the railways, he said.

The three non - operating groups of railway workers, who made an average hourly wage of $2.22 before Parliament passed their 18-per-cent increases, originally demanded a 30-per-cent raise.

The trainmen made more than $3.00 an hour before the increases and asked for a 15-per-cent increase plus a significant reduction in working hours.

Santa Is Their Only Hope

MONTALDEO, Italy (AP)— The women-starved bachelors of this tiny mountain village cooked an elaborate meal Saturday for the girls they hoped would answer their newspaper ads and come here to talk marriage. But by nightfall not a single girl had appeared.

All day long members of the Bacchetta family cooked women's aprons and singing in happy anticipation, bustled about the large kitchen of the inn roasting chickens and turkeys and cooking spaghetti.

"What do you think?" they asked each other through the clouds of steam from the boiling pots. "Will the girls really come?"

Of the 480 residents of Montaldeo there are only 13 eligible girls for 110 bachelors. So the unmarried men placed newspaper ads inviting single girls from elsewhere to come to look them over, in a kind of marriage market.

As night fell without the sight of a girl, Stefano Pastorino, 35-year-old owner of the inn and a bachelor himself, sighed sadly and said: "I am afraid the guys will have to dance with themselves if they want to dance, and take the food home."

Another bachelor, 28-year-old Rocco Martino, said he couldn't understand why no one had shown up. He said the club had received nearly 500 letters from girls from all over Italy since the wives-wanted ad appeared in Italian papers Nov. 15. One letter came from Switzerland, another from England.

"We thought we'd sort of have a look at them and any other girls who might have wanted to come," he said.

"But nobody came."

It was a heart-shattering blow for Montaldeo's lonely bachelors. None of them are getting any younger. Most are past 30.

"All we wanted to do," said one, "was to see a girl, talk to her and, if things looked okay, get married."

Some of the men wondered whether the village's remote location might have had something to do with the dismal showing. Montaldeo is 32 miles north of Genoa but so far off widely travelled roads it's hard to find.

Sharp to Reveal Tax Boost Today

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp will tell Canadians tonight how they will pay the $260,000,000-plus bill for the guaranteed income plan for pensioners, which is still being threshed out in Parliament.

The fact that taxes will be raised is no secret, but closely guarded is the form in which the additional levy will be made —and whether Mr. Sharp feels other steps should be taken now to spark or dampen the economy generally.

Mr. Sharp worked most of Saturday with key advisers on the budget preparations and then went home to wrap Christmas presents.

He said in a Vancouver speech last week his self-styled mini-budget would inform Canadians how they will contribute to the guaranteed-income plan for old age pensioners, which he called a Christmas present.

The Commons resumes clause-by-clause study of the pension bill after question period this afternoon. Then at 8 p.m. EST, Mr. Sharp will introduce his baby budget—the first supplementary budget since 1960. Normally the main budget is introduced in the spring.

The supplementary pensions will pay $30 a month to pensioners who need it in addition to the $75 a month now paid to everyone age 69 and older. Starting Jan. 1, another 100,000 pensioners will be added to the rolls when the age qualification drops to 68 by an earlier enactment.

The $30 monthly supplements are estimated to cost the treasury $260,000,000 to $290,000,000 a year. This is about equal to current tax collections on beer and spirits. This annual charge will be reduced, year-by-year, as the Canada Pension Plan takes effect with its earnings-geared retirement pensions.

When Mr. Sharp first served notice three months ago that he would introduce a supplementary budget this fall, it was clear that some fiscal policy change was needed to dampen down the overheated economy.

Now some economists are saying the announcement itself dampened the economy and perhaps the time is ripe for some incentive, rather than dampening.

The choice Mr. Sharp makes among income, corporation, sales, or some other form of tax to raise the pension money may bring about the encouragement or discouragement to the economy he thinks is necessary now.

The finance minister is also meeting today and tomorrow with provincial ministers on their annual round of closed-door assessments of the economic fare.

Idle Bricklayers Force Algoma Steel Layoffs

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — About 1,500 employees of Algoma Steel Corp. were laid off today and more layoffs are expected as some operations at Canada's second largest steel plant came to a halt.

Shutdown of some operations here and at a subsidiary plant in Wawa, Ont., followed refusal of building trades unions to cross picket lines set up Saturday night by the striking Local 29 of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers international union.

Members of United Steelworkers Union Locals 2251 and 4509, who form the bulk of the company's more than 8,000 employees, were observing their agreement and reporting for work. However, three of the four blast furnaces in the primary steel division at Sault Ste. Marie have been banked, and the fourth was to be banked by 5 p.m. today, Mr. Brooks said.

Sicilian Girl Disgraces Her Family Refuses to Wed Men Who Abducted Her

TRAPANI, Sicily (AP)—The son of a wealthy family was convicted Saturday of kidnapping and raping the reluctant girl he wanted to marry in a sensational case that rocked centuries-old Sicilian traditions.

A court sentenced Filippo Melodia, 23, to 11 years in prison for carrying off Franca Viola, 18.

His act was part of an old Sicilian tradition of convincing a girl to marry. Had she said yes, the charges against Melodia would have been dropped. But she made Italian history and caused a countrywide sensation by saying: "I detest him. I'll never marry him."

Franca's act of refusal made her an acclaimed heroine in the more modern cities of north Italy, and a threatened outcast among the Mafia-minded elements of the south who insist tradition must be honored.

Even before the trial signs of Mafia threats against her family began to appear.

Her father's farm house was set afire, his vineyards were hacked down and fields were ruined. He pleaded with Franca to wed Melodia to end the threats. She refused.

During the trial she was under police guard, for her own protection.

"And a new fishing rod, and a new Prime Minister . . . me!"

Two Montreal Holdup Men Die When Their Own Gun Goes Off

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said two holdup men died their lives today after holding up a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce at a shopping centre in Montreal's east end.

They said one of the holdup men apparently fatally shot his companion with a 12 - gauge shotgun as they were fleeing in a car after he himself was injured.

After holding up the bank and fleeing with an undisclosed amount of money, one of the men slipped and fell, injuring his leg, police said. Then they both looked for the escape car nearby.

One of the men got into the car and drove forward, striking his limping companion with the vehicle. He then stopped and helped his injured partner into the car.

As they drove away, police said, the injured man apparently picked up the gun and shot the driver in the chest.

Police found the car at the rear of a service station, with both men dead in their seats.

Hussein Thinks Russia Aims at Mid-east Rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan said today Russia has adopted a new policy aimed at gaining control of the Middle East.

"I think the Soviets are prepared to go very far in this matter—almost to the point of a confrontation with the free world," he said.

In a copyrighted interview to U.S. News and World Report, the King said the Soviet Union wants control of the area's natural resources-particularly petroleum-and of communications routes such as the Suez Canal.

"In addition," he said, "if the Soviets were able to overrun the Arab world they would then have a direct link with Africa, which is also a very interesting target for them."

King Hussein said, in answer to questions, that China also was trying to build its influence in the Middle East.

The situation could lead to conflicts both between the Soviet Union and China.

"I believe the common objective of the Soviets and the Chinese is basically the same: to destroy everything really Arab . . ." he said. "Once they have done this, then they will have won the next step, and at that point they might fight with each other over their objectives."

Sikh Saint Threatens to Burn Himself

NEW DELHI (AP) — Strong security measures were imposed today in Amritsar where the leader of India's 10,500,000 Sikhs has threatened to burn himself to death Dec. 27 after a 10-day fast.

As Sant (Saint) Fateh Singh entered the third day of his fast all meetings, processions and demonstrations were banned for a month in Amritsar, the Sikh holy city 220 miles northwest of New Delhi.

The distribution of posters and leaflets and the carrying of weapons also was prohibited.

White - robed Fateh Singh rested on a foam-rubber mattress in the city's Golden Temple. But moderates in his Akali Dal religious political party were trying to end the impasse with the central government over his demands for realignment of the new Sikh state of Punjabi Suba.

The moderates were reported afraid that fanatics in the Sikh hierarchy might not agree to a compromise.

In Chandigarh, the capital which the Sikh state and the neighboring Hindu state of Haryana share, government buildings and the homes of officials were put under police guard and army units moved into the city.

The two national news agencies and newspapers were told to submit all stories and pictures relating to Fateh Singh to the government's chief press adviser for clearance.

Police Warn Merrymakers

Interests of Public Take Priority

Christmas fun can have its serious side. Sometimes the funnier it begins to look the more serious the consequences can be.

With celebrations now entering a peak period, Belleville Police Chief J. R. McLauchlan, today warned his force would be boosting its efforts to protect those who cannot protect themselves from "seasonal stresses".

"It's difficult to change people", admitted the chief. "But every pedestrian or driver is responsible to recognize his psychological danger signals and modify his behavior".

"I don't believe this is asking too much. We all know the right and safe way of doing things. We may have to work a little harder doing it, that's all".

He cited parties and "more-than-normal" seasonal drinking as prime examples.

"You can't slide behind the wheel of a car hoping that this is the only time and you may get away with it".

Chief McLauchlan said city police would be out "with all the manpower we can muster to protect those who simply can't seem to cope with the seasonal stresses of their own accord".

Behind the "Glass"

A Quinte Curling Club mixed rink of Dave and Kay, Brown with Bill and Marlene Henderson will journey to Toronto on December 27 to compete for the Centennial mixed trophy for the Province against 15 other rinks that have won their way into the playoffs. This competition will be held at the Boulevard Club and curlers from eastern Ontario will be pulling for the Quinte rink to win all the marbles.

Dave Brown is skip of the rink with his wife vicing, while Mr. Henderson throws second rock and his wife is lead. This rink work well together and have overcome a lot of tough competition to get into the finals. They have defeated rinks from Trenton and Napanee and on Sunday they journeyed to Napanee where they met a rink from Gananoque of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dwyer and Mr. and Mrs. R. Fletcher.

The Quinte rink won the first game 13-4 and the second was a little closer with the locals winning 8-6. Bill Gault, OCA director and convener for the district, conducted the draw.

The turkey spiel has gone into the records and Doug Bennett and his committee should be proud of their effort. Only two games were played in this spiel and the winners took home beautiful turkeys for the Christmas dinner. The two game high winner was a rink of E. Fleming, Everett Adamson, Art Bannon with Ernie Wilkinson the skip while the second two-game high rink was one of Bert Sillsbury, Ron Borland, Jim Woodcroft with Hal Emerson as skip. The one-game high winner was a rink of Bruce Alexander, Jack Preston, Bob Alexander with Dr. McCorquodale as skip. Those rinks having a new curler or one over 50 years of age were given extra points on the first end won and this made for a lot of fun. A fine meal was served the contestants and others joined them for a night of dancing and good fellowship.

Plans for the Centennial spiel to be held early in January are proceeding at a rapid pace and this event will be one of the highlights of an excellent city program that is being arranged. To date half of the 32 rinks from across the Province have accepted an invitation to contest for the beautiful prizes to be offered and there is no doubt the list will be entirely filled. There will also be a local spiel for the women's section and also a mixed spiel that will be open so everyone will have lots of curling. There will also be banquets, entertainment and dancing during the week and will be started by a church service for all club members both men and women on the 8 hour a large turnout will be on hand for the service in St. Thomas' Church.

The writer of this column has been on the sick list for a couple of weeks and a week of holiday thrown in but will catch up with the events going on at the club. Despite the fact there is no organized curling this coming week the members are requested to come out to the club and renew many happy associations made through the first draw of the season.

Week banquet to be held at the Belleville Armouries on Feb. 22, 1967.

Essays are to be of from 1,- 000 to 1,200 words. Each school will select the best three essays and forward them to J. C. Wilson at Albert College. The local selection will be made by an out-of-town panel.

B.C.I. Student Band and Glee Club Celebrate Yuletide Season

Yuletide Spirit Evident At BCI Student Concert

It doesn't look much like Christmas outside these days, but that doesn't seem to diminish the effect of the Yuletide spirit. No place was this spirit more evident in Belleville Sunday than in the BCIVS auditorium, scene of that high school's annual Christmas concert.

A crowd of several hundred, both youngsters and adults, turned out to hear the students of BCI give their musical impressions of the Christmas season.

The program focused on the talents of the school concert band, which under the direction of Mr. C. Templer, gave renditions of classical suites, popular Christmas, scores, and traditional carols. Members of the audience were invited to provide the lyrics and singing voices to complement the band's accompaniment of the carols, which they did heartily.

Also featured were the mellow voices of the BCI glee club and a girls' ensemble, both directed by R. McKnight.

School vice-principal W. MacKay read the ever-meaningful nativity story from the book of Luke, and principal D. Stirling offered season's greetings on behalf of school staff and students to those in attendance.

For some of the audience, it was the first opportunity they had away from the pre-season bustle and bustle to enjoy the music and sentiments of the season.

Three Children Born To Polio Victim

The birth of a child in Sweden a few weeks ago is a mother's dream come true. The event was termed a medical oddity, but a Calgary mother of six who occasionally visits in Belleville sees in it nothing unusual.

Mrs. D. C. Huffman, wife of a former Belleville man, was paralyzed by a polio attack in 1952 and since then has given birth to three healthy children, the youngest just a year old.

Mrs. Huffman's husband is the son of Weley Huffman, Gilbert Street, Belleville. Mr. Huffman went to school here and early in the war joined the air force. He is now a detective on the Calgary police force.

Although confined to a wheel chair, the Calgary woman does not let this prevent her from travelling.

Last year she and her husband visited in Belleville and the couple also made the long motor trip eight years ago when Mr. Huffman's parents observed their 50th wedding anniversary.

Fire Ousts Nurses

A fire at the Education Hall wing of Belleville General Hospital sent nurses scampering out of the building clad in nightattire early this morning.

Causing only minor damage, the fire apparently originated in a third floor room of the nurses residence annex, today.

The nurses occupying the building ran into the raw night air across to the hospital proper, where they waited until fire, had extinguished a mattress, which had caught fire.

Scouting activities

A disappointing group of citizens greeted Chairman Lew Andrews at the Belleville District Council for scouting regular meeting this week. Less than one third of the group committees responsible for scouting and cubbing were represented and many committee chairmen were absent.

In referring to business arising out of the minutes it was noted that a refund had been received from Headquarters relative to the Canada-U.K. Scout exchange. No further information was available on the proposed duplicater purchase. A specific plans had been made for centennial activities but Frank Harding has several exciting ideas and is seeking an opportunity to discuss them with the uniform side of scouting and cubbing.

Swimming at the YMCA on Saturday mornings (R. Beach in charge) is well under way but will be discontinued during the Christmas - New Year period.

In correspondence the provincial committee outlined recommendations and suggestions regarding the new Venturers program and a very straightforwded notice regarding hikin hiking by scouts and cubs which is expected to result in a strict '67. This means of securing transportation is strictly forbidden. With the closing of the YMCA Camp at Oak Lake District Council has received a gift of an eight burner wood stove. The Rovers of First Belleville Troop agreed to be responsible for its removal from Oak Lake and its set up at Sagonaska.

Al Glover, chosen representative of Belleville District Council to the newly established United Community Services, stressed the need for immediately striking a budget to be used for discussion purposes at future meetings of the UCS.

With further reference to financing Bob McIntyre explained the implications of group committee financial transactions and the IncomeTax Act. He will further explain matters in a letter to the group committees concerned.

Cec Heard asked that the secretary make note that he had on hand some 500 Centennial Badges. Leaders should watch scouting publications for instructions regarding procurement and display of this badge.

Bruce Thompson informed the Council that Quartermaster's Stores had been transferred to the shelter at Sagonaska and stored so as to be protected from weather and vermin.

Lew Andrews gave a report of his recent attendance with Acting D. C. Bud Bateman at the president's and commissioners' meeting in Napanee indicating that Venturer training for leaders was being planned and the Acting D. C. would attend a course early in January. Basic "A" for troop scouters "B" for troop scouters and Basic "A" for pack scouters would be available in the spring. Further notification will be made by letter to those involved.

Lew Andrews informed those present that he had received six applications for the World Jamboree in 1967 but required a leader to accompany the scouts from Belleville District.

Harry Ocomore was requested to confer with Comm A. S. McConnell on the subject of a joint cub, scout, brownie, guide Church Parade. Bruce Thompson will proceed with the annual Scouter Get-Together early in the New Year.

Snow for Christmas?

Little in Prospect for Yuletide still be dreaming of a White Christmas come December 25?

Well, bet exactly but neither will it be a Christmas-card

Will Quinte district dwellers accept, according to the daily forecaster at Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

"There'll be a bit of snow, but not so overabundance of it," is the way he summarizes the five-day forecast current to Sunday.

Some snow is predicted tomorrow and near the weekend while temperatures will not show much fluctuation.

Normal high will be about 30 and the low, 16.

However, it won't be the first time in recent years the Quinte area has had to make do without a traditional Yuletide snow scene.

Records at the Tweed radio station of the Department of Lands and Forests show no snow for three of the past 17 Christmasses — the latest being 1964.

In other years the snow bonanza has ranged in depth from .25 (in 1948) to 15 inches (in 1951).

Committee To Probe Welfare

Mayor J. R. Ellis said today that a special three-man committee would be set up at this afternoon's meeting of city council to investigate complaints regarding the operation of the city welfare department.

"I haven't discussed the matter with all members of council but I have talked to enough to assure that the committee will be set up," Mayor Ellis said.

Mayor Ellis said the special committee was necessary "to put an end to allegations, one way or another."

Citadel Robbed

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—It was the meanest theft of the year, say police, when someone stole The Salvation Army's emergency fund during the weekend.

Tom Jones Heads County NDP

New Democratic Party members from as far north as Bancroft and as far south as Deseronto gathered in Marmora on Saturday afternoon to organize under the new provincial banner of Hastings Riding. Chairman of the meeting, which was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Frost, was Ian E. Reilly, president of Quinte Riding New Democratic Party, and Past President of Hastings South NDP.

William Cumpsty, provincial NDP organizer, addressed the meeting and expressed the best wishes of party leader, Donald C. MacDonald, who had originally been scheduled to address the meeting until he was involved in a car accident recently. Mr. Cumpsy said that "it was very important to launch project '67 in this area, and that it was necessary that the new riding prepare for the coming election as quickly as possible". Mr. Cumpsy said the Liberal party "was all but dead in this province and especially in Hastings and that with hard work the NDP would give the people of the riding a Centennial present by electing a member to the provincial government who will lead the way to progress and economic expansion in the future." Mr. Jones pointed out that, "with the election of membership chairmen and party directors for almost every town and township in the County the party is well on the way to victory."

Elected vice-president of the riding was Charles Clemmens of Marmora. The position of secretary-treasurer was filled by Mrs. K. G. Loucks of Thurlow Township.

Elected to co-ordinate the activities of the local membership chairmen in each area was Mrs. William Kells of Deseronto. Ian E. Reilly adjourned the meeting by pointing out that with two NDP members elected from Hastings County riding (one from Hastings and one from Quinte), the County would be giving leadership to all of Eastern Ontario.

Change Derogatory Name of Island

An Indian word has replaced what now is regarded as coarse Anglo-Saxon terminology in the place names of an island and its bay of Quinte environs near Canadian Forces Base, Trenton.

The area affected includes what hitherto has been called Nigger Island, Nigger Narrows and Nigger Narrows Shoals.

The federal government's Canadian Permanent Committee on Geographical Names today announced the "derogatory names" had been changed to Makatewis Island, The Narrows and Narrows Shoal.

Makatewis is an Ojib w a y word meaning "the island of the black man."

The changes follow a request from the committee last year from district residents for alternate names for the island.

Makatewis was suggested by W. H. Robb of Kingston and was approved by the island's owner and by the Tyendinaga Mohawk Indians.

Four other place names in Ontario were either rescinded or changed to be consistent in past years, as well as one each in New Brunswick and British Columbia.

Honor Union Member at Point Anne

Members of Local Union No. 219, Point Anne, honored J. J. Knapik, third International Vice-President, prior to his departure to another district, last week.

95 union members and special guests, including District Representative Don Burshaw, signified their respect and esteem for Bro. Knapik, at a regular meeting in the union hall.

Knapik has been in charge of all Canadian locals but will now return to the United States to take up a new post.

A Canadian vice-president G. Cormier, of Montreal was elected at the last International convention and will take over Mr. Knapik's duties here. Knapik was presented with a suitable gift and expressed regret on having to leave this district after 10 years of progress with the local members.

The annual election of officers was held, conducted by Bro. Knapik. Officers named were: president — H. Hull; vice-president — A. Lloyd; recording secretary — J. Insley; financial secretary — F. Insley; chief steward — G. Dafoe; trustees — J. Green, R. Anderson and B. Ostorff; guard — C. Insley; registrar — A. McKenzie.

A dozen members won free Christmas dinners through a turkey draw and other suitable prizes were also won during the evening.

Mr. Smallwood's Advice

Like Bank Governor James Coyne and others before him, Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland has been telling Canadians some home truths regarding their extravagant ways.

In a 52-page booklet published last week, he urged Canadians to work harder and stop trying to be "amateur Americans."

Says Mr. Smallwood: "Work harder. Work longer hours. Work more days in the week and more weeks in the year . . . Eat less. Wear less. Practice more abstemiousness. Live lower on the hog and produce more.

"I think it's worth making a great effort, a profound effort, to stay Canadian and to keep Canada a separate country.

"But I don't think Canada is going to have too much chance to do that if she's going to be imitation American, and try to have the same high standard without having the same productivity."

Mr. Smallwood's book is called Peril and Glory and it is published by High Hill Publishing House of Hull and Keswick.

And what was it that Mr. Coyne said — in similar vein — some years ago? Canadians, he said, "are living grandly beyond their means." He could have said it better, but somehow people do not seem to get the message.

Meanwhile, Mr. Smallwood believes that as the United States continues to depend more and more on Canada for raw materials, Canada's role would remain "largely one of being a hewer of wood and drawer of water" for the U.S.

In other words, if we want to have any chance at all of retaining our economic independence we should pay more heed to warnings such as those given by Mr. Coyne and Mr. Smallwood.

Walt Disney

Walt Disney is dead — but his work lives on.

Indeed, it seems almost superfluous to comment at all on a personage of such manifest genius and so well-known to young and old.

The broad outline of Disney's career and the characters of his vivid imagination — from Mickey Mouse to Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs — are familiar to most people, and we all have our own favorites among them.

One that should not be left out of mention is the first movie Disney made combining both live and inanimate characters. It was called "Fiesta," and as the title suggests it was filmed in a Mexican setting.

Ricardo Montalban and the exquisite Cyd Charisse were the stars, and we can still recall the music (like "Baia," and another catchy piano piece with a Latin beat), the dancing, and the superb blending of live characters with the "little people" of Disney's creation.

It was one of those for-all-the-family style films which are so satisfying and stimulating for their very rarity, as well as their artistic merit. And from time to time we have already wished to see again — but somehow the opportunity never presented itself.

Savings Lost

Misfortune has come this Christmas to those people who have lost thousands of dollars — in many instances their life's savings — in the collapse of the Prudential Finance Corporation Ltd.

These people are angry — and rightly so. They are angry over the manner in which their funds have been dissipated, and at the Government for its failure to intervene when earlier warnings were sounded about company losses.

Another unfortunate aspect of the affair is the similarity in the name of the bankrupt company to a well-known insurance company which has nothing to do with the former, but which has become an unwitting target of calls from policyholders concerned about their holdings.

Kills Are Tops

Imagine the Germans, of all people, being the ones to come up with the idea of miniskirts for men.

Anyway, whatever its origin, the idea is one that has too many elements of the ridiculous to survive for long.

And as Globe and Mail columnist, Bruce West points out with truth, men have been wearing "much superior miniskirts" in the Highlands of Scotland for centuries.

Kilts, indeed, are a different cut of cloth altogether. If you will pardon the simile. Whoever dreamed them up in the first place must have been something of a genius to convert what is basically an item of feminine apparel into one that looks essentially masculine.

As for the Germans, if they are still trying to get their own back on the men of the Black Watch whom they dubbed "The Ladies from Hell," they will never stand a chance with their miniskirts.

To Your Good Health

Egg-nogs Nourishing And Also Germ-free

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about egg-nogs? Aren't they good for people? You always advocate cooking eggs. — Mrs. C. N.

Yes, and I'll keep on advocating it. Raw egg is such an ideal material for growing germs that laboratories use it for that purpose — raising germs used in vaccines, for example.

Many an egg has no harmful germs, to be sure, but keep in mind that if no germs were present, an egg would never spoil. And eggs do, including unbroken ones.

Some germs can penetrate the shell. Germs can enter through tiny cracks, too. Sometimes the prevalent salmonella organism gets in. Cooking destroys the germs. But live salmonella is the cause of "food poisoning" and diarrhea.

So to be safe I'm going to continue to have my eggs cooked.

Egg-nog? Yes, it's a nourishing concoction, and I like it, especially at holiday time. I find it easier and less expensive to order it from the milkman. Besides, the dairies pasteurize it, which takes care of the germ problem. It keeps longer, too.

For folks who insist on making their own, the best method of home pasteurizing is to mix it thoroughly, then bring it barely to a boil and let it simmer for 15 to 18 minutes. That will pasteurize without curdling it.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it necessary to give a child a bath every day. I have read that it is not necessary and can even be harmful as you wash away body oils.

Now I read in your columns about a mother asking if it is all right to have children bathe morning and night. You answered yes, it is good hygiene. Please straighten me out.—Mrs. L.K.

Somehow the word "wash" was changed to "bathe."

Washing morning and night is good hygiene. I don't know any way of getting statistical evidence, but an enormous number of upset stomachs, cases of pinworm, and more serious ailments unquestionably would be avoided if all children were washed that is a second nature to wash their hands before eating or putting fingers in their mouths.

But two baths a day are a lot of baths, and with a skin tendency to dryness, it can lead to itching and skin irritation.

The right number of baths for children is the number necessary to keep them clean. In hot summer weather a bath or shower a day is usually right. If not subject to one a day in winter unless skin irritation results, but if a child stays reasonably clean, one or two or three baths a week will keep him smelling all right.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a 36-year-old man who landed in the hospital for acute alcoholism safely have a drink before dinner? — Mrs. W. M.

The rest of your letter (which I decline) indicates that if a man does indeed have some ponderous problems, but alcohol obviously isn't a safe means of relief for him. After his past experience he should leave alcohol strictly alone. The only drink may set him off on another spree.

• • • • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Would tomato juice cause gas (no pain) in the intestine? I drink two glasses a day for my Vitamin A as I don't like orange juice. — R.

I suppose you might be sensitive to tomato juice but am inclined to doubt it. Stopping tomato juice for a week or two should give you the answer.

Red Tape Up North

News of theNorth

On Nov. 16, the News of the North got a little letter from the office of the Regional Administrator for the Department of Northern Development politing out some deficiencies in a statement for advertising we had sent to them.

Date on the statement — put there by a machine — was Yellowknife office was July 5, so obviously that is the date the statement arrived in somebody's file basket.

What the hell happened to it between then and Nov. 9 when we got it back? That's four months . . .

The amount was not large — less than $2, but that is not the point — four months is too long to have to wait for payment of an account and it is certainly far too long to be requested for extra copies and extra tear sheets.

The administrator's office here has seen something of an increase in staff — what are all these people doing?

Do you want we should tell you, really?

Letter to the Editor

NDP to Meet In New Year

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

In your editorial on Dr. Potter you state in part: " . . . and it may well be the NDP will also contest the election."

For the information of your readers, the NDP announced its nomination meeting to be held January 9, 1967, in the Kiwanis Centre, the same day as the Conservatives announced their recent nomination. The Liberals as yet have not yet announced a nomination date.

Ian E. Reilly,
President, Quinte New Democratic Party.

Strictly Personal

Did They Cheat or Not?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

People who wonder, some what contemptuously, why the U.S. Supreme Court so often reverses 5-to-4 on important decisions have a naive and oversimplified view of such matters as law, evidence and testimony.

It is not easy to arrive at the truth — often, because "the" truth may not exist in a particular case, only different and contending "truths." Then, too, the evidence is not always what it seems to be, and working one's way backwards from the facts to the law is a far more time task, sometimes longer than Aristotle's thread.

In England recently, the British Bridge League cleared Terence Reese and Boris Shapiro of cheating in a world championship tournament in Buenos Aires 18 months ago. Charges were preferred against the two by the executive committee of the World Bridge Federation, which referred the case back to Britain for adjudication.

After hearing evidence for a year, a distinguished international lawyer and a retired general agreed that the pair had not cheated — despite the testimony of fellow players, including the captain and the coach of their own team. But the World Bridge Federation refuses to accept this decision.

And the whole bridge world reflects this disturbance — many players cannot see how so many qualified witnesses could be wrong, and many other players cannot understand why Reese and Shapiro would cheat, or (if they cheated) why they would do so so clumsily and stupidly as was charged.

Either way the case doesn't make sense. They were among the finest pair in the world, and won innumerable trophies and titles in the last 20 years — would they risk shame and ostracism for their whole life (for bridge is their whole life) to win one more cup? It seems so rash to be true.

Yet, why should other players accuse them of cheating and be so wide-awake to their own teammates that the charge was true? If they had accused the opponents of cheating, the underlying, that might have made more sense — but not the slightest shadow of suspicion has been directed upon them. Instead, they have been applauded for courtesy and gracefulness.

All this is by way of suggestion that judges and juries and witnesses and lawyers are not dealing with "tangibles" as they think they believe they are. Facts are not clear-cut, laws are not made for exceptions, and the distinction between fact and law is often hidden in thick fog. Why should judges not discourse as much as doctors disagree, when the corpus juris is just as complicated as the corpus humanus.

Motorcycle Fatalities

Oshawa Times

More than 30,000 motorcycles are registered in Ontario. There were 3,221 accidents involving motorcycles in the first nine months of the year on Ontario roads. These resulted in 42 fatalities and 2,475 injuries.

Time is certainly ripe for the minister of transport to institute new and more comprehensive regulations for the operation of motorcycles.

From January on more of the so-called 90-day instruction permits for operating a motorcycle will be issued. Anyone applying for a licence to ride a motorcycle will have to undergo a test. It is difficult to imagine how this can be done effectively since a beginner will no longer be permitted to practise on the highways, and it is experience in these conditions that is most needed, or appears to be judging from the mounting accident toll.

Wide interpretation was permitted on the 90 day permit. It was renewable. As well, motorists with a driver's licence were authorized automatically to operate a motorcycle. On January 1, this authorization no longer applies, competency will now also have to be proved in the operation of a motorcycle. If it is, then the driver's licence will be endorsed accordingly.

Much still rests with the caution and commonsense of the individual. The new rules however should limit the number of incompetents on the road and bar the untrained beginners. In so doing the new rules have merit.

French in Manitoba Schools

Hamilton Spectator

When a province with a history like Manitoba's says it will permit French as a language of instruction in its schools there is still hope for race relations in Canada.

One of the most curious facets of today's French-English dialogue is that so few of its participants have read their history. They regard the problems of today as the all time crisis, a unique situation in Quebec who do read their history books have had just cause to brood over.

Now, at last, in the speech from the throne read in Winnipeg this week, the Roblin Conservative government pledged itself to the conditional use of French as a language of instruction in public schools. The details have yet to be spelled out but hopefully they will be many and generous.

When Quebec moderates learn that finally Manitoba has decided to make some accommodation with its substantial French speaking population, it will be yet another nail in the coffin of separatism.

Long Hair and Anarchy

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Considering the troubles besetting schoolmen — controversies over neoplastical teaching aids, pre-segregation pressures and all the rest — they seem too preoccupied to make a supercajor issue of the length of a high school boy's hair. But there must be an as yet unpromulgated Parkinsonian law that the lengthy hardened are ever eager to add to increase their loads.

Consider the cause celebre which has blown up since a New York high school principal took action against two long-haired 16-year-olds. Superintendent Donovan ruled that hair length was not for academic regulation. But the principal, with the ardent faculty support, fired back that Mr. Donovan is encouraging "anarchy." An hopeful they will be taken to the State Superintendent. The Civil Liberties Union has entered the case; and the Supreme Court yet may be asked to speak the last word.

The academic physical education director, meanwhile, wants to know what's to be done if "everyone starts growing a grow a moustache and a beard." Although addicted to razor and shears, we confess light and an easy question. Long hair on the young may presage restless change — such as that from Roman cropped to Carolingian flowing locks or from the shaven cheeks of Reigning Fathers to the hirsute adornments of Civil War generals. Incidentally, there ought to be more study of the causes and effects, if any, of these sex changes.

Of course, unshorn hair may be but a fad, bound to pass as young males learn from the girls of the rigors involved in caring for a coiffure. How are those boys doing, we wonder, in math and chemistry?

'Consent Rule' Under Fire

Brockville Recorder and Times

The federal government's intention to change the unanimous consent rule to a simple majority unanimous" consent rule is meeting some criticism on the ground that it shouldn't be necessary to alter an historical parliamentary safeguard to protect the Commons from the operations of any one man. At present, the government of the day must have the agreement of every Member of Parliament present before waiving the usual 48-hour notice of upcoming legislation

Proponents of the change point out that the West Coast shipping tie-up, focal point of the present controversy, was three weeks old when the government sought — and Separatist Gilles Gregoire prevented — an emergency debate. The cabinet, it is true, may have lacked foresight in this particular instance but emergency situations such as international crisis or a wildcat walkout in an essential industry, can spring up overnight and no amount of government prudence could avoid the necessity of seeking unanimous consent for an immediate debate.

There is good reason for the unanimous consent rule: it was designed to prevent a sneak manoeuvre on legislation when opposition attention is low, but the rule change now under consideration would still offer a safeguard against that possibility. The government has not given details of its plan but Ottawa correspondents say the idea is to change the number of protesters necessary to block debate from one to either five, eight, or ten. Another report has been that only the consent of all opposition party leaders — not individual MPs — would be necessary.

Either of these proposals should be suitable. In this day and age, no Canadian government would dare try to ram a measure through the Commons when the opposition's back was turned. The problem at present is much one-sided blockades as Mr. Gregoire's and the two-day filibuster a few years ago by a couple of NDP members who managed to hold up several hundred parliamentary divorce decrees for several weeks.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

December 19, 1946

The December meeting of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants, Bay of Quinte Chapter was held on Monday evening. One of the most interesting talks of the year was given to the chapter by Gordon Friesen, Kitchener, formerly of this city. From Belleville to Berlin. It was learned that Mr. Friesen had served with the RCAF and in the latter days of the war was loaned to the British Government and sent to Germany where he served in the capacity of Military Governor in a British zone. The speaker outlined the plan that was inaugurated in their attempt to help and reform "displaced persons." Very few of us realized how thoroughly the Nazi regime had totalitarized the German people and the importance of complete denazification. Mr. Friesen expressed his belief that the most effective way to avert war is to be prepared for it, and all citizens in international army should be maintained in strong force. The speaker was introduced by Bert Houston and the thanks and appreciation of the club were expressed by Dr. Clarence.

Market Tickertape Now Silent Screen

The monotonous clack of the tickertape machine in stockbrokers' offices throughout the land may soon be silenced.

The most recent innovation in the world of high and low bids is the Electrocom unit for transmitting market quotations. The first of these in Eastern Ontario was installed last week in the Pinnacle St. office of Walwyn, Stodgall, and Co. Ltd.

Replacing the tickertape machine invented some 90 years ago by Thomas Edison, the new device transmits a teletype signal into electronic impulses. A computer mechanism in turn transposes these into letters and numbers which flash on an eight-foot long panel with a viewing area of six inches high.

Ralph Bateman, Ontario marketing manager for the electronic firm that installed the first Electrocom unit in the area, says that the life expectancy of the bulbs on the viewing panel is about 30 years. Some 150 of the units have been installed so far in Toronto.

Initial reaction to the innovation appeared to be favorable, although it took a few minutes for those present for the unveiling to get used to the silent process.

3 Treated, Released

Three men were admitted to Belleville General Hospital around noon Sunday after their eastbound car rolled into a ditch off Highway 2 near Shannonville.

Michael Cook and Gary Sero, both of Shannonville, and the car's driver, Gerald Wayne Sager, also of Shannonville, were treated at hospital for minor injuries and released.

Trains Collide Killing Forty

TERUEL, Spain (AP)—About 40 Spaniards were killed and 12 hurt when a two-car passenger local collided head-on with a freight train during the Sunday, provincial officials estimated today.

It was believed to be Spain's worst railway accident in recent years.

Many who had crowded into the passenger train's front car, where the motor was located and the heating was poor, were crushed and burned. Six railway employees in the second car were not hurt.

The crash occurred between the rural stations of Santa Eulalia and Villafranca about 130 miles northeast of Madrid. Exactly a year before, an express from Paris packed with Portuguese workers returning home for Christmas collided with a freight train in Spain near the Portuguese border, killing 30.

Unusual Deal

U.S. Bought Steel From China

LONDON (AP)— The Sunday Observer says Communist China sold steel bars worth $1,000,000 to U.S. authorities for building bases in South Vietnam.

The report, in a dispatch from Singapore by Dennis Bloodworth, is attributed to "reliable trading sources."

It says the traffic reached a peak earlier this year "when only Peking could play a crucial gap in American supplies by meeting the specifications, the quantities and the six-week delivery date that alone would satisfy hard-pressed U.S. military purchasing officers."

The report says the steel was sold through intermediaries in Singapore who shipped it to Saigon. The Chinese were paid through Hong Kong banks.

Bloodworth says his sources "agree that all parties concerned, from Peking to the Pentagon, must have known both the origin and the destination of the bars, which could be used for anything from the building of bunkers to the laying of metal runways for American bombers and fighters."

This "unthinkable commerce" slackened in mid-year when Japanese and Belgian suppliers caught up with American demands and U.S. officials began tighter controls, the report says.

Corby Park Project OK'd

The board members of the Belleville Horticultural Society met at the home of Mrs. William Yates, for the final meeting of the year.

Many items of business were discussed. Most important was a commitment to the Belleville Parks Board for the beautification of Corby Park, as a centennial project.

Legion of Mary Volunteers Help Girls in Trouble

TORONTO (CP)—Five years ago Legion of Mary volunteers even stood outside bars to catch prostitutes as the hostesses threw them out. They visited girls in Mercer Reformatory and Don Jail.

Now the Roman Catholic group estimates members have helped nearly 100 girls get off the streets, and their hostel is home to others who are trying.

The hostel's house mother, Bette Wickham, says:

"At first we had many failures. We offered the girls what material help we could—money is a big problem and the reason many of the young ones return to the streets after leaving jail.

"The Salvation Army and Elizabeth Fry Society helped us place as many as possible in their hostels, but it was terribly discouraging to see so many women returning to their old ways, not because they wanted to, but simply because they had no place to stay while they got on their feet."

Miss Wickham is the only paid worker at Sancta Maris, the Legion's downtown home provided rent-free by St. Vincent de Paul Society. Legion volunteers help run it and act as big sisters to the girls.

The hostel can hold seven full-time residents plus Miss Wickham and an assistant house mother. From September, 1965, to September, 1966, 44 girls lived there for periods of less than a week to more than six months. Miss Wickham says 34 of those 44 now are out of trouble and on their way to leading normal lives.

Sancta Maris president Joan Quinn says:

"We simply accept them as they are. It really isn't difficult and eventually it helps them accept and value themselves.

"The thing they all lack when they come is a feeling of self-value and the thing they want most desperately is to be respected.

"We're not always successful. Some girls leave us within 48 hours and go back downtown. Others return after longer stays, but they usually come back to us. Downtown just doesn't look as good as it looked before, and squares don't look as bad."

UCW Making Hobby Pay Off

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Making crepe paper flowers is an inexpensive hobby, unless you make them by the hundreds as the Trinity United Church Women have.

They made them for a candle and paper flower pre-Christmas sale and ten that drew standing room crowds. Local businessmen have been asking the group for floral settings to decorate offices and store windows.

It began with Mrs. C. R. Whitney, who started making small flowers, got interested and began making them more and more exotic.

Basically you need plain crepe paper and tissue paper in a variety of colors and color combinations. The Trinity UCW women like a double-faced kind which is, for instance, rose on one side, pink on the other.

The crepe paper is cut in petal shapes and wound to form the head of a flower. Mrs. John Lilagwood used unravelled rope as the centres of a fantasy bunch. Paper in contrasting colors can be used.

To make the stem and hold the flowers together, you need three weights of wire.

The first is a heavy wire for the main stems — about the weight of a coat hanger. The second is a medium wire usually called utility wire.

It is used as the stem for flowers which must be joined to the heavier stem wire.

The third wire is a fine thread wire for wrapping and fastening petals, stamens and calyx to the stem or to each other.

Regular scissors, pinking shears, wire cutters and pliers for shaping the heavy wire are the tools you need. You may want to use a few commercial leaves or stamens for special effects.

The Old-time Christmas Look

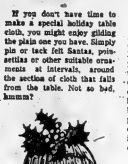
Hi there: Along with the accent on simplicity, I love the old-fashioned look of Christmas . . . and it isn't so difficult to achieve, either.

Do you have an important pair of lamps in your living room? Decorate them, and the whole room picks up a festive air. At a lovely party recently, the hostess had fastened a huge green satin bow to each gold shade on a pair of tall lamps. The lamps stood on twin tables at either end of a sofa, and were so exquisite that no other decoration was necessary in that area.

For a right - off - the - farm centrepiece, fill a large white compote bowl or vegetable dish with multi-colored pods sprigs of holly or spruce in amongst them.

To add extra excitement by following the brief instructions below, coat the branches with pure white putty soap frost. Then add sets of miniature bells:

Soap frost usually works out quite effectively, although do try it on just a branch or two first as it occasionally turns out looking slightly more like spider webs than frosty snow! Mix about half a cup of pure soap in a large bowl with just enough hot water to form a thick paste when beaten vigorously with an egg beater. Spread the suds generously over the branches and allow to dry. Place a sheet of plastic underneath for a few hours to catch the drips, at least there's nothing much to buy!



As for the merry miniature bells, thread each through a small hole in the base of each of three little white plastic creamers. (The type you might find in any restaurant will do nicely.) Secure each ribbon inside the creamer with a little bell and hang them unevenly, upside down in each of three on the tree. Covering them first with gold or red paint is a pretty variation.

Getting thirsty about now? Make up a delicious, tingling-sharp drink — especially good holiday meals — by mixing two-thirds of a glass of stinging cold cola with one-third glass of fresh orange juice.

— Susanna

If you don't have time to make a special holiday table cloth, you might enjoy gilding the plain one you have. Simply pin or tack felt Santas, poinsettias or other suitable ornaments at intervals, around the section of cloth that falls from the table. Not so bad, hmm?

Finally, one for the incurable sentimentalist. (The lion forms on the right girls!) Cover with material, or paint, two wooden embroidery hoops and place one inside the other at right angles. Entwine a bunch of mistletoe around the centre bottom where the hoops cross, and tie the top with ribbon. Fasten to a prominent archway or light fixture, and then, of course, hover nearby 'til the right somebody comes along.

Straying Husbands Lack Maturity

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from "His Wife" to "The Other Woman" had special meaning to me. I am "The Other Woman."

No, Dear Wife, your husband was not with me Friday or Saturday night. And since you say he wasn't with you, either, it is fairly obvious that he was with somebody else. Now I am asking myself the same questions you have probably asked yourself a hundred times or more: Where did I fail? Did I become too critical or too demanding, or too complacent? Was my inability to hold him beyond my control? Some men need constant bolstering — more than one woman can supply. What better prop for the sagging male ego than a fresh challenge, an exciting new affair? I hope one day Rover Boy finds what he is looking for. I know now it won't be me. But it won't be you, either. — PORT CHESTER, N.Y.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I was fascinated by the letter from the wife to the other woman. May I address myself to her, since I'm sure that letter was meant for me,

DEAR WIFE: Your husband always told me you were dumb and your letter proves it. You figured everything wrong. You made our meetings sound like pure heaven. Well, they are 10 percent heaven and 90 percent hell. Do you know what it's like to sneak around with a married man — not to be able to have dinner in a decent restaurant or go to a movie together or even for a walk in a park? Do you know what it's like to be in love with a man you will never be able to marry and whose children you will never bear? I know now that my role in his life is that of supporting actress. The wife is always the star. When the final curtain drops, you will be the leading lady, and I won't even be listed in the cast of characters. — A WALKON.

DEAR ANN: Since I have been The Other Woman for ten years I am qualified to reply to "His Wife."

DEAR MARTYR: Please don't give your husband a divorce, no matter how hard he begs. (Frankly, I don't think he's been begging very hard.) If you give him a divorce he might feel he must marry me, and I don't want him. My alimony arrangement is beautiful. Furthermore, I don't trust the bum. It would be a matter of time before he'd be cheating on me as he is now cheating on you. — LA PALOMA.

DEAR ANN: I am a Probation Parole Officer who has witnessed at close range what goes on with the cheating husband, his "martyred" wife and the Other Woman. Why do wives hang on, accepting humiliation, punishment, and abuse? The answer is clear. They are unbalanced personalities who enjoy it.

Why be "The Other Woman?" This is deliberate choice. She likes the free meals, the gifts, the pleasant company, but she does not want to be a wife. It demands too much of her in terms of discipline and commitment. Building a successful marriage takes work. Being the Other Woman is a part-time job, which is all she is willing to tackle.

As for why husbands stray, usually it's because something is missing at home, but more often it is because something is missing in the man: He lacks the maturity to stay with one woman. His ego demands more pampering than one female can provide. It's the nature of the beast. — AN OBSERVER.

Successful Living

Former Mental Patient Praises Provincial Mental Hospitals

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Everybody seems to think that going to a provincial hospital is something out of this world. Well, it isn't. I've been there three times myself. It's a wonderful place for sick people and I would like to say on behalf of my small family that we are very fortunate in having such nice people looking after us mentally ill.

Two wonderful doctors and all the nice nurses I have known out there. Believe me, Doris, they are a lot more precious to me than I can ever tell. I think they should have more praise from people like me. Who knows what they can do for you if you know how to appreciate it and work with them? I sure do because now I am back to life again and can enjoy my family.

I would like to let other mentally ill people know that there is hope. Health means everything. — A Mental Patient with Lots to be Thankful For.

Dear Mental Patient: And that's for sure! Your troubling to tell us about it will give other upset people courage to seek the professional help they need.

Dear Doris: I read about the homemade hand lotion, and enclose 10 cents and stamped envelope. I'd be glad of the recipe because I also am a Chappy.

Dear Chappy: Aren't we all, what with strong detergents and wintry weather? The recipe is on its way.

Dear Doris: Help! My former boy friend is boarding with us. The problem is that he is becoming like a brother. I tell you I can't bear it. I still like him, though we broke 'up; and I couldn't stand for him to become like a brother to me. — Desperate

Dear Desperate: Any way you look at it, you are surrounded with handsome boys. Your Former Fling now sees you as a person instead of a Sex Symbol. Since you are now under the same roof, this attitude is easier to handle. And don't you ever believe it can't ripen into love — when you are ripe for it!

Confidential to M.B.V.: You can use any old name at all, as long as it isn't "for any fraudulent purpose". But isn't a common-law union at 18 a pretty risky way of looking for happiness?

Let that ardent lover disentangle himself from one marriage before starting a second family. As for the birth control pills, there isn't any age limit, but most doctors will not prescribe them for single girls.

Confidential to Just Stupid: O.K., you've admitted to me you were stupid and unkind; why not face it with the man in the case? Rubbers were put on pencils because we make mistakes. Don't let your pride which is also stupid — shut the door for you on what could be a rosy future!

Christmas is a time for new beginnings: Write a note on the greeting you send him, to say the incident has bothered you ever since — and that there's a happy - month piece of Christmas cake waiting for him at your place.

BAKED BREADED PARSNIPS

About 16 small (1½" at top by 5" long) parsnips (see below)
1 egg
1 tbsp. cold water
Fine packaged cornflake or breadcrumbs
2 tbsps. butter

Scrub and scrape parsnips and cook in salted water until nearly tender. Do not overcook. If you overcook these, they will break when you handle them in the final steps. Drain. Beat egg and water together in shallow baking dish and dip parsnips in them. Then dip in crumbs to coat. Melt butter in shallow baking dish which may be carried to the table. Arrange crumbed parsnips in the butter in pan and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 20 to 25 min., turning parsnips over once at halftime.

BAKED STUFFED POTATOES (serves 6)

Select 3 very large potatoes. Scrub, clean and trim out any blemishes. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. until very tender. Cut into halves lengthwise and scoop out centres into beater bowl. Add 2 tbsp. butter, ¼ cup milk or possibly a little more, ½ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. M.S.G. (accent), and beat until smooth and light. Refill skins, sprinkle tops with grated Parmesan or Cheddar cheese and return to oven and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until heated through and golden.

One 10-oz. can mushroom stems and pieces

The Old-time Christmas Look

Hi there: Along with the accent on simplicity, I love the old-fashioned look of Christmas . . . and it isn't so difficult to achieve, either.

Do you have an important pair of lamps in your living room? Decorate them, and the whole room picks up a festive air. A lovely party recently, the hostess had fastened a huge green balls bow to each gold shade on a pair of tall lamps. The lamps stood on twin tables at either end of a sofa, and were so exquisite that no other decoration was necessary in that area.

For a right - off - the - farm centrepiece, fill a large white compote bowl or vegetable dish with multi-colored poke sprigs of holly or spruce in amongst them.

To add extra excitement by following the brief instructions below, coat the branches with pure white putty soap frost. Then add sets of miniature bells:

Soap frost usually works out quite effectively, although do try it on just a branch or two first as it occasionally turns out looking slightly more like spider webs than frosty snow! Mix about half a cup of pure soap in a large bowl with just enough hot water to form a thick suds when beaten vigorously with an egg beater. Spread the suds generously over the branches and allow to dry. Place a sheet of plastic underneath for a few hours to catch the drips. At least there's nothing much to buy!

As for the merry miniature bells, thread a red ribbon through a small hole in the base of each of three little white plastic creamers. (The type you might find in any restaurant will do nicely.) Secure each ribbon inside the creamer with a little bell and hang them unevenly, upside down in sets of three on the tree. Covering them first with gold or red paint is a pretty variation.

Getting thirsty about now? Make up a delicious, tingling, sharp drink — especially good holiday meals — by mixing two-thirds of a glass of sparkling, cold cola with one-third glass of fresh orange juice.

— Susanna

If you don't have time to make a special holiday table cloth, you might enjoy gilding the plain one you have. Simply pin or tack felt Santas, poinsettias or other suitable ornaments at intervals around the section of cloth that falls from the table. Not so bad; hmmm?

Finally, one for the incurable sentimentalist. (The line forms on the right girls!) Cover with material, or paint, two wooden embroidery hoops and place one inside the other at right angles. Entwine a bunch of mistletoe around the centre bottom where the hoops cross, and tie the top with ribbon. Fasten to a prominent archway or light fixture, and then, of course, hover nearby 'til the right somebody comes along.

Former Mental Patient Praises Provincial Mental Hospitals

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Everybody seems to think that going to a provincial hospital is something out of this world. Well, it isn't. I've been there three times myself. It's a wonderful place for sick people and I would like to say on behalf of my small family that we are very fortunate in having such nice people looking after us mentally ill.

Two wonderful doctors and all the nice nurses I have known out there. Believe me, Doris, they are a lot more precious to me than I can ever tell. I think they should have more praise from people like me. We know what they can do for you if you know how to appreciate it and work with them! I estre do because now I am back to life again and can enjoy my family.

I would like to let other mentally ill people know that there is hope. Health means everything. — A Mental Patient with Lots to be Thankful For.

Dear Mental Patient: And that's for sure! Your troubling to tell us about it will give other upset people courage to seek the professional help they need.

Dear Doris: I read about the homemade hand lotion, and enclose 10 cents and stamped envelope. I'd be glad of the recipe because I also am a Chappy.

Dear Chappy: Aren't we all, what with strong detergents and wintry weather? The recipe is on its way.

Dear Doris: Help! My former boy friend is boarding with us. The problem is that he is becoming like a brother. I tell you I can't bear it. I still like him, though we broke up; and I couldn't stand for him to become like a brother to me. — Desperate

Dear Desperate: Any way you look at it, you are surrounded with horseshoes. Your Former Fling now sees you as a person instead of a Sex Symbol. Since you are now under the same roof, this attitude is easier to handle. And don't you ever believe it can't ripen into love — when you are ripe for it!

Confidential to M.B.V.: You can use any old name at all, as long as it isn't "for any fraudulent purpose". But isn't a common-law union at 18 a pretty risky way of looking for happiness?

Let that ardent lover discontangle himself from one marriage before starting a second family. As for the birth control pills, there isn't any age limit, but most doctors will not prescribe them for single girls.

Confidential to Just Stupid: O.K., you've admitted to me you were stupid and unkind; why not face it with the man in the case? Rubbers were put on pencils because we make mistakes. Don't let your pride which is also stupid — shut the door for you on what could be a rosy future!

Christmas is a time for new beginnings: Write a note on the greeting you send him, to say the incident has bothered you ever since — and that there's a happy - month piece of Christmas cake waiting for him at your place.

Ann Landers

Straying Husbands Lack Maturity

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from "His Wife" to "The Other Woman" had special meaning to me. I am "The Other Woman."

ANN LANDERS

No, Dear Wife, your husband was not with me Friday or Saturday night. And since you say he wasn't with you, either, it is fairly obvious that he was with somebody else. Now I am asking myself the same questions you have probably asked yourself a hundred times or more: Where did I fail? Did I become too critical or too demanding, or too complacent? Was my inability to hold him beyond my control? Some men need constant bolstering — more than one woman can supply. What better prop for the sagging male ego than a fresh challenge, an exciting new affair? I hope one day Rover Boy finds what he is looking for. I know now it won't be me. But it won't be you, either. — PORT CHESTER, N.Y.

DEAR ANN: I was fascinated by the letter from the wife to the other woman. May I address myself to her, since I'm sure that letter was meant for me.

DEAR WIFE: Your husband always told me you were dumb and your letter proves it. You figured everything wrong. You made our meetings sound like pure heaven. Well, they are 10 percent heaven and 90 percent hell. Do you know what it's like to sneak around with a married man — not to be able to have dinner in a decent restaurant or go to a movie together or even for a walk in a park? Do you know what it's like to be in love with a man you will never be able to marry and whose children you will never bear? I know now that my role in his life is that of supporting actress. The wife is always the star. When the final curtain drops, you will be the leading lady, and I won't even be listed in the cast of characters. — A WALK ON.

DEAR ANN: Since I have been The Other Woman for ten years I am qualified to reply to "His Wife."

DEAR MARTYR: Please don't give your husband a divorce, no matter how hard he begs. (Frankly, I don't think he's been begging very hard.) If you give him a divorce he might feel he must marry me, and I don't want him. My alimony arrangement is beautiful. Furthermore, I don't trust the beau. It would be a matter of time before he'd be cheating on me as he is now cheating on you. — LA PALOMA.

DEAR ANN: I am a Probation Parole Officer who has witnessed at close range what goes on with the cheating husband; his "martyred" wife and the Other Woman. Why do wives bear the unending humiliation, punishment, and abuse? The answer is clear. They are unbalanced personalities who enjoy it.

Why be "The Other Woman?" This is deliberate choice. She likes the free meals, the gifts, the pleasant company, but she does not want to be a wife. It demands too much of her in terms of discipline and commitment. Building a successful marriage takes work. Being the Other Woman is a part-time job, which is all she is willing to tackle.

As for why husbands stray, usually it's because something is missing at home, but more often it is because something is missing in the man. He lacks the maturity to stay with one woman. His ego demands more pampering than one female can provide. It's the nature of the beast. — AN OBSERVER.

Kennedy Book Accord Sought

NEW YORK (AP) — Spokesmen for two publishers involved in the dispute with the Kennedy family over publication of the book, The Death of a President, said today efforts are being made to settle the matter out of court.

The disclosure followed a statement by William Manchester, author of the book, denying that he had broken faith with Mrs. John F. Kennedy or that he had taken advantage of her confidence in him. The book is about the assassination of President Kennedy.

"There are continuing efforts to patch things up," said a spokesman for Harper and Row, Publishers Inc., which plans to bring out the 300,000-word hard-cover book in April.

"Every effort will be made to work things out," the spokesman said. "There are always the author's rights and her (Mrs. Kennedy's) rights."

Asked if the aim might be to reach some understanding on the separation of deeply personal matter, which Mrs. Kennedy seeks to keep out of the book, from what is considered history, the spokesman replied: "I think that is pretty accurate."

Mrs. Kennedy filed a petition in Manhattan Supreme Court last Friday to block publication.

In his statement, issued through Look magazine Sunday, Manchester said:

"It has been said that my work is being published prematurely and that magazine serialization was not contemplated by the Kennedy family. This is not so. In the summer of 1966, authorization was given by the family for publication of the book in early 1967, to be preceded by serialization in Look magazine.

"It has been said that I have broken faith with Mrs. Kennedy—that I took advantage of her confidence in me and that I recorded too faithfully her words and emotions. I do not believe this to be so.

"Mrs. Kennedy gave me 19 hours of interviews: I did not, indeed could not, have conducted these interviews without her voluntary co - operation. Mrs. Kennedy herself did not ask to see the manuscript and still hasn't. If she had, I would, of course, have given it to her.

"John Kennedy was my president. To suggest that I would dishonor his memory or my association with him is both cruel and unjust. His standards of excellence have guided me throughout this work.

"I believe John Kennedy, who was himself an historian, would have wanted his countrymen to know the truth of these terrible days, and I have dedicated myself for nearly three years to retrieving and reconstructing them so that the truth could be faithfully and accurately recorded."

China Bars Canadian Official

OTTAWA (CP) — The senior Canadian trade commissioner in Hong Kong has been refused admittance to mainland China, an external affairs department spokesman confirmed Sunday.

C. R. Gallow, the commissioner, had suggested to the Communist Chinese government that he be permitted to visit the mainland early in December, the source said.

Mr. Gallow was told it was "not convenient to arrange for the trip" in December, However, the Communists said he could try again at some future date.

The spokesman said he could not recall a similar outright refusal by the Chinese for such a visit. However, a similar request in September drew a reply that the suggested time was not convenient but the Communists proposed a specific future date.

Mr. Gallow was permitted to visit the Canton trade fair on the mainland about two months ago.

The spokesman declined to interpret the latest refusal in the light of Canada's recent proposal that Communist China be given a seat on the United Nations Security Council. The proposal carried the rider that Nationalist China retain its General Assembly seat, but give up its Council seat.

LBJ to Seek Red Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration plans another attempt early next year to persuade Congress to ease restrictions on trade with the Soviet Union and Communist nations of Eastern Europe.

The Soviet government apparently favors removal of East-West trade barriers, say four U.S. Congressmen, who conferred with Soviet trade officials.

"They indicated a very real interest in expanded trade with the United States," Representative Thomas Ashley (Dem., Ohio) told a Moscow press conference Sunday.

"The Soviet view as presented to us is that trade between this country (Russia) and the United States could increase a great deal if it were not for artificial barriers put up by our side," Ashley said.

Senator Jacob K. Javits (Rep., N.Y.) told a New York City audience that he had information that the Soviet Union "is ready to do business with the United States in every area." Javits did not elaborate.

Canadian Motion to Set Peacekeeping Guides Is Opposed by Both Russia and France in UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—A new quarrel over UN peacekeeping operations threatened today to delay adjournment of the General Assembly's 22nd session.

The Soviet Union and France warned Saturday night that a new crisis might result if the assembly adopted a Canadian resolution setting guidelines for the special committee on peacekeeping operations. The two countries said the resolution is illegal.

A conciliation commission of 11 non-aligned countries sought to head off a showdown. One member said the commission wanted Canada to withdraw the resolution. Another said it was trying to work out amendments acceptable to all.

The assembly postponed a vote on the resolution until today. It appeared that this would run the session into Tuesday, the scheduled closing day, and frustrate the hope of Assembly President Abdul Rahman Pazhwak of Afghanistan to end it a day ahead of time.

The basic issue was the same as that which paralyzed the assembly two years ago: Whether the assembly, with its majority rule, shares the constitutional authority of the Security Council, with its big-power veto, to arrange for peacekeeping operations. Britain and the United States say it does. The Soviet Union and France say it doesn't.

In 1964, the Soviet Union and France were two years behind in paying peacekeeping assessments voted by the assembly and the U.S. threatened to invoke a clause of the UN charter providing that such delinquents lose their assembly vote. The Americans finally backed down and the Russians and French still refuse to pay.

The Canadian resolution would have the assembly invite member countries to inform the United Nations what forces they can provide if asked "to participate in a duly authorized United Nations peacekeeping operation."

French Ambassador Roger Seydoux told the assembly that goes beyond the competence of the General Assembly. He said that the authors of the resolution "run the risk of reviving divergencies which were about to lose their seriousness."

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko objected that the resolution "empowers the General Assembly to finance . . . the operation of United Nations armed forces, which is within the sole competence of the Security Council."

He said its adoption would "shut the door to negotiation" and might "lead to the emergence of situations of crisis" again.

But both delegates supported a Jamaican resolution to have the assembly recommend that the Security Council negotiate arrangements with UN members for peacekeeping forces to be made available at the council's call.

Troops May Move Into Delta

VUNT TAU, South Vietnam (CP)—The first contingents of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division, the latest major unit to be committed to South Vietnam, came ashore here today for transfer to an undisclosed base camp.

The 14,000 men in the division, which was reactivated in February at Fort Riley, Kr., bring American forces in South Vietnam to more than 372,000.

There was widespread speculation here that the 9th Division, dubbed The Old Reliables, would be deployed in the heavily - populated Mekong River Delta area, the only part of South Vietnam where large-scale American forces have not yet been committed.

But the American commander in South Vietnam, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, told reporters after welcoming the first group of 3,400 infantry that "there has been no decision to move U.S. troops into the delta at any specific date in the future."

Informed sources said, however, that the deployment of U.S. troops in the rich rice-growing area in the southernmost part of the country was probable, if still not inevitable.

Government leaders stated publicly on recent occasions that U.S. troops will move into the delta in the near future. The Mekong Delta, where almost half the population of South Vietnam lives, was estimated to contain up to 80,000 Viet Cong guerrillas.

The troops landing at this port 45 miles southeast of Saigon today were part of a force of 5,000. The rest of the division was expected to disembark from other troopships in the next few days. Seventy per cent of the division troops are draftees.

Ceylon's Food Shortage Is Declared Emergency

COLOMBO (CP) — The government today decreed a state of emergency for Ceylon in the wake of the food crisis which has prompted authorities to cut rice rations and introduce a new rationing plan.

The Official Gazette said the state of emergency was ordered in the interest of public security, preservation of public order and the maintenance of essential supplies to the community.

The weekly ration was cut to two pounds a person from four pounds.

The drastic cut was prompted by the inability of Burma and Thailand to supply more than 100,000 tons of rice in the coming year.

Burma also was said to have failed so far to deliver 74,000 tons of rice which had been contracted for the November-December period.

In a broadcast to the nation, Premier Dudley Senanayake described the situation as a "blessing in disguise" as far as it would stimulate Ceylon's efforts for achieving economic self-sufficiency and becoming less dependent on foreign assistance.

U.S. Gets No Military Aid in Vietnam From European Allies

LONDON (AP)—The United States can write off hopes of getting troops or military aid from European allies for its Vietnam war effort.

This is clear in a survey of NATO countries which have shown sympathy with the U.S., but have shied away from direct involvement.

Britain and West Germany have sent sizable material assistance but emphasize the nonmilitary aspects of the aid to South Vietnam. From others have come token assistance, mostly medical supplies from private agencies.

Officials generally passed over U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk's comment in Paris last week: "Of course we'd be glad to see help from any quarter, of any sort, in Vietnam."

British Prime Minister Wilson, overriding a strong bloc in his Labor party, has expressed broad support for the U.S. position in Vietnam, but any idea of sending troops has long been ruled out.

Wilson publicly criticized U.S. bombings of targets in the North Vietnamese areas of Hanoi and the port of Haiphong and "dissociated" his government from them.

British aid has been mainly training the South Vietnamese in police work and internal security methods and techniques and technical assistance in water - purifying and agricultural work.

Here is how other European allies stand:

1. Italy has given no aid to South Vietnam and none can be expected in the foreseeable future, although Premier Aldo Moro has repeatedly expressed "understanding" of the American position.

2. Norway has furnished no aid to Vietnam and sources say none can be expected. The official attitude of the government is that while it reluctantly supports the U.S. it feels a military solution is impossible and the war must be settled at the conference table.

3. The Belgian government gave nine scholarships to the South Vietnamese this year and the Belgian-American Association gave an ambulance.

4. Turkey has been officially quiet about Vietnam, but behind the scenes has sympathized with Washington. Turkey has made no contribution to the U.S. effort, however.

5. West Germany sent $3,750,000 worth of material aid to South Vietnam this year and is expected to increase this to $6,100,000 in 1961. The West Germans also contributed a hospital ship, Helgoland, to treat injured civilians.

6. Denmark furnished approximately $10,500 worth of medical aid to South Vietnam this year through the International Red Cross. The Danish government has given seemingly reluctant support to the U.S., setting off anti-American demonstrations.

7. The Dutch government backs the U.S. policy in Vietnam but has offered no aid. Private organizations, however, have sent medical supplies and have given assistance in the field of agriculture.

8. Portugal openly supports the U.S. in Vietnam as waging a just campaign against communism but officials say Portugal is too strapped with defense costs in Africa to give direct aid.

Dying Ruby Insists There Was No Conspiracy to Kill Oswald

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Jack Ruby in his dying days still insists there was no conspiracy involved in his killing of Lee Harvey Oswald, named by the Warren commission as the assassin of President John F. Kennedy.

Ruby, fully aware he is dying of cancer, wants to take any scientific test to prove for history there was no conspiracy.

"Jack has told me a dozen times or more he prays to be given a final lie detector test so people will be convinced that there was no plan on his part, or conspiracy of any kind, to kill Oswald," said Ruby's brother, Earl, a Detroit businessman.

"It is his last wish."

Earl Ruby and Elmer Gertz, Chicago lawyer and member of the legal team which Oct. 5 won a reversal from the death sentence for Ruby, described Ruby's plea to 'do anything to erase any doubt that he acted alone in shooting Oswald They had seen Ruby, an hour earlier in Parkland Memorial Hospital where Ruby, under guard, is undergoing treatment. This is the same hospital where the mortally wounded president and Oswald were taken.

Gertz and Earl Ruby were asked whether Jack Ruby has any regrets about killing Oswald and thus making impossible a trial, perpetuating for all time the feeling that the full story of the assassination will never be known.

"He has regrets, but they are not so much about Oswald," said Gertz. "These are regrets about the havoc caused to his people."

Ruby, a Jew, is known to feel that his action reflected poorly upon the Jewish people.

"Jack reads the newspapers and magazines and watches television and is aware of the controversy about the Warren report and all the books and articles which are constructing incredible stories of a conspiracy in which he is claimed to have had a part," said Gertz.

"He says, 'How can they think I am hiding anything or protecting anyone else? There is nothing to hide; there was no one else."

As he lies critically ill, he still maintains—according to Gertz and Earl Ruby—that "I never met or knew or saw Oswald until I saw him in jail, and I never knew Officer Tippit."

The Warren report said Dallas policeman J. D. Tippit was slain by Oswald when Oswald fled to the Oak Cliff section of Dallas after assassinating Kennedy.

Gertz and Ruby said that Jack Ruby today acts like a man who wants to remain alive long enough to be convinced that others believe beyond question that he "acted out of overwhelming emotion and without malice and without premeditation."

They said Jack Ruby keeps referring to his movements the morning of Sunday, Nov. 24, 1963, when drawn by curiosity, he entered the basement of the Police and Courts Building, and, "on impulse and the purest of chance, shot Lee Harvey Oswald."

"And he is bewildered that it is not plain to everyone that it was a million-to-one chance that he would stumble into a situation in which it was even possible that Oswald could be shot," said Gertz.

Gertz and Earl Ruby said Jack Ruby has no recollection of the moment he shot Oswald.

"That is a complete blank in his mind," said Gertz. "Even he goes over every detail of his movements, he comes to that point and it is a blank for him. He does not deny he killed Oswald, but he has no memory of it. He does remember going into the basement. Then the next thing he remembers is being grabbed by police."

MUSHMOUTH REPORTS

Dear Boss: —

I no, where the welkin-ringing and wassailing fiiners approacheth, as they used to say in the old Cock-and-Bull pub off Piccadilly in the days when you could get tripe-n-onion, sausage-and-mash a helped spud, cockles and mussels and the old reliable fish-and-chips for thruppence a three.

So here's my Christmas list; what I would like to give the grand guys in the world of sport.

To you, boss: A platinum hair-piece for dress wear with detachable shoulder-length ringlets so you can mingle with the scene-makers on your go-go gambols.

To Cassius Clay: An extra set of built-in tonsils.

To Arnold Palmer: An armored miniature trailer to help lug the loot from course to bank.

To Jack Nicklaus: Ditto.

To Elaine Tanner: A black velvet case to contain gold and other medals with space space for the Olympics.

To Punch Imlach: A bucket of suds from a master "Brewer."

To the Montreal Canadiens: A case of champagne to grace the inards of the Stanley Cup.

To the Ottawa Rough Riders: A set of hand and foot brakes so they can't shoot the whole works before next Grey Cup game.

To the New York Rangers: A huge sculpture of Rod Gilbert in case they need it to replace the Statue of Liberty come post Stanley Cup time.

To the city of Belleville: A brand new community centre. (A guy can dream can't he boat?)

To Art Peever: A third foot and a French dictionary. Get well, buster.

To Canada's Nationals: "We did it before — and we can do it again."

To Santa Claus: No red lights in the outer-space traffic.

To the Chicago Black Hawks: The end of a long wait for that silverware.

To city motorists: Self-paying parking tickets.

To George Chuvalo: A deadly shot at a Clay pigeon.

To the Belleville Mo-Hawks: Bon voyage through the playoffs.

To the Junior McFarlands: The Top o' the Heap to you'.

To the golfers: The shortest distance between putter and hole.

To the Parsons Soccer Gang: More power, more kicks — and a title.

To Mickey Mantle: A brand new set of legs.

To Howie Young: A one-way ticket to the National Hockey League.

To the Quinte Driving and Riding Club: No bobbies on a full season of dates.

To Dick Tiger: "Joe Can you See. . ."

To Dennis Hull: "The best of luck — and keep it up. You're doing it the hard way.

To Jack Carson: The very very best of everything.

To Doug Patterson: Ditto.

To Cliff Belch, Jr.: Ditto.

To Jack Devine: Ditto, including that presidency.

And I'd better include, boss all those grand guys and gals who have co-operated along the sports beat during the "Year of the Horse" as our Chinese friends call it.

Also the grand guys that participate in sports all of whom have made the daily grind a lot more pleasant.

Rangers Nip Hawks

Baby Habs Upset Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's one of those seasons in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series when you just can't afford to lose a game.

Only six points separates the top six teams in the nine-team series, and on any given night, anybody can beat anybody.

It was Montreal Junior Canadiens turn to upset the favorite Sunday night as they scored three goals in the second period to edge second-place Hamilton Red Wings 3-2.

The high - flying Kitchener Rangers—the surprise of the OHA Junior A series this year—maintained their one-point league lead by defeating St. Catharines Black Hawks 2-1.

In other weekend games, London Nationals tied Toronto Marlboros 6-6, and Oshawa Generals whipped the last place Peterborough Petes 8-4.

Crozier Blanks Blues; Bruins Win!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For a goalie who was benched earlier in the season and a team that's last in the National Hockey League, Roger Crozier and Detroit Red Wings looked pretty good Sunday night as they shut out New York Rangers 5-0.

It was Crozier's second straight shutout and his fourth of the season, tops in the league. Detroit has won three of four since Crozier came back from a six-game stint of splinter collecting.

ROGER CROZIER

The win kept the Red Wings within one-point of fifth-place Boston Bruins, whose 3-1 Sunday night win over Montreal Canadiens was their first in 11 games. Chicago Black Hawks beat Toronto 3-1 and moved into a first-place tie with Crozier's victims, the Rangers.

With Crozier making 22 stops, Alex Delvecchio and Bruce MacGregor scored two goals each and Floyd Smith one for the Wings.

Stan Mikita, Doug Mohns and Ken Wharrum scored for the Black Hawks and Red Kelly for Toronto in their Sunday game.

Ted Green, John McKenzie and Don Sheck scored for the Bruins against Montreal, with Claude Larose scoring for the Canadiens.

RANGERS BEAT LEAFS

The Rangers had a better night Saturday as they handed the Maple Leafs a 3-1 setback. Heart Ingarfield, Rod Gilbert and Bernie Geoffrion scored for New York and Frank Mahovlich for Toronto.

In Saturday's other game, Dick Duff scored two goals to pace the Canadiens to a come-from-behind 4-4 tie with the Black Hawks. Gilles Tremblay and John Ferguson scored the other Montreal goals. Dennis Hull, Bobby Hull, Wharram and Lou Angotti replied for the Hawks.

ALEX DELVECCHIO

The Rangers were outplayed in every period Sunday as the Red Wings fired 44 shots at Ed Giacomin. It was only the third loss in 18 games for the New Yorkers.

The Hawks and the Rangers now have 32 points, three more than the Leafs.

Mikita's goal, plus an assist against the Leafs, gave the classy centre a league-leading total of 42 points. Mikita also leads the league in the play-making department with 28 assists.

The Hawks blasted 38 shots at Toronto's Gary Smith, playing his first game with Toronto since being called up from Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League. Glenn Hall of the Hawks stopped 21.

Gilbert and Geoffrion scored in the third period to break a 1-1 tie and give the Rangers their victory over the Leafs Saturday night.

The loss was the first of the season on home ice for the Leafs. They had gone 12 scheduled games without a defeat.

The Leafs tried hard as they peppered 35 shots at Giacomin. The Rangers had 28 shots at Bruce Gamble in the Toronto nets.

The Bruins had managed only two ties during their 11-game winless streak. They tied Leafs 1-1 with the Canadiens going into the third but McKenzie snapped the deadlock at 5:37 with his goal and Schock put the game out of reach just after the 12-minute mark.

The Canadiens had 33 shots at Boston's Ed Johnston. The Bruins had 27 at Charlie Hodge.

COME FROM BEHIND

The Canadiens, who hold fourth place with 26 points, had to come from behind four times in Saturday's game to tie the score as the Hawks led 3-2 at the end of the first period and carried a 4-3 lead into the third.

Jean Beliveau, the Canadiens' centre, suffered a contusion of the right eye early in the first period and was taken to hospital, where he is expected to remain for about a week. A eich spokesman said the injury was not serious.

The Canadiens had 38 shots at Hall and the Hawks the same number at Hodge.

All six teams are in action Wednesday night. The Maple Leafs will clash with the Canadiens in Montreal, the Rangers will play host to Boston and Detroit is at Chicago.

Nats Whip Russians 7-3

Brewer: Cheers And Assists!

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defenceman Carl Brewer drew two assists and controlled much of the play Sunday as the Canadian national team belted Moscow Selects 7-3 in an exhibition hockey game.

It was the first hockey game Brewer has played since he walked out of the Toronto Maple Leafs' training camp in October, 1965. He was reinstated as an amateur last week.

He drew a tremendous ovation from the crowd of 5,000 when introduced before the game.

"There doesn't seem to be as much glamor in this game as in the National Hockey League, but I'm impressed," he said. "The international game is like chess—it's a game of position."

Brewer, 28, delivered a couple of solid bodychecks and skated strongly despite having been inactive for 14 months.

"I've got a long way to go as far as conditioning is concerned but I'm not worried about it," he said.

Coach Jackie McLeod said Brewer "played well considering he hasn't been on the ice much so far." The former NHL all-star and two-time NHL penalty leader was not allowed to practise with the Nationals until he was reinstated.

Brewer got Canada off to a quick start by setting up the first goal of the game, by Marshall Johnston. The Nationals led 3-1 at the end of the first period.

Official Attacked

Cowboys, Packers In Title Clash

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Green Bay Packers and Dallas Cowboys are looking forward to the National Football League championship game and the Super Bowl, but one NFL official may have had his fill of football for this year.

Head linesman Gerard Bergman was hit on the head twice by whisky bottles as angry fans of the San Francisco 49ers protested a wave of penalties Sunday.

The bottle throwing came after a woman fan ran on to the field to take Bergman's penalty handkerchief and officials ended the game 30 seconds early.

The Packers and Cowboys meet in the championship game Jan. 1. The winner gets a berth in the Super Bowl two weeks later.

The Cowboys, who clinched the Eastern Conference title Saturday when Cleveland Browns eliminated St. Louis Cardinals 38-10, struggled to a 17-7 victory over New York Giants Sunday and the Packers, who nailed the Western crown a week ago, held off Los Angeles Rams 27-23.

EARN BERTH

The Eagles earned the Eastern Conference berth in the Playoff Bowl by outscoring Washington Redskins 28-26 in finish in a second-place tie with Cleveland. They'll go to Miami because the Browns were there more recently — in January, 1965.

Elsewhere, Gale Sayers returned the opening kickoff 90 yards for a touchdown and then shredded Minnesota Vikings' defence for 197 rushing yards as Chicago Bears drubbed the Vikings 41-28. Bill Nelsen passed for 344 yards and two touchdowns in Pittsburgh Steelers' 37-33 romp over Atlanta Falcons.

There were 12 penalties called against the 49ers and nine against the Colts—for a total of 192 yards—in the fiercely-played game for second place in the Western Conference. Four touchdown passes by Johnny Unitas won it for the Colts, who'll meet Philadelphia Eagles in the NFL Playoff Bowl at Miami Jan. 8.

Poles Whip Wings 4-1

LLOYDMINSTER, Alta. (CP) —The touring Polish national hockey team Sunday defeated Lloydminster Border Kings 4-1 in an exhibition hockey game before about 1,900 fans.

The victory was the fifth for the Poles on their tour. They have lost three games and tied three. Their final game will be played Tuesday at New Westminster, B.C.

Warner, Pepsi Commercial Winners

Stewart Warner trimmed American Optical 7-3 and Pepsi-Cola clipped Belvedere Hotel 7-4 in Sunday's Commercial "B" Hockey League games.

While the scores were almost identical, the brand of play was not. There were no penalties in the Warner-Optical tilt. There were nine in the other game, including a misconduct to each team.

Wayne "Wiener" Waite and Ray Mumford led Stewart Warner's offence with a pair of goals and an assist each. "Pug" Keller, Frank Wills and Larry Lewis also scored. Terry Bennett, Chuck Rowbotham and Keller also drew assists.

Optical marksmen were Jack Bolton, Gerry Reid and Dick Stewart, with George Flynn helping on a pair.

Doug Dickey was the only two-goal performer for the Pepsi's. Goodfellow, Ted Rowland, Paul Ford, Ralph Boomhower and Paul Ruttan also scored. Only one assist was given, that to Fahey.

Steve Lyons, Larry Stewart, "Shud" Ehler and Larry Edgley had Belvedere tallies. Stewart also drew an assist.

The next league games are scheduled for January 8.

Hornets' Hergott Was Top Stinger

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

GALT — A hard-shooting veteran and a rookie goaltender were the key figures in an OHA Senior "A" game between Galt Hornets and the Belleville Mo-Hawks here Saturday night.

The veteran won but through no fault of the rookie.

Ron Hergott sparked the Hornets past the Mo-Hawks and young Steve Reze by a 4-1 count.

The Mo-Hawks' setback was their second in as many nights and left the club with a 9-11 won-lost record at the schedule's half-way mark.

They travel to Kingston Tuesday and the powerful Hornets make their final scheduled trip to Belleville on Friday.

Hergott, a right-winger deluxe with one of the finest shots in the league, scored two second-period goals and was responsible for another, as well as leading the Hornets' powerplay and controlling their penalty-killing.

Reze, the Junior-age goalie from Peterborough who has set through the Mo-Hawks' first 19 games, had his chance to play. He was little less than great while facing 43 Galt shots.

Twenty-three of the shots came in the third period, after Galt opened up a 4-0 lead with one in the first and three in the second, and Reze turned them all aside.

Belleville threw only 20 drives at opposing goalie Ron Boomer but came close to making it a tight affair in the third period.

Wayne McConnell took a return pass from Bob McAlpine and whipped it into a corner for a 4-1 count at 7:02.

Ralph Plane dug the disc out for McConnell again on the next rush but Boomer closed the door on the point-blank shot. Some minutes later Cary Greedahl broke in quickly. Boomer blocked the wide side perfectly. The two key saves prevented a cliff-hanger.

Moorehilla at the other end, Reze robbed Balfour on two quick blasts, Hergott on another, and remained cool against Galt's smooth attack.

Reze was called on for seven saves before the Mo-Hawks had a shot at Boomer in the opening heat. His best stops came against Beechey and Randle while Boomer blocked two dangerous bids by Eddie Martineau and Gerry Menard and Gary Darling.

Bert Brown netted the initial goal, from Reze's doorstep, near the end of the period. It was the only goal Hergott didn't assist.

Taylor was of for hooking when Hergott gunned home a low point drive at 2.02 of the second. McAlpine was serving a cheap tripping call when he let go another hiueline bullet at 9.34. Reze stopped it but Carl Hait pounced on the rebound for a 3-0 game.

Playing coach Earl Balfour lugged the puck and Hergott dcked in beautifully to complete a two-on-one break at 12.43. Defenceman Lloyd McKay, who played a strong game for the winners, started this scoring play.

The Plane-McAlpine-McConnell combo applied some pressure later in the period while Greedahl threw punches at Hait to get them fighting majors but in all it was a Galt period.

Belleville took eight of 15 penalties over the route.

Mo-Hawks' coach Floyd Crawford said he "just wanted to give Steve a chance to play" in selecting Reze over Ledger Doocet for the game.

Crawford was forced into several other lineup changes. He has been ordered off skates for two weeks by the club doctor because of two

Both clubs were lavolved in shutouts — but there was a difference.

Glen Ross took over the loop leadership by blanking Plainfield 5-0.

Glen Ross now has 13 points, Ivanhoe 12 and Wallbridge 11.

Dave Martin chalked up Foxboro's shutout while Jack Stewart rounded for a three-goal hat-trick, plus one assist, to lead the attack. Stewart's goals were scored in one minute and five seconds of the third period. Denals Ray, with two, Barry Dafoe, Jan Meeks and Jim Ewing also scored.

Chelsea Ties

United Defeats Albion 4-3

LONDON (CP)—Manchester United solidified first place in the English League soccer standings Saturday with a 4-3 decision over West Bromwich while second-place Chelsea settled for a 3-3 tie with West Ham.

United now has 30 points and Chelsea 28, both from 21 games. Liverpool, whose game was postponed because of a waterlogged ground, is third with 26 points from 20 games.

Manchester ran into surprising opposition from West Ham which is second from the bottom of the league. Three goals from inside left David Herd and one from Denis Law in the first half were barely enough as West Bromwich battled back twice to equalize However, United's class eventually decided the contest.

One of the most thrilling games was at Stamford Bridge, home of Chelsea, where outside left Bobby Tambling scored the equalizer for the Pensioners with only 30 seconds left in the game. It was Tambling's second goal of the game and it gave him a career total for Chelsea of one more than the record of Roy Bentley in 1956.

The biggest crowd of the day, 47,805, was rewarded with one of the best games of the season. West Ham rose led by two goals—2-0 and 3-3—but Chelsea refused to quit.

In Scotland, the two Glasgow teams won their games easily. First Division leader Celtic trounced Partick Thistle 6-2 and displayed the form which got them through to the quarter finals of the European Cup.

Reds Scalp Aces 12-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The trend followed by Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League during the last two weeks could prompt them to adopt Never on Sunday as their motto.

The Aces were lopped out of the Eastern Division by fourth-place Springfield Indians' 12-1 victory Sunday, Dec. 11 and failed to regain it after losing Saturday's game to Providence Reds last Sunday.

The victory was only the third in 27 starts this season for the Indians and left the Aces two points behind Hershey Bears, the division leaders with 35 points.

In other games Sunday, Pittsburgh Hornets finished a two-game weekend sweep by winning their 10th consecutive victory with a 4-1 decision over Buffalo Bisons after defeating Baltimore Clippers 6-4 Saturday. Cleveland Barons edged Hershey Bears 4-2, and Rochester Americans walloped Baltimore 8-2.

In other Saturday games, Cleveland defeated Providence 4-2, Hershey defeated Buffalo 5-3-1, and Quebec edged Springfield Indians 5-4.

Bills Win Third Straight Title

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bills are champions of the American Football League Eastern Division for the third straight year, thanks to mistakes by Denver Broncos and a loss by Boston Patriots.

The Bills beat the Broncos 38-21 Sunday, the day after the Patriots were upset 38-28 by New York Jets. If the Patriots had won or tied, the crown would have been theirs.

Now the Bills will be hosts to Kansas City Chiefs in the AFL championship game Jan. 1.

with the winner expected to pet about $6,000, a man. That winner then will advance to the Super Bowl in Los Angeles Jan. 15, and a victory there will be worth at least $15,000 a man.

Buffalo gained the Eastern title with the help of Denver mistakes. Tom Janik intercepted two passes, the first setting up Jim Dunaway's 38-yard field goal and the second resulting in a 25-yard touchdown for him. Then Mike Stratton grabbed a fumble and raced 22 yards for another score.

A short punt and an abortive short kickoff attempt also helped the Bills. The only thing that helped Denver was the John McCormick-Bob Scarpitto passing combination. They clicked for all three Bronco touchdowns on plays of 62, 28 and 10 yards.

The Patriots lost out on the championship when their defence held Jim Nance and the Jets to gain 328 yards, and set a team record for total offence. Joe Namath threw for 287 yards and three touchdowns—30 and eight yards to Don Maynard and 77 yards to George Sauer.

OMHA Teams Win Three, Lose, Tie

Belleville's OMHA teams came up with three wins, a loss and a tie over the weekend.

Smith's Feeds powers continued their strong play with a 5-1 win over the Peterborough Trentways; Western Tire Juvenalies overpowered Bancroft 9-2; Ellis midgets whitewashed Picton Legion 18-0; Rileway's novices tied Trenton Legion 4-4; the Kinsmen bantams bowed to Napanee 5-3.

The midgets at Gananoque on Wednesday is the only game scheduled during the holidays.

The previous scoring was divided among Mark Coates, Jim Richardson, Peter Smirke, David Kingland and Dave Ricketts. Smirke, David Smith, George and Ackerman had assists.

R. Gibson potted the lone Peterborough goal.

Lou Smirke's juveniles also divided their scoring well with D. Lambert and C. Wilson the only two-goal men. J. Holgate, W. Smith and J. Moore were credited with two goals and an assist each in the lop-sided midget game. M. Acquafredda also scored twice and D. MacCormack once with two helpers. J. Tracy had one and one. D. Hutchinson a goal. A. Jones, B. Brunett and A. Revill an assist each.

Third-period goals by P. Crawford and S. James gave Kilkenny days their novice 3-2 win over Crawford Glass. J. Dawdar and T. Whitehead were Trenton's marksmen.

A pair of goals by B. Buchanan and one by C. Janitsch fell short for the Kinsmen. D. Caul, L. McKenna and T. Meaghan collected assists. M. Vanalstine and W. Elder led the winning Napanee team with two goals each while N. Paul had the other one. Two goals late in the third broke a 3-3 tie.

Cougars Edge Apple Kings

Trenton Apple Kings came close to winning their first game of the OHA Eastern Junior "B" schedule, in Trenton, last night.

But they didn't quite make it. The Kings dropped a 5-4 decision to the league-leading Cobourg Cougars.

Cobourg opened a three-point lead on the second-place Quinte McFarlands with the win and are four points ahead of Oshawa and Peterborough.

Trenton's loss was number 15 in as many games.

Disagrees With Bow Hunting

By RICHARD ALDEN KNIGHT

Over the years I have written this column, I have receive d mail complaining that I have yet to make my position clear on where I stood on the sport of bow hunting. I have held off commenting on it in view of two factors . . . the relative newness of the sport and the unproven fact that more animals are wounded by the bow than are killed by it. I have read and watched, asked and asked questions. I arrive at two inescapable conclusions:

(1) Any weapon that depends on killing through loss of blood rather than knockdown shock does it cruelly.

(2) The average bow hunter is not a good tracker and woodsman.

In 1957, I watched a film shown by a man who recently returned from Africa where he killed an elephant with a bow and arrow. His bow was a massive affair, pulling 110 pounds of full draw and requiring a right arm like my leg to flex it. He used special arrows and heads, he studied elephant anat o m y and habits. In short, he was dedicated to his promise. Then he put it all on film.

You can see the stalk, t h i s taken by the most nervous cameraman in the history of movie making. He was so far back he might have well been in the next state. You see the shoi . . . the arrow burying itself to t h e feathers behind the shoulder. What you see next makes you a bit ill. It took the elephant a full 45 minutes to go down!

I realize that it is fully possible to kill anything cleanly with a bow and arrow. Fred Bear has proved it to everyone's satisfaction. I also realize that it is necessary for you to get in close with a bow and that you must with a rifle. This requires a great deal of skill in a stalk . . . next to no skill from ambush.

But I also realize that all the dangerous game taken by archers have been taken while being backed up by a big bore rifle!

Archers can say that far more deer are crippled each season by wild rifle fire than by a n y arrow. This is only too true. Long range, indiscrimin a te shooting does cripple g a m e. Rifles capable of killing deer at two hundred yards, rifles equipped with the finest of optic a l sighting aids . . . all of these are so much dead weight in the hands of a man who is a poor shot and one who does not much care how he looses off a round at an animal.

A great number of rifle-shot deer . . . 7 lost each year by hunters who haven't the vaguest conception of how to track an animal on dry ground. Hunters take shots they never should have taken, hoping to slow an animal down so that they can catch up and finish it off. Too often, they lose the thread of the trace, and the animal dies, completely wasted.

Archers say that this happens because of the basic fact that the rifle gives you far too much spread of range, a spread that an archer does not have and must compensate for by skill and craft. To a degree, this is also true.

To a degree . . . that is the whole point. If you shoot a deer with a bow at a good killing range of 25 yards (75 paces), how do you compensate for human? You saw the arrow hit the animal, but was it vital? Was it hit immediately in the heart or lung cavity or was it stuck through the liver and the intestines? If the latter is the case, you have a chase on your hands, one which you will lose far more often than you win.

An arrow has next to no knockdown power . . . it acts as a cutting agent. What it does is sever a major blood vessel and wait for hemorrhage to take effect. So does a bullet to a c e degree, but a bullet also packs a huge wallop at impact, one incapable of stunning the animal into immobility. When you depend on blood loss rather than knockdown, you must take some new factors into consideration immediately.

First, you should know your animal and your region and be able to handle both with equal facility. You should be able to track and do it well. You should have the extreme patience to dedicate yourself to the pursuit of a wounded animal above all else. Unfortunately, not many bow (or rifle) hunters have this dedication. They will try, but briefly at best.

Secondly, like a rifle in the hands of a poor and inexperienced hunter, a bow is a cripp ler . . . one without a peer in the gun arms line. A good bowman is a real artist and an excellent shot with one. He can place his arrow with deadly efficiency into a killing area with each and every time he pulls it. The good ones feel that they never can get too close, they never can be sure. These men kill what they shoot at.

I feel that the shooting of true big game, this aside from the whitetail deer, should be outlawed to the bowman. I feel that the ego satisfaction of taking a great bear or a head of dangerous game in Africa should be forbidden. Any time a man must depend on the backing of another larger weapon to kill his game, he fails, he is underpowered from the start. While it is fully possible to kill a moose with a 22 rifle, it is scarcely recommended.

Recently, on national television, I watched Fred Bear, the master archer of them all, kill a huge grizzly bear. He did it with one shot and a tremendous amount of professional dispatch. I doubt if Charley Weekend-Bowman could have accomplished the same end. Fred Bear is a man unto himself, a man whose deadly precision with his weapon has made him famous. His fame is well-deserved, but this same fame has led others far less talented to follow in his footsteps. They just cannot fill his shoes!

Beliveau Out For Week

MONTREAL (CP)—Jean Beliveau, t owering centre with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, is expected to remain in hospital for about a week as a result of an eye injury he suffered Saturday night.

Hospital authorities said Sunday that although the injury is not serious, it is not considered advisable to release Beliveau immediately.

Beliveau suffered a contusion on the right eye early in the first period of Saturday night's game against Chicago Black Hawks when he was accidentally hit with the end of a stick.

Beliveau suffered a contusion on the right eye, deep in Chicago territory. He was taken to hospital with a patch over his right eye.

Bassett, Berger Pull Triggers

Davey: Draws Brass Fire!

TORONTO (CP)—John Bassett, chairman of Toronto Argonauts board of directors, plans action on what he feels were premature statements by Senator Keith Davey, commissioner-elect of the Canadian Football League.

"Be prepared for a press conference," Bassett said Saturday night.

"We've got to straighten that young man out on a few things." Davey assumes the commissioner's post Jan. 1.

His opinions on how he plans to improve Canadian football, including g a t e equalization, more offence and better CBC television coverage, were expressed Saturday in the Globe magazine, a Globe and Mail supplement.

"I think it was a slap at retiring commissioner Sydney Hatter," Bassett said.

"If he could not be did on Jan. 2, it might have been okay. But he doesn't take office until New Year's Day, so he ought to keep quiet until then."

OTTAWA (CP)—Sam Berger, president of the Ottawa Rough Rider Football Club, Sunday criticized Senator Keith Davey, commissioner-elect of the Canadian Football League, for what he c a l l e d "premature statements" about the state of Canadian professional football.

In an interview with the sports editor of The Journal, Mr. Berger said, "I would have to say that generally speaking it wouldn't consider it the better part id wisdom to criticize your employer's record before starting the job."

Mr. Berger said he had not been informed of any CFL meeting as a result of Senator Davey's remarks and the subsequent criticism by Toronto Argonauts board chairman John Bassett, but admitted he would not be surprised if one was called.

Marmora

MARMORA — Visitors with Mrs. Marie O'Neill on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Harold O'Neill and family of Oshawa, also Mr. and Mrs. Francis O'Neill and family of Trenton.

Mr. Alex Foster of Hamilton visited Mr. and Mrs. William Meehan Jr. and Mrs. Foster and son in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough at the weekend.

W.I. TEA

A successful bazaar and afternoon tea was held in the Memorial Hall on Saturday by Marmora Branch Women's Institute. Mrs. G. Empey and Mrs. C. Neal sold tickets on a large Christmas Cake made by the president.

The handicraft table was looked after by Mrs. Gordon and Mrs. Dan Belanger. In the table and candy table were Mrs. Percy Carmen, Mrs. Ralph Neal and Mrs. L. Gordon.

Attending the tea tables were Mrs. F. Grant, Mrs. F. Sweet, Mrs. W. Tinsdill and Mrs. J. Murphy. Mrs. H. P. Naylor and Mrs. Ethel Nobes made tea and arranged the tables.

The hall was decorated with streamers of holly and poinsettias and highlighted with a Nativity scene.

18 Killed In Colombia Plane Crash

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—At "people started to scream and call for their children," a Colombian airliner crashed short of the runway while landing at Bogota in heavy fog Sunday, killing 18 persons and injuring 10.

Aerocondor Air Lines said the crash took the lives of nine Americans from Florida, five Colombians living in the United States and four other Colombians.

The airline said in Miami, Fla., where the flight began, that the Super-Constellation carried 54 passengers and six crew members.

One of the survivors, Kay Tuttle, 23, of Crestline, Ohio, said passengers were told as they neared Eldorado Airport that the plane would fand despite thickening fog.

SWAYED WILDLY

She said the plane struck what she believed was dirt and swayed wildly from side to side.

"The people started to scream and call for their children and the plane went into total darkness," Miss Tuttle said. The aircraft "seemed to sway two and more people were able to escape. I jumped out through an emergency exit."

She broke a leg.

"If the plane had caught fire all would have been killed," she added.

Thirteen Die As Ship Sinks

UMEA, Sweden (AP) — The 13 crew members of the Greek freighter Sinergasia died after the 910-ton vessel ran aground off this north Swedish port and broke up in an icy storm, the Coast Guard said today.

Rescuers reported finding one body aboard the wreckage and four others near it. They said there was no hope of finding more.

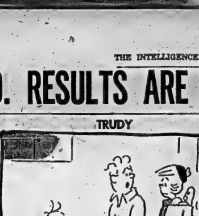
After having engine trouble Saturday en route from Kiel, West Germany, the Sinergasia anchored to ride out gale winds and pounding seas. Its tugboats were frozen in their davits and the crew refused to jump into the water and climb onto a rubber raft towed by a rescue vessel.

49 Fatalities Across Canada Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

All but 11 of 49 accidental deaths across Canada during the weekend came from traffic mishaps.

The others, in a Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local time, included six drownings and five in miscellaneous accidents. In Ontario, 17 persons died in traffic crashes, one man was killed in a fall from his apartment balcony and another was killed in a hunting accident.



Four children at Thunder and a man at Windsor, Ont., died in house fires.

Quebec had nine persons killed in traffic accidents and three who died of suffocation when a gas leak developed in their Quebec City rooming house.

Four died in road accidents in British Columbia, three in Nova Scotia, two in New Brunswick and one in each of Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island. One person also died in a fire in Nova Scotia.

Manitoba and Newfoundland reported no accidental deaths.

'Open House' Held at Public School

DESERONTO — Pupils and teachers had joined to make the classrooms as attractive as possible for Open house in the Public School last Tuesday evening. Each room was decorated with examples of the work of that form, with craft work and art attracting much attention. Much of it was in the Christmas theme.

A form mother outside each classroom door took the parents' names and admitted them one by one to interview the teacher. The attendance was gratifying, better than half the parents showing sufficient interest to learn more about the progress and problems of their children.

The entrance doorway had been decorated to resemble stained glass windows, the work of the grade eight boys and girls. A lighted tree in the main hall created a festive mood.

After the interview, parents were served coffee, fruit bread and cookies by the senior girls.

Principal of the school is Rodney Trask.

TEEN-TOWNE DANCE

Teen-Towne held its semi-formal Christmas dance in the Lion Hall Friday evening with Paul and the Tarantulas providing the music. Other attractions in the town cut down the dance attendance at these semi-formal dances. Chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Sergeant and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Reid. Mrs. Sergeant was recently elected to the school board. Mr. Reid, last year's vice-chairman, was re-elected.

Accord Accepted

OTTAWA (CP)—The threat of a nation-wide shutdown of airports ended late Saturday with air traffic controllers voting better than two to one to accept a government pay offer.

Negotiations for some 800 federal civil servants who man airport control towers across Canada agreed to the government's wage offer Friday afternoon. But the vote was needed to make the proposed settlement stick.

WATER REACHES MILES

The "Street of Palms" oasis of the Sahara desert stretches for 500 miles in a thin ribbon of grass and trees.

Legion Holds Yule Party For Children

DESERONTO — The Legion Hall rang with the laughter of children under 10 years of age, Sunday afternoon as the members of branch 290, the Royal Canadian Legion, treated the little ones to a Christmas party, complete with Santa Claus.

Films were shown first, with the projector operated by Sonny Berry. Next came refreshments, provided and served by the Ladies' Auxiliary, particularly the social committee, consisting of Mrs. Grace Martin, Mrs. Dennis Jackson, Mrs. Joseph Berry, Mrs. Robert Punchard, and Mrs. Carl Maracle.

Santa Claus handed out a Christmas treat and a gift to each child. Assisting him, among others, were Victor Brant and Johnny Punchard.

Only approximately 60 of the 100 children expected were there. Sickness cut down on the attendance; also the fact that the firemen were holding their children's party at the same hour, and the children had to choose between the two.

United Church SS Presents Fine Concert

DESERONTO — Christmas parties, concerts and Christmas parties held for children by various organizations are the order of the day in Deseronto.

The United Church Sunday School concert last Friday evening was successful, with a good attendance and a good program.

The children received treats for themselves and for their families.

The program followed the usual pattern, with carol singing by everyone interspersed with numbers by the pupils. There was a playlet of Christmas exercises, but the little folk had choruses and small playlets. The senior choir rendered the Hymn of the Huron Christmas Carol.

Kay Jackson, Gregory Kolb, and Patty Stuart gave reading, and Margaret Kola played a piano solo.

A more pretentious play, "They Came With Haste", in four acts reflected credit on the senior boys and girls and on their teachers, Mrs. Ralph Aylesworth and Mrs. George Stuart.

Additional teachers are Caroline Wood, Jennifer Gardiner, Mrs. Thomas Jackson, Margaret Kels, Mrs. Wilfred Lawlor, Mrs. Louis Hird and Thomas Ward.

Sunday School superintendent is Donald Fingland, and Rev. Samuel Findley, the minister, opened and closed the program.

A.N.A.F. Weekly News

With the wild cries of excited children, and the harried looks of frustrated parents, members and their families made their way to the Memorial Hall on Front street. There the children were greeted by jolly old Santa himself, who, with his willing helpers, distributed goodies to them. After the showing of several cartoons, he then distributed gifts to the still excited tykes and sent them on their way with happy, smiling faces, with looks of relief on the parents' faces that it was another year before it would happen again. The president wishes to thank the members for adhering quite closely to the schedule that had been set up.

At this time, on behalf of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit, the president and executive wish to extend sincere wishes to all members and their dependents for a very Merry Christmas and a happy, healthy and successful New Year. May there be many more.

One of the better official units to be seen in a long time, covering the Sicilian invasion, Desert Victory, Battle of Britain, D-Day, and that held in the Memorial Hall last Tuesday but owing to so many other activities going on, there were not too many to see it. However, those who did were so enthused that more arrangements are being made to show it here again in the near future when more of the members will be able to get down and see it.

The sick chairman reports that there has been no increase in the sick list and that all those who are will be specially looked after as well as the old folks at home at Hastings Manor, for Christmas.

A number of the members who attended with the famous Hasty-Pees were reminiscing and recalling some of the high points of the Saturday, this day being the 27th anniversary of the day the boys marched up the main street of Picton to entrain for destination unknown. The smuggling of Big Chief and other items, both good and happy. Almost three decades ago, it hardly seems possible until the photographs are produced and it is realized that a few hurried steps gets one out of breath and it is too true.

The publicity chairman wishes to thank all those who have assisted in any way, to make this year possible and in other ways. Here is hoping that we have a wonderful holiday season and "'Ang may ye've lum reek."

Four Children Perish in Fire

TIMMINS (CP)—Four young children died Saturday night in a fire which levelled their home.

Dead are Brenda Wescotte, 6, Joan, 5, and twins Brian and Gary, 2½. Their 12 - year - old brother Ronald and two other Wescotte girls, Debbie and Elizabeth, escaped unharmed.

Three firemen were injured while fighting the fire. Two were sent to hospital suffering from smoke inhalation and another was swept from a ladder by a trapped fireman. All were reported in good condition Sunday.

The Ontario fire marshal's office is investigating.

Movie Column

Films Sunny, Optimistic and Wholesome

Walter Elias Disney was a special man, even in Hollywood, headquarters for off types. His career was unique. Disney, the man, differed materially from his public image. AP columnist Bob Thomas, author of two books about Disney and his methods, writes about the famed movie innovator in five articles beginning today.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What kind of man was Walt Disney?

Everyone knows the public image. He was folksy, down-to-earth, the perfect picture of anyone's favorite uncle.

The Disney image was projected in the films he made during a 40-year period. Almost invariably they were sunny, optimistic and wholesome — completely suitable for family audiences.

Rarely did he swerve from that formula. Parents gasped when a modern couple slipped marrieis in a Disney film, The Parent Trap.

His venture into sexy scenes began and ended with a sequence in Bon Voyage when a Parisian prostitute engaged Fred MacMurray in a bit of banter in front of his teen-age son.

"That was a disaster," Walt said later. "You should have seen the mail I got over it. I'll never do that again."

HAD RARE TALENT

His public appearances and his movies tended to create a somewhat antiseptic image of Walt Disney. Behind the image was a human being, a man of rare talent but possessed with normal feelings and frailties.

He was no prude. His boyhood on a Missouri farm provided him with a realistic attitude toward sex. But he felt that it had no place on the screen.

"Sex is a very private matter for most people," he reasoned. "They feel uneasy and uncomfortable when they see it portrayed in public."

He was a taskmaster. He expected of his employees the same loyalty and zeal that he applied to the studio. When they failed him, he fired them.

Yet Disney was quick to reward merit and achievement. Many of his employees continued on staff for decades.

Walt rarely relaxed. Occasionally he had a drink with key personnel after the day's work was finished. More often he would pack scripts and reports into his briefcase and head for home, where he spent the evening reading or watching films.

Like many great men, Walt Disney was a loner. He knew each day the loneliness of making command decisions that might require the outlay of millions of dollars and perhaps place his whole enterprise in jeopardy.

His personal life was solitary. He had a few close friends, mostly businessmen of a conservative nature. He and his wife, Lillian, seldom appeared at Hollywood parties. On rare occasions he attended a banquet, often to receive an award. But such gatherings made him uncomfortable, and he was always happy to leave.

WAS IT A GHOST?

GERALDTON, Ont. (CP)—A completely silver-colored moose was seen by four hunters during the winter season near here. All shot at it and missed. An Indian trapper also found two large h o l e moose carcasses locked together by their horns. Both had died of broken necks.

Herman Not Always A Hermit

LONDON (AP)—Peter Noone, one of Britain's teen-age millionaires, goes to New York this week confident he'll harvest another crop of dollars during a three-week tour.

Noone is better known on both sides of the Atlantic as Herman of Herman's Hermits, a top British pop group.

At 19 he is homely without being bumptious.

What does it feel like to be a millionaire?

"Well, I'm happy about it all," he says. "I haven't made many enemies except among people who don't really bother me.

"I want to make some progress in the entertainment business. I don't want my present image as a teen-age pop star forever. It has been my image for two years, . . .

"I'll tell you what I'd r love to do although I guess will never happen: I'd like to appear in a film with Richard Burton and Rex Harrison. All right, laugh. . . ."

Herman has appeared in films and on television as an actor, and when he gets back to Britain he will prepare for a film he is to make in London with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Pretty Grim Tale

Christmas Story Turns Out Well

NEW YORK (AP)—With delicate animation of characters and a dramatic narration by Boris Karloff, The Grinch Who Stole Christmas lost nothing and even gained in its transition from the printed page to television.

The marvellous, grotesquely imaginative drawings by Dr. Seuss came to life in the half-hour Christmas fable on CBS Sunday night. It was among those rare children's shows that are interesting to adults.

It was a merry grim tale. That "nasty fellow who slithered and skunk" hated Christmas and went into all the happy homes of Whoville on Christmas Eve. Disguised as Santa Claus, he stole all evidence of the holiday gifts, feasts and even trees and decorations. The trouble with the Grinch, it was explained, was that his heart was three sizes too small.

But the Whoville folks, unsadened by the loss of the presents, welcome Christmas, anyway. The sour old Grinch suddenly realized—and Dr. Seuss slipped in his message—that "maybe Christmas doesn't come from a store, maybe Christmas means a little bit more."

There will be another of what CBS calls family fun shows on the network early tonight. The Prince Street Players will present their adaptation of Jack and the Beanstalk.

The children's tale, set to music, has been rewritten to eliminate some of its more brutal aspects.

Budget Ups Sales Tax, Levy on Higher Incomes

Sharp Carries Budget Into House

OTTAWA (CP) — A higher sales tax on most goods and an extra levy against incomes of 2,300,000 Canadians will pay the country's new pensions bill.

So went the short message of the mini-budget Monday night, a pre-Christmas package designed by Finance Minister Sharp to keep the economy in "delicate balance."

Opposition critics reacted inside the Commons and out with charges that the supplementary budget was ill-conceived, unnecessary and an exercise in nonsense."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said it was obvious from press reports that a "leak" of budget contents had occurred. Mr. Sharp denied this categorically.

The budget provides for an increase to 12 per cent from 11 per cent in the federal sales tax, adding revenue of $135,000,000.

It also increases income taxes by raising to $240 a year the present $120-a-year maximum taxpayers pay in the current four-per-cent old age security tax on incomes. This will yield $135,000,000.

Mr. Sharp said these steps, both effective Jan. 1, 1967, are the "least undesirable" way to bring in $270,000,000.

They will pay the cost of the new guaranteed income plan which will provide up to $30 a month to old age pensioners who need it to supplement the $75 a month now paid at age 69.

The starting age for the basic pension will be lowered to 68 Jan. 1 but the extra cost will be met from the current surplus in the old age pension fund.

Cost of the supplementary program will be $280,000,000 and the extra $10,000,000 provides what Mr. Sharp described as a slim margin.

The charges, together with the government's experience of lower returns from corporation taxes and higher spending due to pay and price increases, prompted a 1966-67 budget deficit of $320,000,000.

In his main budget last March Mr. Sharp had predicted a deficit of $150,000,000.

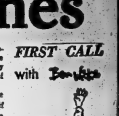
No one will pay more than $120 extra into the old age security fund at income-tax time under the changes. The significant point, however, is that the formula strikes at the middle-income level, and the junior executive will be hit just as hard as the board chairman.

The increase affects all persons with taxable incomes of $2,000 or more, after all deductions and allowances now permitted by law.

There will be no tax increase for single persons with incomes of $4,100 or less, married persons earning $5,100 or less or a married man with one child earning $5,600 or less.

Married taxpayers with two dependent children qualified for family allowances will be taxed on everything earned over $5,700. Married taxpayers with four children qualifying for family allowances start paying beyond $6,300.

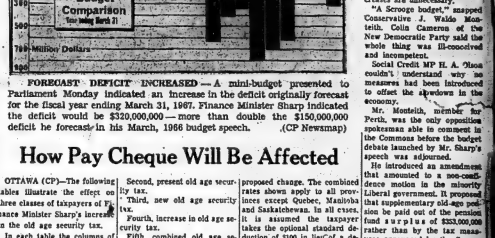
The increase in sales tax doesn't affect foods, services or fuel, which are exempt. And the extra one percentage point won't be levied on building materials or production machinery.



The government is going through with an earlier promise that the tax on production machinery will drop from 11 per cent to six per cent next April and disappear in April, 1968.

speech in the Commons, Mr. Sharp said he wanted neither to stimulate or restrain the economy now that it seemed to have escaped the strong inflationary pressures of the first months of 1966.

He would be ready to ease restraints or impose more if the situation demanded a change of course in 1967, but he found predictions about next year hard to make just now.



Mr. Sharp said he foresaw a reform of the sales tax over the next few years. The effect of the present increase would be to increase the cost of living by much less than one per cent and in some cases the increase might be absorbed by manufacturers.

Budget: 'Mean' or Painless?

FORECAST DEFICIT INCREASED — A mini-budget presented to Parliament Monday indicated an increase in the deficit originally forecast for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1967. Finance Minister Sharp indicated the deficit would be $320,000,000 — more than double the $150,000,000 deficit he forecast in his March, 1966 budget speech. (CP Newsmap)

Hospital Took No Action in '62 Aldermen State

Members of Belleville city council are satisfied with the report received regarding the investigation of administration affairs at Belleville General Hospital but there is a feeling that the entire trouble could have been avoided.

Last week members of city council and county councillors were given a summary of the administration report at a dinner meeting at the hospital and a synopsis was later published in the press.

One councillor said the report showed some board members were much too involved in hospital details and claimed that council had a right to ask who on the board was interfering with hospital personnel.

Alderman Jack Allin said he was satisfied that council had received what was asked regarding the report, but two other aldermen said that if the board had taken action on recommendations received four years ago it would not be in the mess it is in today.

Both Alderman Enos David and Donald Joss commented on a report given to council late in 1962 by then chairman George Wishart.

In his report to council Alderman Wishart quoted excerpts from an administrative audit report from the Ontario Hospital Association which said the board should be organized and operated as the policy - making body for the hospital with this prime function to be clearly spelled out.

In contrast to this ideal, this report said, it was believed that at Belleville hospital the board had been much too involved in the details of internal hospital operation and that as a consequence its progress as a policy-making body had suffered.

The 1962 report said there should be only one captain on the ship. The board should appoint one individual as it's chief executive officer and hold him responsible and accountable to the board for the operation of the hospital in accordance with established policy.

"If the board had established the necessary policies there should be no need to be involved in the details of internal operations and the board should not condone any such involvement by individuals or committees" the 1962 report said.

As a first step on strengthening the board the association had forwarded a set of by-laws with the suggestion that they be carefully considered and the principles implemented to replace present board by-laws.

Mr. Wishart said the suggested by-laws had been gone over clause by clause at an executive meeting of the board but were not adopted by the board. Only two board members, Mr. Wishart and Donald A. H. MacDonald, the superintendent at Northern Electric had supported the recommendation for the by-law changes.

Railway Costs Boosted

MONTREAL (CP)—The proposed contract agreements between Canada's railways and their employees will add about $165,000,000 to the annual labor cost of the two major railways when the contract is fully implemented, it was learned Monday.

The money will have to be obtained through higher productivity — more transportation at lower costs—and expanded business by the firms, railway sources said.

Tentative contract agreements, still to be ratified by the union memberships, have been worked out for about 100,000 railway workers through the mediation efforts of Montreal lawyer Carl Goldenberg, appointed by the federal government following a one-day strike last August by railway workers.

A tentative settlement has yet to be worked out with the 28,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers. However, Labor Minister Nicholson said in Ottawa Monday he has been advised by Mr. Goldenberg that a wage settlement is likely without the need for arbitration.

Business Approves

TORONTO (CP) — If higher taxes had to come, Finance Minister Sharp picked about as painless a way to do it as could be expected.

That was the immediate reaction Monday night of many businessmen to Mr. Sharp's announcement that the maximum old age pension tax will be doubled and the federal sales tax increased to 12 per cent from 11.

The finance minister exempted building materials and production machinery, a move that won him strong praise.

Henri Joly of Quebec City, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said Ontario's Christmas present to deserving pensioners" proves there is a price tag attached to every social welfare measure.

Ronald Robertson, director of the Canadian Tax Foundation, said Mr. Sharp seemed to be aiming at not affecting the economy's general balance.

Grant Duff, president of the Ontario division of the Urban Development Institute, said he thought Mr. Sharp's approach was reasonable, adding:

"Obviously, I'm pleased the extra sales tax will not apply to building materials."

E. Peterfreund, economics professor at the University of Toronto, said the mini-budget encourages neither expansion nor slowing down in the economy.

How Pay Cheque Will Be Affected

OTTAWA (CP)—The following tables illustrate the effect on three classes of taxpayers of Finance Minister Sharp's increase in the old age security tax.

Fourth, increase in old age security tax.

Fifth, combined old age security, federal and provincial income tax for 1967 after the proposed change. The combined rates shown apply to all provinces except Quebec, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. In all cases, it is assumed the taxpayer takes the optimal standard deduction of $100 in lieu of a deduction for charitable donations and unusual medical expenses.

Second, present old age security tax.

Third, new old age security tax.

'Scrooge' Cries PC

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition party critics tore into Finance Minister Sharp's mini - budget Monday night, contending that its $280,000,000 worth of tax increases are unnecessary.

"A Scrooge budget," snapped Conservative J. Wilde Monteith. Colin Cameron of the New Democratic Party said the whole thing was ill-conceived and incompetent.

Social Credit MP H. A. Olson couldn't understand why no measures had been introduced to offset the slowdown in the economy.

Mr. Monteith, member for Perth, was the only opposition spokesman able to comment in the Commons before the budget debate launched by Mr. Sharp's speech was adjourned.

He introduced an amendment that amounted to a non-confidence motion in the minority Liberal government. It proposed that supplementary old-age pension be paid out of the pension fund a surplus of $353,000,000 rather than by the tax measures announced by the finance minister.

This amendment won't be voted on until after the Christmas recess.

"They're following the meanest pension with a mean tax," Mr. Monteith said, referring to the fact the plan raising the maximum pension tax on individuals to $240 a year from $120.

He added that the increase in the federal sales tax, to 12-per cent from 11, would hit every Canadian in the pocketbook, including the old age pensioners the government was supposed to be helping.

Mr. Cameron, speaking to reporters outside the Commons, said the ceiling on the four-per-cent pension tax should have been scrapped entirely. It would have increased payments from the rich, who could afford it.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said the budget showed only that the radical right-wing has taken control of the government and the average Canadian is now a forgotten man.

Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West) said the Budget was a "kick-the-rich" proposal. It would have been better to raise the taxes on tobacco and liquor rather than add to the sales tax.

Ted Kennedy Hopes Book Will Appear

NEW YORK (AP)—Senator Edward M. Kennedy says he hopes for a compromise in the dispute over publication of the book about the assassination of his brother, the late president John F. Kennedy.

"I hope that some day the book will be published," the Massachusetts Democrat said Monday night in a Boston television interview.

Asked by the interviewer whether, despite the legal fight, there was a possibility of compromise, Kennedy replied: "I would hope so."

A spokesman for Look magazine, one of the two publishers named last Friday in a suit by Mrs. John F. Kennedy to block publication of the book, said today "informal communications" between the two opposing sides are still continuing in efforts to settle the case out of court. A hearing on Mrs. Kennedy's suit has been set for Dec. 27.

Cass Canfield, chairman of the executive committee of Harper and Row, the other publisher named in Mrs. Kennedy's suit, issued a statement defending his firm's decision to publish the book, The Death of a President, by William Manchester. Canfield said:

"In the interest of historical accuracy and of the people's right to know the true facts of the awesome tragedy, the right to know which led the Kennedy family to request Mr. Manchester to write his book and us to publish it, we join with him in defending the book's right to live."

U.S. Expected To Construct Nike Defence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indications are mounting that the United States will answer Soviet deployment of an anti-ballistic missile system by erecting a "thin" Nike X defence carrying an over-all price tag of $5,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000.

The decision on whether to move ahead in this new phase of strategic weaponry is being hammered out in budget discussions now under way in the defence department.

Meanwhile, high-ranking officials in other areas reported that the decision will come in January or February, and may hinge on whether the United States can persuade Russia to slow down the extension of the arms race into the anti-ballistic missile field.

Committee Set Up

Council Agrees to Study Welfare Situation

A special committee of Aldermen Donald Williams, Douglas Boyle and Enos David was named yesterday by Mayor J. R. Ellis to investigate recent complaints regarding the operation of the city welfare department.

Mayor Ellis said the committee was to take all liberties to "very thoroughly" investigate complaints and were to interview department officials, welfare recipients and public welfare agencies in the city.

The mayor said he had already received a report from the welfare department and was personally satisfied with the department's operations.

He said, however, that it was necessary to appoint the committee to "refute" some of the allegations, which had been appearing in the press.

Alderman David took exception ot the mayor's use of the term "refute", saying that it sounded as though the committee was expected to find in favor of the welfare department.

The alderman went on to say that the welfare department by virtue of its "refute" name is confused. Some councillors feel the department is doing a good job while others take a different view.

As far as he was concerned, Alderman David said he had an open mind on the matter. He admitted there may be welfare recipients who feel the department was doing a good job.

At least one welfare recipient last night came to the support of the welfare department.

He was Robert Walker, now living in Canaanoque, who said he had no complaints with the way he and his family had been cared by the city welfare department.

He said he had come from Montreal to Belleville in November and had been working at a local plant when he had an accident.

The welfare department had taken care of his family and had even provided money for transportation to out of town centres to allow him to look for work.

Mr. Walker said he had started working in Canaanoque yesterday.

"As far as I am concerned the welfare department gave me a square deal," he said.

Brotherhood Week
28 City Churches to Take Part

A banquet seating 1,000 will be the centrepiece of Centennial Year Brotherhood Week celebrations in Belleville.

The banquet is spaced midway between the program of events February 19 - 25 announced today by general organization chairman T. E. Schwab.

It will be held at the Belleville armories, and the guest speaker will be Rev. Richard Jones, executive secretary of the Canadian Conference of Christians and Jews.

In all, 28 city religious congregations are actively participating, and they will each hold an open-house as an integral part of the week-long observances.

Plans now call for various church buildings to be open to the public — seven each night on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

Programs may include 30-minute talks by resident clergy on the tenets of their denominations and tours of church buildings.

NO RELIGIOUS SERVICES

"In order not to conflict with the religious principles of any visitor, under no circumstances will any form of religious service be conducted during these visits," says an announcement from the Brotherhood organization committee.

The week's events will end with a concert at Centennial High School, featuring the massed choirs of Belleville churches, the Salvation Army Band and the Holy Blossom choir from Toronto.

TED SCHWAB

Al Thompson will be presented to Belleville General Hospital.

Meantime the committee also is sponsoring essay and poster contests based on the brotherhood theme.

Entry forms for the poster contest — for elementary, high school students and adults — will be available at both city public library branches.

Object of the contest is to disseminate the brotherhood idea as basically as possible throughout the community.

Helping Santa
Two Inches of Snow Predicted

If you've been dreaming of a white Christmas, it looks as if your dreams are going to come true.

Weather forecasters at the Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, said today Belleville would have a couple inches of snow before Christmas Eve.

Snow is expected to fall all day to day, tapering off to snow flurries this evening and tomorrow. From one to two inches of the white stuff is expected.

Another snowfall is expected near the end of the week and temperatures will remain one to two degrees below normal through until Christmas. The temperature should range from highs of 28 to lows of 15 for the balance of the week.

Other areas along the lakeshore, such is Cobourg and Picton, will feel the storm more than Belleville, the weatherman explained they get the full sweep of the lake and beside snow falling they get drifting.

Santa Claus couldn't be reached for comment at the North Pole this morning but Mrs. Claus said Santa would be happy to hear we would have a white Christmas. She said it made it much easier for the reindeer to pull the sleigh when there was snow.

Post Office Volume Down 7,000 Pieces

TRENTON — Although the staff at the Trenton post office has been handling from 10,500 to 37,500 pieces of mail daily since Dec. 1, volume is down this year from last by around 7,000 pieces. In 1965, 330,396 pieces were handled; from Dec. 1 to Dec. 18 this year, 231,686 pieces had been processed.

Employee Placed on Probation

TRENTON, Ont. (CP)—A Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. employee, dismissed for a walkout of 100 workers at the company's plant here last Thursday, has been placed on probation for two weeks.

Robert Davenport, a member of Local 529 of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, was given seven days notice last Monday.

Production workers at the plant walked off the job and were immediately placed under suspension. The suspension has been lifted pending further investigation by the company and the men were back on the job Monday.

Company and union officials met in Toronto Friday and the union received the company's decision today.

Davenport was given a choice between transferring to a temporary job for three weeks after which he would be laid off subject to a return to "a good honest effort" on his present job for two weeks after which a transfer would be considered.

Heavy Agenda for Last Council Meeting for Year

Belleville city council would try it's business for the year Monday afternoon at what turned out to be one of the longest sessions during 1966.

During the meeting council approved of the amalgamation of the Hastings and Belleville public health unit with that of Prince Edward county.

There was little discussion on the resolution. Alderman Enos David said he felt the amalgamation would be an advantage to the city.

Council heard the report of a special committee respecting the operation of the Belleville Transit Commission.

The committee, headed by Alderman Donald Joss was appointed to investigate and report on matters which might lead to a reduction of the business annual deficit of approximately $80,000.

MOTIONS APPROVED

Among the recommendations made by the committee was that the transit commission apply for a P.C.V. licence which would permit charter bus operation outside the city limits.

Another recommendation was that the transit commission not undertake unprofitable services without expressed direction by council.

Both the above recommendations were approved by council as was a third calling for the removal of the proposed purchase of a new bus from the 1967 capital works budget.

To a question from Alderman J. R. Scott, the committee chairman replied that consideration had been given to a possible bus fare increase but this had been decided against. It was felt that if other recommendations were approved a rate increase may not be necessary.

Council tabled recommendations calling for extending the night operation for buses and for the question of bus operation being placed to the people for decision at the next election.

AGAINST DISCONTINUANCE

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said that in his opinion it would be a retrograde step for the bus service to be abandoned despite it's annual $50,000 deficit.

He said that no publically-own bus system operated at a profit.

The mayor and city clerk were authorized to sign the agreement with Hastings county under which the city agrees to assume $120,000 of the cost of the new addition at Hastings Manor.

Several councillors felt the city should have representation on the county home for the aged but Mayor Ellis said this was not possible under provincial regulations.

APPROVE PERMIT

Council approved a fill permit for Quinte Sand and Gravel allowing them to place fill in the Moira River and also voted to discontinue the additional garbage collection authorized some weeks ago for the downtown area.

Council also agreed that the removal of dead elm trees from privately owned lands in the city should be undertaken as a municipal program.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell told council that 75 per cent of the trees concerned were trees (could be recovered under the winter works program).

Look Mom! Snow!

Dennis Bock, 2, is one of thousands of Belleville youngsters happy to see snow falling on the city today. Snow was expected to fall all day, tapering off to snow flurries tonight and tomorrow.

Park Sign Cut Down

What is the correct size for a sign directing people to a city park?

That is the question which city council discussed for five minutes yesterday before it was agreed that it should be no larger than a traffic sign.

But the allowable dimensions still were spelled out.

The discussion arose as result of a request from the city parks superintendent for erection of a directional sign leading to Corby Park on William Street.

The proposed size for the sign was 42 by 24 inches, but several aldermen said this was too big with Alderman Scott claiming it should be no larger than a "stop" sign.

Salvation Army Works Year Round

Although the tempo of the Salvation Army's welfare aid to needy families increases at Christmas time, the work goes on all year round, Lt.-Col. Wilfred Hawkes reminded Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

Thanking members for their luncheon contribution of $153 toward the Army's work, Col Hawkes said their continuing support "makes it possible to translate gifts of money into blessings and to fulfill the true meaning of this Christmas season".

He said many people thought of the Salvation Army as purely a social or welfare agency. More accurate was the definition of is as "a religious body with a keen social conscience".

Col. Hawkes quoted Reader's Digest statistics showing that Canadians will spend $875 million on Christmas presents.

"The typical family will buy 27 presents at an average cost of $6.50 each. They will send 623 million cards at a cost of $11 million in postage and make 480,000 long-distance telephone calls.

"We are all caught up in this Christmas period — but it leaves you feeling rather cold if all you get from it is the tinkle of cash registers.

"We should pause in the hurly le and bustle for Christmas has its own connotation . . ."

Col. Hawkes quoted John 3, 16, "For God so loved the world that He gave his only begotten son . . .

"This is the season of giving" he said.

ATE OFF BOXES

Col. Hawkes described how the Salvation Army puts public contributions to work in easing the lot of needy families.

He told of a Christmas dinner given 100 children, some of whom did not know how to use a knife or fork because they had been accustomed to eating buns and the like.

Another family of eight of ten children lived in a shanty home with a mud floor and ate off boxes because there were no tables or chairs.

Yet another involved a cancer - sufferer with six children who had been deserted by the father.

Back Party Leaders Says PC Chairman

The chairman of the Ontario Women's Progressive Conservative Association last night night called for full-fledged support of Canadian political leaders by their respective party members "as long as they are the leaders".

Prior to addressing the local P.C. Women's Association at the Kiwanis Centre last night, Mrs. Alene Holt of Peterborough referred to the current leadership turmoil in the Conservative party.

"Party leaders must be backed and have the co-operation of all party members. I would certainly support Mr. Diefenbaker. He is one of the truly excellent men in our party and he's done a lot for Canada".

Decrying the "spectacle" of disloyalty at the recent Conservative convention in Ottawa, Mrs. Holt remarked "Once you start scattering, you're only doing the party harm".

Get Involved in Centennial Chairman Tells PC Women

Canadians should remember that there is a dual purpose in celebrating the country's centennial.

This was the keynote of an address delivered last evening to the Belleville Women's Progressive Conservative Association by Mrs. Alene Holt, chairman of the woman's activity committee for Ontario Centennial Planning.

"Centennial year should call for the involvement of many Canadians and make them realize what the traditions of their country are, and what the future of it can be."

Mrs. Holt said an equally important motive behind centennial preparations is "to make the people aware of Canada's problems, especially the essential problem — that of finding a way in which all of Canada's citizens can live in brotherhood and friendship."

An alderman of the city of Peterborough and also chairman of the Women's Conservative Association of Ontario, Mrs. Holt made specific reference to the centennial project of Canadian Progressive Conservative Women.

The Macdonald-Cartier ferry in Ottawa will be a showplace of historical items and artifacts, she noted, and will serve parliamentarians, historians, students and indeed, the entire public.

She said that Ontario is the only province that has formed a centennial planning committee for women's activities.

At last night's meeting, Mrs. Dorothy Tugwell presented some $700 worth of dolls and toys to Fire Chief T. E. Foote for distribution to underprivileged children. Mrs. Tugwell served as chairman of the local Women's Conservative Association toy project for this year.

The Belleville Women's Progressive Conservative Association last night re-elected Mrs. Dorothy Howell as its president for the coming year.

Other officers elected were: vice-presidents Mrs. Joyce Randall, Mrs. Dorothy Dimmel and Mrs. Maxine Little; secretary, Mrs. Jean Ellis, and treasurer, Mrs. Nellie McBurney.

$2,447,900 Expenditure in Five Years

A 1967 capital works program calling for an expenditure of $2,447,900 was approved yesterday by Belleville city council at the final regular meeting of this year.

The works program for next year was included in a five-year plan which will now be presented to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval.

One of the main projects on next year's proposed capital works program is the construction of a new arena at the Belleville Fair Grounds.

Phase 1 of the project would include a standard ice surface of 85 by 190 feet, spectator seating of along two sides for 2,500 people, along with dressing rooms, showers, change rooms and accomodation for mechanical equipment.

TO BUILD AUDITORIUM

Phase 2 calls for an auditorium 80 by 90 feet to accommodate a basketball court, badminton courts or volleyball courts or for use as an auditorium seating about 1,000 persons. Phase 3 would add spectator seating at the two ends of the arena to accommodate another 1,500 persons.

Alderman Donald Williams, chairman of the Parks and Recreation Board, told council that one of the main reasons for the new arena proposal was that there wasn't enough ice time at the present arena.

He said a new heated centre was required, while a new building was also needed for the agricultural society.

Alderman Williams said that Belleville was the only city of it's size in Eastern Ontario without a community centre.

The first phase of the proposed arena construction is estimated to cost $440,000 which would be reduced to $300,000 by government grants and winter works assistance.

Alderman J. Russell Scott admitted that more recreational facilities were needed in the city, particularly for girls and women, but he wondered if a project of this size should be proceeded with without a vote of the people.

Mayor J. R. Ellis replied that the Ontario Municipal Board might require a vote on the project although he hoped this would not be necessary.

Other capital works projects for next year include construction of Sidney Street from Dundas to Wilmot Street and also a commencement on the proposed Dundas Street road project leading to Prince Edward county together with the overpass at the C.P railway near the Devil's Elbow.

Whether or not the Dundas Street project should go ahead next year was the topic of considerable discussion with Alderman Scott asking that it be delayed until it was determined what the new College Street Bridge would do for the city's traffic pattern.

The entire Dundas Street project is to be discussed early in the new year with consulting engineers Damas and Smith.

A total of $480,000 worth of local improvement projects were approved or the 1967 capital works budget, including $140,000 for sanitary sewers in the Foster Ward area. Also under local improvements would be construction of 3600 feet of new sanitary sewer mains in the north east section of the city.

The program will also call for construction of still another school in north west Belleville at a cost of $23,000 and expenditure of nearly $350,000 by the utilities commission for it's water and electric services.

$50,000 FOR LIBRARY

An amount of $20,000 is allotted for construction of a new branch library in north west Belleville.

The five-year capital works budget calls for expenditure of just over $2,000,000 for each year in 1963, 1969 and 1970 and for $1,962,100 in 1971.

Of all proposed work is carried out the debenture debt of the city would be $18,870,285. The current debenture debt of the city is $10,402,980 with $168,000 in works pending and another $2,295,206 in works approved but not yet debentured.

City Manager Reynolds estimates that the mill rate to meet annual debenture retirements will have increased to 8.89 mills by 1971 if all proposed work is carried out. The mill rate for the debt retirements in 1967 is estimated at 4.5 mills.

PROGRAM DESIRABLE CLAIM

However, Mr. Reynolds said that the five-year works program was desirable if the city was to grow and develop.

At the same time he felt the city was able to afford the five-year program.

Mr. Reynolds said the per capita tax rate in Belleville (now 108.76) could increase by 20 per cent and still be below that of Kingston, Peterborough, Chatham, or Oshawa.

Must Pass Examination To Ride Motorcycle

90 - day instruction permits for the operation of motorcycles in Ontario will be established early in 1967, Transport Minister Irwin Haskett announced today.

The change is among a set of new regulations governing the examination and licensing of motorcycle riders in the province.

Starting January 1, anyone applying for a licence to ride a motorcycle will be required to pass an examination in the provision.

He will be issued a driver's licence endorsed for the operation of motorcycles only.

After March 31, it will be an offence to ride a motorcycle in Ontario without a driver's licence bearing a motorcycle endorsement.

An applicant wishing to operate other motor vehicles in addition to motorcycles must pass a separate examination and will then receive a licence endorsed for both.

Persons who now operate motorcycles on drivers' licences will be able to convert their licences to include the motorcycle endorsement provided they can prove they are experienced drivers.

The new motorcycle drivers' examinations will include both written and practical tests. The written portions will include all questions on the regular driver's examination as well as questions regarding safe motorcycle operation.

After passing the written test, the applicant must be able to identify and illustrate the use of the controls on his vehicle. He must also demonstrate starting and stopping, brake and clutch control and balance.

Mr. Haskett said that Ontario is among the first jurisdictions in North America to introduce regulations specifically aimed at safe operation of motorcycles.

The need for them arose from the extraordinary recent growth in the use of motorcycles in the province and in the number of accidents in which they have been involved.

At the end of September this year, there are 36,822 motorcycles registered in the province, 50 per cent more than at the end of September, 1965. The 1965 increase was 133 per cent over the previous year.

Also, up to the end of September this year, motorcycles were involved in 3,221 accidents — a jump of more than 42 fatalities and 2,475 injuries.

In all of 1965 there were 2,200 motorcycle accidents, compared with 867 in 1964.

Many of the motorcycle riders involved in these accidents were in the 16 - 19 age group, and among these there were many who were learners operating on instruction permits.

Furor Over Book

The furor over William Manchester's book on the assassination of President Kennedy is having repercussions for both the late President's family and Presidential hopes.

Mrs. Jacqeline Kennedy is pictured as a young woman having second thoughts about the book which she commissioned, along with her brother-in-law, Senator Robert Kennedy.

Quite apart from the emotional strain of having to relive the tragedy, and the talking-point it is fast becoming, Mrs. Kennedy and the senator are believed to be concerned about reaction to the ill-concealed antipathy that arose between the Kennedy and Johnson parties after the assassination.

The book has been described as pro-Kennedy — but not "empathrassingly so." Mr. Johnson on the other hand, "will absolutely hate it," in the words of one who has read it. He is pictured as having pleaded with President Kennedy to go to Texas to help solve a local political problem that Mr. Johnson should have been able to settle.

Another spokesman in the publishing field describes Johnson after the assassination as "a guy who is in a state of shock and who is confused by the Kennedy hostility."

His anxiety to be sworn in quickly as the new President, another source of misunderstanding showing Johnson in a poor light, actually the manuscript says Johnson "was concerned over a possible "conspiracy (in the government presumably). He feared a Russian attack. He was rather unique. LBJ wanted to establish instantly that he was President. Bobby Kennedy interpreted this as 'Here is this man who has been wishing he had been president all along and here he is grabbing it.'"

Indeed, allowing for the fact Kennedy apparently was a reluctant participant in the Texas visit, emotions such as jealousy, bitterness and hatred in relations between the Kennedy and Johnson parties could have had free rein, not to mention the underlying sense of shock all the principals in this awesome tragedy must have felt.

Whatever the outcome of this unseemly politicking over the book, Mr. Johnson's tribute at the airport on arrival in Washington should be remembered at this time of sorrow and recrimination and misunderstanding in U.S. political circles.

His words are brief, and simple, but very brief: He said "We have suffered a loss that cannot be measured . . ." and went on to say that as the new President he would do his best and asked Americans for their support.

A Demanding Job

The job of Air Controller is one of the most exacting in the whole field of aviation.

At an airport like O'Hare, in Chicago, where planes are landing and taking off every few minutes individual controllers are rotated every half-hour or so.

And yet, as we read the recent pay increase a senior controller in Canada was making under $10,000 a year.

As John Gillies points out in The Globe and Mail: "It is a young man's profession, but one in which young men grow old before their time.

"About 75 per cent of ATC personnel in Canada are between the ages of 25 and 32. There are no active controllers in their 50s. High blood pressure, ulcers, nervous breakdowns and heart attacks are common disorders among controllers as a result of the stress and strain of work."

Here is how one writer, or group of controllers, described the job: "Sitting before many as nine aircraft in the area at any one time, may be commonplace split-second decisions. It is demanding work which requires skill of a very high order. Moreover, it is a profession which deserves the recognition and respect of the travelling public.

County Hospital

The full accreditation for high patient-care awarded to the county hospital in Picton is a matter for congratulation, and a million residents of Prince Edward may take pride in.

The award is given by the Canadian Council on Hospital Accreditation and is regarded as the hallmark of professionalism in hospital operation.

Like other area hospitals, Prince Edward Memorial has been assisted toward its new status by the acquisition of nurses from the Philippines. There are about a dozen of these in Picton and they have helped maintain not only a high standard of nursing care but staff that is adequate in number.

Set apart from their nursing ability, the young women have introduced to the citizenship of the exotic flavor of the Orient. Picton of late, they have participated in social program and demonstrated some of the national dances of their country.

Christmas in the Filipino girls will be home; but it seems as if they have their own quite happily in Picton.

Pearson Produces Biggest Anti-Climax Of The Year

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The politician-watchers' award for the best single performance in the Commons this year has to go to Prime Minister Pearson.

Not, mind you, on the basis of performance alone; the year-end award for making that award, your guess would be as good as anyone else's.

But on the basis of a one-night stand, so to speak, on the floor of The House.

And there, towering far above every other MP, Front and Backbencher alike, on either side of The House and in all five Parties, stands the PM.

In that one performance of sheer dazzling brilliance he:

1. Surprised and delighted almost all of his own supporters, all but a very select few who were "in" on the show.

2. Stunned the New Democrats and other "splinter" opposition groups.

3. Slaughtered and staggered Conservatives.

It happened like this . . .

The Conservatives had done what no other Opposition in living Parliamentary record had succeeded in doing — knocked the Government in the financial wall.

And then, wham!

But wait — the PM's was a classic performance — so let us set the stage.

A TORY FIRST

For nine stubborn give-not-an-inch days, the Conservatives had refused to vote some $37,000,000 the Government simply had to have to meet the Federal Civil Service payroll and cover its November bills.

You remember, the Conservatives had a price — they would vote the money and take the Government off the financial book if Defence Minister Hellyer let a Commons Committee get at his controversial Armed Forces unification bill before The House approved it in principle.

It was a deadlock, stalemate.

There had been others through the years, but none quite this tight.

In his final year as Conservative Leader, George Drew had mounted such a big tade against Prime Minister St. Laurent, and especially against Trade Minister C. D. Howe, the tough, fearsomely single-minded "Minister of Everything," as they called the "Trader."

They remained "frozen" in their positions right up to the day of decision.

The Conservatives either had to vote the funds or the Government would be "broke," the Civil Service would go unpaid, and merchants and businessmen and contractors could whistle for the money Ottawa owed them.

It got to the hour, finally, of decision.

Then down to a few minutes before the time would have run out, the House adjourned for the day, and the Government faced with the alternative of an election.

Just in time's nick, the Conservatives buckled. They didn't have the nerve to push and go over the brink with the Government.

Many of his old friends still believe it was the nervous strain of those tight-wound days that broke George Drew's health.

OH, BY THE WAY

Well, Conservative Leader Diefenbaker, in this current House of minority turmoil, had taken the plunge, gone over the brink, and the first of three Civil Service paydays had gone by with 60,000 Government employees left holding an empty salary bag.

The Government had two choices:

1. Adjourn Parliament and finance through Governor General's warrants — and risk dead-certain explosion when the Commons re-assembled and this most unusual and highly arbitrarily unacceptable course of action would have to be rationalized.

2. Dissolve Parliament and make another election appeal.

It was 9.20 pm, with The House set to adjourn 40 minutes later for a long three-day holiday weekend, when the Prime Minister entered to make what all bet a chosen few of his intimates believed would be a final, humiliating appeal in which he would be expected to humble himself abjectly before the Conservative Opposition.

They waited for him to plead, to beg, to do everything but get down on his knees to John Diefenbaker.

And he did cease, appeal, plead.

But never quite got around to begging.

Then it came. After 35 m'nutes. The old whammy.

It was beautiful. The timing a delight.

He was about to finish when, almost casually, he said, sort of by the way:

"There is one more thing I would like to mention in concluding . . ."

Revenue Minister Benson had found the money needed for the payroll, so the Conservatives had merely been exhausting themselves in the nine wasted days of their now-broken blockade.

That is all. Period.

Except, there should never be all those Opposition jaws drop.

Clinic Issue

Surgeon States Case on Zoning

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I have hesitated in writing more on that somewhat hackneyed subject of "zoning on Dundas Street." However I submit that some questions remain which warrant consideration, and that explanation of some contentious points might clarify thinking.

Firstly, may I point out a not too obvious fact, that I have not erected a "Clinic." Neither have I despite implications to the contrary, in any way contravened building or zoning regulations.

My own motives in this have been to provide a convenient, economical facility, in what is an obviously suitable location, across from the hospital, on a bus route and main city thoroughfare. I had hoped to attract another Orthopaedic Surgeon to Belleville, and to be able to assure him of office space, and in addition, to provide some physiotherapy facilities. Such facilities in the hospital are presently overtaxed to such a degree as to render them virtually useless. The planned facilities in the new hospital wing are, in the opinion of a number of polled specialists in this growing field of medicine, likely to be inadequate.

The property at 260 Dundas East, has been labelled none A. This was done several years ago by Alderman Keegan as a member of the committee. This, by Mr. Keegan's own admission, was an error, based on the erroneous opinion that the building was a private residence. In fact, the building was an apartment house, and had been for some years prior to the establishment of zoning. Multiple family dwellings are not permitted in an A zone.

Dundas Street throughout its length is largely Commercial or Industrial property. Only one small island of zone A exists. That, containing six residences, extends from the Entomological Lab northerly for one block, to my property.

Why then, has the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board steadfastly refused to property re-classify this property?

Last year the City Council after due consideration of the evidence, voted to pass the By-law re-zoning 260 Dundas Street to a B zone. This was done despite the Planning Board's negative recommendation, on the basis of dissenting vote in the Council of 8 members.

As with any By-Law the Municipal Board approval is required, and a hearing has been demanded by opponents of this change.

Why then at the Municipal Board Hearing, did the City Solicitor refuse to present a single shred of evidence in favor of this By-law? The City Council did not withdraw support for the By-law, although such was implied by the lack of action on the part of the legal representative.

The Municipal Board did not approve the By-law, because the City did not defend it. An appeal resulted in a new hearing. At this time the City Solicitor again failed to support the Council's stand. Was he acting on orders, and if so whose? At this same hearing a city official in testifying, again stressed the Planning Board's stand against re-zoning. However he could not even guess when the zoning plan might be ready though it was started about four or more years ago.

In further explanation of my actions, may I again stress that I have not erected a "clinic." Following recognized proper legal procedure, plans of a proposed addition to the existing building at 260 Dundas Street East were submitted to the City Engineer. Following investigation and approval, by the City, a building permit was issued. The present structure at 262 Dundas East was constructed according to the approved plan, under the supervision of the building inspector. My residence and office were established in the new addition nearly two years ago, prior to the introduction of a By-law setting out space requirements. In accordance with this I provide an area for off-street parking for patients and tenants, as required by By-law. It is regrettable that another Physician is not permitted to share the space and the costs of this undertaking. Such occupancy would make more feasible, plans to improve the appearances of the parking lot and property. I feel maintain two prestigious residences, and continue this costly struggle for what I feel to be in Belleville's best interest, — namely more realistic planning, — funds are not available for such niceties.

The contentious points raised in objection to a zoning change then to have been valid. The original homestead, built more than 120 years ago when no other buildings existed in the area, was situated on the choice site of land. Why then is it still exists on the hilltop, with land sloping away in all directions. To the North there is low lying land, which in years past was a swamp, and which still is moist at certain seasons of the year. Were a zoning change permitted, the increased revenue possible would permit improved attractive development of the parking area, but would not otherwise alter it.

It has been stated that zoning change might devaluate property. It is not true that properly developed industrial property need detract from the area. This is evident already where, on the south side of Dundas Street, West, of the Hospital, M and G Johnston have had probably the most attractively landscaped frontage on all of Dundas Street. At the present time, this same Company, which is one of Belleville's major industries, is protesting plans to enlarge their factory, and to this end the residences on the south side are being demolished. It is to be hoped the cloud of confusion hovering over 260 Dundas does not drift to the south side of the street.

In closing may I express my most sincere and humble thanks to those who have supported me. This struggle has been in many ways, a very costly one, and I am stimulated to pursue it only because of the expressed confidence that my cause is a just one.—H. F. WILLIAMSON.

Financial Disaster

Peterborough Examiner

The collapse of Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd. of Toronto, the full and tragic ramifications of which are now becoming apparent, adds another item in the growing list of financial disasters which have struck Ontario. The Windfall, Atlantic Acceptance and Mercantile Bank and Trust affairs, and now the Prudential Finance Corp. bankruptcy, have sorely exposed the confidence of investors of all kinds in this province beyond the immediate powers of any remedial legislation to restore.

Medication History Vital to Treatment

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

I ran across a true story of a woman who went to a physician complaining that she couldn't stay awake, and had even fallen asleep in a taxicab going to see him.

Questioning brought out her history. She had been plagued by varying manifestations of nervousness and had gone to half a dozen specialists.

Each, it turned out, had prescribed a tranquilizer, apparently not lequiring as to what the woman might already be taking.

So there she was, taking all of these pills every day. One wonders how she stayed awake long enough to call a taxicab, let alone get into it.

In a woman's home I saw five or six bottles of vitamins, all of them good and all of them containing about the same ingredients. What good done the same thing — taken the advice of several doctors as to what kind of vitamin pill she should take, and she was industriously taking all of them.

It didn't do her any harm, but it was costing her a lot of money when just one pill a day would have been ample.

The lesson is obvious enough. If by any chance your doctor doesn't find out what medications you are using (with or without prescription), tell him.

Common ones are tranquilizers, sedatives, thyroid, and various other forms of hormones. Too much of any of them can be harmful.

Be sure your doctor is aware of any medications you take.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about an ailment called diverticulosis, its symptoms and treatment? I will be watching the newspaper. — D. M.

Rather than watch the newspaper, get a copy of my booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You." You can obtain it by sending 20 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 188, Thornton, Ill.

Considerible space would be necessary to explain the condition so you really understand it, but briefly, it is a matter of outpouchings forming along the intestine, swelled-out areas similar to what we used to call "stone bruises" on an automobile tire.

This condition is extremely common. I often does not bother the possessor at all. However, if one (or more) of these pouches becomes irritated and inflamed, then it becomes diverticulitis — the "itis" indicating infection.

Antibiotics or other drugs may be required to subdue the infection. A low residue diet low in roughage (especially avoid very rough, irritating foods such as bran, foods containing small, indigestible seeds) many times is all that is necessary to prevent further trouble.

In severe cases, surgery sometimes is required, but this is not common. I will consider the prevalence of these pouches.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the best hemorrhoidal water prevoscative test? — O. A.

It is a test for glaucoma, one of the causes of blindness. There is this condition. The patient is required to drink a large amount of water in a short time. Changes in pressure within the eyeball then are noted by the ophthalmologist.

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend and I are both sterile and that her doctor said riding a motor cycle causes this. Is it true? — R. L. No.

Adversity Vital to Growth

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What I Wish I Had Known at Eighteen:

That it is impossible to "know yourself" until you have been tested by adversity or confronted with an uncompromising choice between self-interest and self-sacrifice.

That "living for pleasure" is both the worst and the best of philosophies — depending on how narrowly or broadly one defines "pleasure."

That conservatism is useful only if it tries to conserve what is truly valuable in the present and future, while dropping what has outlived its usefulness; and that fanaticism is sheer folly if it resists that tradition and continually necessary for man's growth, instead of throwing it overboard all baggage of the past.

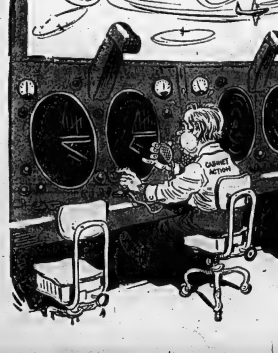
That our conduct is influenced by our expectations, rather than by reality; and reality then transforms (and distorts) itself to fit our expectations.

That if you begin smoking to prove you are a man, 30 years later you will try to quit for the same reason.

That boredom is always a sign of a lack of resourcefulness within oneself, and not an indictment of the environment.

That it is never too late or too long enough as instrumentalities of our own purposes, rather than as ends in themselves, to eventually lose our own identity and become that most unattractive of things, a rare bird stuffed with.

That sneering at one's "inferiors" gives them an immediate superiority over you.



That it is impossible to live without faith, for even the most despairing and suicidally-inclined have faith in the peace of oblivion, which may be as much a delusion as any other.

That short-term gains are most always long-term losses; and the postponement of satisfactions, until we are fully prepared to accept them and reap them properly, is one of the hallmarks of maturity.

That we will be as much out of rapport with your own adolescent children as your parents were with you.

That "useless" knowledge learned in school is the most enduring, and, in later years, the most consoling; while the "practical" knowledge becomes outmoded and forgotten in a few years, as conditions change.

That inherited ideas, those we have taken in with our mother's milk, are precisely the ones it is most important to examine as we grow older, for they are unconscious chains limiting our freedom of thought and inquiry.

"Nothing of Value"

Sharp Denies Accountant Tipped Ottawa on Prudential

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government continued Monday to deny responsibility in the collapse of the Prudential Finance group, but Prime Minister Pearson held out some hope of aid for private citizens who took losses.

He told the Commons the government is looking into the implications of assistance for investors and insurance policyholders and will make a statement quickly.

He said he had the "greatest sympathy" for the request for assistance put by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

The statement came after Finance Minister Sharp said Toronto accountant William Gruber disclosed "absolutely nothing of value" to federal insurance officials before the collapse of Prudential Finance and four subsidiaries.

He gave this interpretation in a detailed defence of the federal hands-off attitude in events leading up to the collapse.

Opposition spokesmen immediately attacked Mr. Sharp's statement. Mr. Diefenbaker termed it "artful dodging" and called for a full investigation of the collapse by a Commons committee.

David Lewis (NDP — York South) maintained the federal insurance department had committed an error last January in not making use of Mr. Gruber's information. It was an indefensible error and Mr. Sharp should admit it.

Mr. Lewis called for a federal-provincial investigation of the affair rather than a Commons committee examination.

Mr. Sharp's statement was prompted by weekend charges by Mr. Gruber that the finance minister was negligent in not investigating Prudential Finance after his January tipoff.

Mr. Sharp said Mr. Gruber, formerly employed by Morris Stein, the Prudential auditor, first approached the federal insurance department at its Toronto office last January.

"Because the department of insurance had no legal authority to assure him that he would be protected from legal action he refused to disclose even the name of the company about which he said he had information," Mr. Sharp said. But officials concluded he referred to Prudential Finance.

Later in January, Mr. Gruber went to the federal insurance department with his story, but was told there the Income Tax Act prevented the department from sending information to any other department or authority.

It was also on these grounds that the revenue department refused information to the insurance department.

However, the revenue people did tell the insurance department there was nothing in the Gruber statements of interest to the insurance branch.

Revenue officials "also indicated they had previous contacts with Mr. Gruber which had led them to feel that he was a generally unreliable informant."

In his conversations with insurance officials, Mr. Gruber "refused to provide them with anything that they could possibly refer either to another federal department or to the authorities of the province of Ontario."

Mr. Sharp said any worthwhile information would have been passed on to Ontario government insurance officials. But Mr. Gruber did not supply it.

Neither he nor any cabinet minister had ever met Mr. Gruber personally. The first direct approach was a telephone call to Mr. Sharp's office last Dec. 13. The accountant left a message saying he intended to sit at a Prudential creditors' meeting in Toronto.

The federal insurance department had never had correspondence with Mr. Gruber about Prudential Finance. The only correspondence it had was about a toy company. A letter from Mr. Gruber on the subject was forwarded to the superintendent of bankruptcy.

"This acknowledgment received in reply by Mr. Gruber is being displayed by him as proof that he told these agencies about the affairs of Prudential," Mr. Sharp said. "It is not related."

H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) said he could not accept Mr. Sharp's view that Mr. Gruber's information was not worth investigation by the federal insurance officials. An inquiry was needed, possibly by a royal commission as a first step.

Grassfire!

It was a cool 16 above last night when Belleville firefighters answered an alarm from the west end of the city.

They're still puzzling what caused the small blaze on the CPR right-of-way this time of the year.

Reason for the alarm?

A grassfire.

Basic Paradox

Farmers Live Poor, Die Rich

EDMONTON (CP) — Farmers live poor but die rich says a rural finance expert.

It's a "basic paradox," said Dr. G. R. Purnell, director of the economic division of the Alberta agriculture department, addressing 50 rural finance officials including bank managers, accountants and employees of farm credit agencies.

The net worth of farmers was four to five times higher than the net worth of non-farm workers.

It would require a payment of $40,000 to each non-farm family to bring them equality of net worth with farm families," he added.

Farmers had a strong tendency to skimp on living costs. Instead, they invested most of their annual income in the farm operation.

Thus the farmer is "one of the few people who has relatively low income and often inadequate living standards and yet can retire with a nice little nest egg."

Continued reform in agriculture would "emphasize the need for an outstanding flow of capital into the hands of farm people."

TOUGH TO BORROW MONEY

Young farmers, who need financing the most and could use it best, found it most difficult to obtain.

Dr. Purnell said "a strong program of farm management advice and farm credit implementation must be provided."

If the farmer had to obtain his credit from several sources, none of these credit sources could analyse properly the farm unit operation and appraise capital needs and the impact of the injection of various types and amounts of capital.

"Often it is necessary to assist the family in defining its long-range goals, encouraging improved education and even advising individuals to move into areas of employment outside agriculture."

Only one-quarter of today's farmers had specialized farms.

"The other three quarters are farm people who are not on viable farm units. It is even more difficult to cope with the management and credit needs of this large group than with the commercial farmers."

There is a "real challenge" to credit institutions and government farm management extension advisers to provide a comprehensive program of credit and farm management advice.

"Nothing of Value"

Sharp Denies Accountant Tipped Ottawa on Prudential

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government continued Monday to deny responsibility in the collapse of the Prudential Finance group, but Prime Minister Pearson held out some hope of aid for private citizens who took losses.

He told the Commons the government is looking into the implications of assistance for investors and insurance policyholders and will make a statement quickly.

He said he had the "greatest sympathy" for the request for assistance put by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

The statement came after Finance Minister Sharp said Toronto accountant William Gruber disclosed "absolutely nothing of value" to federal insurance officials before the collapse of Prudential Finance and four subsidiaries.

He gave this interpretation in a detailed defence of the federal hands-off attitude in events leading up to the collapse.

Opposition spokesmen immediately attacked Mr. Sharp's statement. Mr. Diefenbaker termed it "awful doctgas" and called for a full investigation of the collapse by a Commons committee.

David Lewis (NDP — York South) maintained the federal insurance department had committed an error last January in not making use of Mr. Gruber's information. It was an indefensible error and Mr. Sharp should admit it.

Mr. Lewis called for a federal-provincial investigation of the affair rather than a Commons committee examination.

Mr. Sharp's statement was prompted by weekend charges by Mr. Gruber that the finance minister was negligent in not investigating Prudential Finance after his January tipoff.

Mr. Sharp said Mr. Gruber, formerly employed by Morris Stein, the Prudential auditor, first approached the federal insurance department at its Toronto office last January.

"Because the department of insurance had no legal authority to assure him that he would be protected from legal action he refused to disclose even the name of the company about which he said he had information," Mr. Sharp said. But officials concluded he referred to Prudential Finance.

Later in January, Mr. Gruber went to the federal revenue department with his story, but was told there the Income Tax Act prevented the department from sending information to any other department or authority.

It was also on these grounds that the revenue department refused information to the insurance department.

However, the revenue people did tell the insurance department there was nothing in the Gruber statements of interest to the insurance branch.

Revenue officials "also indicated they had previous contacts with Mr. Gruber which had led them to feel that he was a generally unreliable informant."

In his conversations with insurance officials, Mr. Gruber "refused to provide them with anything that they could possibly refer either to another federal department or to the authorities of the province of Ontario."

Mr. Sharp said any worthwhile information would have been passed on to Ontario government insurance officials. But Mr. Gruber did not supply it.

Neither he nor any cabinet minister had ever met Mr. Gruber personally. The first direct approach was a telephone call to Mr. Sharp's office last Dec. 13. The accountant left a message saying he intended to all at a Prudential creditors' meeting in Toronto.

The federal insurance department had never had correspondence with Mr. Gruber about Prudential Finance. The only correspondence it had was about a toy company. A letter from Mr. Gruber on the subject was forwarded to the superintendent of bankruptcy.

"This acknowledgment received in reply by Mr. Gruber is being displayed by him as proof that he told these agencies about the affairs of Prudential," Mr. Sharp said. "It is not related."

H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) said he could not accept Mr. Sharp's view that Mr. Gruber's information was not worth investigation by the federal insurance officials. An inquiry was needed, possibly by a royal commission as a first step.

Widowed Grandmother Still Teaching at 81

NEW YORK (AP)—One winter day 60 years ago, a young school teacher began her first regular teaching assignment in a New York City elementary school. She was 20 and unmarried.

Today, at the age of 81, Elizabeth Kearns, a widowed grandmother, is still teaching. She has no immediate plans to retire.

"Age is not a matter of years," she said in an interview. "It's a matter of spirit. I don't feel old. I think one has to keep busy in order to be healthy. I think anybody who is busy and accomplishes something benefits by what they're doing."

Mrs. Kearns is one of the oldest active teachers in New York state.

She stays young by teaching first - graders at St. Joseph's school in suburban Garden City on Long Island. In 13 years at St. Joseph's she hasn't missed a day because of illness.

To illustrate her point about staying healthy, Mrs. Kearns recalled that she retired in September, 1953, for one year.

"I stayed home. I had all kinds of aches and pains. The doctors couldn't find anything. Tension pains was the way they put it. I joined St. Joseph's in September 1953. I never had any pains after I was back in work and I've never had any since."

Mrs. Kearns was born in Calais, Me., Dec. 6, 1885, but her family moved to New York when she was three years old. She married Thomas Kearns in 1916 and took five years off from teaching to raise a family. She has five children, including twins, all of whom are married. She has 20 grandchildren.

She says she plans to keep teaching as long as her health is good.

"Last year I was able to put only two calls to the doctor on my income-tax return."

Successful Living

Send 4,400 Christmas Stockings

Dear Doris: "My Christmas stocking went to a little beggar boy in Korea."

Many of your readers who helped with our Christmas stocking project last year could say this, because over 400 stockings were distributed to beggar boys in Korea at a party given by our administrator there, Mr. Kim Un Cho.

These little ones run away from home feeling they can better themselves by living off the avails of begging, sleeping in the streets and holes in the ground. This annual Christmas party is a highlight in their lives.

This year we have sent, to date (November 21), 4,400 stockings, the largest amount yet; and they have gone to needy children in half a dozen countries. Even in countries where they do not celebrate Christmas they are eagerly awaited and appreciated by the children.

To those of you who participated, we thank you sincerely for your part in this heartwarming work. — Special Projects Secretary, The Canadian Save the Children Fund.

Dear Secretary: More power to you! The C.S.C.F. gives us a unique chance to help. I'll be glad to send your new instructions about making up stockings to any groups writing in. I understand the deadline for next year's shipments is June 30.

Dear Doris: I am 20 years of age and have a good financial position. I have a girl friend whom I love very much. I have found out by a reliable source that she is dating another boy.

I have tried telephoning her and even writing to her but she refuses to answer me. What should I do to get her to talk to me? — Donald.

Dear Donald: Talk to you? To say that she likes somebody else better? Take the hint and force yourself to look around for the one who is waiting to be your soulmate!

Confidential to R.A.B.C.: Mom has made all your decisions; now you have a deep-seated habit of yielding all the way. This is strangling to a personality, at 25; but you can still grow up.

For the sake of your children you need to learn to be a person. Start by doing some one thing outside your home: How about beginning with a night course in home management, to give you confidence there?

Confidential to Not Happy: Then you must move once again. Be sure you let the welfare agency know just how queer these old ladies are, and the way they are trying to fool you. Perhaps some other nice country girl from a similar experience. Remember, the agency acted in good faith, and will appreciate your report.

(Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Yule Safety Hints

It's that time of year again, when the boys at the fire department do a great deal of worrying. Their main concern being the horrifying fire hazard of dried out Christmas trees. After talking to them at length, I feel that the precautions they have set out for us cannot be stressed too emphatically!

First of all, fire-proofing a live tree is almost impossible. Aerosol bombs sold for this purpose, and home spraying methods using mixtures of boracic acid, etc., are helpful, but about 50 applications of any of these things would be necessary to do the job completely.

Next item of importance. If a tree has been cut too early (say, October) it is going to be so dry it will be incapable of absorbing any moisture. Brown tipped branches are a sign of such dryness, so only buy a fresh, green tree with pliable needles, and leave it outside until you wish to set it up.

Just before standing the tree in a pail of water, saw a diagonal one-inch piece off the bottom. This is like opening up the pores. Maintain a good reservoir of water in the pail at all times. A few bricks in the container around the trunk will help to keep things steady.

Support the tree well with wire. In case of fire, string would burn and allow the tree to fall. (How terrifying to even think about).

Locate the tree away from exit doorways, and away from areas of drying heat such as radiators, spotlights and television sets. The chief reminded me of the substantial convection flow of warm air that emits from any TV set.

Use only non-combustible, fire-retardant decorations and strings of lights carrying the C.S.A. stamp of approval. Do not allow loose connections and signs of wear to go unattended. Repair and replace where necessary.

Dispose of the tree as soon after Christmas as you can bear to — the department suggests two or three days — or immediately, if the needles become faded and brown tipped.

Never try to burn the tree in the fire place, stove or furnace. Dry evergreens are highly combustible and will burn with an almost explosive flash!

These precautions are not meant to frighten us, but to urge us to sensible, thinking, recognizing, and doing something about, a potential danger.

With these few words of wise, my friends, here's to a safe and while Christmas and a green Christmas tree! — Susanna

Clothes Bar Boy

GUILDFORD, England (CP) — The parents of Graham King, 14, protested when school authorities did not call him up to the platform with the rest of his class to receive his junior matriculation certificate. The boy went in commencement exercises in a corduroy jacket, tight trousers, pointed shoes and a shaggy hair style.

Ann Landers

Wash Dirty Linen In Public Laundry

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The face of the world is changing so rapidly that I am unable to keep up with things. What was once considered wrong is now considered acceptable. I don't trust my judgment anymore.

Please tell me if it is good manners for a young woman "on her own" to bring her soiled laundry home on the week-end for an evening.

It seems to me that with modern, self-service facilities everywhere, a career girl should not impose on friends by bringing a week's washing and asking to use the machine.

ANN LANDERS

Have you ever taken a stand on this? — NO LAUNDROMAT.

DEAR NO: Not until now, because it has never come do.

Obviously the young woman feels closer to you than you feel to her. Your letter suggests that you consider her behavior presumptuous, and if you do, I see no reason for you to continue. Tell her.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please keep telling teen-agers to wait awhile before they jump into marriage. I am only 21. I didn't wait, and I am sorry.

I married Ken when I was barely 17. Our baby was born a year later. Ken is a nice person, a good provider and, by all the accepted standards, he would be considered a fine husband. The trouble with our marriage is that I am in love with another man.

Ken and I started to go steady in high school. I never gave myself a chance to get to know anyone else. When my parents begged me to go to college and meet other men so that I could at least compare Ken with someone else, I accused them of trying to ruin my life.

Please, Ann, keep telling teen-agers that a 17-year-old, no matter how smart or sophisticated, has little chance of making a good marriage choice. Those who have done it were lucky. Not wise. The business of selecting a lifetime mate is too important to trust to luck.

If I had listened to my parents I would be a college senior now — and single. And I would be marrying someone else next year. — TRISTE MADONNA.

DEAR TRISTE: Here's your letter — an eloquent testimony by one who has been there. One of the hallmarks of maturity is the ability to wait. Thank you for writing and giving us the word first-hand.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 19-year-old girl who has been having some heated arguments with my mother and other relatives. I know they love me and they want what is best for my future, but I feel they are prejudiced and ill-informed. This is the problem:

I have had one year of college and now I want to join some branch of military service. The life appeals to me and I have a strong desire to serve my country. My mother says the service is no place for a respectable female. She says if a girl is not a tramp when she goes in she is a tramp when she comes out.

I do not believe this and I would appreciate your opinion. — DENVER.

DEAR DENVER: Your mother is wrong. The service has a great deal to offer a young woman. It can be an exciting, desirable life.

Of course, there are tramps in the service, but you will find tramps in the so-called best colleges and in every field of endeavor you can name. A girl of 19 has established her standards of morality and she takes them with her wherever she goes.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Variety of Green Vegetable Recipes

With our Christmas Dinner menu in mind, which I will give you tomorrow, and because I promised, today I am giving you some tested green vegetable recipes that are intriguing because they are different.

I had ease of preparation and exceptionally good flavor in mind as I planned and tested these for you.

CHINESE STIR-FRIED CELERY AND MUSHROOMS

(to serve 6)

3 cups diagonally sliced green celery (¼" thick or less — see below)
Two 10-oz. cans mushroom stems and pieces (or ½ lb. scrubbed sliced raw mushrooms)
3 tbsp. butter,

NOTE: Slice celery on Parmater shredder (but do not cut yourself!) or slice with very sharp knife diagonally ¼" thick or less and measure. In large frying pan melt butter gently, add celery and mushrooms if raw and gently fry, stirring until celery and mushrooms are butter soaked, but still crisp and not brown at all. If canned mushrooms are used, drain them but do not add them until celery has been partially sauteed. Stir-fry until heated through and serve. Celery should still retain its bright green color and some crispness. This is very popular.

Dinner Menu

TUESDAY

Baked Swiss Steak; Rich Brown Gravy; Baked Stuffed Potatoes (see Mon.); Buttered Cabbage Wedges; Relish Tray: Sticks of Raw Celery, Carrot and Turnip; Frulled Jelly, Shortbread; Coffee.

FRENCHED GREEN BEANS AND BEAN SPROUTS OR WATER CHESTNUTS

(to serve 6)

Two 10-oz. pkgs. fresh frozen Frenched green beans
1 cup boiling water
1 tsp. salt
1 cup drained canned bean sprouts (or one 10-oz. can diced bamboo shoots or sliced water chestnuts)
3 tbsps. butter
2 tbsps. corn starch
¼ cup chopped toasted blanched almonds (optional)

Turn the fresh frozen Frenched green beans into a large saucepan, add boiling water and salt and cook covered until barely tender — not more than 10 min. Do not drain. Add bean sprouts or drained diced bamboo shoots or drained sliced water chestnuts. Melt and blend together the butter and corn starch and stir gently into bean mixture until thickened and just boiling. Serve sprinkled with toasted almonds, if used.

MARINATED BRUSSELS SPROUTS

NOTE: This is chilled and is served as a salad in the French manner. A conversation piece on a buffet table.

1 lb. small Brussels sprouts
¼ cup genuine mayonnaise
2 tbsps. crumbled Roquefort or Danish Blue cheese
½ tsp. garlic salt
4 tbsp. salad oil

Wash and trim Brussels sprouts and cook in boiling, salted water to barely cover until barely tender and still bright green. Drain well and pat dry. Turn into deep attractive bowl and chill. Mix all remaining ingredients well and pour over chilled Brussels sprouts, turning each Brussels sprout over to coat. Chill covered until serving time.

Mr. and Mrs. Blake Pitman, 34 Hillside Street, wish their friends and neighbors a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year!

Sharp Follows Oft-ignored Principle, Gears Tax to Program

OTTAWA (CP)—The philosophy behind Finance Minister Sharp's mini-budget is one that all finance ministers of the world have agreed upon, but few have followed in recent years.

It is that tax increases should be directly geared to government spending programs.

Too often, and in too many countries, in recent years, the philosophy has been that there can be a time-lag between the introduction of new programs and the day when governments have to raise taxes to pay for them.

In the interim, the thinking has been, governments can get along by borrowing.

That's just the thing, Mr. Sharp told reporters after his budget presentation Monday night, that has caused the worldwide credit shortage, forcing up interest rates and cords of doing business.

At World Bank and International Monetary Fund meetings recently in Washington, it was agreed by the finance ministers that they should shift more of the burden for government spending directly to taxpayers. Mr. Sharp says few ministers of finance have had the courage to do this recently.

He says his new mini-budget is a step in the proper direction. He hopes it will have the side-effect of reducing interest rates and easing the tight credit situation in Canada.

He needed $280,000,000 to pay for the government's $30 - a - month supplementary payments to old age pensioners in need.

While the old age security fund shows a surplus, the fact is that the government needed $280,000,000 from somewhere. The old age security fund is simply a bookkeeping account.

If the government hadn't raised taxes, it would have had to borrow the additional $280,000,000. Even without this, the government will have to go to the money markets before next March 31 to borrow some funds.

But to borrow an additional $280,000,000 for a full year would have put an additional heavy burden on the money market and worked against any possibility of much easing of interest rates in the near future.

In deciding, then, to raise taxes rather than to borrow, Mr. Sharp was faced with deciding which taxes.

BUSINESS TAXES HIGH

He ruled out higher corporate profits taxes because Canadian business taxes already are high in comparison with U.S. corporation taxes, and a delicate balance must be kept between the two sides of the international border.

This left personal incomes and consumption taxes. He split the burden as closely as he could in a simple way between the two, to keep a neutral approach.

The increase to 12 per cent from 11 in the federal sales tax will bring into the treasury about $155,000,000. Increasing to $240 a year from $120 the maximum an individual pays directly to the old age security fund will bring in about $125,000,000.

The $280,000,000 total is about close as to the $280,000,000 cost of the guaranteed-income plan as any finance minister could hope to come in Canada's federal budgeting.

Income Check Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — With its Christmas recess expected to start late Friday, the Commons is to press on today with study of old age security legislation.

Little progress was made Monday, the seventh day of debate, on the bill providing a guaranteed monthly income of $105 to recipients of old age security.

Finance Minister Sharp's baby budget, designed to meet the cost of the pension increase, ate up a portion of Monday's debating time and MPs added the rest to press for amendments in the pension bill. Liberals beat back one NDP amendment attempt 82 to 31. This proposal would have provision in the bill allows the welfare department to obtain information the revenue department

Qualifying for the supplement will have an income of $1,200 and be liable to tax on $160 of it. On this he would pay $12 in income tax plus $6.40 for the old age pension levy.

At age 70, however, another $600 deduction is available that would take such a pensioner off the tax rolls.

Officials said the number of pensioners in this taxable bracket would be small. The majority would have other exemptions.

Sales Tax Boost Will Push Prices Up

OTTAWA (CP)—An increase of one percentage point in the federal sales tax, certain to work its way through to a broad range of retail prices, was announced Monday night by Finance Minister Sharp.

The tax goes to 12 per cent from 11 per cent Jan. 1 to provide an extra $132,000,000 toward higher pension costs.

Mr. Sharp made two important exemptions from the increase as he brought down his pre-Christmas mini - budget in the Commons.

They are building materials and production machinery.

The sales tax is levied on manufacturers' selling prices and applies to all goods except food and fuel. Services are not taxed, and of course liquor, tobacco and related items face much higher taxes.

"The increase in sales tax can be expected to increase the prices of those goods subject to it—though just how much will depend on the market conditions in each commodity and in various distribution channels," Mr. Sharp told the Commons.

"Indeed in some cases the increase may not be passed on.

"Certainly it should increase the cost of living by much less than one per cent, taking into account that services and a wide range of goods are exempt."

Mr. Sharp's main budget in March announced removal of the tax in two stages from production machinery and equipment. For these, it goes to six per cent next April 1 and comes off completely in April, 1968.

By holding the 11 - per - cent level on building materials in the meantime, he hoped to avoid any further difficulties for the hard - pressed construction industry, Mr. Sharp said.

The government was concerned about a serious reduction in mortgage lending for home and apartment construction due to competition of other demands for capital funds.

The finance minister promised a reform of the sales tax in the next few years. It did not fully take into account ability to pay, although over a fairly wide income rage it was proportional or mildly progressive and to that extent a fair tax.

The minister addressed an extra reminder to consumers that virtually all food is exempt from the tax and that this important area of spending is not affected.

The sales tax goes back to 1920. It was one per cent then.

Revised Forecast

OTTAWA (CP)—Revised forecast by Finance Minister Sharp Monday night of budgetary, old age security and other non-budgetary cash needs in the fiscal year ending next March 31 compared with his initial forecast last March (in millions of dollars):

	Dec.	Mar.
Budgetary revenues	$8,200	$8,300
Expenditures	8,580	8,450
Deficit	320	150
Old Age Security
Payments	1,051	1,035
Revenues	1,175	1,177
Surplus	224	242

Sharp Denies Budget 'Leaked'

OTTAWA (CP) — Was information on the federal mini-budget somehow leaked in advance?

Finance Minister Sharp firmly denied it Monday night.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker maintained that a leak must have occurred.

The supposed recipient of the leak said it was nothing but a coincidence.

The dispute was touched off by a Vancouver news report Monday attributing a party-caucus budget leak prediction to John Van Luven, president of the Vancouver Stock Exchange, who was at a reception attended by Mr. Sharp a few days ago in Vancouver.

Mr. Diefenbaker, referring to the report, told The Canadian Press "there must have been a leak . . . and I think it ought to be looked into."

He said it was also "amazing" how the press was able to predict that an increase in taxes to finance higher pension benefits would not affect taxpayers earning under $6,000 a year.

"These two, taken together, indicate there has been a leak."

Mr. Sharp said he at no time discussed his tax proposals with anybody other than his department officers and the cabinet.

"I have had no conversations about my intentions in the budget," the minister told reporters. "None whatever."

He said he had attended a cocktail party during a recent Vancouver visit and recalled a conversation with Mr. Van Luven. But it had been so casual he couldn't recall which person Mr. Van Luven was among several he met there.

Mr. Van Luven himself said it was only an unfortunate coincidence that his forecast prediction had turned out to be 25-per-cent correct.

The exchange president had forecast an increase of one per-cent in the federal sales tax and one per cent in the income tax rate. Only the sales tax prediction turned out to be right.

Topless Waitresses

Girls Didn't Have Job at Heart

LONDON (Reuters)—Bare-breasted waitressed desperately clutched trays to their chests in an offbeat London restaurant Monday night — and refused to let go.

The girls had brought the topless dress back to London — legally this time—but were too shy to allow a packed house more than a glimpse of what it came to see.

The girls, all former models, simply did not have their hearts in their job.

The nervous girls turned their backs, held their trays high, lit cigarettes and smiled over their shoulders to defend their modesty.

They were chosen for good looks and an average 36-inch bust—restaurant - owner Paul Inga said anything over that length droops.

"This only confirms what I knew already," said one of 250 guests.

"See one and you've seen 'em all," said another.

But one waiter had to tell an over-ardent guest: "Keep your hand in your pocket, mate."

A London Council official said the council could take no action against the girls because they were in a private club.

Toplessness first arrived in 1964 when two sisters were taken to court on indecency charges for appearing bare from the waist up at a movie premiere. They were discharged but warned not to appear that way again.

STATE THINKS BIG

NEW DELHI (AP) — The state government of Kerala, India, has bought space on matchboxes to advertise its family planning campaign.

Nixon Asks for Easier Housing

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Nixon, Liberal house leader in the Ontario legislature, Monday suggested two steps the federal and provincial governments could take to ease Ontario's serious housing shortage."

The member for Brant said Ontario Housing Corp. should quickly conclude its negotiations with the federal government on extending the income scale for public housing, and the governments should make it easier for people to buy their own homes.

"At present in Ontario a family earning $189 a month pays about 27 per cent of its income in rent in public housing," he said in a statement.

"The scale moves up until at the upper end a family earning $479 a month or more pays 31 per cent of its income in rent.

At this point most families are forced to try and find accommodation on the open market.

"Early this year Ontario and Ottawa began negotiations to make the change at the upper income level less abrupt. Negotiations . . . should be concluded quickly before the housing market gets any tighter."

Mr. Nixon suggested that government funds be used to lower interest rates and down-payments on homes. Mortgage payments could be lowered by spreading them over a longer term.

At present a person can get a maximum National Housing Act mortgage on a new house of $18,000 at 7¼ per cent. The mortgage runs 25 years but may be extended to 35.

A person buying a $20,000 home would pay $2,000 down and monthly payments of $128.88 over 25 years.

Newspaper Says Gordon to Resign

WALTER GORDON

TORONTO (CP)— The Globe and Mail says Walter Gordon, former finance minister, is expected to resign from Parliament in the next few weeks.

The newspaper quotes friends of Mr. Gordon as saying he had intended to announce his resignation Friday but the announcement was postponed to next week at the urging of his supporters.

Mr. Gordon declined comment Monday night.

The newspaper quotes sources as saying Mr. Gordon's decision is primarily a matter of conscience—"He is said to feel he must resign because he believes the government has no intention of curbing foreign investment."

Mr. Gordon, who has represented the Toronto riding of Davenport since 1962, campaigned in the last election on the issue of restricting foreign investment, particularly United States investment, in Canada.

He was appointed finance minister April 22, 1963, following the election that month in which the Liberals ousted the Progressive Conservative government of John Diefenbaker.

Mr. Gordon resigned from the cabinet three days after last year's election in which the Liberals were returned with another minority government.

Mr. Gordon said then he felt he had no choice but to resign from the cabinet because he had advised the prime minister to seek a majority mandate from the electorate.

The newspaper quotes Senator Keith Davey as saying in Ottawa that Mr. Gordon might give in to urgings of his supporters and stay on as a member of Parliament at least for a few more months.

It also quotes other sources as saying Mr. Gordon's wife is insistent he get out of politics

Club Atmosphere Important Factor

Belleville teenagers may soon have a place they can call their own.

To date, city youth have held dances in a drill hall and in school gymnasiums, and have transformed an arena skate - changing room into a coffee shop. Beginning this week, a well - organized commercial venture will attempt to provide them with not just a makeshift meeting - place, but an exclusive teen retreat with a nightclub atmosphere.

The Tiki Club, located in the Belleville Plaza in the second - storey former site of a bowling alley, is the second of its nature to be set up in Eastern Ontario by Angelo Brunet of Brockville.

Mr. Brunet said the Belleville Tiki Club is designed to be 25 per cent larger than the similar Brockville operation, which was opened a year ago.

The emphasis is on the word "club," Says Mr. Brunet "We are offering much more than just a dance floor." A preview glimpse of preparations being carried on at the club this week bore this fact out.

In addition to an elevated 2,500-square-foot dance floor area, Club Tiki features a 10-table billiard lounge, a confectionary snack bar, a cloakroom area large enough to accommodate the club capacity of some 800, not to forget the "go-go" dancers who are part and parcel of the "teen scene".

Supervision will be the keynote of club events, with three couples in attendance as chaperones as well as one police officer. The club management feels that the latter factor has been vital in the success of the Brockville Tiki venture, since "parents tend to express their approval of this type of program. We stress strict supervision".

Bearing this in mind, Mr. Brunet has invited Belleville parents to a special two-night open house program Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

"Club members will have the opportunity to see some of the top rock bands in the country at the lowest prices", he adds the official club entertainment program gets underway Friday evening with a popular out-of-town group "The Coachmen" taking to the Tiki stage.

Special events scheduled for the club include Christmas Eve and New Year's Day dances. Regular stirrections will be dances on school holidays in addition to weekends, and Saturday matinee dance programs designed for "teenyboopers," or if you aren't hip, youngsters between the ages of 5 and 12.

Dave Charles, disc jockey for radio station CJBQ, will act as promoter for Tiki events and serve as master of ceremonies for club dances. "This could be one of the best teen clubs in Canada," says Dave. "The kids and myself are really looking forward to it."

The familiar BOTCH organization will also be affiliated with Tiki, being involved in ticket and membership sales.

Cross-Canada Crackdown by Police on Holiday Drinkers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver policemen with sensitive noses and Ontario officers with computers will be on the trail of drinking drivers as traffic officials across Canada try to cut highway fatalities during the Christmas and New Year's holidays.

Elsewhere, a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press showed few innovations in the annual safety campaign, but the old technology will be applied with renewed vigor.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council has predicted that between 55 and 65 Canadians will be killed in traffic during the Christmas weekend and between 35 and 45 during the New Year's weekend.

The estimate is based on the period from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Monday night for both weekends.

A special squad of sensitive-nosed policemen in Vancouver's answer to the drinking driver. Should a member of this squad detect the scent of alcohol during spot traffic checks, the driver is in for a stiffer examination that could lead to arrest.

Police call the campaign applied psychology.

"It's been my experience in past years that the sight of one police roadcheck examining cars is enough to make drivers think twice about taking a drink," says Cpl. Don Rivers of Vancouver.

In Ontario, provincial police are happy with the results of air patrols to reduce highway accidents and have brought into use a system of correlating the number of accidents in an area with the number of prosecutions.

Using data processing equipment, the OPP can pinpoint areas where law enforcement is falling down and increase traffic patrols there.

They also are trying a blitz program in high-accident areas, putting 15 or 20 motorcycle officers on one section of a highway for a day.

The drinker sensible enough to ask for help to keep him off the road in Regina will get it. But in Edmonton a police inspector says: "There's only one place a drunk or impaired driver will be taken, whether it's Christmas Eve, two or three days before or Christmas Day."

Calgary police aren't planning anything special, but will continue the service of transporting drunks home Christmas Eve. There were no fatalities in the area during Christmas last year.

Police in Regina will continue to co-operate with the Road Knights, a private group of volunteers providing taxi service to drinking drivers who ask for it.

No special plans will be undertaken in Manitoba, where safety councils have simply issued appeals for safe driving.

Pope Begins Holiday Rounds

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul has begun a busy round of holiday activity that will climax in northern Italy with a visit to Florence's flood-stained cathedral Christmas Eve to celebrate midnight mass.

The 69-year-old Roman Catholic pontiff worked Monday on the final draft of his annual Christmas message to the world. It will be broadcast Thursday night from his Vatican study.

The Pope also prepared to receive cardinals and bishops who are in Rome in a traditional Christmas audience Friday.

Church and civic authorities in Florence were busy preparing to receive the Pope when he drives north Saturday evening.

Teams of workmen were replacing ruined sections of stone flooring in the Florence cathedral, where Nov. 4 flood waters from the Arno River rose more than six feet.

The cathedral can hold up to 20,000 persons. Under discussion is the question of whether to keep the crowd to a minimum for the midnight mass or let it be filled to capacity.

The Pope is expected to leave a cash gift of part of the $1,600,000 contributed by Roman Catholics in many countries for Italian flood relief.

The Pope's schedule calls for him to be back at the Vatican in time to say his second Christmas mass, in St. Peter's Basilica, at 11:15 a.m. Sunday.

At noon he will give his special blessing "urbi et orbi"—to the city of Rome and to the world—from the central balcony overlooking the square.

Archery Club Pulls Long Bow Despite Winter Weather

Not many amateur sporting activities require year-round practice to maintain a level of excellence. One Belleville group runs the risk of losing much of its achievement potential unless it lands permanent winter quarters to provide members with training facilities.

Boasting a membership of some 45, from age seven upwards, the Belleville Archery Club is doing its best to produce enthusiasts who can bend a bow with the best in Canada. This despite a seemingly endless struggle to find suitable indoor practice facilities to keep members from going "stale" over the winter months.

Club president Floyd Armstrong notes: "We have several very competent archers in our ranks, but unless they have the chance to practise whenever they want, they might not attain full potential."

His assessments of members' abilities have been vindicated at least twice in recent months. In September, 13-year-old Belleville archer Peter Calvert captured the Ontario junior title and Mrs. Carol Armstrong is being touted as a possible member of the eight-member Canadian team which will compete for the world archery crown in Holland next July.

Current national woman's titleholder Joan McDonald said recently: "The women across Canada had better watch Carol — one day in the near future she is going to be the top contender on a national basis."

The prowess of other club members is shown by a bevy of trophies collected in competition with four other clubs of the eastern division of the Ontario Archery Association.

"Many people have tended to think that archery is a kid's game," says Armstrong. "But it now is a veritable science among sports — a lot more than just playing with a piece of stick and string."

The competition is gruelling, with contestants often required to shoot their 30 or 40-pound draw bows as many as 150 times in an afternoon.

Four-foot outdoor targets may be 100 yards away from competitors, who frequently whistle arrows into the nine-inch gold bull's-eye circle.

"The mental and physical concentration demands are tremendous," says Floyd. "And when one arrow can decide a match, you can cut the tension with a knife.

"The sport calls for coolness under pressure, the concentration of a chess-player, and the determination of a mule."

Story and Pictures By Maurice Switzer

At present, city bowmen and women have the use of the Moira Secondary School rifle range, where they shoot from 20 yards at a target with a 16-inch diameter, and a three-inch bull's - eye.

When weather permits, club members do their outdoor shooting at a 28-target range in Wallbridge, laid out similar to a golf course and demanding a variety of shots.

Whether indoors or out, the layman's assumption about archery scoring procedure is basically correct — the closer it is to the centre, the more an arrow scores.

Prospective archers need not worry about an excess of accoutrements to engage in the sport. A bow, constructed of hardwood or fibreglass laminates can be purchased for as little as $20. Once some degree of proficiency is attained, a more elaborate one, equipped with stabilizers and sights, may be obtained. These cost up to $200. A dozen arrows, usually hollow aluminum, sell for about $20, but, notes Floyd "once you have them, they are rarely lost." The arrows are tipped with either genuine or plastic feathers, the only problem arising on rainy days when authentic feathers tend to mat.

Other accessories include a quiver, which might very well be homemade, and arm guard and a finger tab. The latter two inexpensive items are designed to protect the fingers and forearm from any possible string slap.

A demonstration team has been one means by which the archery club has attempted to promote their sport as a recreational and competitive activity.

Precision stunts include breaking two balloons by shooting a pair of arrows simultaneously from a single bow, extinguishing a candle flame with an arrow, and hitting a target while blindfolded.

Archery has its practical applications as well.

Belleville archery also put their bows to the test for which the instrument was designed thousands of years ago—the hunt.

Four club members bagged one deer this fall, and claim it's a real hunting test, considering that a bowman has to get within 30 yards of his prey to assure a good shot. Bow hunting, it should be noted, requires that a licence be obtained, just as when firearms are used.

With the co-operation of the Tweed District Lands and Forests office, the club has arranged to have a carp shooting season this spring in Quinte District Lake Ontario waters. Water - shooting demands more judgment than usual. Arrows must be aimed in such a way as to allow for light refraction which makes underwater objects appear in be where they aren't.

As for the future, the club has a number of arrows in its quiver. A centennial project will be the Eastern Ontario championships at Zwick's Island July 1 and 2. The club is also negotiating to attract the provincial title matches to Belleville on the Labor Day weekend.

The archery club has plans for a possible affiliation with the Belleville Family "Y" to provide their activity with a greater number of potential participants.

It is anticipated that six Belleville archers will travel to Port Arthur next June to vie for positions on the Canadian world competition team. With a little bit of luck to complement the hours of hard work that will be required, at least one Belleville bow may be bent towards Dutch targets next year.

Car Insurance Premiums Here To Rise 5 Per Cent Next Year

Car insurance premiums for the majority of drivers in the Belleville area will increase by "about" five per cent next year, according to a spokesman for one local agent.

In addition, however, will be an increased tab for third party liability which will also go into effect in Ontario next year.

The All Canada Insurance Federation announced last week that a survey of insurance companies indicated an average rate increase of about three per cent across the province due to rising claim costs.

Belleville, however is to be placed in a new district and car owners will pay the same rate as in Kingston and Peterborough. Previously Belleville rates were a bit lower.

Mr. George Ward, chairman of the Belleville Agents' Association said that under the new Ontario legislation an auto passenger will be able to sue a driver for gross negligence.

Ontario is one of the last provinces to introduce such legislation.

Mr. Ward said that the expected five per cent increase in insurance rates was for the accident free, over-25 driver who drives to work.

Also in Ontario next year the driving experience of the "under 25" male age group will be taken into consideration in setting of insurance premium rates.

Under the break down, "principal" drivers in the 16-17-18 age group will pay more and the 19-20 age group rate will be up slightly. The 21-22 group will pay about the same and the 23-24 group will pay less.

Most companies will make rate adjustments on policies issued or renewed about January 1st, although some announce rate changes about March.

All Sorts of Goodies Come in Cans

By SALLY RYAN

NEW YORK (AP) — The Christmas canning season is here—full of canned dresses, canned nails, canned minipanties, canned ties, even canned air.

"We're canning just about everything that will fit," said Wilmer Wise, vice-president of Franklin Simon, a New York department store.

"Young people raised within the back of a basket being pushed through a supermarket relate to things that are canned."

There is something ingenious and kooky about the appeal of a dress in a can," said Ben Weckster, assistant to the president of Wippette Sportswear, Inc., which introduced Le Canned Dress in November.

"It's been a complete sell-out in Canada, and we've sold 100,000 in six weeks. They're in London and Paris, too."

Wippette's president, Irwin Silver, says he picked up the idea more than a year ago when he saw stores selling canned air as a novelty and canned candles.

So this fall he began canning his wrinkleproof nylon dresses to sell for $25. Matching stitch-trimmed hats cost another $7 and can be dropped into the same one-pound tin. New models are on their way for spring.

You don't even need a can opener to get at the dresses—the lids pry off.

Fifth Avenue Cards, Inc., a card shop chain, has been selling canned greeting cards for about a year—empty cans with birthday tidings or whatever on the label at $1 apiece.

Wise said his store has sold hundreds of canned depression survival kits which contain, among other items, instruction how to build your own apple stand.

"Most of the things (that come canned) are teen-aged items — young, fun, giddy kinds of things," Wise said.

Squad Walks Cut ★★★★★ Boss Unshaken

Indians Take Shore Leave!

SPRINGFIELD (CP) — Eddie Shore, the winned, hard-boiled owner of Springfield Indians, is determined to keep intact his life-long record of never giving up.

Shore was unshaken Monday after his entire 23 player squad walked out.

"I'll bring in enough players to man two other clubs if I need to in order to meet our schedule requirements," Shore said.

Unless Shore changes his personality pattern entirely, that's exactly what he'll do.

His 14 years in the National Hockey League from 1920-1940 with Boston Bruins earned him the reputation of the greatest, toughest and meanest defence man of all time. The stories about his ability to come back from defeats have become legend.

His players deserted him Monday over what they call "constant harassment" and after Shore rejected a meeting to discuss suspensions to defencemen Dale Rolfe, Bill White and Dave Amadio.

Veteran centre Brian Kilrea, a players' spokesman, was also suspended after a practice Monday.

"Speaking for the team, we don't want trouble," Kilrea said.

"All we want to do is play hockey under halfway decent playing conditions. Hockey is our living. Most of us know nothing else. We feel we should be given the chance to win games and perform as a unit without constant harassment from the management."

The players were suspended in the wake of the team's 5-4 loss to Quebec Aces Saturday night. The defeat was the fourth straight and Shore said the suspensions were for "indifferent play."

The squad, except for the three suspended defencemen, practised at 8:30 a.m. Monday but then demanded a meeting with Shore before taking the ice for an afternoon drill.

Informed by coach Harry Pidhirny of Shore's refusal to meet with them, the players walked out of the Coliseum, agreeing to remain away until an agreement over frequent suspensions is reached.

Shore, owner of the Springfield club since 1957, said he "refused to be dictated to by the group and the players had automatically broken their contracts with their refusal to practice."

In Montreal, Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, called the walkout "very regrettable."

Campbell said it was unlikely he would become involved in the situation, unless some of the players are on loan by NHL teams.

In that case, the NHL teams would probably withdraw the players, he said.

"Defenceman Larry Hillman and goaltender Bruce Gamble, both former Springfield players and now members of Toronto Maple Leafs, said they agreed with the players' move.

"You had to expect it," said Hillman, a former winner of the Eddie Shore Plaque as the outstanding defenceman of the AHL.

"I remember when I was there (1962-63) we often discussed it but nothing was organized."

Gamble said much the same thing.

Gamble said he stayed out of organized hockey in 1964 - 65 rather than return for another season under Shore.

Shore said he has "no gripes with any of his players, but I do have some against players who are producing only 65 to 70 per cent of their capacity."

"I've put up with this—what I feel is lack of effort—for too long. And I don't intend to contact the players about returning."

Shore moved his club to Syracuse, N.Y., for four years and had a Springfield team playing in the old Quebec League. During the 1953-54 season, he was struck with a milder player-revolt when he tried to switch personnel of the two teams.

He succeeded in getting much of his own way, but six players sat out the rest of the season. They included Pidhirny and Keith Allen, now coach of the NHL expansion team in Philadelphia.

Hamilton Tigers of the NHL was the only other professional hockey club to walk out of a city. The incident occurred in 1925 after the players demanded a playoff bonus for finishing first.

The bonus was refused, the team defaulted the playoffs and was never reorganized.

The Hamilton owners sold the players to New York Americans, who became the new franchise holders in the NHL the next season.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

Hastings, perhaps the "slimmest jim" of Ontario's counties has donated many colorful personalities to the realm of sport.

It has given its Halls, Holways, Dillebroughs, Watsons, Westfalls and others to professional hockey.

It gave Canada one of her world amateur championship hockey clubs. It has sent curling teams to provincial championships, ditto lawn bowling teams.

In the dusty archives of sport you'll find provincial amateur hockey champions and title winners from the realm of softball. Twice her town won an all-Ontario senior "A" baseball championship.

By right of birth she claims a woman golf champion and a title-holding shot-putter.

Before the turn of the century she built and raced one of the two Canadian challengers for the famous America's Cup.

But unheralded and unsung she has sent a coterie of champions to their own right to the seats of the administrative mighty in many phases of athletics.

Keen students and analysts of their favorite sports, these are the men who have risen by sheer administrative ability to the forefront and eventually the top of their respective boards of directors.

Some of them were active — and still are — participants in the realm of athletics.

But theirs not the acclaim of the bleachers, the accolade of rinkside thousands; the thrill of the home run, the winning goal or the strikeout. The thin armor that is the shield of officialdom more often turns away the shafts of criticism. But in their hands they hold the weapons of decision. Right oftener than wrong, these have been the passwords to extended terms of office.

This column offers a Christmas salute to these fine men who have set something of a record for Ontario counties in their outstanding achievements in reaching and serving apart from the presidential chairs and boards of directors.

Back in the early thirties the late "Sandy" Burrows, a former junior hockey star, served on the directorate of the Ontario Hockey Association. The late Ken Colling, former sports editor of this newspaper was headed for the OHA administrative top when ill-health halted his activities.

Baseball in its heyday when the former Grand Trunks and Nationals romped home with Ontario titles sent a former popular player to head the board of directors of the Ontario Baseball Association.

He is Jack Carson, ex-diamond star, one of the keenest students and analysts of baseball in Ontario later became the president of the OBA for two years and went on to head the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association in its inaugural year. Dick Ellis is the current president.

The Ontario Amateur Softball Association conventions recognized Hastings county ability, sending Don Lee to the presidential chair. Harry Rollins has been an honorary president for, in, these many years. Cliff Belch, Jr. was and is a member of the directorate — and is headed for higher things.

Gerald Hyde, a lawn bowler of many years experience both off and on the greens is the current president of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association.

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association paid tribute to county ability in naming Doug Patterson of Stirling to the presidential chair. Unfortunately for the sport Doug was forced to relinquish his post through business and family reasons.

Jack Devine a member of the Ontario Hockey Association "from the ground up" is the current vice president and is headed for the "head of the board" come spring.

Les Digby, former soccer great, now of Montreal, headed the Bay of Quinte and Kingston District Soccer Leagues.

Gerald Vance, president of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club last year was selected to head a special committee of Ontario harness track representatives to probe the question of licences and dates.

Bill Gault is a member of the Ontario Curling Association board of directors. George Balan, Bay of Quinte golf pro is a director of the Ontario Pro Golfers Association. Ken Carr-Brairt is a director of the Canadian Weightlifting Association.

To these "quiling lights" who over the years have made such a notable contribution to the successful operations of sports in Ontario, a sincere Yuletide salute.

Line Output 84 Points

Hawks "Scooters" Eye Record!

MONTREAL (CP)—Stan Mikita, Ken Wharram and Doug Mohns of Chicago Black Hawks might be called The Terrible Trio instead of The Scooter Line, statistics released today by the National Hockey League show.

Consider the way these three Chicago shooters have been blasting away at NHL nets for the first 25 games of the season:

—Mikita, a centre, has 13 goals and 29 assists for 42 points, which put him 14 notches up on all other shooters in the NHL's individual scoring race.

—Wharram, a right winger, has 16 goals and 12 assists for 28 points, good enough to stand alone in second place in the scoring race.

—The line's output, including five goals and nine assists by Mohns, is 84 points, a scoring pace which threatens the NHL record for most points by one line in a season- 226 set in the 1926-27 season by Detroit's Gordie Howe, Norm Ullman and Ted Lindsay.

TOPS LAST WEEK

Wharram, who led all NHL scorers last week with three goals and three assists, edged Mikita for top honors in the NHL's individual scoring race.

While Chicago and New York Rangers each have 32 points, the No. 1 NHL club today is Chicago as the Black Hawks have gained their points in 25 games while New York has played 27 games.

Toronto Maple Leafs are third with 29 points, followed by Montreal Canadiens with 28. Boston Bruins with 19 and Detroit Red Wings with 16 points.

Rod Gilbert and Phil Goyette, Ranger team-mates, are tied for third place in the individual scoring race. Gilbert has 16 goals and nine assists with Goyette has three goals and 22 assists for 25 points.

New York Rangers have the best goals-against average at 3.67, thanks to the astonishing of Ed Giacomin whose present average is 2.27, tops in the league along with Charlie Hodge of Montreal.

Young Goes To Wings

CHICAGO (AP) — Controversial Howie Young will join Detroit Red Wings in a trade sending Murray Hall and Al Lebrun to Los Angeles Blades, Chicago Black Hawks said Monday night.

The Hawks said that for relinquishing any claim to Young, they will receive three players, to be named later, from Detroit at the end of the National Hockey League season.

Last week, Detroit announced it had acquired Young in a trade with Los Angeles of the Western League, but the deal was blocked by the Black Hawks.

The Red Wings said the deal failed because of a hitherto unknown private agreement between the Blades and Chicago which amounted to giving the Hawks first refusal if Young ever returned to the NHL.

The Hawks denied that there was any such secret agreement or that there was any blackballing involved in the proposed trade of the bad-boy defenceman, a native of Toronto.

Three-Way Top Tie In Quinte

Stinson - Horlock Combines managed only one tie in the Quinte Hockey League's first four games.

But there is no stopping them now.

The Combines chalked up their fourth consecutive victory last night, 3-0 over Ter-Haar Brothers, and created a three-way deadlock for first place.

SACO and Grant Realty battled to a 3-3 sawoff in the other game.

Grant's, Stinson-Horlock and Ter-Haar have identical won-lost-tied marks of 4-3-1, good for nine points. Ter-Haar trails with 3-3-1 for five points.

The next league games are slated for January 2.

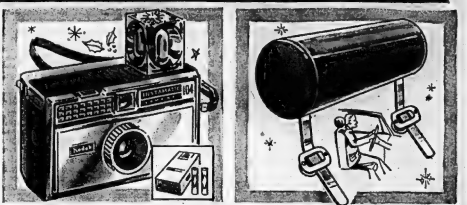
The Combines took advantage of the Saco - Grant's tie to catch them last night, scoring one goal in the second period and a pair in the third.

P. Mitchell spearheaded the attack. He assisted on the first goal, scored by Wally Istead, and clinched it with markers at 6:39 and 15:39 of the third. Istead gained assists on both goals.

Ter-Haar drew five of six minor penalties while absorbing their second shutout in a row.

A pair of third-period goals also paid off well for SACO after Grant's had taken a 3-1 first-period lead and upped it to 3-1 in the second.

Hallam scored for the SACO tallies at 10:58 and 18:00 even of the third to tie it. Bob Forsythe notched the other SACO tally while Junior Day got two assists and Ken Forsythe one.



Earl "Sonny" MacDonald triggered first-period goals for the Realty squad and B. Latimer scored in the second. T. Casselman drew two assists and Ken one.

Grant's took six minor penalties, five in succession to Geoffrey Thompson, while SACO had two.

Elaine Tanner, a poolside pixie with the killer instinct of a tiger shark, is Canada's top female athlete of 1966.

The 15-year-old Vancouver schoolgirl, who looks closer to 13 in her pocky white hat with a big green frog in front, walked away with the 32nd annual Canadian Press year-end poll.

Of the 121 sports writers and broadcasters who voted, 36 put Mighty Mouse Tanner first. Eleven named her second choice and six voted for her third.

On the basis of a 3-2-1 point count, Little Miss Tanner captured 222 points.

Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C., raked one of the top women skiers in the world, was second in the poll for the second straight year. She pulled in 186 points on 14 firsts, 63 seconds and 20 thirds.

Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto, who holds the unofficial women's world amateur golf title, came third on four firsts, 24 seconds and 20 thirds for a total of 119 points. She was fifth in last year's balloting.

The only other of the 10 female athletes the voters considered to poll more than a handful of votes was Sharon Whittaker, Victoria-born backstroke star who lives in Toronto. Miss Whittaker came fourth with 62 points based on four firsts, four seconds and 22 thirds.

Miss Tanner, a relaxed teenager at poolside who says "I don't fool around in the water," won the nickname "Mighty Mouse" from her team-mates.

At the eighth British Empire Games in Kingston, Jamaica, she set a world record in the 220-yard butterfly and shared another with her team-mates on the championship 440-yard freestyle relay team.

In all, she picked up four gold medals and three second-place silver medals at demolishing the Games more decisively than any female swimmer had ever done.

Nancy Greene, a 21-year-old secretary who skis with Canada's national team out of Nelson, B.C., took Canada to the forefront of international competition. She still ranks high in a sport dominated by Unified States and European competitors despite a disastrous showing at the world championships in Portillo, Chile, when she fell in two events while close to winning.

The Federation Internationale de Ski ranks her first in the world in slalom, tied with Marille Goitschel of France. She is seventh in the downhill. In the giant slalom she is tied for second with Wendy Allen of the United States behind Miss Goitschel.

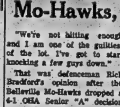
Mrs. Streit, 32 - year - old mother of two girls, learned her golf in Foothill, Ont., and now lives in Toronto. She was rated top female amateur in the world after her victory in Mexico City in October.

Prior to that she had taken 2nd and 4th at the U.S. women's amateur title, losing to Joanne Gunderson Carner on the fifth extra hole of the final match at Sewickley, Pa., in August.

Miss Whittaker is a tall brunette star who won a silver medal for Canada at the Empire Games, fighting off a tough bid by the Malaysian, traditional stars in the sport. She came through in the women's singles, losing in straight sets in the final to Angela Bulstrode of England.

Gail Ross of Edmonton, a member of Canada's equestrian team, polled eight points on two second-place votes and four for third.

Helena Gagnon of Arvida, Que., who won the Canadian women's open, won three points on a second and a third vote. Brenda Mah, Toronto runner, got three on one first-place vote.



Single votes went to golfers Pam Miller of Oshawa, Ont., and Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, Ont., and to runner Abby Hoffman of Toronto.

Clash In Kingston

Mo-Hawks, Aces Tonight

"We're not hitting enough and I am one of the guilliest of the lot. I've got to start knocking a few guys down."

That was defenceman Rick Bradford's opinion after the Belleville Mo-Hawks dropped a 4-3 OHA Senior "A" decision in Galt Saturday night.

RICK BRADFORD

Bradford will have an opportunity to do something about the club's lack of hitting this week.

The Mo-Hawks travel to Kingston to meet their arch rivals, the Kingston Aces, in an 8.00 o'clock tilt tonight, then meet the strong Galt Horfet club here Friday.

And with coach-defenceman Floyd Crawford on the injured list, Bradford, plus Lionel Bailly and Greg Marchen, will be forced to carry the load back at the blueline. Lou Senko was used there Saturday and may see more action in the unfamiliar position until Crawford's return, or until another defenceman can be obtained.

One bright spot is the play of young Steve Rexe who handled Ledger Noiett's goaltending duties very well against Galt. His play proves the Mo-Hawks have two capable goalies. Rexe will likely see more action this week.

Tonight's tilt could be tougher (remember the Taylor Olajos "disagreement"), and numerous Belleville fans are expected to go to Kingston for the game. The Mo-Hawks need a win to stay close to the first division but the Aces have been running hot.

One thing for certain, there won't be any early Christmas presents passed out tonight!

Just "Tries Hard"

Watson: 'The Shadow Knows'!

DETROIT (AP)—Bryan Watson, Detroit Red Wings' fiery utility player, attributes his success in the National Hockey League to effort.

"I try hard, that's all." Watson plays as a forward and on defence, kills penalties and, in one special assignment, 'shadowed' Chicago Black Hawks' Bobby Hull.

BRYAN WATSON

"During the Stanley Cup semi-finals last spring, Hull managed just one goal while Watson was on the ice and Detroit won the best-of-seven series in six games.

Again this year, Watson has been Hull's shadow. Earlier during the season, Watson cross-checked Hull and the Chicago scoring ace slashed Watson over the right eye with his stick, inflicting a deep cut. Hull later apologized.

"I've had two or three fights with him," Watson said. Hull outweighs him by at least 30 pounds. "He's big and strong but if he beats me tonight, I'll just try harder and beat him the next time.

"My theory is that if you're playing bigger boys, just back up a little further and take a longer run at them."

Watson, 24, started skating around his Bancroft, Ont., home when he was three or four years old.

He played hockey on ponds, then went into organized hockey at the age of eight or nine. In the 1963-64 season, he played 40 games with Montreal Canadiens, played most of 1964-65 with Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League, was traded to Chicago and drafted by the Red Wings.

Whip Russians 5-2

Huck, Brewer Pace Nats

By RON SUDLOW

VICTORIA (CP) — Canada's national hockey team put up a solid defensive checking game to defeat the touring Moscow Selects 5-2 in an exhibition hockey game Monday night before 6,456 fans.

The Canadians were led by smooth-skating Fran Huck, who scored two goals, and received rookie goaltender Andy Brewer from Carl Brewer's National Hockey League star, who had one goal and one assist.

Other Canadian goal scorers were Marshall Johnston and Bill MacMillan.

George Chichurin and Anatoli Ytmotvlov scored for the Russians.

It was the second defeat in two days for the touring Russian team, winless after the first three games of their eight-game Canadian tour.

The Russians struck early when Canadian defenceman Barry Mackenzie overskated a Russian pass and broke Canadian zone from the opening face-off. Vladin Shcedrin picked it up and passed to Chichurin whose shot trickled in off Wayne Stephenson's pads.

EVEN SCORE

The Canadians evened the game midway through the first period flipped into the Russians had two men in the penalty box.

Johnston gloved down a pass from Brewer and slipped it behind Russian netminder Vladir Chinov.

The Nationals took a commanding lead in the second period when they banged Chinov, a standout for the Russians, with 18 shots.

Bill MacMillan put the Canadians ahead to stay at 4:13 and Huck stretched the margin to two goals two minutes later.

Brewer beat Chinov with a blazing slapshot from just inside the Russian blue line with just more than a minute left in the period.

Russia's final goal came on a typical precision pass play. Victor Shilov and Alexander Sakeev combined with Malevlov, who beat Stephenson with a low shot from about 15 feet out.

Huck finished the scoring by banging in a loose puck from a goal - mouth scramble midway through the period.

The Russians play again Wednesday in Edmonton against the Nuggets, a senior amateur team.

SIGNS CONTRACT

DENVER, Colo. (AP)— Lou Saban signed a 10-year contract Monday as head coach and general manager of Denver Broncos of the American Football League. No terms were disclosed, but his salary was reported to be $50,000 a year. Saban, 45, resigned last week as coach at the University of Maryland.

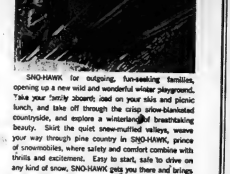
Chiefs Dominate Squad

NEW YORK (AP) — Kansas City Chiefs, the Western Division champions, dominated the voting for the American Football League all-star team as expected.

The unexpected developed when Jon Morris of Boston Patriots stole the centre spot on the elite squad from Jim Otto of Oakland Raiders.

While the Chiefs were grabbing nine spots on the 20-man squad, selected for The Associated Press by three-man committees in each of the league cities, Morris outpolled Otto, who had been picked for the first-string unit every year dating back to the league's first season of operation in 1960.

Morris drew 13 of the 27 votes to 10 for Otto.



Morris was joined on the first team by two Boston teammates, fullback Jim Nance, the only unanimous choice among the 22 players picked by the sports writers and sportscasters/writers in the AP poll, and Nick Buoniconti, the Patriots' middle linebacker.

But Kansas City took the big share with five men on the offensive unit and four men on the defensive squad.

Around Town

DONATES "EXPENSES"

NAPANEE — When voted an honorarium of $150 for "out of pocket expenses" at the meeting of the Town Council meeting last week, Mayor Lorne A. Smart stated that it would be given to charity. He knew of places where he could use many times that amount, he said.

WELFARE INCREASE

Because of people on the more welfare increased by approximately $1,500 in Napanee in November, and amounted to over $3000. Some of this can be charged back to other municipalities.

DONATE TO HOSPITAL

Many organizations are playing Santa Claus to the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital. Last Friday representatives of the Napanee Boy Scout troop presented gifts for children. Instead of exchanging gifts at their Christmas party they had contributed them to the hospital. These are now under the Christmas tree in the lobby.

Other gifts for adults will reach the hospital from the Business and Professional Women's Club, who also donated the gifts they should have received from other members. In addition, representatives of the Hospital Auxiliary who were guests at the dinner, were presented with a cheque for $200 to be used to purchase a gift cart. It will be made by the Hawley Industries in Deseronto, who turn out hand - crafted furniture. The Club will also purchase four stools for the canteen.

The White Elephant Store closed Saturday, and the volunteer manager, Mrs. Ila MacMaguire, turned over a total of $5,300 to the Rotary Club as proceeds for the season. Yet the store was closed for six weeks when she was ill. All proceeds are earmarked by the Rotary Club for the County Hospital.

PS Board Considers Hiring Doctor, Nurse

DESERONTO — At the final meeting of the school board last week, two letters dealing with the question of hiring a doctor and nurse for the Public School, were considered by the Board. Since September, Hastings County has had a health unit, but Deseronto has continued to provide the same services for its school as before that Health Unit was created.

A letter from the Hastings County Health Unit outlined the services provided for schools, pointing out that it was the same for all schools. A nurse has visited the school on three occasions, once each in September, October and November, has had conferences with some parents, and has visited some homes. Deseronto has continued to have the school visited all day two days a week by its own nurse. The feeling is that once a month is 'not sufficient for this school.

The letter from Inspector Paul Anderson dealt with the payment of services. He stated that the board has no authority for using public funds for such purposes, and that any ratepayer may charge the Board with the improper use of public money. He advised them to bring the matter to the attention of their solicitor. He pointed out, also, that by hiring additional services they are subjecting the town to double taxation, since they must also aid in the support of the County Health Unit.

A letter from Mrs. A. G. Wakeland noted that under the new arrangement she would no longer represent the School Board on the Library Board, which will henceforth have all four members appointed by the Town Council. She outlined the projects which had been carried through or started during her term of office, and thanked the Board for the honor of representing them.

A communication from the committee organizing Education Week March 2 through 12, 1967, requested the Board to make preparations to recognize it in some special way.

A communication from the Department of Education dealt with a social problem regarding a physically handicapped child. He is able to attend school only half days part of the time, and only if he has transportation. The Board had asked for information regarding grants either for/ transportation, or for providing a private teacher. In either case, grants covering 80 per cent of the expense will be forthcoming, the Board learned.

WILL TAKE TIME

OTTAWA (CP)—It will take another two months to decide whether the navy's experimental hydrofoil program is to continue, Defence Minister Hellyer told the Commons Monday. The prototype hydrofoil vessel was severely damaged by fire in the Esquimalt shipyard a few weeks ago.

TRUDY

"Very funny—but I have no intention of asking you for money."

Stevie Wise Back

Lady Listowel Returns to Night Club Role

TORONTO (CP)—Lady Listowel is back in town again, but this time as plain old Stevie Wise.

Miss Wise, whose life as the Countess of Listowel ended three years ago in a divorce court, has returned to a career of singing and acting which led to her becoming Ghana's first lady in 1957.

Miss Wise, who opened a five-night singing engagement at a downtown night club here Monday night, says of her comeback:

"I'm glad to be back in the business. That's where I belong. My satisfaction is performing; it's my whole life, the only thing I know. I'm alive when I work, miserable and depressed when I don't.

"It took awhile to get back into the swing of it. The great thing about it is that you can go on forever. Look at Edith Piaf. Look at Chaplin (Charlie). He's still young but he must be 80."

"I'm only 32 and I've got teachers and people who believe in me, not because I'm the Countess of Listowel, but because I'm me. And they like my work."

She left Toronto in 1954 and toured England with a dance band for two years. She then worked the Continent, based in Paris where she met William Francis Hare, Earl of Listowel, a Socialist member of the House of Lords.

The couple was married on Dominion Day, 1958. At the time, he was Governor General of Ghana, so she became Ghana's first lady.

"He was blinded by love," she says. "I was blinded by ignorance."

Although she had been told she could continue her work, "the word came from the Queen's secretary that if I worked, he (the Earl) would have to resign because I would be taking advantage of his position."

Being idle didn't work out for the hip, husky - voiced singer and, even when she had a daughter, Fiona, now 6, it couldn't stop the "amicable" divorce.

Back in England, Miss Wise became unimpressed with the life of an aristocrat.

"Possessions, when you have as many as I had, don't mean anything. You end up being caretaker for a bunch of machinery."

"I learned about isolation, and I learned a certain amount of discipline from that life. I had no depth before that and I am very thankful."

Walt Disney

Talent Puzzled Admirers

Following is the second of five articles on Walt Disney by Associated Press columnist Bob Thomas, author of two books on Disney and his methods.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The wellspring of Walt Disney's unique talent long puzzled admirers and critics.

Certainly nothing in his family background provided any hint of future greatness as a creator of a new art form, the animated film, as well as superlative showman in a variety of other mediums. He came from humble beginnings.

His father was of Irish stock, born in Canada and raised in a big family on a Kansas farm.

Disney's great grandfather, Elias Disney, emigrated from Ireland in 1836 to Huron County, Ontario. Elias had 16 children one of whom was Kepple, Walt's grandfather. The eldest of Kepple's children was Elias, Walt's father. At age 18, Elias moved his family to Kansas in 1877.

Elias Disney dabbled in a variety of enterprises, usually with scant success. He was a carpenter - contractor in Chicago, where Walt was born. Later the elder Disney went broke with a Missouri farm, then became a newspaper dealer in Kansas City, Mo.

Flora Call Disney, Walt's mother, came from staple German stock. She was a patient, understanding woman who tempered her husband's harshness toward their four sons. They also had a daughter.

Neither parent was artistic in nature, and Elias Disney displayed impatience with Walt's childish efforts at drawing.

"But I wanted to draw," Walt said a few months ago as he reminisced about his youth. "The thing I wanted most was to be a political cartoonist. My father fancied himself as a kind of a socialist, and he subscribed to socialist newspapers of the time. I studied their cartoons and tried to copy the style.

"After I got back from the war (in 1919), I tried to get a job cartooning for the Kansas City Star. The editor liked my samples, but the paper already had a political cartoonist."

Disney found a job with an advertising agency, drawing plows and threshers for catalogues. He was dropped in the season slump following Christmas.

Disney's next job started his career. He was hired by the Kansas City Film Ad Co. to draw advertising cartoons that played in movie houses. Young Walt found the oldtimers in the firm using the old method of cutting out paper figures, sticking pins in the joints and making them move.

"I thought there must have been a better way to make cartoons," he said later, "so I went to the public library and asked for all the books they had about cartooning. I found a better method, showed it to the boss and he installed it."

The restless urge to do things better marked the Disney style throughout his career. He was constantly tinkering with the animation medium. He introduced color cartoons with Steamboat Willie starring Mickey Mouse in 1928.

Flowers and Trees in 1932 brought the first cartoon in color. Another notable advance was The Three Little Pigs in 1933; it was the first time well-rounded characters had been used in cartoons.

Snow White (1937) marked the triumph of character, this time in the human form. The art of animation reached its height in Fantasia (1940).

Skelton's and Lucy Shows Up Close

NEW YORK (AP) — Only a devoted fan of television beauty pageants could appreciate the new daytime program launched Monday by ABC. It is called Dream Girl of '67.

The producers somehow managed to squeeze most of the worst aspects of the pageants and the cliches of other daytime guessing games into the 30-minute show.

The program was inspired by the Nielsen ratings of the evening beauty contests. The show each day will present four young women contending for "the coveted title of dream girl of 1967." Should the show last that long, the title will be awarded at some future date.

The young women paraded half - consciously before four male judges—the usual actors with movies to plug—and were asked inane questions such as "what would you take with you to live on the moon?" and "what are your beauty secrets?"

The answers were alleged to reveal the contestants' "beauty, intelligence, poise — everything!"

The girls then had to mince around in high-style pyjamas in a sort of fashion show. The judges chose one girl and she, of course, walked proudly down a runway—without the usual tears.

NBC led the three television networks in the latest national Nielsen report. During the two-week period ending Dec. 4, NBC had a rating of 20.2, followed by CBS with 18.9 and ABC, 16.9.

NBC's Bonanza remained the most popular program followed by CBS's Red Skelton and Lucy shows. Other programs in the top 10 were CBS' Andy Griffith Show, NBC's Jack Benny Special and Saturday Night at the Movie, CBS' Jackie Gleason Show, Green Acres and Ed Sullivan Show and NBC's Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color.

The report is considered significant because all three networks now are planning next season's schedules, and shows with weak Nielsen ratings usually are not permitted a second season.

Recommended tonight: CBS Reports, 10, EST, a report on "harvest-of mercy," grain shipments to India.

Gimmicks Still Abound

TORONTO (CP) — Ready-to-eat cereals with toys and sales gimmicks in packages are also continuing to sell in supermarkets despite a boycott started five days ago by protesting housewives.

The Canadian Consumers Protest Association, made up of representatives from 50 protest organizations from Halifax to Winnipeg, decided at an Ottawa meeting last week to start the boycott Dec. 15.

Monday, Toronto supermarkets reported cereal sales as high as ever, but Mrs. Nicholas Rondo, chairman of York Township's Women Against Soaring Prices group, said it is too soon to assess the boycott.

"What we have been able to do is make shoppers price and quality conscious and that is an important achievement even if shoppers do not follow the letter of the boycott entirely," she said.

Canadian UN Proposal Sent Back to Committee

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United Nations General Assembly has buried a Canadian proposal on peacekeeping operations following Soviet and French objections it would cause a grave new crisis in the UN.

The combined Soviet-French opposition led to the sidetracking Monday of a Canadian motion urging the Security Council and member countries to come to grips with the issues involved in UN peacekeeping.

Algeria, with 18 other nonaligned countries as co-sponsors, slipped in a motion to toss the whole peacekeeping question back to a special 33-country committee that has already labored for a year -15 vain. The assembly voted to give it priority over Canada's motion, then passed it 56 to 36, with 25 abstentions.

This manoeuvre succeeded, Canadian Ambassador George Ignatieff told reporters, because many countries had started to worry about the French and Soviet claims that the Canadian motion was unconstitutional and would cause another UN crisis.

"We don't agree with the criticism that our resolution strained the UN charter in any way," Ignatieff said. "However, those who feel a further effort to find a consensus should be made in the 33-country committee got their way, and we'll cooperate to the fullest extent."

Canada introduced its draft resolution in the first place, however, because it was disenchanted with the 33 - country committee, in which all decisions must be unanimous and no decisions have been taken.

As a result of the Algerian resolution, peacekeeping will be on the agenda—but won't necessarily come up—at a special assembly in April. The special session has been called to deal with South Africa's rule over South-West Africa and may defer action on other matters until the next regular session in September.

The general aim of the Canadian resolution was to ensure that the UN is always ready for whatever peacekeeping operations it decides to undertake. All UN peace forces to date have been put together in hasty response to a crisis and in at least two cases, Suez in 1956 and Cyprus in 1964, Canada took the lead in the tense, difficult job of improvising them.

Cents-off Packages Face Prospect of Ban

OTTAWA (CP)—New laws to prevent manufacturers from advertising price reductions on their packaged foods and other household goods have been recommended by the Senate-Commons prices committee, but legislative action may be slow.

The proposal to outlaw so-called "cents-off" deals was the only firm recommendation for immediate action contained in the committee's 5,000-word report tabled Tuesday in the Commons and Senate. Other recommendations were for longer-range measures.

From the outset of its public hearings last September, members of Parliament and senators expressed their suspicion of the cents-off deals offered by manufacturers of packaged foods, soaps, detergents, dentifrices and other products.

A package bearing a bold label "20 cents off" means little to the shopper, as Reid Scott, (NDP—Toronto Danforth) put it at one committee meeting, unless she knows "off what?"

The cents-off deal is supposed to be a reduction from regular prices. But Mr. Scott and other committee members said, few products have an easily-recognized regular price during a period when price changes are numerous and in a market situation in which there is intense competition between stores.

The committee found the cents-off device "tends to create uncertainty about what the regular retail price is."

"Anything which smacks of deception in advertising and merchandising is unacceptable," the committee said. "Competition or promotion on the basis of price or quality is a desirable goal, but competitive methods which create doubt or confusion should be prohibited."

Legal authorities have said it may be difficult to find a way to outlaw the practice. An amendment to the Criminal Code, making it a crime to offer a stated price reduction, may be difficult to draft. Parliament has limited constitutional powers to deal with pricing.

Another recommendation of legal authorities to be a field of provincial jurisdiction.

Other recommendations deal with broader subjects on which there is likely to be wider political debate-requiring companies to disclose fully their price, profit and cost figures and setting up a new department of consumer affairs headed by a federal minister.

Committee Co-chairman Ron Basford (L — Vancouver Burrard) and Senator David Croll (I.—Ont.) said they are hopeful their recommendations will be adopted by the government.

Senator Croll told reporters he thinks there is "a lot of common sense in the committee's recommendations," and added: "In my opinion, the government is in a mood to do something about them."

Mr. Basford said that while the recommendations hadn't been discussed with the government in advance, the government "is sympathetic and will be interested."

Since the committee's work started, the price line on food has been held and "vast empires of corporate holdings" have been disclosed that should have been public knowledge long ago, he said.

Senator Croll spoke of the Weston empire, controlling more than one-third of Canada's food business, and said:

"When a man or a group of men sit there with an empire about them, I feel there is at least a possibility they can influence prices unduly."

Mr. Basford said he thinks it likely the Garfield Weston interests will be called back before the committee, but he is undecided whether the size of food chains has a direct beneficial or adverse effect on prices.

New Democratic Party members of the committee issued a press release regretting the committee did not recommend adoption of the NDP proposal for a prices review board, backed by law to force back unwarranted price increases.

Mr. Basford said none of the witnesses appearing before the committee in its public hearings favored the prices review board and all—including the Canadian Labor Congress — "turned thumbs down on it." Price control could not be enforced without wage control, and the federal administration does not give Ottawa power to control prices in peacetime.

Recommendations

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of the report Tuesday by a joint Senate-Commons committee on its investigation of food prices:

A department of consumer affairs should be established with its own minister.

Cents-off labels — the advertising of goods at stated reductions from regular prices — should be prohibited because they confuse consumers and distort price relationships.

Full and complete disclosure should be required of activities of both public companies and private companies of significance to the public.

* * *

A joint committee should be established for the life of a parliamentary session to review consumer affairs and the state of the economy.

* * *

Immediate steps should be taken to promote standardization and simplification of grades, names and packaging for consumer items.

* * *

The consumer affairs minister should review techniques of investigating and prosecuting cases of misleading advertising.

* * *

More care should be taken in re-marking the prices of goods in the inventories of retail food stores.

Continental Buyers' Strike Farmers' Aim

WINNIPEG (CP) — The National Farmers' Union council will hold talks with the United States farm union movement to assess the feasibility of a common approach to a North American buyers' strike by farmers. This was one of several decisions reached at a two-day meeting which ended Tuesday.

The council will ask NFU affiliates to distribute a ballot to members to determine the degree of support for a boycott on purchases of farm machinery or alternative forms of strike action.

Roy Atkinson, Saskatchewan Farmers' Union president who was elected council chairman, said provincial farm unions and the NFU will make major submissions to the royal commission on farm machinery at hearings early next year.

Mr. Atkinson said it will be an attempt to further dramatize the adverse impact on farmers of the rising inflationary spiral of farm costs.

Paul Babey, president of the Farmers' Union of Alberta, was elected vice-chairman. Named to the executive were John Dolmage, president of the Ontario Farmers' Union, Vern Lahy, president of the Farmers' Union of New Brunswick, and Ken Singleton, president of the Manitoba Farmers' Union.

Parish Retains Go-go Minister

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of St. Anselm's Anglican Church voted by secret ballot Tuesday night to keep their controversial minister, Rev. James McKibbon.

Mr. McKibbon was called on the carpet by his bishop after he joined Rev. Harold McKay of University Hill United Church in putting on a "psychedelic" service featuring jazz music and a go-go girl at Mr. McKay's church Nov. 25 and 26.

Parts of the service were broadcast on CBC television.

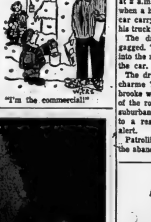
OTTAWA (CP) — There has been an increased tendency toward convenience-packaging of foods, says a report of the Senate-Commons prices committee tabled Tuesday in the Commons and Senate.

It would not comment on "the cultural aspects of this development", said the committee, but the higher costs of processing had to be recognized in consumer prices.



"If consumers prefer partially — or completely — prepared foods, they should be perfectly free to exercise their choice," the committee said. "However, if their time spent in the kitchen is reduced, it is to be expected that the cost of eating will be increased."

The report added:

"There are quite acceptable substitutes for many types of food and consumers can affect the prices of particular items simply by not buying them if they think the price is excessive.

"It is also true that some consumers could reduce their food budgets by shopping carefully, provided the retail food markets available to them are truly competitive.

"The conclusion of your committee is that if consumers are well informed and discriminating in their shopping practices, they can reduce their food bill appreciably in many cases."

California Tot's Heart Mended

TORONTO(AP)— Allyson Boanna Burleson of San Jose, Calif., was reported in satisfactory condition early today following a six-hour and 35-minute heart operation Tuesday at the Hospital for Sick Children.

A team of doctors, headed by Dr. William Mustard, world-renowned cardio-vascular surgeon, transposed the great vessels in the five-year-old's heart.

A hospital spokesman said early today that Allyson's condition was satisfactory, but she will be on the critical list for two or three days.

Allyson was a blue baby. A transposition of the great vessels in her heart reduced the supply of oxygen to her blood and her skin appeared blue.

A statement issued by the hospital 15 minutes after the operation said:

"Her color is improved since the operation and the pressure in the chambers of the heart is normal."

George Burleson, 32, father of the child, said he was told by Dr. Mustard that "everything went fine."

Mr. Burleson and his 30-year-old wife, Bea, were allowed to see Allyson shortly before the operation.

"She cried a little before she went down," Mr. Burleson said.

"But then she gave us a big smile and told us: 'I will be pink'."

"She will be pink," was the first thing Dr. Mustard told the Burlesons after the operation.

Mr. Burleson, a petty officer in the United States Navy, said he was going out to buy the largest red tricycle he could find.

Doctors in Oakland, Calif., had said that her best hope of survival lay in an operation by Dr. Mustard.

Allyson and her parents were flown to Toronto from California by the U.S. Air Force. Mr. Burleson said the U.S. Navy is paying for medical and transportation expenses.

Bandits Steal Hundred Bags Of Yule Mail

MONTREAL (CP) — Five hooded bandits hijacked a loaded mail truck crossing Victoria bridge early today and vanished with about 85 locked bags of first-class mail and 35 bags of parcels and Christmas mail.

Driven by Paul Emile Cadorette, the truck was bound for the main post office building in Montreal from Sherbrooke, Que., 100 miles east of here.

Mr. Cadorette told police that at 5 a.m. he was on the bridge when a high-powered late-model car carrying the thieves forced his truck to the side of the road.

The driver was bound and gagged. Two of the robbers got into the mail truck and followed the car.

The driver, employed by Ducharme Transport Co. of Sherbrooke was dumped on the side of the road 30 minutes later in suburban Brossard. He walked to a restaurant and gave the alert.

Patrolling police discovered the abandoned empty truck four hours later in east-end Montreal.

Postal authorities had no estimate of the loot.

Ontario Law To Back Auditor

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is considering amendments to its laws to ensure that auditors of public companies are independent and their duties clearly defined, Attorney - General Arthur Wishart said today.

In a 15 - page statement reviewing the collapse of Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd., he said the auditor is the person who stand between directors of public companies and the shareholders.

He said the government is also studying the question of having independent trustees act on behalf of note holders as a way of ensuring greater protection for investors.

Stork Finds Castaways

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)— Baby Roy Smith got a salty start in life—born in the glow of a flashlight after a shipwreck on a tropical island beach, with salt twine used to tie his umbilical cord.

The sturdy newcomer and his mother were reported thriving Tuesday in a Nassau hospital but his birthplace poses a problem.

"If he had been born on any other island—say Abaco or Eleuthera — we could name him for that," said his father, Capt. Stephen Smith. "But how can you christen a baby Rum Cay?"

Smith, 38, a former U.S. navy legal officer, and his wife, Barbara Ann, 27, were bound for the Virgin Islands in their brigantine Lalia when the 114-ton vessel ran aground on Rum Cay, a sparsely populated dot in the Bahamas, 180 miles southeast of Nassau.

The Smiths and two companions salvaged some food before the Lalia broke up. They rigged a tent from sails on a deserted beach 10 miles from Rum Cay's only settlement. There they lived on canned beans, rice and soup six days.

Mrs. Smith said she thought her first child was to be a Christmas baby "but at midnight on the fifth day I suddenly had labor pains. The child was born five hours later, Nov. 28."

Smith said: "All I knew was that people are supposed to beat a lot of water at such times but I didn't know what you were supposed to do with it except maybe to make coffee.

"In any case we were down to our last gallon. I sterilized my pocket knife in a can of boiling water and cut the umbilical cord. Luckily I had a foot of nylon sail thread handy so was able to tie it off."

Twenty-four hours after the birth a Bahamas air-sea rescue unit picked up the party.

Chinese Engineer Assumes Duties

One of two vacancies on the city's engineering staff was filled this week with the arrival of a young Chinese McGill University graduate to assume the position as assistant city engineer.

The new assistant city engineer is Kevin U., native of Hong Kong who has been in Canada for the past seven years.

Kevin lived in Hong Kong until he finished high school and then came to Canada to study civil engineering at McGill. Since graduating in 1964 he has worked with a firm of consulting engineers at Port Arthur and also with the North York engineering department. He has a brother working in Toronto as a chemical engineer.

NEVER ON MAINLAND

Kevin grew up in Hong Kong during a period when China was in a state of civil war and says he never visited the Chinese mainland. In fact he never saw snow until he came to Canada. He's been in Belleville only two days but already is fitting in with the department routine.

Yesterday he was out checking grade levels on a new section of North Yeomans Street being built in the College Street area.

Kevin fills the vacancy caused by the resignation of Michael McMahon. The position of deputy city engineer being left vacant by the resignation of Dick Kraft is expected to be filled early in the New Year.

Open Front Door Policy Suggested for 1967

STIRLING — Ralph C. Banbury, retired agricultural representative for the Brighton area, has a novel idea for rural centennial observance.

Fewer than half the rural people in Ontario use their front doors", he says, and suggests and "open front door" policy in 1967.

"Make an effort in centennial year to beautify the front of the farmhouse and open that front door to your centennial year guests".

Mr. Banbury made his remarks at the annual meeting of Hastings Fabn Safety Council in Stirling Legion Hall Thursday.

He also suggested pioneers of 100 years ago should be honored by this generation and every cemetery across the country should be given a good condition. Farm houses inherited from ancestors deserve good up-keep and repair.

Officers elected were Ridley Wallbridge of Belleville, president; Ross Carlisle of Stirling, 1st vice-president; W. D. Tiffer, secretary-treasurer.

Before the meeting, St. Paul's UCW catered for a dinner in the church hall.

Two Fined For Impaired Driving

Two Belleville men were fined in city magistrate's court Tuesday after pleading guilty to impaired driving charges.

Lloyd George Walters, 301 Dufferin Ave. was fined $75 and costs and John H. Sills, of Marshall Road received a fine of $100 and costs.

Both men had pleaded not guilty to drunk driving but changed their plea when the Crown reduced the charges.

All Animals In Pound Get Homes

The city animal pound will be a desolate place this Christmas, thanks to the efforts of the Belleville Humane Society.

A society spokesman said this week that all of the dogs, cats, and one solitary squirrel that were pound tenants have been placed in homes in time to enjoy the benefits of the holiday season.

Turkey leftovers will probably provide no problems in these homes.

Will Discuss Possible Uses For Building

TRENTON — On Friday, starting at 11 a.m., town council will meet with Ontario Municipal Board representatives to discuss possible uses for the old federal building. The town put in a bid with Crown Assets Disposal Corp. ($41,500) for the building, but the OMB hearing comes about owing to a counter bid from ex-council-man Weaver and Joseph Gould, who claim that council does not have any concrete plan for its use of the building and land, and that they should be permitted to buy it unless council comes up with a stated use which would justify the spending of taxpayers' money in the eyes of the OMB.

2-way Fight For Murray Council Seat

TRENTON — It will be a two-way contest for one seat on Murray Township council when voters go to the polls Dec. 26.

In the running are James Day and James Quinn.

Yesterday, nominees Douglas Tufford, Douglas Whitley and William Sidor did not choose to quality. Mr. Sidor said he might be in the running next year but felt he could not devote the necessary time to municipal affairs this year.

Poor Catches Pollution and Tourism Blamed

PICTON — Commercial fishermen were warned here last night their industry might vanish completely from Eastern Ontario Waters.

Bruce Cooper, president of the Eastern Ontario Commercial Fishermen's Association, told the group's annual meeting here that white fish and pickerel catches were the poorest ever. He said pollution and tourism were named as major factors in the situation.

Mr. Cooper said some fishermen in the area — many of whom live in Prince Edward County, fishing the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario — had been forced to suspend operations for periods of time because of dwindling fish resources.

"One of the fisherman's main concerns," Mr. Cooper said later in an interview, "was the closing off of fishing areas for conservation purposes by the Department of Lands and Forests."

The main problem, he believed, was pollution and he couldn't see where closing the waters is going to help. It's evading the issue."

"There's not much to conserve at the present. They're closing off areas that have been open to the commercial fishermen for 100 years."

"I think the fishermen have spunken to such a state of pessimism and disillusion that we just don't have the heart to try," he added.

Mr. Cooper said the decline in the local industry set in about 1961 and since that time many commercial fishermen have had to take other jobs.

Dr. A. C. Blackhurst, manager of the Ontario Fisheries Council, blamed the problem on water pollution.

Norman Patrick, Department of Lands and Forests district foresters at Tweed agreed with the poor picture of fishing resources in the area.

He said, however, that criticism of the department's research hatcheries at Glenora was unwarranted.

Russell Whitfield, chief department district biologist at Tweed, warned of a pattern shaping up for the area similar to Lake Erie, which had lost much white fish.

He advised it was essential to constantly monitor the environment of Bay of Quinte waters.

There are an estimated 200 commercial fishermen in an area from Brighton east to Kingston.

Tinkering!

Low-hanging decorations make ideal playthings for a cat, especially if one's name is Tinker. Mr. and Mrs. B. Balyx put up this tree for, they discovered, Tinker's amusement.

Large Crowd Attends Yule Pageant

NAPANEE — As in other years, Trinity United Church was filled to capacity for its five o'clock presentation of the Christmas pageant last Sunday afternoon. Both presentation and decorations have tended to become more modern lately. Instead of many lighted and decorated Christmas trees, this year there were only two small ones. Instead of candlelighting or, more likely, flood lighting was used, with blue illuminating the stained glass windows, and amber the exterior of the building. The only candles were in two matching walnut candelabra, so fashioned that the tall white candles were graduated in height.

The theme of the pageant was "I would see Jesus". Young folk dressed for the outdoors arranged wooden figures in a Nativity scene before a rustic stable. These figures then came to life.

Most of those taking part were members of the minister's senior Sunday School class. The exceptions were Mr. and Mrs. Lorne VanHaaren, who depicted Joseph and Mary; and Lorri Lea Walker, Donnie Finlay, Robert Walker, and Elaine Johnston, who represented little angels.

Both junior and senior choirs sang several anthems, and united in one. Soloists were Cathy Allenbranch and William Aylsworth. The tiny tots of the Sunday school sang two selections.

The organist is Mrs. William Aylsworth of Madoc. She is director of the senior choir and her husband of the junior choir.

Committee to Probe Welfare Starts Work in New Year

The special committee from city council appointed this week to investigate recent welfare complaints, is not expected to commence inquiries until after Christmas or early in the New Year.

This was stated yesterday by Alderman Donald Williams, chairman of the investigating committee. Other committee members are Alderman Enos David and Douglas Boyle.

In naming the committee Mayor J. R. Ellis said members were to thoroughly investigate all complaints and were to interview welfare recipients, officials of local public welfare agencies and of the city welfare department.

Complaints regarding the welfare department included assertions that relief recipients were not being treated decently when application was made; that they were made to wait too long before assistance was given and that welfare payments were not adequate for needs.

On the other hand welfare department officials claim no one is going hungry, and Mayor Ellis says he is satisfied on the operation of the department.

Had Three Trials

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Hercz, 26, of Toronto, was sentenced Monday to a year in jail after a jury at his third trial found him guilty of uttering counterfeit money. Hercz was charged after he used three counterfeit $20 bills to pay his rent. His first two trials ended in jury disagreements.

Paving Work Is Delayed Until Spring

TRENTON — Town engineer Eric Aldersey said today that yesterday's snowfall had forced postponement of plans to apply a one-and-a-half inch coat of asphalt to Front Street in the area where Carr's Electric have installed a sewer main. All paving work will be done in the spring.

Meanwhile, the sewer is in south of the new bridge area. The road will be made passable for the winter.

After Christmas, Carr's will start sewer installation north of the new bridge area to Bondhead.

Lightfoot have completed the installation of an eight-inch sanitary sewer and an eight-inch watermain on Edwards Street and is now working on house connections.

Edward Street residents have had water service but with very little pressure but have not had sewer service before.

Fire Brigade Holds Party For Children

DESERONTO — The Deseronto Volunteer Fire Brigade held its annual Christmas party for all the children of the members last Saturday afternoon. The 36 children had fun watching the films, and still more fun when somebody, cookies, ice cream and chocolate milk were served. The climax came when Santa arrived and gave each child a bag of candy and a gift.

Wednesday evening the firemen will fill 700 bags of candy and oranges to be given out to children and old folk when they visit the school and then some of the homes Thursday afternoon.

Names Will Be Received For Boards

The invitation is out for public spirited and municipally-minded Belleville residents who might wish to serve as city council appointees to various boards and commissions.

At Monday's meeting of city council, Mayor J. R. Ellis, said council would be holding a caucus meeting on January 23th to consider board appointments for 1967 and suggested that persons desirous of serving should make this known to City Clerk Adam Stalker prior to this date.

Board vacancies to be filled by council appointments include the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, Transit Commission, Court of Revision, Hospital Board, Parks and Recreation Commission and the Retarded Children's Education Committee.

CLASSY CHASSIS — Ken Vivian at the wheel of 1929 Ford tourer which he hopes to enter in Centennial tour — after rehabilitation of 50 other antique cars.

Antique Autos
Shannonville Workshop Springs to Life

Ken Vivian has a personal Centennial project that is probably among the most painstaking individual plan in the country.

In fact, to complete it he will shortly become a one-man assembly line turning out Canada's newest models — in antique cars.

He also is hoping to take to the road himself as part of a 100-car cavalcade of classic automobiles scheduled to rendezvous at Expo '67.

However, first things first. And, during the first days of the New Year, Ken rolls up his sleeves and goes to work on about 50 antique autos now in mothballs in the workshops behind his Shannonville home.

"I want to be ready to get going after Christmas. We hope to get out the cars for show purposes or for the road," he says.

The collection of classics has been accumulating gradually since the days when he was a Ford dealer at Shannonville.

Many of them came as tradeins during his more than 30 years in the business. Since 1957, when he gave up the business, he has made a few purchases of antiques lying around the countryside to add to his one-man museum.

WIDE RANGE ON HAND

The models range from a 1908 Model-T Ford to the earliest streamliners of the mid-30s.

However, the four-wheeler he probably feels the fullest attachment to is a 1924 Ford, which he and his wife drove on their wedding day. It's been in storage since the early '30s, Ken says.

Howevrr, Ken and antique autos actually is no stranger in the public. Spectators of such special events as the Belleville Santa Claus parades have seen him on several occasions in at least two cars he has restored in recent years—Fords vintage 1924 and 1926.

It's the 1926 model—a stick-running phaeton, or tourer, that he hopes to take to Expo.

If he goes it will be as part of the Canadian Tire Centennial Tour, which will draw entries from across Canada.

Ken already has his bid in and hopes to hear about mid-February that his bid has been accepted.

The trip will see him finally taking time from his crash production program in his Shannonville shops.

Most of the project he will perform personally, although he may use some help from time to time, he says.

Most of the cars, he figures, are in good running order.

"The biggest part of it will be cleaning them up and getting paint jobs on them," he believes.

Air Commodore Sends Message For Christmas

As 1966 draws to a close, I am pleased to extend to all of our friends in the Bay of Quinte region my warmest wishes for a full and happy holiday season.

Throughout the year Air Transport Command personnel have served Canada in many parts of the globe working with our NATO allies and the United Nations to help bring "peace on earth." It is my fervent hope that our efforts on behalf of peace will continue to meet with success in the years to come.

We in Air Transport Command are grateful for the part we play in the scheme of things and our job is made so much easier by the goodwill and friendship extended to all members of the command by our civilian neighbors.

From Air Transport Command to each of you — best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a happy centennial year.

Use Different Methods to Count Noses

Canada census takers and assessment department officials at city hall apparently do not use the same yardstick when it comes to counting noses.

At any rate there is a difference of more than 600 in figures for this year taken by the Canada census takers and city hall employees, Assessment department figures for 1966 list the city's population as 32,864 as compared with 32,318 listed by the Federal nose counters.

The result has been that members of city council are at a loss to know just which set of figures is correct.

Several weeks ago during discussion on a request for an application to have the Quinte area declared a designated area, one alderman said Belleville's population for 1965 had increased by only 97 over that of 1965.

Mayor J. R. Ellis on the other hand was quite certain the increase had been nearer the 1,000 mark.

This week Aldermas Jack Allin cited figures from the assessment department showing that the 1966 city population to be 32,864 as compared with 32,357 in 1965 and 31, 960 in 1964.

At the same time Dominion census figures show a population of 32,318 for this year.

In 1961 Canada Census figures showed the city with a population of 30,655. The assessment department figure for the same year was 29,162.

City Assessment Commissioner Leighton Thompson says that usually the Canada Census count is higher than that taken by the city.

"This year is the first time the Dominion count was less than ours," he said.

Fight Deadline
May Not Finish School on Time

Shortage of building materials, strikes and material delivery delays still plague construction progress at the new Sir John A. Macdonald Public School in West Belleville.

Members of the Belleville Public School board at their final meeting of the year Monday, were told that only with the greatest difficulty can the building be completed by the scheduled January 31st completion date.

Difficulty of access to the new school site on Harder Road west of the Centennial Secondary School was given as an added reason for the construction delay.

Today City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said that extremely wet fall weather had slowed the installation of the sewer on Harder Road and that no attempt was being made to complete the roadway until the sewer was in.

NO REQUESTS MADE

At no time had their been any request for completion of the roadway to provide access to the new school site, he said.

However, Mr. Purcell said every effort would be made to have the roadway constructed by January 31st, the scheduled date for completion of the school.

Monday evening's board meeting was one of the shortest of the year with business being completed by shortly after 9.00 o'clock.

Chairman Macdonald Smith summarized the year's board activities, covering such items as employee relationships, public relations, growth and development of the system and the harmonious relationships within the board.

Two special committee reports, one dealing with a long term view of board organization and the other an interim submission of board - teacher relations, were tabled for discussion in the New Year.

FREE SERVICE DONATED

Board members expressed pleasure at information from the general manager of Cablevue TV that free service would be available for all public schools in the city, the board to be responsible for installation and cost of materials only.

The board was also informed that the board and city schools would benefit from a centennial project of the National Film Board.

Belleville has been selected as one of the 21 school systems having suitable audio-visual library program and library and the Film Board will present Canadian history films with a value of approximately $1,500.

Formal presentation of the films will be made at a special meeting to be held January 4th at 4.30 p.m.

The report of schools superintendent L. A. Kells showed a total enrolment of 5,200 pupils with attendance efficiency of 95.46 per cent.

Congratulation was extended to Inspector R. D. Horwood and Principal D. L. Moore, both of whom will be granted Master of Education degrees at the next convocation of the University of Toronto.

Mr. J. Nelson McGibbon was re-appointed as the board's nominee to the Bay of Quinte District High School Board for the year 1967. Mr. McKibbon is a former chairman of the Belleville Public School Board.

Plan Farmers' Short Course

As a result of enquiries and interest shown by farmers and farm groups, a new Short Course is planned for the County of Hastings. It will be for a three - week period, and will take place in the Legion Hall, Stirling, January 23rd to February 10, inclusive. The course will run five days a week during the dates mentioned, starting at 11 a.m. and concluding at 3.30 p.m. The intention of the course is to offer the most up-to-date information possible. This information will be specifically related to particular farm problems. The information will come under the various headings: farm income tax; farm credit; production problems; and, business management. In addition to these, there will be one or two feature days. For example, on February 8, those attending the Short Course will attend the Mastitis Workshop which is being planned for Stirling.

The importance of good business management in the farm business is well understood. Part of this depends on some form of records, and now a new feature is coming into the picture. This involves the farmer in such things as Workmen's Compensation, Unemployment Insurance, Canada Pension Plan, and OMSIP. To take full advantage of these, an accurate accounting system must be used. This is not difficult, it is mostly a matter of getting started properly so it can be kept up-to-date. It is the intention to try and provide this information in a short course.

A nominal registration fee will be charged in the amount of $6. This will be used to provide supplementary material and any additional costs which are necessary. Any part of the fee which is not required will be refunded at the conclusion of the course on the basis of attendance and participation. The course is designed to operate during the middle of the day to provide the least possible interference with normal farm work of the wintertime.

Soviet Court Jails American

LENINGRAD (AP)—A Soviet court today sentenced Noel Ray Wortham Jr. to three years in a restricted labor camp and fined him 1,000 rubles Gilmour Jr. 1,000 rubles ($1,111).

The two American youths were found guilty of violating Soviet currency regulations. Wortham also was convicted of stealing a statue of a bear.

Candlelight Ceremony Is Held

DESERONTO — Christmas was celebrated in song and story at the candlelight service in the Deseronto United Church Sunday evening at 7.00. The narrative was read at first by the minister, the Rev. Russell Finlay, with Mr. Donald Fingland, clerk of the session, reading the concluding portion when Mr. Finlay had to leave early. A similar service was being held at eight in Morven, a second church in the charge several miles away.

Several anthems were rendered by the senior choir, and a medley of Christmas carols by the junior choir. They united in presenting one number. Soloists were Mrs. Gordon Stephens of Napanee, and Mrs. William Higgins and Mr. Ernest Crispo of Deseronto.

Organist and choir director is Mrs. H. T. Simpson of Napanee.

The church was beautifully decorated with poinsettias and two lighted trees, and a Nativity scene before the altar.

Lakes Unsafe
Not Ready for Ice Fishing

Prediction patterns presented a mixed-up weather map for the Quinte district today in the wake of winter's first sustained snowfall.

Some snow showers, the possibility of freezing drizzle and low cloud ceilings predominated the forecast from Canadian Forces Base Trenton weather office this morning.

It followed the wake of a two-inch snowfall yesterday across the area.

District dwellers adjusted easily to the change in conditions.

Police said there were no serious accidents while the emergency ward at Belleville General Hospital reported there were no pedestrians treated for falls.

In the northern townships of the Quinte district more snow was reported this morning at Bancroft and Tweed.

Between three and four inches of snow was reported at Bancroft yesterday.

Moondine, the Department of Lands and Forests at Tweed issued a warning against the use of lakes for ice fishing despite continuing colder weather.

While most lakes north of Highway 7 are frozen over they are still unsafe for traveling and angling.

The Mini-Budget

Finance Minister Sharp's long-awaited mini-budget will be received with mixed feelings by Canadians. It will hit some harder than others, depending on their income.

In other words, while all Canadians will share the burden of the one per cent rise in sales tax (to 12 per cent), those in higher income brackets will also pay more in pension tax.

The latter imposition will affect 2,300,000 taxpayers out of 6,500,000. This "upper third," as they have been dubbed, include single taxpayers earning above $4,100, married taxpayers earning above $5,100, and married taxpayers with two children earning above $5,700. They are the ones whom Mr. Sharp has singled out to bear the brunt of the cost of increased pensions.

It seems the budget could have been worse, although coming as it does at Christmas time is scarcely guaranteed to improve the image of either Mr. Sharp or the Government. On the other hand the cost of living is such that higher pensions for the older folk have long been regarded as a necessity.

For the latter the budget is good news. The budget enables the Government to raise the $200 million the new, augmented income program for the aged. At the same time this will give an estimated deficit of $320 million for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1967, or more than double the $150 million forecast by Mr. Sharp in the March 1966 budget speech.

Building materials and production machinery, already subject to heavy tax, have been left untouched. Any rise in this area would have been unpopular.

As it is, Canadians may look forward to paying more for practically everything except food (we hope). Indeed, Centennial Year for Canadians will be something of a paradox, for in the midst of the celebrations the shape of the country's history all of us will have to take more seriously the warnings that we are spending more than our means.

Christmas Cards

Canadiana — or the things pertaining to this county's history and traditions — is coming more to the forefront of people's thinking these days.

The Christmas season is lending emphasis to this trend, as manufacturers and artists turn to scenes from Canada's past, as well as to the contemporary scene. The paintings of Cornelius Krieghoff come to mind; they have long been featured, and this is not surprising since the atmosphere they evoke, of the rural scene in winter and of pioneer days, are so much a part of the spirit of the Canadian Christmas.

And in Toronto, for instance, available scenes include a reproduction of a 1929 painting of the St. Lawrence market, one of St. James' Cathedral, and another shows Osgoode Hall.

For some years now the United Nations Children's Fund has benefited from the sale of cards bearing reproductions of scenes by international artists. This year they include works by Japanese and Senegalese painters, as well as the Canadian Eskimos of Cape Dorset.

Adding lustre to Christmas, of course, are the cards from overseas. Like Canadian scenes on cards from Scandinavia often feature the stark beauty of the northern winter — great expanses of snow and barren woodland. One such is Frostmorgon (as the name implies, "A Frosty Morning") by Carl Larsson, a native of Norrman. It shows two men on a horsedrawn toboggan and it could be a scene right out of Dr. Zhivago.

A Christmas card from British depicts The Great China Tea Race of 1866, when 11 clippers engaged in a three-month long ocean race from Foochow to London. The sale of this card aids the Shipwrecked Fishermen and Mariners Benevolent Society.

In the southern hemisphere Christmas time is mid-summer. Season's greetings there often reflect the beauty of nature in the lands "down under."

From New Zealand for instance, there are scenes such as the majestic Milford Sound, in the heart of the Southern Alps, and of the country's "Christmas tree" — the flaming red pohutukawa.

And from Ireland too comes a scene of natural beauty — the ocean at The Giant's Causeway, that extraordinary basaltic formation formed long ago by volcanic action on the Antrim coast.

One of the most beautiful cards this year is one showing a Spanish mission church in California, and it comes to us from friends locally.

The card we have enjoyed receiving most perhaps, as being true to the real spirit of Christmas, shows two youngsters — brother and sister — gazing out at the evening star, just before going to bed on Christmas Eve. This one comes from England, and it also benefits a good cause — the Cripples' Help Society of that country.

Merry Christmas!

The YMCA boys' choir under the direction of Ed Sherrit will be heard over station CFRC on Saturday evening singing traditional European carols seldom heard in the Belleville area. The boys' choir from the local "Y" have made quite a name for themselves and this evening's performance over the air will give listners in the Belleville area the opportunity of hearing them. The local boys' choir is the only chorus in Eastern Ontario using European carols.

Today in History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 21, 1964

— The last stand of the first English parliamentarians ended 700 years ago today—in 1265—when the rebels surrendered Kenilworth Castle to the king after a six - month siege. Their leader, Simon de Montfort, who called England's first Parliament, had already been killed in battle. Kenilworth Castle, which still stands today, may be more than 1,000 years old. Its walls enclose seven acres and contain "Caesar's Tower," with walls 18 feet thick.

1853—The first Canadian infantry and cavalry schools were established.

1929 — The steamer Lee Cheong sank near Hong Kong, drowning 300 people.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916 — British units from Egypt occupied El Arish in the Sinai peninsula after building a water pipeline across the desert; the British government decided to release prisoners of the Easter Rising in Ireland.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941 — an Atlantic convoy reached Britain after destroying three submarines and two aircraft for the loss of two warships; British columns in Libya destroyed 37 Axis aircraft on the ground and occupied Cirene; the British retreated on Sidon in eastern Malaya.

Beauty Versus Utilitarianism

Toronto Star

A letter writer the other day complained that under Mayor Dennison there will be nothing to show visitors except "sewers and sanitary reports" in contrast to things like the Bay City Hall which he credits to Mayor Givens.

He has raised an issue here that goes far beyond the personalities and records of these two men.

For many years in Toronto—and indeed in every major city around the world—there has been a fundamental conflict of priorities.

On the one side are those who believe that all the available funds of a municipality should go into such things as sewers and water supply, rapid transit, hospitals, public housing and other services contributing to the health, convenience and comfort of the inhabitants.

On the other there are those who want the emphasis to be on beauty—fine public buildings, beautiful parks, impressive streets and squares.

Each of these groups, it seems to us, has lost sight of some essential facts.

The "beauty first" enthusiasts are not looking sufficiently ahead at everything through the eyes of potential visitors. They have to consider the needs of the people who live and work in the city.

Global travellers disagree as to which is the world's most beautiful city. Some say Venice, some Peking; some favor Isfahan, the old capital of Iran; while Cairo, Istanbul and Rio de Janeiro all have their champions. But it is noteworthy that few of the admirers of any of these cities would care to live there—at least under the conditions of life of the ordinary inhabitants.

But the utilitarians also overlook something—everything in fact that is implied in the saying "Man does not live by bread alone." And they, too, have perpetrated their own horrible examples.

There are model suburbs scattered across North America which are masterpieces of planning in all the basic conveniences of living. But the houses are all alike and ugly; the landscaping is empty and monotonous and there is a complete absence of anything beautiful or colorful.

Fortunately, we do not have to choose between these extremes. The wealth and knowledge available in the 20th century make it possible in earlier times—to combine beauty with comfort, health and convenience in the layout of a great city.

We should be able to have sewers and subways and decent housing and also fine buildings and parks and fountains to delight the eye and the mind. The art of municipal statesmanship lies in using the available resources to secure both these ends.

Britain Looks to Europe

Ottawa Journal

On November 21 we printed on this page several columns of an address by Sir Henry Lintott, the British High Commissioner, in which he put forward a variety of reasons why he believed the reports of Britain's death were premature. It was a very optimistic address and gave heart to many who have expressed their gratification at our use of it. If we may slightly alter the usual meaning of the phrase that one good turn deserves another we present here the conclusion of an article in the current issue of the American quarterly Foreign Affairs by Iain Macleod, former House Leader and member of the Tory "shadow cabinet".

Concluding this article as I do in the midst of the umpteenth economic crisis that Britain has suffered since the war, it would be neither surprising nor shameful if doubts assailed me about the future of my country. But even on a dark day, to quote Boswell, cheerfulness is always breaking in. The critics may dismiss this cheerfulness as "relentless frivolity." But since when was it a reproach to be known as Merrie England? And for all our trials and tribulations there is some cause left to be 'merrie.' Mine is still a very good country to live in. Its institutions are popular. Its justice is even-handed. Its press is free. Its tolerance and gentleness are still a byword. Its standard of living is among the highest in the world. It leads in many branches of pure science and applied technology, and excels in more than one of the arts. It has confidence, shoulder large and proud responsibilities, to the Alliance and to the Commonwealth. Now it waits for the first favorable opportunity to augment its status and influence by helping to create a new power grouping in Europe — co-operative with the United States, but rivalling in its size, skills and resources. The conviction grows daily that Britain's responsibilities can best be maintained if she returns to the Continent of which she was once geographically, and has always been spiritually, an integral part."

Pension Anomaly

Fort William Times-Journal

Under the supplementary old age pension plan, pensioners who want to get married cannot collect both. Each individual thereafter may get as much as $30 a month additional to the basic $75. But if they marry, the wages have to give up the $30 if the man is earning $120 a month in addition to his pension. Thus in marrying, the pair would exchange total benefits of $330 for $300.

In this case two could not live as wealthily as one. But bold! What would happen if the two decided on common law marriage? Is such a situation covered by the legislation?

Badly Infected Kidney Can be Dangerous

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter is three and has always been healthy and full of energy. Suddenly she developed a high fever. Six months ago I noticed that she was going to the bathroom frequently and detected excessive amounts of water.

The doctor examined her and found pus in the urine. He began giving her medication but said tests showed quite a bit of pus still. So he X-rayed the kidneys and said the left one is not functioning properly.

He wants me to take her to a urologist and I have made an appointment. Doctor said if there was a possibility of removal of the kidney but that the operation is not serious and that it is good that it was found early.

Could she live a normal life with the kidney removed? Would she have to be under medication the rest of her life? —Mrs. N. M.

It sounds as though this condition has some congenital defect in the left kidney which is conducive to recurrent infections.

You can be sure that a urologist, a specialist in this field, will not remove a kidney unless it is absolutely necessary. There are instances when it is.

Yes, people can live very well with one kidney (note that this is true of a twin who gives one kidney to transplant when the brother or sister loses both kidneys.) A single kidney tends to enlarge a bit and does the work formerly done by both.

Once the diseased kidney is removed, there would be no necessity for continuing medication. So, basically, it appears in the case) that the other kidney is normal.

There is a great risk in a chronically infected kidney. Further danger is that infection in one eventually can spread to the other. There is very good reason for removing a kidney when infection cannot be cleared up permanently, especially if there is some anatomical defect.

I suggest that you ask the urologist the same questions you have asked me. I expect that the answers will be the same, but he can answer after having discovered by examination just what your daughter's condition is. I have had to go on the basis of certain assumptions.

Dear Dr. Molner: My doctor says I have a tumor and need a hysterectomy. I am 34 years old.

I have been told (not by my doctor but by some other people) that after the hysterectomy I won't have any feeling for my husband in marital relations. Is this true? I need help desperately. — Mrs. G. E. B.

That is completely untrue. Marital relations will not be affected. You will not, however, be able to have children, of course.

Whether the operation will bring on the menopause or "change of life" depends on whether it is necessary to remove the ovaries as well as the uterus. When the ovaries are removed, it is called "surgical menopause." If this also is being done, then you will be helped by reading my booklet, "Make Menopause Easier," which explains this in detail and also explains what you can do to minimize the symptoms. To get a copy you need only write to me, Dr. Molner, Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing 25 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter is being treated for trachoma but doesn't know where she got it. Would the food she eats affect it? — C. E. W.

Food has nothing to do with it. Trachoma is an infectious disease of the eye. Recent research there cases to exchanging towels, eye pencils, powder puffs, etc.

Letter to Editor

Local Interest in Archery

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

On behalf of the Belleville Archery Club I would like to thank you and your paper for the nice write-up by Mr. Richard Alden Knight in the Dec. 19 issue. The stories related by Mr. Knight are one of the main reasons why the Belleville Archery Club was formed.

An inexperienced archer with little working knowledge of his equipment, its capabilities, his capabilities, type of game he plans to hunt, can hardly be classed as a bowhunter.

Our club in co-operation with the Dept. of Lands and Forests and the East Central organization of conservation clubs has taken this a step further. We feel there should be some test for archers to pass, with regard to safety, type of equipment, knowledge of game and an overall standard of marksmanship, before any archer may be classified as a bowhunter. With the bow now being classed as a weapon in the Province it is the very near future should become compulsory.

One point we would like to clear up however is the statement made by Mr. Knight. "The average bowhunter is not a good marksman, or woodsman." This we disagree with most emphatically. The average bowhunter belongs to an organized club has at some time been a very successful gun hunter and is looking forward to something that offers more of a personal challenge. He is a hunter most of his spare time practising.

This man, after a season of constant practice, is more than capable of hitting what he is aiming at, knows far more about hunting than most and is far safer to hunt with than the inexperienced gun hunter who thinks that what he sees moving bears' rifle to have a go at deer hunting.

I have as Mr. Knight's statement about "the relative newness of the sport," considering that the first archery club centers a span of approximately 3,000 years the bow is certainly part of man's oldest inheritance. It may seem difficult to see how man with his' longrange rifles and atomic power can owe anything to the bow and arrow. Yet if we take the same bow and arrow which helped to raise man above the animal kingdom and set him on the path of progress.

Mr. Knight also leaves the impression that a deer or other game animal shot with a rifle doesn't move after its shot and does instantaneously. We disagree, as many hunters with a rifle have had to track game over long distances after it was well placed. The same applies to the bow and arrow.

We are in agreement that inexperienced archers, as well as inexperienced gun hunters, are as big a menace to the woods as impaired drivers are on busy highways.

The Belleville Archery Club is dedicated to safety in hunting with both bow and rifle, to conservation and to educating the general public in the proper use and safety in handling of archery equipment.

Belleville Archery Club,
Floyd Armstrong,
President.

Strictly Personal

Impertinence or Logic?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"Daddy, have you seen my sailboat anywhere?" asked my younger son.

"No," I said. "Where were you playing with it last?"

"If I knew where I was playing with it last, it wouldn't be lost, would it?" he retorted.

After boxing his ears for this bit of impertinence, and selling him for two weeks beyond the reaches of Batman, (well, I thought about doing it), I reflected upon our little dialogue and decided that my question was indeed a silly one.

One reflection leads to another and it then struck me that parents probably make more absurd and irrational remarks than their children do. Only we don't hear ourselves saying them.

"Why haven't you done your homework?" is a classic example of a pointless question that a child soon learns to tune out. What answer can he give but one? "I don't care to do it," or "I was having too much fun playing," or "I'll get around to it when I'm ready," or "It doesn't have to be in until Friday" — the last of which is probably a terrible lie.

Parent noises are boring, predictable, and basically unanswerable. They are not made to elicit an answer from the child (we know very well that the answer to "Why don't you eat your carrots?" is "I hate them."), but to express the parent's anger, irritation, dissatisfaction, impatience, or disgust at the disparity between parental commitment and childish immediacy.

There are hundreds of jokes about "the questions children ask," but such questions are models of logic, directness and realism compared with the questions parents ask, every day and every night, with depressing regularity.

"Why didn't you wash your hands?" "How do you expect to grow if you don't study?" "Do you think you'll be strong enough to play football if you don't drink your milk?" "Why are you so mean to your little sister?" "Can't you talk without shouting?" "Didn't I tell you to empty the trash?" "Have you spent all your allowance already?" Etc.

When parents sigh that the child "never listens," maybe it's because the child has been listening to so many idiotic questions for so many years that they now come through like radio static. Of course, if David knew where he was "just playing" with the sailboat, it wouldn't be lost. Pretty soon he'll stop asking his dumb father anything.

Macao—Den Of Intrigue

Ottawa Journal

The Encyclopaedia Britannica mentions Macao as one of the "unrestricted gaiety" of Macao, that Portuguese fragment which is 40 miles from Hong Kong. It is a free port with a reputation, in earlier times, for opium smuggling and gambling. It would be unwise to assume that Macao today is a saintly community although it knows about its good schools as well as its gaiety.

There are doubts that Communist China, whenever it wants, can take over this Portuguese enclave of 170,000 people, mostly Chinese.

The Macao Portuguese must have considered the fate of Tibet which distracted the colony recently. The Manchester Guardian points out that it is not clear whether the original riots and continuing anti-Portuguese agitation in Macao were primarily deliberately fomented from Communist China or owed their fervour to "the spontaneous attitudes" so violently expounded by the Red Guards on the Chinese mainland.

The Guardian makes an informed guess that the riots developed spontaneously and that Communist China is in no hurry to stimulate this relic of colonialism, but simply in hopes that these days can hardly be quite carefree.

Sharp Terms Joint Enquiry 'Premature'

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Sharp said Tuesday he's sure the Ontario government will conduct a careful investigation into the collapse of Prudential Finance Corporation.

He further said an "premature" the suggestion of David Lewis (NDP—York South) that a joint federal-Ontario royal commission or other inquiry investigate why Prudential Finance foundered, carrying with it several other companies, including the federally - incorporated North American General Insurance Company.

Mr. Sharp also said that federal authorities are doing all they can to protect investors and policy-holders in federally-incorporated insurance firms but some forms of theft and fraud couldn't be protected against without changes in the law.

He referred specifically to disappearance of $500,000 in securities listed on the books of North American.

Mr. Sharp said all the provinces with whom he has discussed it have welcomed the idea of a conference to examine the whole field of financial operations and the regulation by federal and provincial governments.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked whether such a conference will discuss compensation to investors and depositors who suffered losses in such failures as that of Prudential Finance.

Mr. Sharp replied that he's sure this subject will come up although he wasn't saying that the federal government will propose that the conference discuss that particular topic.

When Mr. Sharp described Mr. Lewis' proposal of a joint federal - provincial commission or inquiry as premature, Mr. Lewis argued that such an inquiry cannot be delayed in view of the Prudential Finance collapse following so closely on the heels of the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corporation some months ago.

Mr. Sharp said he's concerned about the subject.

As soon as Attorney-General Arthur Wishart of Ontario heard about Prudential Finance he had informed the federal finance minister.

Production Figures Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP)—Further evidence that the economy is settling down appeared Thursday in third-quarter estimates of the gross national product.

The GNP was $37,700,000,000 at seasonally - adjusted annual rates, reported the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

In dollar terms, this was about three-quarters of one per cent higher than the second-quarter figure of $37,336,000,000.

But in real terms—with the effect of price increases removed—production of Canada's goods and services was "virtually unchanged."

Canada still is left with the prospect of a bumper year, its GNP about 10 per cent higher than 1965, said DBS.

The economy's performance is 11.3 per cent ahead of the first nine months of 1965. This compares with a 9.7-per-cent improvement in the full year 1965 over 1964.

But taking price changes out once again, both increases work out in real terms of 6.6 per cent.

Strikes in the quarter affected labor income, profits and investment income. Labor income was up two per cent, profits down eight per cent and investment income down two per cent.

Cheering news from the expenditure side of the accounts: A 30-per-cent increase in spending on new cars, following the serious second-quarter decline. The big inventories built up on dealer lots met most of the reawakened demand.

The over-all increase in consumer demand was three per cent, largest of the current expansion, and in dollar terms a $1,140,000,000 injection into the economy.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP)—U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds unchanged at $1.08 9-32. Pound sterling up ¼ at $2.02 3-16.

TORONTO STOCKS TODAY

TORONTO (CP) — Volume remained extremely light in morning activity today on the Toronto Stock Exchange as prices were lower in most major groups.

By 11 a.m. only 446,000 shares had changed hands compared with 411,000 at the same time Tuesday. Brokers attributed light money conditions for the low volumes.

In the industrial list, Consumers' Gas B slid 3/4s to 26, Peel Elder 1 to 8¾ and Zellers ¼ to 4¼. The drop follows the trend on the New York exchange.

Harding Carpets A, which fell 4¼ Tuesday, Moved up 1¼ to 32¼. CPR added ¼ at 35¾.

New Imperial fell 2¼ cents to 2.34 in speculative mines.

Dome Petroleum dropped ¾ to 36 in western oils while Bnaft gained ¼ to 16¼. Lake Dufault retreated ¼ to 12¾ in base metals.

On index, industrials were off .55 to 148.22, golds .19 to 144.02 and the TSE .94 to 140.19. Base metals edged up .04 to 83.89 and western oils .10 to 125.90.

The mind - budget announced in Ottawa Monday got a cool reception during Tuesday's session and the sales volume dipped to its lowest since July, 1965.

Only 1,834,000 shares changed hands compared with 2,328,000 Monday.

The budget called for an increase in the old age security tax as well as an increase in the federal sales tax to 12 per cent from 11.

One broker said the increase can only hurt the market because it will make money even tighter for investment purposes.

In the industrial list, Harding Carpets A tumbled 4¼ to 31 and Harding common 2¼ to 27 following an announcement by the company of a two-for-one split in its shares.

CPR retreated 1¾ to 35¾, Texaco 1¾ to 66¼ and Hasbe Ferguson ¼ to 22¾.

Canada Cement climbed 4 to 36 after Denison Mines announced it had purchased a 16 per-cent interest in the company. Denison slipped ¾ to 24¾.

Lake Ontario Cement, controlled by Denison, gained 15 cents to 4.30 and the warrants 2 to 6 cents after jumping 10 cents earlier in the session

On index, industrials were down .29 to 146.27, golds 1.23 to 144.21, base metals .37 to 83.85, western oils .77 to 129.80 and the TSE .32 to 140.22.

Mental Attitude Is Important Factor in Care of Heart Patient

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: As the wife of a middle-aged man who has made a good recovery from a heart attack, may I make a suggestion to the general public?

That suggestion is that people (well meaning, I am sure) should greet a coronary patient with anything but an enquiry of his health. This seems to be the complaint of a number of other people who have also suffered heart attacks; and it can be psychologically damaging.

You are looked at as though you really haven't the right to be mobile again, and offered all sorts of advice. Comments, advice and apprehensive looks have an undermining effect on a heart patient.

Another difficult time for heart patients is when an appeal for heart funds makes use of the fear-psychology technique. The mental attitude is as important as the healing of the heart and this is what the public fails to understand. — A Wife.

Dear Wife: Damaging is right, and not only for heart patients. A survivor from any serious illness is apt to meet up with a misguided solicitude which seems to be saying, "Are you still alive?"

It may even make him feel sick again; and at best he has guilt feelings because he is not a permanent invalid!

Dear Doris: I will be 18 in January. My parents think I am not old enough to go with my boy friend when we go to town. They have even said that I was not to answer the phone when he phones me.

They let me talk to him twice, I could only talk 10 minutes and I had to have all the doors opened in order for them to hear what we were saying. (My mother never talks less than one hour.) They won't even let me join the skating in town because they know he will be there. They say I'm too young to have him over on Sunday afternoons so he could meet the family.

I even stay home to do chores while they go out thinking that I might be able to do the same, but it's always the same "No." — Anxious

Dear Anxious: Have your parents got the jitters about teen-age friendships? It does not give you much of a chance to clue them in if they even refuse to meet him. Do the chores for them shows the right spirit.

Perhaps when you do turn 18 they will realize a milestone has been passed. Would they consider a birthday party with boys and girls?

Teen-agers need encouragement more than they need spying on. Show Mom and Dad this column.

Dear Doris: I will be 65 in June 1967. What month would I receive the first Old Age Pension? What year? Would I start to get it in the year 1968 beginning in January? — Mrs. P. R.

Dear Mrs. P. R.: Not quite. The pension is due you on the first of the month following your 65th birthday; July, 1968. Six months ahead of that date put things in works by getting the form from your post office, filling it out and sending it in.

Eligible age decreases each year until in 1970 everybody over 65 will qualify.

(Ask Doris for the information you need. If she doesn't know she'll find out from one of her consultants. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Worry About Dying Ruined Life

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wonder how many parents are making the same mistake my parents made many years ago. When I was a small lad, the doctor said Dad had heart trouble. We kids were told that Dad might drop dead any minute. Whenever he got a pain in his chest or his stomach we were sure he was dying. We were scared out of our wits when Dad went to bed not feeling well. We would stay up half the night listening at the door to make sure he was still breathing.

When I was 17 I began to have heart-pounding spells. I never said a word about Dad's heart trouble. The doctor said I was O.K. but I didn't believe him. I went from doctor to doctor but could find anything wrong with my heart. I suspected they were lying.

Today I am 55 years old. I have raised a family but I have never been happy because all my life I have been worried about dying. Oh yes, I ought to tell you that my dad died at 69 years of age, of cancer.

Please tell your readers not to do to their children what our father did to me. Worrying about Dad's health ruined my childhood. Worrying about my own health ruined my adult life. Thank you for printing this. — G.F.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The less talk of sickness and death around children the better. Experts tell us that children often imitate the illnesses of a parent rather than inherit them. Your letter illustrates this point far better than anything I could say and I thank you for writing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I were sitting around last night talking because our TV broke down. In a teasing mood I asked Vernon what he was going to give me for Christmas. He replied, "Your teeth cost over $250. That's your Christmas present."

I said, "You're kidding." Vernon answered, "I've never been more serious in my life."

What do you think of a husband who would be so cheap? What am I going to tell people when they ask me what Vernon gave me for Christmas? — DISAPPOINTED WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: There are still three shopping days left till Christmas. I'll bet Vernon buys you a little gift to go along with the teeth. Even if he bought you a single red rose — it would make 33 gifts in all. Good luck.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Do you have a solution to the problem of people who are always late? One couple in our crowd can never get anyplace on time. If the card game is called for 8:00 o'clock, they show up at 9:15. If it's dinner they are an hour late and the hostess is furious. We have missed the first half hour of dozens of movies on account of these people.

I, for one, am fed up on their rudeness, but my husband says we should accept them for their many good qualities and overlook this one fault.

What is your opinion? — MRS. GULLET FULL.

DEAR MRS. GULLET: These Late Louies will never change so don't expect any miracles. The solution is simple: Don't wait for them for cards, movies, dinner or anything else. Tell them you'll meet them at the theatre, the ball game, or whatever. If it's a dinner, serve them the driedout meal when they arrive and tell them it was delicious an hour ago.

Fancy Cheese Gifts

Dear Suzy: As a precaution, every year about this time I gift wrap half a dozen packages of fancy cheeses and store them in the back of my refrigerator.

This way, I'm all prepared to reciprocate when an occasional acquaintance surprises me with an unexpected gift, or I realize at the last minute that I should have bought some little thing for so-and-so.

It seems that nearly everyone likes cheese. — Bachelor

Dolly Girls Usher in First Long Winter of World's Shortest Skirts

LONDON (AP)—The Dolly girls of swinging London are ushering in the first long winter of the world's shortest skirts.

Paradoxical as ever, the London scene on the eve of winter is a phantasmagoria of bearskins and bare skins.

In their lofty headgear known as hearskins the Guards guard the Queen at Buckingham Palace, the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester at St. James's Palace, and the royal jewels at London's old Tower.

But out in front of the royal establishments, and indeed, all over London thousands of the sovereign's mini - skirted subjects trip to work showing vast expanses of sheer - stockinged bare skins.

And on this misty, chilly, soggy, inland that's not style—it's sheer courage. Or craziness. Or both.

How do they do it?

A personal poll of some of the pretties revealed a lot.

They do it because the clothing manufacturers have actually brought back old-fashioned underwear, craftily camouflaged as a space age style gimmick.

Called tights, they're really fashionable longjohns from long ago.

RUB THE SKIN

Sold in a multitude of colors, with silver the most favored, they begin at milady's toes and, flesh-hugging every inch of the way, stretch upward to clutch her waist.

These smarted-up longjohns, which could more properly be called longjills, retail in a variety of designs — diamonds, flowers, vines, birds, boats, bees, serpents, dragons, flamingoes, spiders and just plain old fish nets.

The all-enveloping body stocking, reaching from tootsies to topsies, is another comforting gadget for winter.

In Britain's wintry blasts, however, tights and body stockings are not enough. Beneath the tights and body stockings, the girls wear a short version of heavy drawers, disguised as tailored briefs or panties.

London designer Mary Quant has introduced knickers to match mini-dresses and mini-skirts. These are really streamlined bloomers from yesteryear.

Let no one ever say the British Dollies wear no more beneath their mini-skirts than the Scot is supposed to wear beneath his kilt.

As a fashion writer has proclaimed:

"Under the mini-est skirt there have to be stocking tights and decent panties. Under the skimpiest sweater there's got to be a bra, though it holds rather than molds and never, but never protrudes."

Senior Citizens Enjoy Dinner

A half-dozen turkeys; 70 pounds of potatoes; six quarts of candied apples; 13 salads; 40 pies . . .

And when the pies were finished they all began to sing — which is the traditional way Belleville Senior Citizen's Club relaxes after its annual Christmas banquet.

Last night was no different at the 1966 event at St. Thomas' Hall where the menu (quoted above) called for catering to 140 guests.

Most of them turned out too, despite the first heavy snow of the winter.

The king-size catering job was handled by Shannonville United Church Women who have drove through the fallout to make it to the church hall on time.

Joining the senior citizens and bringing them the greetings of their city was Mayor Jack Ellis while among the head table guests was city recreation director Lloyd G. Doran and Archdeacon A. S. McConnell of St. Thomas'.

Besides the annual club singing the club also was entertained by an outside group a demonstration team from the Belleville Archery Club.

ST. JOSEPH'S PARISH COUNCIL

The December meeting of St. Joseph's Parish Council was held Monday evening.

Msgr. Carley opened the meeting. At the business meeting which followed Mrs. K. Manning, social action convener announced that the next social action program would be at the January meeting. The theme will be "The Christian in the Community".

Plans were made for the dessert bridge to be held February 16. On behalf of the council Mrs. D. V. Dumnie presented Msgr. Carley with a cheque for the parish.

Following the meeting a one act comedy was presented by six members of the Council. This was well received by the large number in attendance.

Before the exchange of gifts carols were sung with Mrs. J. F. Letersky at the piano.

Mrs. H. Carr-Braint and her committee served lunch, bringing the annual Christmas party to a close.

Nearly Ready For Election

OTTAWA (CP)—The official machinery for the next federal election is nearly complete, reports Jean-Marc Hamel, the new chief electoral officer.

Since the new electoral map was proclaimed law last July, the cabinet has appointed all but five of the 264 returning officers charged with making preparations for the next election.

The five vacancies are expected to be filled shortly. They are in the new constituencies of Malpeque, P.E.I., Frontenac and Hull, Que., York North, Ont., and Athabasca, Alta.

Mr. Hamel said in an interview that 67 of the returning officers served in the 1965 election, while the 192 others named so far by the Liberal government are newcomers.

By tradition, most returning officers are linked with the party that appoints them. Most of the ROs who supervised the elections of 1962, 1963 and 1965 were named by the Diefenbaker cabinet in 1960.

Few political observers aspect an early election, but it is the duty of Mr. Hamel and of the returning officers to be ready for one at any time.

Pension Increase Wins Final Approval in House

OTTAWA (CP)—If MPs can curtail their speeches and contain their tempers, they'll be on their way home tonight.

The Commons cleared the decks Tuesday for an 18-day Christmas vacation by sitting three hours extra to give final approval to the government's guaranteed income plan.

The MPs approved another minor measure and agreed to make progress today on the massive transportation bill which, among other things, will free the railways from outdated rate controls.

The burst of speed was the result of an all-party agreement engineered by Government House Leader McIlraith. He proposed, and other party House leaders accepted, that the Commons finish off debate Tuesday on the government measure to add as much as $30 monthly to the income of needy old age pensioners.

All parties also agreed to sit today until 10 p.m. EST if necessary to make good headway on the transportation bill. Ordinarily, the House rises at 6 p.m. on Wednesday.

However, the agreement was only a few hours old Tuesday when Conservative MPs threatened to throw it out the window.

HITS 'HYPOCRISY'

Health Minister MacEachen drew Opposition ire when he lashed out at what he called hypocrisy in criticism of the government's plan to augment the income of old age pensioners who meet an income test.

The minister referred to a hefty mound of notes and Conservative House Leader Starr protested that the Commons was sitting overtime to get some legislation passed, not to hear Mr. MacEachen make a long political speech.

Mr. MacEachen retorted he hadn't asked Conservative or New Democratic MPs to curtail their speeches. All he wanted was the same courtesy.

Mr. Starr, obviously angered, said the government could forget the agreement to get the business done rapidly. As far as he was concerned, the pension bill wouldn't go through until today.

But he cooled off later and the Commons followed the timetable.

PRESSES FOR CHANGE

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) ignited the angry outburst between Liberals and Conservatives with a final attempt to have the government change its pension bill to give the extra $30 monthly to all old age pensioners.

Mr. MacEachen charged that while the socialists posed as the workers' party, they were asking the government to put money in the pockets of those who didn't need money.

He also aimed a few broadsides at the Conservatives. He quoted Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax) as saying people would be encouraged to inform on old age pensioners who cheated on reporting their incomes.

"That would establish an underground of super - snoopers," declared Mr. MacEachen in one of the liveliest speeches heard in the Commons in some time.

Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) fought back for the Conservatives, calling Mr. MacEachen "a loud-mouthed minister . . . who has become a victim of the reactionary wing" of the cabinet.

Mr. Knowles' motion was defeated as three Social Credit MPs and one independent joined 83 Liberals in voting against it. Supporting the amendment were 20 Conservatives, 13 NDP members, four Creditistes and one independent.

The bill itself got final approval by a vote of 137 to 1. The only dissenting vote came from Maurice Allard (Iod — Sherbrooke).

Earlier, the Commons made a start on clause - by - clause study of the transportation bill which establishes a new transportation policy.

Transport Minister Pickersgill issued a special appeal to railway companies to continue present freight rates and not to seek any rail line abandonments beyond Jan. 1.

While there was no legal obligation for them to do so, he hoped they would await final passage of the new transport bill.

Byron Watson, the brash bumper from Roosevelt, darling of the Detroit fans and shadow-in-chief to Chicago's blonde bomber one Robert Hull has a sense of humor.

"Young Mame Watson who sticks closer to Mame Robert than a bestie to a dowager when the Wings clash with the Hawks, cross-checked his man in a recent fandango and got clobbered spiendy for his pains.

Hull opened a big gash in the Watson noggin and was promptly chewed out but plenty by the Red Wings Sid Abel. Hull afterwards apologized to Watson.

No penalties were handed out. Hull told Abel he was fed up being a target for the Red Wings hatchet men. Upset by the incident and bothered since training camp by a bursitis in the hip, Hull quipped that he'd quit hockey as Sandy Koufax had quit baseball — if he had the Koufax bank roll.

Recently there appeared on a table just inside the hockey office in Detroit's Olympia a large white box. On the lid of the box is a message in large bold black print.

"The Bobby Hull Retirement Fund. Please donate. Chairman Bryan Watson."

In smaller type on the bottom of the box there's another message that reads: "All proceeds go to Bobby Hull so he can have as much money as Sandy Koufax — and can retire."

Billy Reay while in Montreal recently told columnist Dink Carroll that he hadn't heard about the box.

"It's not a bad gag," said the Black Hawks mentor. "But I think Hull will be around after Watson has retired. That kid's pretty fresh. He's been in trouble with other clubs besides ours."

Carroll quizzed Reay on the Howie Young caper and was told that everybody knows the controversial player has the ability but couldn't control himself when he was up in the National League before.

"Now I hear he has settled down and playing very well. If that's the case I guess a couple of teams can use him."

The Hawks, Reay said, had not got a defence problem at the moment. Ed Van Impe, he said, had proved a pleasant surprise after showing well at training camp and declaring he would make the team. He beat out Johnny Mitsk.

Asked if the performance todate of Dennis Hull had come as a surprise, Reay said, "he isn't really a surprise. He's big and strong and I knew he had the shot. It was a matter of waiting for him to develop. He hasn't reached his full development yet. He still can improve."

By that Reay added, Dennis can improve defensively. "If he does a better job of checking, he'll be a good two-way player."

Bobby Hull, Reay thought, was playing out his injury and skating more freely. "He looked more like himself in his last two games out."

Reay is one of the National Hockey League mentors whose judgment and opinions are highly respected. He can be as outspoken as a judge, if and when the occasion warrants it.

I recall when Billy was manager of the Belleville McFarlands on that overseas junket. The club had beaten a German team in a rather boisterous exhibition tussle. Afterwards the burgomaster and city fathers banqueted the teams.

Mein Herr, the mayor, was an outspoken man himself. After welcoming the Canadians and inhaling a few steins of brew plus a beaker or two of schnapps, Himmer gently berated the visitors for playing a rough hard-hitting game.

Reay reached his feet after the mayoral oration.

Through an interpreter he told his hosts that apparently slashing and hooking was standard play in Europe. "How did you fellows expect us to take it?"

"Anyway," came Reay's punch line, "Who the hell do you guys think you are, telling US how to play hockey?"

I don't know how the interpreter twirled that one. But the behnies were all smiles when they got the message.

Shore, Indians Peace Talk Fails

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League remained on the warpath today as professional hockey's full - scale walkout in 40 years entered its third day.

The team's 23 players showed no indication of breaking ranks in their revolt against suspensions handed out by club owner Eddie Shore, one of hockey's most colorful and controversial figures.

Veteran forwards Brian Kilrea and Gerry Foley, and Shore, brought together by an unidentified neutral party, met briefly late Tuesday without reaching an agreement.

Kilrea and Foley, acting as team spokesmen, insisted that suspensions of four players be lifted. Shore refused and said he will not consider anything until the Indians, with the exception of the four suspended, return to practice.

The Indians, who suffered a fourth straight defeat last weekend, practised Monday morning then walked out prior to a scheduled afternoon workout after Shore refused to meet with them.

The players acted after Shore suspended defencemen Dale Rolfe, Bill White and Dave Amadio for alleged "indifferent play." Kilrea was suspended for the same reason after the walkout.

Foley said, "We will pack up and take our families home" unless an agreement is reached.

Kilrea said the players "feel we should be given the chance to win games and perform as a unit without constant harrassment from the management."

Shore accused some members of the team of "producing only 65 to 70 per cent of their capacities." He said he refused to be "dictated to by the group" and threatened to bring in new players for Friday's game with Providence Reds.

Foley admitted Shore could get other professionals "or he can get amateurs." But, Foley said, "a lot of them would not come because they have seen for themselves in training camps how he operates."

Shore was involved in a bitter dispute in the 1933-34 season when he tried to transfer players between his club at Syracuse, N.Y., in the American League and Springfield, then in the Quebec League.

The players ranks broke, but six, including the current Springfield coach, Harry Pidhirny, chose to sit out the remainder of the season.

In 1925, Hamilton Tigers of the National Hockey League walked out after being refused bonuses of $200 a player for finishing first. The team defaulted in the playoffs.

Jack A. Butterfield, serving as interim president of the AHL since Aug. 1, was caught in a sensitive position by the Springfield walkout. He also is general manager of the Indians.

"I'm trying to remain out of this as long as I can," Butterfield said. "Once I step into it in an official league capacity, some parties are going to get hurt."

League rules provide stiff penalties—fines, suspensions or banishment for life from professional hockey—for players or club officials adjudged guilty of saying or doing anything detrimental to the sport.

Tiger Fighter Of Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Dick Tiger, the freshly crowned lightheavyweight champion from Nigeria and one of the oldest fighters ever to win a world crown, was named Fighter of the Year Tuesday by the Boxing Writers Association.

The 37-year-old African, who had lost his middleweight title April 25 to Emile Griffith, came from behind last Friday night to take the 175-pound division crown from Jose Torres on a unanimous 15-round decision.

It was the second time in four years that the stocky, valiant ring warrior has been named to receive the Edward J. Neil Trophy, symbol of the Fighter of the Year.

He first won it in 1962 when he captured the middleweight-160-pound—title the first time by beating Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah.

Coaches Suspended Six Games!

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Coach Roger Bedard of Peterborough Petes and Ted O'Conner of Oshawa Generals each received six-game suspensions Tuesday for their part in a fight during an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game Saturday night in Oshawa.

Bedard said O'Conner threw punches at each other. Bedard was fined $100 in addition to being suspended while O'Conner drew a $50 fine. The Generals defeated Peterborough in the game 8-4.

The fines and suspensions were decided by Jack Devine of Belleville, first vice-president of the OHA. Devine was acting in place of OHA president Matt Leyden, prevented by regulations from dealing with the case because he is from Oshawa.

Bob Dionne, coach of Oshawa's entry in the OHA Junior B series, will take over as coach of the Generals until Jan. 13 when O'Conner returns. Bedard is due back Jan. 12 but a replacement for him has not yet been named.

"I expected a fine," Bedard said Tuesday when he learned of the decision, "but I didn't know what the limit was. I was not expecting six games—maybe one game, but not six." O'Conner said the suspension was a little severe. He too had expected a fine but not necessarily a suspension.

Neither coach plans to appeal and Bill Hanley of Toronto, OHA business manager, said that a player or coach suspended for six games or less has no right of appeal.

"The coaches are responsible men," Devine said in Belleville Tuesday. "We can't stand for this sort of thing. I hate to suspend them but this is our top series. We can't condone this type of action."

Miners Off for Big Adventure

CALGARY (CP) — Drumheller Miners Tuesday departed for a two - week European hockey tour and coach Roy Hardy confessed to having butterflies about the first game on the schedule.

"I know we're as ready as we'll ever be," said the coach of the Allan Cup senior hockey champions, "but it's the first few games that have me worried."

He said if Miners can get by the first two or three games "we'll have a real chance of coming home with the trophy" from the Bunny Ahearne International tournament in Stockholm.

The squad was to arrive in East Berlin today and open the tour, which ends Jan. 9 with an exhibition encounter in Dresden, East Germany, Tuesday.

Miners play at Weiswasser, East Germany, Friday and travel to Stockholm Christmas Eve. They will play three Swedish clubs in the tournament, which runs Dec. 26-Jan. 6.

Semi-Pro Soccer For Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—A four-hour meeting between representatives of the National Soccer League and the Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League Tuesday night has resulted in a decision by the two leagues to join forces and form a semi-professional league in Ontario.

Primo Polaniato, owner of Hamilton's entry in the ECPSL, presided at the meeting. Later, he said the league would operate in Toronto, Hamilton, Sudbury, London and possibly Windsor.

He said a proposed rule will allow only two imports.

"We want to develop Canadian players and this will only be a semi-pro league," Polinato said.

Aces, Mo-Hawks Tie In Bump Battle

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

KINGSTON — A fake goal and the continued fine pocket-stopping of Steve Rexe helped the Belleville Mo-Hawks earn a 1-1 overtime tie with the Aces of this city last night.

It was the first tie of the season for the Mo-Hawks and their third overtime game in the last four played.

The Aces scored once in the first period and Belleville tied it in the second.

Rexe and Tom Mercer took it from there. The Aces out-shot the Mo-Hawks in every period for a 42-38 total but both goalies were sharp in stamping out other scoring threats.

The Mo-Hawks next start will be at home Friday against Galt Hornets, currently battling with Collingwood and Woodstock for this OHA Senior "A" series leadership. That game starts at 8.00 and as a Christmas special any child accompanied by an adult will get in free.

Aces had the best of early play as the clubs started a bumping game, led by Jim Gebhard, Bill Burega, Rick Bradford and Bob Taylor. Rexe pulled off a couple of good saves while Taylor was serving time.

Kingston moved ahead at 16.04. Dennis Kearns fired a low screened shot from well out that nestled in the far corner. Coverny got loose in front later in the period but was knocked down before he could gain full control of the puck.

Ron Earl's shot hit a goal-post and went across the net behind Rexe in the second period's first minute.

Bob Olajos started trouble by slashing Minnie Menard at 7.19 and kept it going by high-sticking Menard as he turned away. The pair proceeded to carve each other up with the sticks before referee Gord Feverzeau assessed two minors to Olajos and one to Menard. Burega went later but the Mo-Hawks failed to beat Mercer while two men up for 18 seconds. John Ford blocked two dangerous Brown shots.

Bob McAlpine netted the equalizer at 19:15, assisted by Gary Darling. Mercer went to the side to block and Menard was shovved out of the play. Mercer lost the puck and steered it into the goal with his skates as he backed up.

"It wasn't pretty. McAlpine said later, "but I would have taken another like it as long as they count on the scoreboard."

Burega took the game's final penalty at 19:30 with no minutes left upon his return. Brown and Wayne McConnell broke on a two-on-one play. The shot was deflected over the net.

Midway through the third, Kearns and Pat Driscoll came close at one end and Brown and McConnell at the other. Dave Jones broke through at Weither team took chances, checking closely, early in overtime. Brown's close-in drive was blocked at 7:00 and around 9:00, Eddie Marinaus and Brown hit goalposts on back-to-back quickies.

Rexe stopped Charlie Convery's bid at 9:45 and a big pileup directly in front of Mercer's goal at 11:00 ended in a faceoff, brought the crowd of 900 to its feet as the clock ran out.

Coach Floyd Crawford, still out with bad knees, said, "the boys played well and did you see the way Greg Marsden stopped Jones on at least a half dozen opportunities? Rexe gave us another great game and he'll be in there as long as he plays that well."

The Mo-Hawks lost Ralph Plaxe early in the second heat with a head injury. "I don't know who it was — somebody said Burega — but I recall being hit and the next thing I found myself in the dressing room," he said. A concussion is feared.

London Shades Generals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While Gary Unger never got a chance with Toronto Maple Leafs, he has proven he's the parent club's top Junior A farm hand in the Ontario Hockey Association.

Unger, called up for a two-game trial with the National Hockey League Leafs a few weeks ago, didn't get on the ice in either contest.

But he's scored 20 goals and 18 assists for London Nationals and is the only member of London or Toronto Marlboros—both Toronto farm teams — listed among the top 10 scorers in the Junior A series.

Unger scored his 20th goal of the season Tuesday night to give the Nationals a 4-3 victory over Oshawa Generals and bring his points total to 36, one less than second - place John Vanderburg of Peterborough Petes.

In other Tuesday night action, Toronto and Niagara Falls Flyers battled to a 3-3 tie.

Blake, Imlach Cool; "No Changes-Yet"

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

As befits a couple of rinkside veterans, coaches Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens and Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs are staying cool even though their teams' recent efforts haven't been so hot.

The Canadiens have managed only one win in four games, while the Leafs have lost two straight.

But Blake told reporters: "We're not going to make changes just to give you fellows something to write about.

"Any moves we may make will be to improve the team. Right now, the fellows we've got should do that themselves."

Imlach sings the same tune. "There'll be no changes at present. Just because we lost two games is no reason to break up this lineup. After all, this is the first time we've lost two in a row this season."

The Leafs and Canadiens meet in Montreal tonight. Detroit Red Wings play the Black Hawks in Chicago and Boston Bruins clash with the Rangers in New York.

DROP TO THIRD

The Leafs were in first place in the league standings earlier this month but have dropped to third, three points below Chicago and New York, who are tied for first.

The Canadiens, defending league and Stanley Cup champions, are a disappointing fourth, five points behind the Leafs.

In five previous meetings this season, the Leafs have won three, lost one and tied one, outscoring Montreal 16-13.

The Leafs will be without regular netminder Terry Sawchuk and Johnny Bower is a doubtful starter. Sawchuk is still out with an aggravated back injury while Bower suffered a sore shoulder against the Bruins a week ago. Available are Bruce Gamble and Gary Smith, both from Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League.

The Canadiens will have Charlie Hodge and Gary Bauman available for goalie duties. Bauman was called up when Gump Worsley suffered a cartilage tear in his right knee. Worsley has since been operated on and isn't expected back for about two months.

Another doubtful starter for Toronto is Brian Cosacher, who has pulled thigh muscles. Defenceman Allen Stanley is out with bruised ribs.

The Canadiens will be without Jean Beliveau, who suffered an eye injury against the Hawks Saturday night and isn't expected back for another week.

Detroit has 18 points, Boston 19. Should the Wings beat the Hawks and should the Rangers down the Bruins, Detroit would move into fifth place.

Roger Crozier, Detroit's hot-and-cold netminder, will be looking for his third consecutive shutout. He has blanked the Rangers 5-0 and the Bruins 6-0 and leads the league in shutouts with four.

Howie Young, who caused the Red Wings so much trouble they traded him away a few years ago, will be with Detroit tonight.

The Wings got Young in a deal with the Black Hawks Monday. In exchange for Young, the Wings lent Lou Angotti Blades of the Western Hockey League two Detroit players.

The Rangers, who lost 5-0 to Detroit Sunday, have won three in a row at home and they haven't lost to Boston in nine consecutive meetings, including shutouts.

However, the Bruins broke a 10-game winless streak Sunday night with a 3-1 win over Montreal.

Gomez Calls It Quits

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Cuban jockey Avelino Gomez hevds home to Toronto today convinced he has won the 1955 North American riding championship.—

Gomez called it quits Tuesday after racing at the track here most of this month in quest of the championship he was determined to win. He has win on 338 mounts in Canada and Mexico.

His nearest rival for the championship was Braulio Baeza, Panamanian jockey who went on vacation even before the end of the Aqueduct season in New York. He had 296 winners as of Dec. 10.

Jorge Velasquez, also a Panamanian, had 289 winners when he drew a five-day suspension at Tropical Park in Florida last week. He was due back Tuesday.

Gomez picked up his 318th victory Sunday with Polignoto.

Shore; Now They Dig It Up!

TORONTO (CP)—The legend of Eddie Shore spread a little farther Tuesday as members of the Toronto Maple Leafs recalled their favorite and not-so-favorite stories about the hard-boiled owner of Springfield Indians.

There was the story of Shore awakening his players at 7 a.m. and having them practice tap dancing in the hall of a Hamilton hotel in their underwear.

"I remember Shore stopping one of the guys in a crowded hotel lobby and making him tap dance because he wasn't walking right," said Larry Hillman, who played with Springfield in the 1962-63 American Hockey League season.

"He was strange. I remember him stopping the bus one night and taking everybody into the tavern for a drink. But he was liable to fine you the next night."

Other players recalled that Shore tried to put his injured players to work in the Springfield arena.

RECALLS TALES

"I remember stories from guys who played at Fort Worth, a team that Eddie owned years ago," said goaltender Bruce Gamble, who sat out the 1964-65 season rather than return to Springfield and Shore.

"They walked around outside the arena wearing signs saying 'Hockey Tonight.'"

Shore, who played for the 1926-40 in the National Hockey League with Boston Bruins, had his entire 23-player American League squad walk out Monday.

Gamble said Springfield players must tape their sticks the way Shore dictated.

"You tape from the toe to the heel, never heel to toe. You go around three times with the tape at the heel if you're a defenceman and twice if you're a forward.

"You are allowed to wind the tape seven times around the knob of the stick."

Gamble also told about the time Shore fined everyone $300 for breaking a midnight curfew after promising to lift the curfew if they won a game against Buffalo.

He said that everyone except Wally Boyer, now with Chicago Black Hawks, had purposely stayed out late. But when Boyer arrived at the hotel at 11:45 he was told by Shore he was late and fined with all the rest.

When Boyer pointed to his watch in protest, Shore pointed his own and said it was his watch that counted.

When Hillman heard what had happened, he advanced his watch 15 minutes so it would never happen to him. When asked for the time even today, Hillman advises the asker: "This is Shore time."

Moira Juniors Win

By BARRY CAMPBELL

Moira Trojans hosted basketball teams from Trenton last night and emerged with only one victory. The Juniors from Moira won 48-37, while the Bantams lost 63-37 and the Seniors were defeated 60-51.

The Bantam game was close until the 3rd quarter when Trenton jumped into a decisive lead and never let up, winning 63-37. High scorer for Trenton was Turcke with 21 and for Moira, Hayes with 12.

Moira Juniors demonstrated good passing and tight checking as they quickly pulled ahead of Trenton by 8 points. They maintained this lead through to the end of the first half where they led 23-15.

Trenton fought to close the gap in the second half of the game but Moira went on to win 48-37.

Moira was led by Don Curnon and Bruce Larow who scored 13 points each.

Trenton's play was dominated by Munn with 11 points and Garland with 6.

The Senior contest was the highlight of the evening. From the beginning the game was fast with both teams effective on offence and defence. Moira gained a 3-point advantage in the first quarter and held a two-point lead. By the halfway mark Moira expanded their lead to eight points. However Trenton caught Moira off guard and took command of the play at this point. The half ended with Trenton in the lead 29-20.

The third was characterized again by fast action. Trenton was able to extend their lead to three points.

Moira started the final quarter with accurate passing and again jumped into an eight-point lead. However once again they lost off badly and their passing deteriorated. Trenton was quick to capitalize and they pulled away from a floundering Moira team to win 60-51.

Trenton's play was led by Larry with 21 points and Schuetzle who hit for 13.

Moira was led by the offensive and defensive efforts of Gary Swan and Jim Risting who scored 17 and 13 points respectively.

Trenton (0) — Larry (21), Schuetzle (13), Stewart (6), Descormaux (2).

Moira 51 — Swan (17), Risting (13), Bunting (6), Detenbeck (5), Loder (4), Hayman (4), McPherson (3).

Hornets Blank Regals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

After looking over their shoulders at Woodstock Athletics during the early part of the season in the Ontario Hockey Association senior standings, leading Collingwood Georgians have some new faces to worry about.

For the first time this season, the Athletics were bumped out of second place Tuesday night when Galt Hornets blanked Guelph Regals 3-0. Ron Boomer handled 24 shots in goal for his first shutout out of the season.

The only two other games scheduled ended in ties, 1-1 between Kingston Aces and Belleville Mc-Hawks and 3-3 between Barrie Flyers and Orillia.

Carl Hall, Bert Brown and Bob Hall scored for Galt.

Dunc Brodie scored with less than five minutes remaining to give Orillia the tie with last-place Barrie. The tie moved Orillia into seventh place in the 10-team series.

Other Orillia goals came from George Ford and George Westfall.

Corby Adams, Guy Leveque and Al Stitt scored for Barrie.

Bob McAlpine gave Belleville the tie with Kingston when he scored in the second period. Dennis Kearns scored for the Aces in the first.

Tyke Scores Three in Team's Win

Stephen Loudon scored three goals to lead Hawks past the Barons 5-1 in one of four BMHA tyke section games last night.

In other games, Wings blanked the Bruins 2-0, Rangers won 2-1 over Canadiens and Leafs shaded Mohawks 3-1.

During the evening, the BMHA tyke division honored Mrs. Olivia Weese of the Quinte Skating Club, who has been giving the tyke age players skating instruction for the past eight weeks.

Peter Hall and Bruce Hamilton fired the other Hawk goals and Ronald Donohoe had an assist. Bob Wild scored for the Barons.

Brian Coughlan collected the Wings' shutout while mates Greg MacInnes and Raymond Skelly notched the goals. Peter Kincaid drew one assist.

Mark Crawford, Roy Garvin and Brian Yeoman had Rangers' goals with Robert Crawford collecting an assist. Brian Kerr scored for Canadiens.

Brent Walmsley netted both Leaf goals and Kelly Mundell trick replied for the Mohawks.

Ivanhoe Regains Top In C.H.H.L.

Ivanhoe Knights moved back into first place all by themselves last night by chopping down the Frankford Jazmer Kings 7-4 in one half of a Centre Hastings Hockey League double-header at Madoc.

Plainfield climbed into a fourth-place tie with Frankford by clipping Wallbridge Warriors in another 7-4 contest.

Ivanhoe holds a slim one-point lead over Glen Ross and is three points up on the slipping Wallbridge squad.

Wallbridge and Glen Ross will play a postponed game in Stirling Thursday at 9.00 p.m.

Last night's Frankford-Ivanhoe game was a penalty-riddled affair. Three big fights, one which led to Frankford goalie George Maybee being tossed out of the game with a major and a game misconduct, highlighted the action. Several other minor battles also took place.

Jack Francis scored five for the Knights with Bob Chapman, Dale Benson, Ralph Francis, Don McCrory and Marvin Reid adding singletons. Jim Rousse, with a pair, Bob Chesher and Roy Patrick scored for Frankford. Bob Wright earned three assists.

Plainfield used goalie Bob Smith on a forward line and he scored two goals as did Gary Ray, Don Reid, Bob Hunter and Reid Mallory were the other marksmen. Wallbridge received goals from Bill McMillan, Bill Dudgeon, Earl Reid and Murney Bradshaw.

Snow Here, Rain in BC

White Christmas Chances Good

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The chances of a white Christmas look good in Ontario and Quebec and fair in the Atlantic provinces, but parts of Western Canada are enjoying a mild spell that is expected to last through the weekend.

Whatever the weather, a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates it's going to be a busy Christmas. Stores report heavy sales, in many cases ahead of last year, while railways and airlines will be moving more people than ever before. Travel is particularly heavy to the West Coast and south to Florida and Mexico.

The fact that Christmas Eve falls on Saturday night and Christmas Day on Sunday seems certain to keep many people at home to celebrate, since in many centres liquor outlets will close early.

Ray Hunt, general manager of the British Columbia Retail Merchants' Association, estimates that retail sales in the province will be eight or nine per cent above last year's $205,000,000. The forecast for Vancouver is rainy and mild, at least through Saturday.

A decorated ship will carry children aloft during Christmas carols through Vancouver harbor each night of Christmas week.

Weather bureau say a mild spell over parts of the Prairies should continue at least through the beginning of the Christmas weekend. Light snow or freezing rain was predicted for Saskatchewan throughout the night Tuesday.

Southern Saskatchewan and Alberta expected temperatures in the high 40s, while colder air moves into the northern part of both provinces.

The mild weather has brought a rush of last-minute shopping in Regina, but downtown stores expect total sales to be roughly equal to 1965.

In Edmonton, stores have extended their hours, many opening at 8 a.m. and taking phone orders from 7 a.m. The 40-foot circle Christmas tree which had been erected in a downtown park for the last 13 years disappeared.

The Red River Valley and Greater Winnipeg got almost two inches of snow Monday and temperatures in the high 20s is dictated at least a frosty Christmas.

Ontario's chances for a white Christmas perked up Tuesday as snow began falling across most of the western part of the province.

Air Canada reported a heavy rush for bookings to the West Coast and south to Florida and the Caribbean, while Canadian Pacific flights to Mexico were also full.

Christmas Eve should be quiet in Ontario, with all liquor sales cut off at 6:30 p.m.

Montreal's downtown stores report increased business this year, with the newly - opened subway bringing more people downtown. Liquor sales in Quebec will end at 10 p.m. Christmas Eve, but will resume from noon to midnight Christmas Day.

Air Canada has laid on extra flights to handle the bulk appeared this year because it didn't fit in with new park day rush and both major railways plan extra transcontinental service and extra coaches for major labrority runs.

The Atlantic provinces have had a mild December, with only a bit of snow in the last few days.

Halifax got its Christmas decorations up at the end of November and extended them to some side streets which hadn't been decorated before. Saint John put up its decorations just after Halloween in the face of charges that the season was being forced.

INDONESIA GETS TIME

PARIS (AP) — A seven-nation consortium of industrialized countries agreed Tuesday to allow Indonesia to delay the repayment of about $337,000,000 of debt, informed sources reported.

Oil From Dying Ship Menaces Halifax

HALIFAX (CP) — Abandoned by her crew, broken by thundering seas and stripped by looters, the freighter Tegeas is in the eye of a hurricane of controversy today.

The 23-year-old Liberty ship, grounded on shoals known as The Sisters off the harbor entrance since Nov. 23, broke in three pieces Tuesday as mountainous waves hammered her hull.

The dying ship spewed thick bunker oil which formed a two-mile-long slick and threatened to foul beaches and fishing gear along the coast south of here.

As salvage men attacked the wind, Halifax municipal councillors demanded federal and provincial government action to destroy the oil before it reached shore.

The wind Tuesday night was blowing offshore but the weather forecast called for an onshore breeze today. This would carry the slick toward land.

Some 18,000 gallons of emulsifier — a fluid whose weight forces oil to sink—was available here and salvage men said the navy had offered a squadron of helicopters to drop the fluid on the slick today.

One salvage official said the worst threat was yet to come. Oil already on the ocean surface, he said, represented only a small part of the 300 tons carried by the 7,200-ton Tegeas. Most of the fuel was still in the vessel's tanks in the midships sections which remained aground on the rocks.

Men would be lowered to the midships section today "if it's humanly possible." They would release the oil and it would be set afire.

He said the only hope was that the wind would hold, giving the helicopters time to bomb the slick with the emulsifier.

Gales from the southeast prevented the biggest threats.

"That could be fatal for Tegeas," a spokesman for Atlantic Salvage and Dredging Co. said. "Her remaining bulkheads would be battered to pieces and the ship would surely go down."

If the midships section sinks, the tanks could break under water pressure and the oil be released.

The stern and forward sections of the ship broke away Tuesday and salvage men hoped this would mean less strain on the midships section. A possible plan to release the oil involved dynamite, set around the ship's hull by divers.

The Canadian Coast Guard, fearing the forward section of the ship might drift clear and create a shipping hazard, assigned a vessel to stand by the area.

Meanwhile, the Tegeas was a hot topic at Tuesday's session of Halifax county council.

Councillor Percy Baker said the leaking oil had killed fish, sea ducks and gulls. "This could be a disaster."

Yule Cars Now Gift-wrapped

TORONTO (CP)—You may have a little trouble getting it under the Christmas tree, but it's the thought that counts.

Some car dealers are offering the discriminating shopper a little extra for Christmas. Not only do they deliver the Christmas automobile, but they gift wrap it as well, complete with a big bow on the roof.

Wilbert Hunt, a General Motors of Canada Ltd. dealer in nearby Pickering, has it down to an art.

He uses plastic to wrap a car, fastening it over the top and delivering it to its destination Christmas Eve. Then he pulls the plastic over the body of the car, fastens it with masking tape, ties a ribbon over the whole thing and strolls off.

"We started the idea a couple of years ago when a man asked us if we would gift wrap a car he bought for his wife," Mr. Hunt said.

"So we said 'sure' and then we had to sit down and figure out how to do it."

British Motors Corp. of Canada Ltd. doesn't use cellophane, but sticks with a nine-inch wide, 14-foot ribbon, fastened lengthwise and then crosswise for a tied parcel look.

The car—usually a sports model—is delivered Christmas morning, ribbon and all, before 7 a.m.

Piano sellers do not use plastic or cellophane when a customer wants his purchase gift wrapped. A spokesman for Heintzmans and Co. Ltd. said cellophane cuts off the air, which is bad for the wood in a piano.

The company will, however, deliver a piano on Christmas Eve with a large ribbon tied in a bow to the music stand.

Elsewhere across the country, the gift wrap business is booming. Wrappings varying from traditional white tissue to embossed paper, from crassness slumbrous foil to bright mod colors, are being snatched up from counters everywhere.

John Glendenning production manager of Coutts Hallmark Cards, says the total manufacture of only two designs of paper would stretch 300 miles, slightly more than the distance between Toronto and Montreal.

Domtar Workers Block Roads

LEBEL SUR QUEVILLON, Que. (CP)—A spokesman for Domtar Ltd. said Tuesday night the company has asked the Quebec justice department to provide protection for persons and property in the area where trouble was said to have erupted among employees.

The spokesman said that about 20 of the employees seized radio communications facilities and blocked operations at the edge of woodlands used as a supply source for the company's new pulp mill in this community about 320 miles northeast of Montreal.

There was no report of any physical violence Tuesday. Union sources were not available for comment. Some 200 additional employees had to stop work as a result of the trouble.

The company official said the situation apparently was the result of inter-union rivalry.

"A few agitators have been active for several days and on Tuesday they blocked the roads leading to and from wood-cutting operations.

"Cars across the road prevented pulpwood trucks from delivering to the mill."

The company also has asked the justice department to ensure free access to the area.

The radio equipment said by the Domtar spokesman to have been seized normally is used by woods employees to communicate with their woodlands offices.

Programming for Holiday Season Turns Station Into Hectic Haven

Christmas is the most fun when you stay close to home. At least, that's the way CJBQ Radio sees it — and does it.

Members of CJBQ have always been concerned about the Bay of Quinte area and its more than 100,000 citizens. For most of those residents, Christmas is indeed, a busy time, a frantic pace matched at CJBQ where working days often stretch into double their normal length.

Over the past two weeks, Dick Lovering, host of the noon day Tuesday late show who normally doesn't start dreaming sweet dreams until sometime in the morning hours, has been hauling himself out of bed almost at the crack of dawn in order to get to school — quite a few schools as a matter of fact.

Dick is producing a series of programs featuring the students of Bellville and Trenton singing Christmas carols and songs. The show, Our Children Sing is being heard each weekday evening at 6.30. A full half hour will be aired from 1.30 to 2 on Christmas Day.

And while Dick visits the schools during the day, Lee Jourard, CJBQ's program director, has been booking evenings to record church choirs in Belleville and Trenton for a traditional CJBQ Christmas Day feature called Christmas in the Churches. This year the program will be heard from 8.30 a.m. to 11 a.m. Dec. 25th.

The holy character of the holiday is being pointed up this year with spiritual messages from ministers and pastors representing the various faiths. These reminders of the true meaning of the Yule will be heard throughout Christmas Eve and Day.

But Christmas means more than just entertainment to CJBQ staffers - many take an active part in community affairs.

This year, the directors of the Retarded Children's Workshop asked CJBQ members to assist in rounding up old Christmas cards from which are made gift tags and other decorations. Dave and Dick went to work on this one.

The result? Well, at last count, over 70,000 cards had arrived in bundles, boxes and by personal delivery — they're still rolling in, but the officials have stopped counting.

On the subject of mail, the station almost needs its own mail truck at this time of year. CJBQ's 1966 Turkey Give - Away Show brought in more than 10,000 entries in less than 25 days. At the same time, the Holiday Call program that gives listeners an opportunity to place a telephone call to anyplace in the world over the holiday produced 400 entries.

But Christmas doesn't mean the normal activities don't continue to receive attention. On Dec. 12 the opening shot of the predicted 1967 provincial election was fired with a Progressive Conservative nomination convention being held in Trenton. CJBQ covered the action from the convention floor. Earlier that same evening, Trenton's 'Lighting Up Ceremony was recorded and rebroadcast an hour later.

The station's Why Not Call program with Tom Hookings has been keeping the switchboard lighting up like a Christmas tree. When listeners have the opportunity to air their own beefs, suggestions and opinions, important news stories may happen at any time.

However, not all calls deal with sensational affairs. During this week before Christmas, Dorothy Batchelor, home economist for the Poultry Products Institute appeared as a guest on the program and was snowed under by calls from district homemakers about preparing the Christmas dinner.

Coming back to the young ones, CJBQ programmers think that the sound of a child singing a carol still carries with it the deepest meaning of Christmas. Dave Charles gives the tots an opportunity to perform each evening with his Christmas Sing A Song.

While all these extra activities make life more exciting, regular daily programs must be prepared as usual. But every once in a while, a little surprise comes along to spice up the daily routine just a bit — like the Christmas card from someone who says "Thanks for another year's entertainment. Signed: Just a Friendly Listener.

Then, of course, there's the matter of those sheep that Dave and Tom have been shepherding through an endless lane of alliteratives on the 7.30 a.m. news. A few days ago, it appeared that the English language would have to come up with some new words if the game was to continue —

But, all is saved again. A letter arrived in the nick of time providing at least 90 more ways to describe those sultry, saucy, bed-eyed, sleepless, shifty, sagacious, shapely (etc.) sheep!

Dave and Tom now feel that they can keep the wondrous wandering woollies on the way until the lovely lively lambs arrive in the merry month of May.

Movie Column

Disney Got the Ideas, Brother Roy Got Money

Following is the third of five articles on Walt Disney by Associated Press Columnist Bob Thomas, author of two books on Disney.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—At the time of his death last Thursday, Walt Disney's entertainment empire was as widespread and prosperous that it seemed impossible he had known times when his studio had faced extinction.

Yet until the last decade of his life, Disney was scorned by many financial minds who considered him a poor risk, a visionary who would bring his company to the edge of insolvency to accomplish dreams.

For the first 30 years of his film enterprises, the pattern was the same: Walt got the ideas and his brother Roy got the money. But more than once the ideas outdistanced the money.

It started as early as 1923. Walt had come to Hollywood with plans for breaking into the movies. He originally wanted to be a director, but no studio would hire a 22-year-old Kansas City boy with no experience. So he decided to do the thing he knew: Make cartoons.

"Where can we get the money?" he asked Roy. The older brother found a source: An uncle who made a reluctant loan of $500. They were in business.

Later, when Walt had trouble interesting major studios in his new character, Mickey Mouse, he thought of a way to put it across: With sound. Talkies were coming in, but nobody had put sound in cartoons and experimenting would cost money. Roy found the cash and Walt recorded the "mad track" in New York. Mickey Mouse became a star.

The Disney resources were again pushed to the limit with the first all-cartoon feature Snow White. Walt had hoped to make the film for $1,050,000, but the total came to $1,700,000 because of his search for perfection. The treasury was depleted for an unproved project nobody knew if audiences would sit still for a full-length feature with cartoon characters.

The euphoria that followed the success of Snow White sent Walt on a spending spree: Bambi cost $1,700,000, Fantasia $2,300,000, Pinocchio $2,600,000. But then Roy exited a halt.

"There isn't any more money, Walt," he told his brother. "These new features wiped out all the profits that Snow White made, and our foreign market is knocked out by Jap war. We've got to tighten our belts."

The Disney studio limped through the war making training films and propaganda movies. Walt had a rough time getting the studio for the peacetime market. He experimented with films that were a musical vaudeville and with movies that combined animation with live action. None seemed to click.

Walt moved boldly into non-cartoon features and scored a hit with his most expensive film, 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea.

BOSTON (AP) — A gunman rushed out of a loan company office with several hundred dollars and, when police arrived, they detained a man pointed out by a woman as having run down the street. He turned out to be an athlete practising for next spring's Boston Marathon.

Truck Hits School Bus, 8 Killed

Grief-stricken Mother Watches Rescue Attempts

Cries of Fear and Pain Fade Into Silent Grief

OLDCASTLE, Ont. (CP)—A silent knot of villagers, ankle-deep in snow and slush, stood apart from most of those standing dumbly at the entwined wreckage of the two vehicles.

The whine of sirens and the flashing red lights of police cars and ambulances answered the one unasked question at the bleak crossroads.

Children had died.

The villagers had grief as their common bond—and they seemed disinclined to share it with outsiders.

The school bus, making its second last afternoon trip from the Ferry Hill school before the Christmas vacation was to begin Friday, was a crushed heap of yellow metal beneath tons of sand and a truck's trailer.

Oldcastle is near the crash scene two miles west of Maidstone, about 15 miles southeast of Windsor.

The screams of frightened and trapped children had been replaced by the tense silence of the watchers, who obediently obeyed police commands to stand back.

Many earlier had clawed away at the sand that spilled into the bus through its buckled roof in attempts to free children engulfed inside. Many had helped welders rip holes in the vehicle's side and carry the rescued to waiting ambulances.

Now, there was nothing more to do, except stand and watch.

Eight children were killed in the smash, 22 others were injured but late Wednesday night only seven children were detained in hospital where their condition was described as satisfactory and "out of danger."

But if the obvious signs of grief were absent at the crossroads, where Highway 3 intersects at Walker Road eight miles from downtown Windsor, the story was different at Metropolitan Hospital in Windsor.

Weeping parents were led from the hospital to an adjacent morgue where they identified dead children.

No one offered condolences; there was nothing adequate to be said.

A disconsolate group of children, some of whom had been taken from the bus unharmed, sat in the hospital waiting room as their parents were at bedsides within.

Nine-year-old Edward Dube, a Grade 4 student, said he called out to the other children in the bus when "the side of the truck came through the window and sand poured all over inside."

"Some of the kids were lying there covered. There was lots of screaming and crying.

"I called out to them to be quiet. A teacher had told us if we ever got in trouble to be quiet and patient. So I told them this."

As he sat, his mother, Anna Dube came over to him. She was weeping, as was the nurse who assisted her.

She had just learned her daughter, Anna-Marie, 7, was among the dead.

Children trapped inside the bus were screaming. Some were pinned under broken seats, others trapped by twisted metal or buried under the sand.

For nearly two hours, Genoa and others — policemen, firemen, doctors, ambulance drivers and passers-by — tore apart the wreckage with crowbars, acetylene torches and their bare hands.

"We were afraid to use shovels at first, because we might injure some of the kids we couldn't see under the sand," Genoa said.

Larry Stockwell, 22, an ambulance attendant, said one little girl was pinned at her feet and was crying.

"Every time a man would come near her she would scream 'daddy, daddy'. Some of the guys started working in free her," he said.

"Then I saw a hand sticking up from beneath the sand, and I started digging and underneath was a little boy. He was unconscious.

"I saw a leg and started digging there, and it was another little boy. I don't even know how many of those kids I saw lived or died."

One of the rescuers, Ralph Bondy, 27, of McGregor, Ont., burned his left hand as he used a torch to cut through the steel leg of a bus seat under which a boy was trapped.

"I held my hand over the boy's face to protect him from the flame and sparks, and as the torch burst through the steel it seared my hand," Bondy said.

"Kids were screaming, saying 'Save me' and 'I'm going to die.' They were in hysterics. A lot of other people were coming up, too, and we started tearing the bus apart, to pull the kids out," he said.

"We tore the insides of that bus apart, mostly with our bare hands."

The Kids Were Yelling Their Heads Off

WINDSOR, ONT. (CP)—"The kids were yelling their heads off. It was pitiful. I hope I never see anything like it again."

Gerald Gemos, 31, of nearby Oldcastle, recalled with a shudder the tragic scene when a tractor-trailer truck crushed a school bus with 28 children aboard under tons of sand Wednesday near Windsor.

Twenty other children were injured when 10 tons of smothering wet sand cascaded, over the bus as the trailer flipped over.

Genoa said he arrived at the scene just after the accident occurred.

Sand Buries Pupils

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Eight young children died and 16 were injured Wednesday when a breakaway dump trailer loaded with sand plunged into the side of their school bus.

Rescuers worked with their bare hands to uncover victims after the bus roof buckled to the floor and sand poured in from the 10-ton load.

Police said that as the tractor-trailer unit turned at an intersection, the connection between the two sections broke and the trailer tilted into the bus carrying the homeward-bound children.

Edward Dube, 9, whose sister died in the crash, said:

"The side of the truck came through the window and sand poured all over the inside. There was lots of screaming and crying."

Hospital spokesmen identified the dead as: David McKee, 8; Gary Curtis, 8; Anna Marie Dube, 7, Rhonda May MacDonald, 7, Susan Irene Brown, 8; Laurie Leithead, 6; Thomas O'Neill, 8, and Blaine Mills, 7. Then Mills' boy was from School Lane and the others from Oldcastle, 2½ miles southeast of the Windsor city limits in Sandwich South Township.

Six children remained today in hospital, five of them described as in satisfactory condition. One was in fair condition. Ten others were released after treatment.

Marcel Lefrancois, 31, of Ferry Road, Ont., said to be the driver of the truck appeared in court today on a charge of dangerous driving and was remanded to Jan. 11 on $1,000 personal recognizance bail.

Bus driver James Levy was treated for shock.

The 28-children were on their way home from the second-last day of classes before Christmas when the accident occurred at 3:30 p.m. at the intersection of Highway 3 and Walker Road in Oldcastle.

The children, mostly seed seven to nine, were students at two township public schools, Percy McKee and Percy Frith. Two of the dead were within 300 yards of their home.

The bus roof was peeled back like a sardine can and screams came from within, dozens of parents say tore at the wreckage to find the sand. One small boy, his jaw bandaged, sat quietly as rescuers tried to free his legs.

As police organized the rescue and 4 ambulances in the Windsor area were called, two doctors worked over the survivors. Bodies were placed on stretchers at the side of the intersection. Mothers gathered to search for their children

Jackie and Look Reach Agreement

NEW YORK (AP)—The chief counsel for Harper and Row said today the book publishing firm will be glad to settle the Kennedy book controversy with Mrs. John F. Kennedy along the lines of her out - of - court agreement with Look magazine.

Requested deletions and modifications that pertain to the personal life of Mrs. Kennedy and her children will allow Look to publish a four-part serialization of the book, The Death of a President, as scheduled. The first part of the deletion-edited series will be in the Jan. 10 issue of Look.

When informed of the agreement reached Wednesday night, Edward S. Greenbaum, lawyer for Harper and Row, said:

"Harper and Row will be very glad to make a similar arrangement with Mrs. Kennedy."

Harper and Row officials requested a conference today with Simon Rifkind, lawyer for Mrs. Kennedy.

Told of Greenbaum's reaction to the Look agreement, Rifkind said:

"I'm glad to hear that. It shows he's interested in reaching an agreement."

Both Mrs. Kennedy and Gardner Cowles, chairman of the board of Cowles Communications, Inc., the publishers of Look, issued statements shortly after the agreement was announced.

Cowles said he hopes that the controversy between the Kennedy family and Harper and Row will be speedily resolved.

Mrs. Kennedy said in her statement that "Look magazine has agreed to remove or modify all those passages in the magazine version of The Death of a President relating to the personal life" of herself and her children.

"Those paragraphs," Mrs. Kennedy's statement continued, "were the sole reasons for the initiation of her legal action. Since every passage of a personal nature under contention for several months was either deleted by Look, or changed to her satisfaction, Mrs. Kennedy has withdrawn her suit."

Christmas Breaks Isolation Of Arab Christians in Israel

JERUSALEM (AP)—Despite tension along the armistice line between Jordan and Israel, Arab officials are preparing to open the barbed wire Friday and let more than 5,000 Israelis into the Holy City of Jerusalem for Christmas.

These are the Arab Christians of Israel, cut off from their relatives in the Arab world for the last 18 years of Arab-Israeli conflict.

Throughout the year the armistice lines are closed except to diplomats, UN officials and some tourists, and no Arab or Israeli can cross through the Mandelbaum Gate, the only authorized passage through no man's land. As at the Berlin wall, anyone who tries to cross illegally runs the risk of getting shot.

Since 1950, however, under a yearly agreement, the red and white striped barrier of Mandelbaum has been raised at Christmas to let a selected list of Christian Arabs cross. Each year the number has grown. No matter how high the tension between the two sides, the Christmas crossing has taken place every year.

Jordan officials in the UN liaison office said this year 5,778 applicants would walk across the truce lines Friday morning —a record number—and stay in Jordan until Christmas night.

Christmas comes three times a year in the Holy Land, with its various religious faiths, and some 3,500 Arab Christians of Oriental churches are expected to cross from Israel for their Christmases in January.

Despite the recent crisis in Jordan, with riots and demonstrations sweeping the western part of the country, the Holy Land returned to tranquility as Christmas preparations began.

Thousands of visitors were expected to converge from around the world for the sacred rites at Christ's birthplace in Bethlehem.

Hotels have been close to empty for the last two weeks, but beekeepers said this was due to the dock season, not the crisis. They said they expected to be built as usual for Christmas, with only a slight dropping off caused by the tension.

Christmas for the Arabs is more a time of family reunions now than a religious celebration. Each year hundreds flock to Jerusalem from around the Arab world to greet their relatives in Israel. For the rest of the year they cannot even exchange letters.

Pope Hopes For Miracle In Vietnam

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul said tonight in his Christmas message to the world that he hoped for a "miracle of goodwill" that would move both sides to end the Vietnam war.

"Goodwill holds the key to peace," he said.

The difficulty is that the responsible authorities of the two sides must make use of this key at the same time. That they should do so with sincere and concrete actions, should be the wondrous event of this Christmas."

He said that the Vietnam war was steadily increasing its "warfare tactics, the means of warfare used and the damage inflicted."

Stressing his belief that goodwill was the key to end the conflict, the Pope said:

"We would like to think that this miracle of goodwill is still possible. So, respectfully and fervently, we appeal to both contending, parties and to all who lend support to either side."

Christmas Wonderland in East Belleville

More than 1,000 light bulbs and two weeks' work went into outdoor Christmas display at Dr. Jack Marshall's home, 185 Bleecker Ave., which won the Public Utilities Commission's first prize as the "monster spectacular" in East Belleville. Besides the lights, the display includes nativity scene (obscured by tree at right.)

Couple Die In Toronto Fire

TORONTO (CP) — Frank B. Downey, 71, and his wife Gertrude, 68, were killed early today in a downtown house fire. A fire department spokesman said the fire started from a cigarette dropped in a waste basket and was confined to one room of the house.

3 Charged With Theft Of Lights

City police yesterday charged three persons with the theft of a string of Christmas lights from a North Sidney St. residence.

Remanded on bail to Dec. 30 were James Frank Bowen, 29, of R. R. 3, Belleville, and Leonard Wayne Bulpit, 21, and Gary Gordon Bulpit, 17, both of 27 Pearl St.

The three were apprehended by police shortly after the theft of lights from an outdoor Christmas tree was reported yesterday morning.

ANAF Veterans' Ladies' Auxiliary Holds Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the A.N. and A.F. Veterans' Ladies Auxiliary No. 49, took place in the club rooms at 127 Front St., Belleville on Monday evening.

Meeting opened with Comrade president E. Sills presiding, with all executive members present.

Man Guilty Of Assaulting Police Officer

Eldon Raymond Bird, 22, of Frankford pleaded guilty in county magistrate's court today to charges of assaulting a police officer and creating a disturbance.

Both charges were preferred by Belleville O.P.P. on Saturday last following a scuffle with the accused at the 6Hd recreation centre on the Trenton air base.

Provincial Constable J. D. Chase told Magistrate T. Y. Wills that Bird, who was an "unmanageable drunk", took several swings at him and kicked him in the shin. Constable Chase said the accused had to be restrained by himself and several R.C.A.F. policemen before he could be handcuffed.

He said the accused, who is 6' over six feet tall and weighs 230 pounds, "fought all the way to Belleville in the cruiser."

Bird, a civilian employee at 6Hd, was fined $100 and costs for the assault, and $10 and costs for creating a disturbance.

Canadian Sends Gas To Rhodesia

FLESHERTON, Ont. (CP)—Ronald Gostick, leader of a group he calls the Christian Action Movement, said Wednesday he has given 1,500 gallons of gasoline to Rhodesia.

He said money was given to him by "hundreds of Canadian friends of Rhodesia" to purchase the gas in South Africa and deliver it to Rhodesia.

He did not identify the donors and said no more gasoline would be sent. However, powdered milk might be sent because "there are a lot of colored children who need it."

The gasoline arrangement was mentioned in the Commons Wednesday when External Affairs Minister Martin confirmed that it had been given to Rhodesia by Mr. Gostick. He was replying to a question from David Lewis, New Democratic Party member for York South.

Catholic Crisis Seen By Jesuit

LONDON (Reuters)—A prominent and controversial British Jesuit said in an interview published today there is a crisis of confidence in the Roman Catholic church.

Most Rev. Thomas Roberts, former Archbishop of Bombay, told The Daily Express that the withdrawal of English Catholic theologian Charles Davis from the church this week was a great loss undermining the crisis.

"Anyone who says there is not a crisis is living in a dream world," he declared, adding "if Father Davis's action jolts the people in authority, it would be one good result."

Msgr. Roberts, who advocates contraception for married Catholic couples, also declared that the contentions of Irish was "not a monopoly of Rome and of the clergy."

The 43 - year - old Davis resigned Tuesday as professor of theology at Heythrop College in Chipping Norton, Central England.

He rejected the church after 20 years of priesthood and announced he would marry an American, 26-year-old Florence Henderson. Official Catholic sources so far have not commented on his action.

Yuletide carols being sung by a choir

And folks dressed up like Eskimos.

Everybody knows a turkey and some mistletoe

Help to make the season bright,

Will find it hard to sleep tonight.

They know that Santa's on his way

He's loaded lots of toys and goodies on his sleigh

And every mother's child is going to spy

To see if reindeer really know how to fly.

And so I'm offering this simple phrase

Although it's been said many times, many ways,

Merry Christmas to you.

North Korean Pilots Assist North Vietnam

SAIGON (CP)—A U.S. military spokesman said today that the presence of between 25 and 50 North Korean pilots in North Vietnam has been confirmed by intelligence reports.

The spokesman said there was no indication that any of these pilots were involved in any combat action.

Questioned about the role they may play in North Vietnam, the spokesman said: "We have no information at all of what they are doing up there."

In another development, the U.S. Navy said two Phantom jets from the carrier Kitty Hawk shot down two slow-moving enemy planes with air-to-air missiles over the Gulf of Tonkin Tuesday night and the pilots saw them explode.

An earlier announcement had said only that the enemy planes had disappeared from radar detection screens.

The announcement today said the planes were detected as they were heading in the direction of the nuclear - powered U.S. cruiser Long Beach but did not say they were trying to attack her. Nor did the navy say how the planes were identified as hostile.

Timber Companies in BC Plan Pulp Mill Expansion

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority predicts that timber companies will spend $1,500,000,000 on construction and renovation of pulp mills in the province during the next 10 years.

In a special report on the pulp and paper industry prepared by B.C. Hydro's industrial development department, the authority said B.C. will increase its share of Canadian pulp production to half from the present third in the next few years.

The Crown corporation said that if all proposed mills are built B.C.'s rated pulp - mill production capacity will increase is 6,000,000 tons annually by the mid-1970s—almost double the 3,300,000 tons produced in 1965.

The pulp boom, says the report, should provide second long-term prospects for secondary industrial suppliers of equipment, machinery and subordinate services.

The report notes that three new pulp mills began operations in 1965—bringing the B.C. total to 17. In addition, six other mills are in "the active planning stage" and four other companies have had extra timber reserves allocated for mills, necessitating expansion of existing facilities.

All the mills are expected to have an initial capacity of from 250,000 to 350,000 tons annually. Each will represent a capital investment of from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000.

Among the major foreign companies involved are Svenska Cellulosa of Sweden, Enso Gutzeit of Finland, the Reed Group of Great Britain, Fiedmuehle of Germany, East Asiatic of Denmark, Weyerhauser and Mead of the United States and Mitsubishi and Honshu, both of Japan.

Most of the companies are collaborating financially with B.C. business leaders on construction costs, says the report.

The report also, notes the growing opportunities for secondary industrial development resulting from the projected pulp and paper boom.

It says half of all the electric power in Canada is consumed by the pulp and paper industry.

In B.C., logging equipment is manufactured and supplied by several major firms.

Newsprint roll cores, paper mill rolls and many renewable supplies such as chemicals, wire mesh, packaging materials and food for the construction and logging camps are made in B.C.

Many mechanical and electrical engineering firms supply equipment ranging from massive earth movers to electronic control instruments for papermaking.

There are several large consulting firms in B.C. with practical experience in designing and engineering major pulp and paper mills around the world.

The report says short - term markets for the increasing capacity will be found in the highly-industrialized, consumer-oriented Western countries where use of paper products is high.

The province possesses half of Canada's merchantable standing timber and this is considered to be only one-third commercially exploited.

The report predicts that as the century passes, most Western European countries will become importers of Canadian pulp.

Welfare Investigation

City Council has done well to establish a special committee to investigate recent complaints regarding the operation of the city welfare department.

Some needy families have been quoted as experiencing difficulty in obtaining aid from the department, and that is what has led to the present controversy.

Mayor Jack Ellis says he has already received a report from the welfare department and is personally satisfied with the department's operation. However, he claims it is necessary to appoint the committee to "refute" some of the allegations which have been appearing in the press.

In saying this, Mayor Ellis is pre-judging the issue. If criticism of the administration of welfare in this city, leading to unnecessary hardship in the case of a number of families, is proven, it will be the committee's responsibility to say so. By the same token, if the complaints are unfounded — if every family that has sought welfare has gone away satisfied the department has fulfilled its obligation to help them, then it will be the committee's duty to indicate this is its conclusion.

But Alderman Enos David (one of the three committee members) quite rightly takes exception to Mayor Ellis's use of the term "refute," saying it sounds as if the committee is expected to find in favor of the welfare department.

Indeed, if the committee is to undertake its task in an unbiased manner, any attempt at pre-judging the issue should be avoided. Meanwhile Alderman David claims councillors are split on the question of whether the department is doing a good job.

As was pointed out in this newspaper the other day there is at least one satisfied customer — a former city resident now living in Gananoque. The man says the department took care of his family after he had an accident at work here, and provided money for transportation to other centres to allow him to look for work.

Doubtless there are similar cases. On the other hand, there have been others cited in our news columns where families have undergone hardships which might have been alleviated by the city agency.

The committee has been given its mandate. In the words of Mayor Ellis, it is to make every effort to investigate complaints "very thoroughly." In so doing it will interview department officials, welfare recipients and public welfare agencies in the city. It goes without saying that a full report will be in the public interest.

Christmas Stories

The distinguished British publication, The Illustrated London News, has brought out another of its interesting Christmas numbers, complete with reproductions of paintings of Christmas and winter themes by the great masters, verses and illustrations for young people — and a ghost story, no less.

Ghost stories have always had a place in the traditional Christmas festival, there are few pleasures so great in the life of the young as to sit before a log fire, with the wind and the driven snow outside, and to read of strange inexplicable happenings outside the norm of human experience.

Meanwhile, Canada has produced one of the most moving real-life stories of this time of rejoicing and family kinship. It concerns Allyson Burleson, a lively five-year-old from San Jose, California.

The American child was flown specially to Toronto for a delicate heart operation. Initial reports indicate her condition is good.

For the Burleson family this Christmas will be one of the happiest they have known — and all because of the skill of a Canadian medical team led by Dr. William Mustard, at the world-famous Children's Hospital in Toronto. It is events such as this which help fulfill the real meaning of Christmas.

Fighting Words

Defence Minister Paul Hellyer had a good answer for Mr. Diefenbaker when the Opposition Leader taunted the minister the other day with the remark that the proposed unified armed forces will be "all dressed up with no place to go."

Mr. Diefenbaker had remarked earlier that Canada "suffered a major diplomatic setback" when its peacekeeping mission at the United Nations was referred back to a special 33-country committee.

Observing that it was "unbecoming" to the Opposition Leader to reflect on the armed forces, Mr. Hellyer said: "The Government will be persistent in the pursuit of peace. We will not be deterred by any seeming setback."

A reply, indeed, which if Mr. Diefenbaker were not on the Opposition side, would have been after his own heart. After all, it was Mr. Diefenbaker who, on the 10th anniversary of his leadership of the Conservative party, said: "You will never find me discouraged, downcast or downtrodden."

Joe Borowski Puts Parliamentary Picketing in Style

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — If schedules were kept this week, there should have been a couple of ceremonials, one of Liberal Godbo's-gone leave-taking from Winnipeg, and the other of hail-the-hero-home-coming at Thompson, the Manitoba nickel town 400 miles north of the provincial capital.

Both ceremonies ought to have been memorable.

For they involved a previously obscure character whose name, in recognition of his awesome capacity for anger and impressive talent for stubbornness must surely have to be entered in the taxpayers' list of Public Heroes.

He is Joseph Borowski, a 34-year-old gift-shop operator who last September came down from Thompson to get under Premier Duff Roblin's suavely silken blade — something few if any of his political opponents had succeeded in doing over the last eight years — and to cause just a tiny shiver of chill concern in High Places here in the House on the Hill.

In an icy rage of indignation, 200 miles north of the Roblin fellow-taxpayers - everywhere, picketed the government for raising its own salaries while crying in the frightening name of inflation that everyone else must hold the wage and price line.

What triggered Joe's temper was Premier Roblin's post-election increasing of his own salary by 66,000 to $25,000, and of the Cabinet members pay by $5,000 to $22,800.

It was nearly four months ago that Joe Borowski, packing along a sleeping bag, arrived in Winnipeg and set up camp on the steps of the Manitoba Legislature, there to remain, he swore, until Tuesday, December 20 — or until the Premier and his Cabinet rescinded their pay increases which, of course, they didn't.

On Tuesday, December 20 the sleeping bag mornings, Joe picketed the front entrance of the Legislature building carrying signs denouncing the Cabinet and Premier's self-awarded pay increases as "immorally greedy."

Then, as that Winnipeg winter tightened its frigid grip, Joe, in "the interests of my health," hauled in a trailer and, with the help of friends, bolted it up the Legislature's steps, there to set up housekeeping.

This was too much for the previously imperturbable Premier Roblin.

Joe, he said, had to go.

And when Joe refused to decamp, the Premier directed the Deputy Minister of Public Works to move him.

With the aid of a 13-man crew, the Works Deputy shoved Joe Borowski's trailer to the Manitoba Government parking lot a half block away — which got rid of the trailer, but not Joe Borowski.

He continued the picketing in protest against the "immoral greed" of the Manitoba Premier and Cabinet and became enough of a national figure to cast a long shadow.

A shadow long enough, it turned out, to reach as far as Parliament Hill.

"Where's your friend Joe?" they asked Premier Roblin when he came down for the Federal-Provincial conference.

And while they were kidding — or were they, really, in their secret hearts — there was just the suspicion of a sigh of relief when Premier Roblin, grinning, assured them Joe hadn't been able to make the trip.

There was just the slightest twinge of concern when Joe's monumental indignation might be fetching, if he should appear in front of the Parliament Capital, and perhaps set a new style in public protest against politicians petting up their own pay while lecturing others to keep theirs down.

For there is still some resentment across the country against that 500 percent pay increase Parliament voted itself three years ago in raising its rates from $10,000 to $15,000 plus when he came down for the Federal-Provincial conference.

When the railway strikers were here in the early Fall and picketed Parliament Hill, they carried signs reminding the MPs of that more-than-doubling of political pay.

The Air Canada strikers remembered, too.

In fact, the ghost of that Parliamentary pay raise has haunted every labor dispute in these last troubled Liberal months and Conservative Leader Diefenbaker more than once has contended that it was this above all that upset the wage-price cart.

And Joe?

One of those railway strike pickets who paraded Parliament Hill carried a placard proclaiming: "Peter — Beware! — What's Good Enough For Politicians Is Good Enough For People."

Confusing

Lethbridge Herald

Not one in a hundred seems ever able to sort out accurately a CBE from an OBE and an OBE from an MBE (Member of the Order of the British Empire) — partly because of the confusion created by the fact that CBE does not mean Order of the British Empire, but Officer of the Order of the British Empire.

Voluntary Settlement

Globe and Mail

Coming up to the deadline for compulsory arbitration, most of the railway unions have agreed to a voluntary settlement, and it seems likely that the bold-out union, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, will now do the same.

Thus, after a year of negotiation, a strike, legislation hashed by Parliament sending the men to work under a temporary settlement and providing compulsory arbitration if negotiations within a deadline proved ineffective, this one railway dispute is in sight of settlement. And we may, because the Government will not act, expect the next one to follow the same tortuous, costly and dishonest pattern.

It is dishonest because from first to last the whole country knew that compulsory arbitration was inevitable if no agreement was made. There was nothing voluntary about this agreement.

Will Probe Be Unbiased?

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I was shocked on Monday night when I heard Mayor Ellis announce to City Council that he was appointing a committee "to refute the allegations made against the city welfare department".

Then he includes as a member of the committee Alderman Don Williams who goes about town daily jetting it be known that he thinks the welfare administrator "is doing a fine job".

When such impartial organizations as the YCW, and the Red Cross and the Children's Aid, and the nurses in the City's own Health Department (not to mention the welfare personnel of adjoining municipalities) band together to take exception to the manner in which the underprivileged of the community are treated by one municipal employee, surely something is seriously wrong.

Pension Up On Jan. 1

Stratford Beacon-Herald

Health Minister Allan MacEachen estimates that 900,000 old age pensioners will qualify under the supplementary pension plan, effective Jan. 1, and that between 500,000 and 600,000 of these will be eligible for the full $30 a month, bringing their income to $105.

If his estimate is at all accurate, we have 900,000 Canadians living on less than $135 a month and at least 500,000 whose monthly income is only $75, the basic old age pension. In this land of vast resources, unlimited opportunity and high standard of living — able to send aid to less fortunate people abroad — the situation outlined appears shocking, almost incredible. So it would be if this were the whole story.

(The maximum supplement of $20 will be paid only to those relying solely on the $75 basic old age pension. In other cases the maximum supplement will be reduced by $1 for every $2 of private income the pensioner received. A pensioner with private income of $80 would receive nothing more than the basic $75 and the income of pensioners with a total income of less than $135 ($80 private plus the $75 pension) will benefit in varying degrees from the supplementary old age pension legislation.)

Far-Out CBC

Port Arthur News-Chronicle

Senator Pouliot suggests that the CBC programming should be restricted to newscasts, concerts, sports events and political speeches. So far coverage is going too far. Nobody wants Canadian programming to be reduced to such a level of lifelessness. And nobody is eager for government control of programs.

Yet, if such a thing were to come about, the CBC and its far-out producers with only shock and sex on their minds — with absolutely no genius for the light, the amiable and a touch of jaggy humor — will have only themselves to blame.

Syphilis Kills Many As VD Spreads in U.S.

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please tell us what syphilis and gonorrhea are. My friends and I have been wondering for quite awhile. — P. K., J.D., R.W.

You don't tell me how old you are, but you are old enough to ask, and to spell the words right, and you deserve an answer.

These are venereal diseases, infectious diseases which are primarily passed by sexual intimacy. The germs can be transmitted in other ways, but this happens rarely.

In all cases, the germs have to come from someone who has one of these diseases. The rapid spread, therefore, is caused by promiscuous people who have sexual relations with numerous others.

Neither disease is likely to be very severe at first. Boys and men usually know in a few days if they have acquired gonorrhea; girls and women sometimes do but sometimes do not know.)

It is the aftermath which is frightening. Gonorrhea affects the organs of the lower part of the body primarily. It can cause disease of the prostate and urinary tract, make parts of either sex sterile. It can cause arthritis, eye inflammation and other such problems and can make babies blind if mothers have the disease.

Syphilis is even more. Considerably worse. It can affect almost any part of the body — central nervous system, eyes, heart and blood vessels. It can leave people blind or insane.

Yet virtually all this misery could be prevented. In the 1930's, when it was realized that penicillin (or sometimes other drugs) could cure these diseases quickly opinions predicted that these diseases were going to be stamped out entirely.

Then people began getting careless. Vigorous campaigns, publicity, and education slacked off. More attention apparently have changed. More young people are getting (and spreading) VD.

Here are some figures from a recent medical journal:

An estimated 3,000 people a day are getting one or the other of these diseases in the United States, and 600 are teenagers.

Syphilis is estimated to be causing 1,000 deaths a month. It usually takes years, but it is, truly, deadly.

More than half of all infected in among teenagers and adults under the age of 25.

It costs $50,000,000 a year to care for patients who are in mental hospitals because of syphilis, and $6,000,000 to care for those who are blind from the same cause.

An estimated 1,200,000 have syphilis and have not been treated.

There are films, posters and pamphlets available for educational campaigns in schools or elsewhere.

Experts say that from two to six hours of instruction is sufficient to teach groups all they need to know to protect themselves and others against these diseases.

But too many people don't know, and the depressing fact is that the spread of V.D. is increasing.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible for a person who is allergic to penicillin to get a reaction from anything with penicillin mold in it, such as bread? I get a rash and swelling. — J.P.

It is possible in a person who is highly sensitive to penicillin which, as you obviously know, is a mold.

Wishart Blames Federal Government for Prudential Collapse

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart of Ontario says the federal government is largely responsible for the collapse of Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd.

At a news conference Wednesday, he said the federal government failed to provide adequate bankruptcy and criminal legislation and did not communicate information of Prudential Finance's accounts to the Ontario government.

Mr. Wishart claimed the provincial government had done as much as it could to protect people from taking investment risks.

The attorney - general also said further charges are being considered in addition to the charges, including theft and forgery, laid against Joseph Benoit Brien, Prudential Finance president.

He gave no details, but said a "thorough and full" investigation is being conducted by the Ontario Securities Commission.

He indicated the provincial government does not plan to set up a royal commission to investigate the bankruptcy, as asked by creditors and opposition legislature members.

Following the press conference, Kenneth Bryden, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Woodbine, demanded Mr. Wishart's resignation and said small shareholders of Prudential Finance should be compensated.

Robert Nixon, Liberal party house leader, described the handling of the collapse as "a weak and misleading, but said compensation was "an impossible precedent" that could make all investments governments guaranteed

Mr. Wishart said the province should have been given information which the federal government had received from accountant William Gruber.

Mr. Gruber, employed for seven months by Morris Oden Stein, auditor for Prudential Finance, said he told the federal government last January about alleged irregularities in Prudential Finance accounts.

Finance Minister Sharp said earlier this week in the Commons that Mr. Gruber revealed nothing of value to federal officials. Mr. Sharp had placed responsibility for the collapse with the Ontario government.

"There is an obligation on all other levels of government to inform the provincial authorities of the information these governments have which indicates an offence may have been committed in this province," Mr. Wishart said.

"If any government had information of that nature, it was the duty of that government to tell the residents of this province to inform this government. No such information has ever been conveyed to the law officers of this province."

Mr. Wishart also criticized the Criminal Code which, he said, does not make it an offence for directors to continue operations of a company that may not be able to meet long-term obligations.

"Had the Bankruptcy Act provided any punitive sanction or other remedy, the collapse of Prudential Finance might have been avoided or at least have been less severe," he said.

It has been estimated that $30,000,000,000 may be involved in the Prudential Finance collapse, which included three subsidiary companies.

Mr. Wishart said the securities commission had been watching Prudential Finance since 1963 and there had been a check on its financial statements. But the commission had not made an independent audit of the books during the last year.

"The corporation's prospectus clearly indicated the nature of the risk. The warning in the prospectus was clear and explicit. The decision to purchase, in the light of the detailed information, was clearly left up to the investor.

"Investors would be the first to protect if government should attempt to take away from their freedom to decide when or how they should invest their money."

The attorney-general said securities legislation cannot guarantee an investor against loss. There is a risk to every investor, and the size of the return depends substantially on the size of the risk.

He noted that last March the government introduced a series of amendments to the securities and corporate acts, which he expects will be considered at the next session of the legislature.

Not Same Firm: Prudential Insurance

TORONTO (CP) — The Prudential Insurance Co. of America issued a statement Wednesday saying there is no connection between Prudential Insurance and the bankrupt Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd. of Toronto.

William Ingram, senior vice-president in charge of Canadian operations for Prudential Insurance, said the company has assured its policyholders that Prudential Insurance is safe and secure.

"It is most unfortunate," he said, "that anxieties and confusion have been created in the minds of so many people, particularly those who have placed their faith in us."

He said Prudential Insurance initiated litigation in 1961 in the Ontario Supreme Court against Prudential Finance in an effort to restrain the use of the Prudential name.

Notice of trial had been served, he said, but the case had not been called at the time of the finance company's collapse.

There was a slight improvement in volume and by 11 a.m. 357,000 shares changed hands compared with 446,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Labatt's was up ¼ to 19¾ and Inco ¼ to 84¼.

Atlantic Commission Adjourns

TORONTO (CP) — A royal commission investigating the collapse last year of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. Ltd. Wednesday adjourned to Jan. 17 after testimony from a former director.

Gorman King, a Toronto stockbroker, said there was a time when he regarded the late J. Campbell Morgan, then president of Atlantic, as something of an investment genius.

He said he took Mr. Morgan's advice and made substantial gains in stock transactions. These gains were later cancelled by market losses, Mr. King told Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes of the Ontario Supreme Court.

"I broke about even on the whole thing," Mr. King said.

He said Mr. Morgan made a good impression on officers of large institutions in the United States and was able to realize $4,500,000 in selling Atlantic securities to highly respected companies.

"I never was impressed with the low loss record of the company," Mr. King said.

Several briefs from leading members of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants were submitted to the commission for study.

Commission counsel Albert Roland said that after the commission has studied the briefs, the authors may be called to testify.

Deposits Probed

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — International Nickel Co of Canada Ltd. and Broken Hill Proprietary Co Ltd. are going into partnership to investigate nickel ore deposits in the Rockhampton area of Queensland, Australia, a Broken Hill spokesman said here Wednesday.

The spokesman said Broken Hill found favorable indications of nickel deposits in the area and began field work in 1964.

Nickel is one of the few major metals used in the iron and steel industries not mined in Australia.

Most of the metallurgical investigations were to be carried out by the extensive research establishment of Inco in Canada.

Business Booming

Competition Fierce to Lure Free-spending Skiers

VANCOUVER (CP)—There's no business like snow business.

This year, ski industry executives in British Columbia and Alberta predict that devotees of the winter sport will spend $200,000,000 or more this season to say one of the dozens of glittering resorts that dot the Rockies from Banff to the West Coast.

Business is booming. Retail prices are up, equipment is becoming more specialized and expensive and ski clothes have added a new impetus to the clothing industry across Canada and in the U.S.

Industry spokesmen say Canadians will spend $95,000,000 this season, while Americans will spend about $1,000,000,000 during the winter months to pursue the sport.

Competition is the various segments of the industry is getting fierce — especially among resort operators, many of whom have invested millions in anticipation of undercutting a neighboring area.

COSTS ARE UP

Lodges are getting more prestigious and it's becoming more and more expensive to equip a mountain for skiing.

Developers at Whistler Mountain, northwest of Vancouver, are making a concerted effort to lure U.S. skiers away from Mount Baker, an impressive resort across the border in Washington state.

One of the men involved in the development says Whistler has the potential to become another Sun Valley, Idaho.

"All it needs is about another $5,000,000 spent on transportation, chairlifts and T-bars."

Whistler already has cut deeply into Mount Baker's traditional popularity among B.C. skiers, but parking lots around the base lodges of Canadian cars.

Lodge operators have launched a campaign designed to stretch weekend skiing into a week-long affair. They provide special week - long excursion rates, throw in the transportation and encourage young, single persons, as well as families, to head for the hills.

In Alberta and B.C., costs have shown a general increase this year. Lift tickets generally are up 50 cents to $1, six that cost $107 last season now cost $112 and top line ski boots are up to $125 from $100.

Gus Arnett, a leading Vancouver dealer in Japanese and European equipment, says a family of four can expect to spend $1,000 this year for the minimum in equipment and clothing—and up to $1,500 depending upon personal taste.

The $300 price would include "wooden skis and fairly good boots."

Ski themselves are changing. They're now made out only of wood and metal, but p astics and combinations of other synthetics. Some of them are coated with the same substance that prevents your scrambled eggs from sticking to the frying pan—the extra zip for getting down the slopes.

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH GUILD

The Christmas spirit was in evidence when Christ Church Parish Guild held its December meeting in the form of a potluck luncheon.

Special guests for the occasion included the rector, Canon R. B. dB. Wright and Mrs. Wright; Rev. Allan Lauder; Mr. and Mrs. T. Turner-Bone and Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Colling, church wardens, and their wives; Mr. John C. Withers, organist; Mrs. C. Fuzzen, secretary of the church; Mr. Dirk Rylaan, sexton and a number of members' husbands and old friends of the Guild.

A highlight in the program was the presentation of a cheque to the church wardens to be used to decrease the amount owing on the Parish Hall. Mrs. Earl Hickey and Mrs. A. Jordan gave a number of humorous poetical descriptions of workers in the Guild. Mrs. Hickey was the poet and Mrs. Jordan the musician.

President Mrs. J. M. Cousins presided over the business meeting. In her retiring speech Mrs. Cousins stressed the teamwork of all members of the Guild who work together so harmoniously. Mrs. Hickey thanked the retiring president for outstanding leadership during the past two years.

Christmas packages were displayed and will be distributed to shut-in members of the parish before Christmas and a large number of gifts were received for the Christmas hampers. Funds in the Ontario Hospitals were remembered with a cheque for the Mental Health Association and a cheque will go to the Northern Saskatchewan parish as a thank offering from the Guild.

Mrs. Earl Hickey will be the new vestry council representative from the Guild and all members are urged to attend the annual vestry meeting to vote for her.

News of the vestry council meeting included a description of the new railing, which is to be installed at the chancel steps to match existing furnishings. As a centennial project for the parish it has been suggested that a new entrance be built at the Everett side of the church. Plans will be presented at the annual vestry meeting in January.

Reporting for the nominating committee, Mrs. A. Jordan presented the following slate of officers for the year 1967-68. Past-president — Mrs. J. M. Cousins; president — Mrs. G. Livingstone; 1st vice-president — Mrs. Fred Lasier; 2nd vice-president — Mrs. J. Hinchey; secretary — Miss Minnie Redmond; treasurer — Mrs. Ridley Wallbridge.

Recent activities of the Guild include two wedding receptions and several businessmen's luncheons. Members were reminded to have reports ready for the January meeting.

Isabel LeBoudais Named Canada's Most Newsworthy Woman of Year 1966

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

No doubt about it, women's editors consider Isabel LeBoudais Canada's most newsworthy woman of 1965.

They overwhelmingly voted her No. 1 in the field of literature and the arts for her book, The Trial of Steven Truscott, and in public affairs because of the book's impact, then topped it off by naming her Woman of the Year.

Winners in other categories in the Canadian Press poll of 107 newspaper, radio and television women's editors:

Sports — Swimmer Elaine Tanner of Vancouver.

Music — Singer Monique Leyrac of Montreal.

Stage, screen, radio and TV—Television director Beryl Fox, now of New York.

Mrs. LeBoudais stepped into national prominence in March when The Trial of Steven Truscott was published. It cast doubt on the verdict of guilty in Truscott's 1959 trial for the rape-slaying of 12-year-old Lynne Harper near Chatham, Ont. Truscott, now 21, has served seven years of a life sentence.

Public reaction was immediate and strong, and in April the federal government ordered a Supreme Court of Canada review of the case. The court broke precedent when hearing opened in October, by hearing new witnesses, including Truscott, who had not testified before.

Final arguments are scheduled for late January, after which the court will decide whether Truscott was properly convicted, should have a new trial or be acquitted.

Mrs. LeBoudais became interested six years ago when she read of the case. She had trouble getting a publisher to accept her potentially explosive book, and it was finally published by an English firm, Victor Gollancz. It is in its fifth printing, has sold 70,000 copies and has been translated into German.

Mrs. LeBoudais is public relations officer with the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario. She says she was as yet received no royalties on her book and that, contrary to popular opinion, she works because she needs the money, like most people.

Her husband, writer D. M. LeBoudais, died in 1964. One of their four children, Eric, is also a public relations and magazine writer. The other son, Julien, is a photographer. One daughter, Isabel Cole, lives in Roosevelt, N.J. The other, Eleanor, lives in Toronto. Mrs. LeBoudais has six grandchildren.

Elaine Tanner 15, was named most newsworthy in sports for her four gold medals, two second place silver medals and one bronze medal at the British Empire Games in Jamaica. She set a world record in the 220-yard butterfly and shared in another for the 440 freestyle relay team.

Miss Tanner was also chosen top female athlete of the year in the CP poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

Monique Leyrac, winner in the music category, scored successes in New York's Town Hall and the Olympia, a Paris music hall, but postponed indefinitely a concert in Toronto because she says she is not yet well known enough in English-speaking Canada. She specializes in French Canadian folk songs.

Robert Sherman of the New York Times said "She came, charmed and conquered."

The critic of L'Humanite in Paris said "She has a powerful voice with many nuances, incontestable stage presence and charm."

Miss Leyrac is married to Jean Daumain, entertainer and director. They have one daughter, Sophie, 11.

The stage, screen, radio and television winner, Beryl Fox, is back in Vietnam, where she made the film that won several awards. This time she is working for CBS. In 1965 she was directing for the CBC. The result was an hour-long documentary film on Vietnam called The Mills of the Gods. Its honors included a New York award as the Western world's best TV documentary.

Later in 1965, Miss Fox was director of a film that caused a CBC dust-up because it was alleged to include shots of two girls and a boy in bed together. The film was being made for This Hour Has Seven Days. Still later, when the future over that show arose, Miss Fox resigned and left for the United States.

SOCIAL And PERSONAL

Last Saturday evening a family gathering was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Robertson in Plainfield to mark the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary. Present at this time to celebrate the event were the six children, eight grandchildren and two great grandchildren. At the close, the family presented the honored couple with an appropriate gift.

Navy Wife Has Excuse For Not Writing Hubby

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)— A navy wife here has found the perfect excuse for not writing to her husband while he is on an extended cruise. She talks to him, instead.

Mrs. Mildred Graham became interested in ham radio operations through her husband, Ivan, a petty officer radio communicator on board HMCS Margaree.

Ivan received his transmitting license in 1961. Mrs. Graham received her first licence in 1965 and her advanced license in June, 1966.

Thus, when PO Graham left in September on a three-month cruise to the Mediterranean, his wife's voice followed him across the Atlantic. And true to feminine form, Mrs. Graham did most of the talking since special permission must be obtained in order to transmit from a ship while it is in a foreign port.

Mrs. Graham also relayed messages from other navy wives to their husbands in the crew of the Margaree. To show the crew's appreciation for this service, the ship's captain, Cmdr. Robert C. MacLean, presented her with a framed picture of the ship and the crew gave her a box of French perfume.

Although her husband is back in Canada, Mrs. Graham still spends an average of two hours a day on the air, chatting among others to the Polar Amateur Radio Club of Alert, N.W.T., and the United Nations Emergency Force in the Gaza Strip.

She also is president of one of the more unusual clubs in the Maritime provinces. The members are all female radio operators and meet for a coffee break on the air every Thursday morning.

Reader Praises Columnist for Dealing Fairly With Various Social Problems

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: How I admire your wonderful way of helping people with their human problems! I am amazed at the way you try to get at both angles, when it would appear that the problem was entirely one-sided. You must have spent a great deal of time and talent on social work.

When I read the little poem entitled "The good are half bad" I felt it was rather harsh, but on reading the P.S. I thought to myself that this casts a different light on the picture. I can say from experience that I have not found one litter to 20 who lean, but rather the exact opposite.

Some years ago I built a barn on my farm and we had 75 men (neighbors and friends) at the barn-raising. I can truthfully say that every man was in his place and did his share and then some.

I often read a question in your column and then think of what your answer will be. So often it is just what I expect, only better worded than I could do. — Ardent Andy.

Dear Andy: Well you've given me a special Christmas present! Thank you.

Thinking up your own answers ought to be good exercise for folk who are trying to improve their skills in human relations, and have been using me for a while.

If you "find 39 litters" you yourself are accentuating the positive. Which is the successful way to live, after all.

Dear Doris: One year ago I wrote to you asking for a list of books about sex, which you sent me. I bought four of them and one about birth control and I must say that I am forever grateful to you.

The knowledge my husband and I gained from these books has changed our marriage. There is no end that I would especially recommend to every married couple. I think it would save many marriages. We always had a fine marriage but we caused a little bit of a problem and it was all because of ignorance. Sex is such a delicate subject, no one wants to talk about it. But where should young people get the knowledge to make their relationship succeed?

So...please, Doris, keep up the good work. Honestly, it took years before I had enough courage to approach you on the subject, but I am happy that I did. — Grateful.

Dear Grateful: I'll mark that book with a special star; and deliver your recommendation to anyone writing in for this kind of help.

Dear Doris: I like this boy who is three years older than me. First my friends were telling me to forget him because he had another girl a year older than me. Well, the other day I wrote him a letter and told him I never wanted to see him again. He got the point and I haven't heard from him since.

But now my friends and I realize this was wrong, as I miss him, and life is miserable for all of us. I don't know about him, though. Should I tell him it was a mistake, or should I try and live without him? — G. M.

Dear G.M.: Try and live without him. Three years is a big gap.

Some day you may have a chance to apologize for writing him off, as it were. He has a right to other friends.

(There are Canadian resources to help solve your problem. Write to Doris for direction, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Susanna's Family Fare

Remedy for Cold Car Cushions

Dear Susanna: My husband is a dear, but not exactly the handy type. On cold winter mornings I used to shiver right along until he watched him shuffle out to the car and huddle up behind the steering wheel as he sat there on the frosty seat trying to get the car warmed up.

But, I got an inspiration. Now I bring the car rug in at night and spread it out on the kitchen rad. Every morning he takes it out with him, folded in half, and places it on the seat just before he slides in on top of it.

He says it helps so much to break the shock of the initial contact and that he's cold leather. — Mrs. E. Morley

That's quite a description, gal. After reading your letter, I had to turn up the heat! — SUSANNA

Dear Su: I found it terribly difficult to keep my thumbs out of the yolks when separating eggs, until I tried breaking them on a flat place. I crack the yolk with a small juice glass, and drain the white into a bowl. Never the twain doth meet. — Mrs. B.

If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. A self-addressed stamped envelope should be enclosed when requesting pamphlets.

Two-crust Cream Apple Pie

Amidst all of the Christmas rush you — the cook-mother-housewife — have to plod along making three meals every day.

This Cream Apple Pie is new to me and a surprise and change from familiar two-crust apple pie. Could be a family or a guest dessert.

The pie matures in the audience are going to love it.

CREAM APPLE PIE

Pastry:
1 cup sanitted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. salt
1-3 cup shortening
1 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. cold water

Filling:
¾ cup sugar
2 tbsp. flour
1 cup dairy sour cream (½ pint less 2 tbsps.)
1 large egg
½ tsp. vanilla
¼ tsp. salt
2 cups chopped pared and cored apples (I used 4 med. Courtlands)

Topping:
½ cup sugar
6 tbsps. flour (¼ cup plus 2 tbsps.)
¼ tsp. salt
¼ cup hard butter.

To make Pastry cut the shortening and butter into the flour and salt until size of small peas with pastry blender. Drizzle in cold water 1 tbsp. at a time, tossing with fork until flour is dampened. Press dough into a ball between palms. Roll out on lightly floured board to fit 9" pie plate with high fluted edge. Prick all over with fork tip and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. 9 min. Remove from oven.

In a bowl measure all filling ingredients, chopping and adding apples last to prevent browning. Turn into baked pie shell. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. 20 min. Filling will be just set. Remove from oven.

For Topping mix together sugar, flour and salt and with pastry blender chop in butter until crumbly. Sprinkle evenly over filling. This is piled very high. Return pie to oven and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. about another 20 min. or until topping is bubbly and tinged with gold. Cool pie to lukewarm before serving.

We served this with Cheddar cheese but it was not necessary.

Wife's Confessions Reveal Sadistic Streak

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an Air Force officer who has learned a lot from your columns. I am always surprised when I read about husbands who went to drag confessions out of their wives. My problem is just the opposite. I wish my wife would keep quiet.

I recently returned from serving several months in Spain. The first thing my wife hit me with was the details of her love affair with an ex-sweetheart. I told her I didn't want to hear about it, but eight months was a long time to be without a husband. I said I forgave her and to please stop talking about it.

She is wonderful to me when I am at home and I am willing to settle for that, which some people say is crazy, but it's the way I see it.

My wife insists she must purge herself by reciting every detail of her escapades. This bothers me to the point where I am thinking about packing my bags permanently. Can you help? — A.A.F.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR A.A.F.: Your wife's "purging" has a streak of sadism which you ought to recognize even if she does not.

If you are willing to settle for being well treated when you are at home (that's some settlement, Bob) the least she can do is respect your wishes. Suggest that the dirt purge herself by unloading on a clergyman or a counselor or someone who can listen without becoming emotionally involved.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son, a college senior, is engaged to marry a 20-year-old girl. She is a bright and attractive psychology major and we like her. The only thing that bothers us is that she is still talking baby talk.

For you who says, "goo goo." No is "noo noo." Dinner is "din din," and water is "wa wa." We find this annoying and feel that our son will hate it after they are married. Should I say something to her privately? — I.M.I.I.

DEAR I: If your son grows to hate it, he'll let her know. They say love is blind and, apparently in this case, it is also deaf. Keep quiet.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me what to do before I go out of my mind. Our next door neighbors have two teenage daughters. These girls have a record player which goes for six and seven hours at a stretch. Some days I could swear they are playing the same record over and over again twenty or thirty times.

My husband has heart trouble and is very nervous. He can't stand any noise. Our own grandchildren have to walk around in their stocking feet when they come over yet these kids next door are practically breaking our eardrums.

It is 4:00 p.m. now and the racket has been going since 10:00 a.m. Our windows are closed, but their windows are open. Will you please tell me what to do? — C.T.

DEAR C.T.: They say you can catch more flies with honey than with vinegar. Have you tried it?

Explain to the girls that your husband is ill and their loud music is hard on his nerves. Ask them to please turn down the music player and to keep their windows closed. It may surprise you to find that if you request rather than demand — if you make them feel they are doing you a favor — you'll get better results.

DOG ENDED MARRIAGE

SUTTON, England (CP) — Joyce and John Ferguson's marriage was dissolved after 14 years on grounds of mutual cruelty. Mrs. Ferguson complained that he put their Alsatian dog ahead of their three children although it was uncontrollable, bit bitten one child, threatened to spread infection and cost "an enormous veterinary bill."

Women's Institutes

MOUNTAIN VIEW — Mrs. Reg. Barber opened her home for the December meeting of the Mountain View Women's Institute with Mrs. William Highsingle as co-hostess. There were 28 present.

Tickets had been sold on a blanket with the winner Mrs. David Farmer. An auction of home made articles was held with Mrs. Clifford Barber, auctioneer. The amount realized from this was $20.

Mrs. R. Lough presented Mrs. C. Barber with a gift from the Institute for her work in selling tickets.

The remainder of the program consisted of singing of Christmas Carols under the direction of Mrs. D. Farmer with Mrs. R. Barber at the piano. Mrs. Farmer also sang an appropriate selection.

Mrs. R. Barber conducted a game.

Mrs. Lottie Green thanked the hostess.

Mrs. Barber assisted by the lunch committee, Mrs. Stanley Barber and Mrs. E. Workhoven served refreshments and everyone enjoyed a social half hour.

Rebekahs Sponsor Yule Party

THOMASBURG—The Lodge-room of the I.O.O.F. Hall, Thomasburg, was tastefully decorated with evergreens and Christmas garlands on Monday evening for the annual Christmas party of Crescent Rebekah Lodge.

The regular meeting of the lodge took place with an exchange of gifts among the members.

At the conclusion of Lodge, the husbands were invited to participate in the festivities. A musical program was presented, prepared under the direction of Sisters Ruby Colden and Helen Hagerman. Readings were given and community carol singing and instrumental music was provided by Sisters Joyce Fluker and Merle Mumby.

A contest was staged and all enjoyed a tempting supper.

The attractively set table was centred with a miniature decorated Christmas tree.

The Lodge donated a 10-pound cheese to the I.O.O.F. Home for the Aged at Barrie.

The card parties, which the Lodge sponsors, during the winter season, will resume on Dec. 19 and will continue at two week intervals until further notice.

This Is the House Rose Marie Built

Would You Believe It's All Candy?

Brothers Johnny and Joey Belanger are tempted to find out for themselves

When young friends of Mrs. Roy Payne, 11 First Ave, fall asleep these nights, visions of sugar plum houses dance round their heads. For Rose Marie Payne has made a real Hansel and Gretel candy house, as delectable to look at as it is to eat.

After New Year's day, Mrs. Payne will allow the children to demolish her masterpiece. In the meantime, it serves as a delightful bit of Christmas decoration in her living room.

Mrs. Payne could hardly wait to get started on her house after reading directions for its construction in the Dec. 3 issue of Weekend Magazine. Her son Danny, 12, helped with the hardest part, the building of the cardboard base. Mrs. Payne collected almost $10 worth of candy, choosing it for color and lightness. Her mother sent packages of tiny colored candy-petals from Norwood.

Eggs, beaten with icing sugar into a snowy meringue, make the mortar that holds the candy building blocks to the base. Mrs. Payne used a dozen eggs, piling up meringue to imitate snow drifts around the completed structure. Each icicle was hung separately from the eaves, the most painstaking part of the project. She "dripped" the icicles on with a knife after the meringue has hardened to just the right "hanging" consistency.

Like all good architects, Mrs. Payne altered the original plan to suit her convenience. A cobblestone path of round peppermint candy leads to the tiny green door where a foil wrapped Santa Claus stands waiting to greet guests. She used cellophane wrapped toffees, which proved too heavy for housing construction, to make a fence around the green icing lawn.

Mrs. Payne estimates the house took 20 hours to build and she plans to do it again next year. She suggests it as an excellent project for a group that wants a delightful and different gift for sick and shut-in children and senior citizens at Christmas.

"My only regret", she says, "is not putting in a few alka-seltzer tablets for the one who eats the most".

650 Women At Present In Air Force

TORONTO (CP) — The first four airwomen to be recruited through the Toronto recruiting office since 1962 were sworn into the service Tuesday.

The four, ranging in age from 18 to 20, are also the first Toronto-area women to join the air force since Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said last October that Canada's services need more women.

The air force stopped recruiting women in 1962 and since that time the navy has been the only service with a steady recruiting drive for women.

Mr. Hellyer told a rally of former Canadian airwomen that defence department studies have shown women are needed. They can fit into 11 trades classifications.

The four new Toronto recruits, Karen Thorogood, Shirley O'Brady, Pat Bradley and Catherine Billinger, are nursing assistants. They are part of a group of 50 who will start training at Cornwallis, N.S., early in January.

An air force spokesman said there are now 650 women in the air force and current plans are to increase the number to 1,200 in six months.

Clobber Leafs 6-2 ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Hawks, Blues Score

Cournoyer Gets 'Hat' In Habs' Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When the going gets rough, Yvan Cournoyer gets going.

With his ice time restricted to power plays, Cournoyer saw plenty of action and scored three goals for Montreal Canadiens as they beat Toronto Maple Leafs 6-2 Wednesday night in a game marked by 18 penalties.

In other games, New York Rangers defeated Boston Bruins 5-1 and Chicago Black Hawks downed Detroit Red Wings 6-4, the winners remaining tied for first place.

It was the first time in Cournoyer's NHL career he had scored three goals in a game. He scored 18 last season—16 of them while the other team was shorthanded.

"I have to make the most of my chances," he said. "Unless there are a lot of penalties, I don't get much ice time."

BACKSTROM SCORES TWO

Ralph Backstrom scored twice for the Canadiens, his first after 21 scoreless games being the 150th of his career. Jim Roberts scored the other Montreal goal and Larry Jeffrey and Kent Douglas scored for the Leafs.

Bobby Hull scored two goals and assisted on goals by Pierre Pilote and Phil Esposito to pace the Black Hawks in a 6-4 win over Detroit Red Wings. Stan Mikita and Pat Stapleton scored the other Chicago goals. Dean Prentice scored two for Detroit and Norm Ullman and Ted Hampson the others.

Bernie Geoffrion scored twice for the Rangers and Jim Neilson, Bob Nevin and Vic Hadfield had one each. Ron Stewart scored the Boston goal.

Geoffrion moved within one goal of Ted Lindsay's career total of 379—fourth on the all-time NHL list. The goals were his sixth and seventh in this comeback season, after spending two years coaching Quebec Aces of the American League.

"I had three seconds to shoot each time," the long time Montreal star grinned. "Give me three seconds every time."

NOW HAS 10

Cournoyer's three goals brought his season total to 10, all on the power-play.

He scored his first at 1:37 of the first period while Jeffrey was serving a minor. His second came at 8:13 of the second period while Tim Horton was off for holding and his third at 15:34 of the second period while Bob Pulford was off, also for holding.

Referee Art Skov called six majors and one 10-minute misconduct penalty and 11 minor penalties during the first two periods of the game. There were no penalties in the third.

The fourth - place Canadiens fired 31 shots at Bruce Gamble and Gary Smith, who shared Toronto netminding duties. The third-place Leafs had 26 shots at Charlie Hodge.

The Chicago victory extended Detroit's winless streak on the road to 14 games and left the Red Wings in last place, one point behind the fifth - place Bruins.

TOTAL IS 13

Hull's two goals were his 12th and 13th of the season and came 10 minutes apart in the second period.

Pilote put the Hawks ahead 1-0 at 9:02 of the first period but Ullman tied the game just over four minutes later.

Mikita, the league's leading point-getter, put the Hawks ahead 2-1 at 2:38 of the second period and then Hull scored his two goals to make it 4-1. Prentice cut the margin to 4-2 with his first goal of the game at 17:36 of the second period.

Esposito made it 5-2 at 2:34 of the third but Prentice scored his second 34 seconds later. Hampson made it 5-4 at 6:29 of the third period but Stapleton put the Hawks ahead by two goals at 8:26.

Howie Young, acquired Monday by the Wings from Los Angeles Blades of the Western Hockey League, picked up one assist and two penalties and one assist.

OUTSHOOT HAWKS

Detroit had 31 shots at Denis DeJordy and the Hawks had one less at Roger Crozier.

Geoffrion scored in the last minute of the first period and then climaxed a three-goal outburst by the Rangers in the second period.

The victory was New York's fourth in a row on home ice and marked the 100th consecutive game without a loss against the Bruins, including exhibition contests.

Ranger netminder Ed Giacomin is electrified a capacity crowd when he stopped Boston's Dallas Smith on a penalty shot attempt in the third period. It was the third penalty shot called in the NHL this season, all by referee Bill Friday, and the first unsuccessful one.

Giacomin stopped 24 shots and Ed Johnson handled 41 New York shots.

New York is at Montreal Saturday and Boston is at Toronto. Sunday, Montreal is at Detroit, Toronto is at Boston and New York is at Chicago.

Watson Gets Bite

Hornets Fined $1,000

ROCHESTER, N.Y (AP) — Jack Butterfield, president of the American Hockey League, fined Pittsburgh Hornets $1,000 Wednesday night for being an ineligible player in a game against Baltimore Dec. 9 and slapped a $250 fine on Quebec coach Phil Watson for making inflammatory remarks on a television broadcast.

The Hornets were fined for their use of defenceman Pete Goegan against Baltimore after he had been recalled by the parent Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League.

"After a thorough investigation," Butterfield said. "it has been determined that said player was recalled from loan to Pittsburgh by Detroit in a period of less than 14 days.

"Under American League bylaws and the joint affiliation agreement between the AHL and NHL said player must be considered as having been ineligible during the period of the loan as a result of his earlier recalled."

Butterfield said Watson appeared on a Quebec television show Dec. 6 prior to a game against Rochester, and "suggested that the spectators come out in the game that night at the Coliseum and shower the visiting team with various and sundry articles."

According to the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters' release of its annual Big Fish Contest held for the Molson's cash awards, "Moby Dick" and "Moby Jane" these mythical monstrilongo mastodons that haunt the waters near Campbellford and Marmora should be sending out notices of memorial services.

The Lumber Lodge of the Weeky Union lost fifteen of its top rine members during the 1966 season which ranged in weight from the "champion" 46 pounds fourteen ounces to the fifteenth which tipped the scales at 34.4.

Stewart Levere of Cardinal snatched that 46-pounder in the St. Lawrence River. It was five pounds shy of the contest record caught in 1963 by Mrs. Ed Smith of California.

Other forty-pounds-plus hauls were taken by J. A. McArthur, Islington, in Honey Harbor (44), Arthur Robson, Toronto took a 43-pounder in Georgian Bay and Fred Town, Orillia, grabbed a 40-pounder in Lake Conchiching.

Some whoppers topped the list.

An 18-pound two-ounce rainbow trout caught in Georgian Bay by R. Bailey of Stoney Creek shattered the previous contest mark of 16 pounds nine ounces.

Kenneth Hauser of Lake View, Iowa, landed a 49-pound lake trout in Nagagami Lake, Algoma, to win first prize and chalk up a new record over the 36 pounds, 14 ounces caught in 1965.

V. C. Mackie, Toronto, took top honors in the largemouth bass division with an 8 pound three-ounce beauty caught in Nine-Mile Lake.

A seven-pounds 14 ounce smallmouth bass brought George Leach, Sudbury the top award. It was caught in Lake Penage near Sudbury.

Moose River in the Parry Sound district gave up the contests top pickerel a 16-pounds twelve-ounce beauty caught by G. E. Ely of Toronto.

The top lake trout award went to Donald McKechnie of Espanola who landed a 29 pounder in Lake Manitou of Sandfield township.

And to a lady angler went the leading lost in the speckled trout division. Mrs. N. Callacutt of Huntsville fished in Hestward Lake, Algonquin Park, landed a nine pounds three ounces beauty.

The winners of the top awards received $100 in cash with the prizes being graduated down to ten dollars for the fifth fifteen winners. Second prizes was $75; third $50 and the next two $25.

Some outstanding hauls were netted in all divisions exclusive of the top award winners.

Weights in the speckled trout class ranged from nine pounds to five in the top fifteen.

Rainbows clicked heavily grossing from the top leaker of 18 pounds to the fifteenth-place thirteen pounder.

Only two pounds separated the eight-pound winner in the largemouth bass class from the fifteenth place. The latter were seven, the remainder six. Ounces told the story.

Smallmouths showed a weight consistency. There were three seven-pounders near the top pounders and a eight five pounders with ounces again marking the differences in awards.

Northern pike ran second to the muskies in the leaker class. There were one forty pounder, three 27 pounders; a 25, 24, four 21 pounders and five that tipped the scales at 20 pounds.

Four 16-pounders headed the pickerel list of winners. There were two 15's; five 14's and an equal number of 13-pounders.

Lake trout ran third in the giant class giving up the winning 29-pounder, a 27; two 25's; a 23, 21 and ranging down to the fifteenth award winner a 24-pounder.

Midgets Win Over Gan. 4-2

Belleville Ellis took a 4-2 decision over Gananoque in an OMHA midget division game here last night.

Belleville led 2-0 at the end of the first period on goal by Bunnett and Moore.

Gananoque's Managan cut the margin in the second period on an assist by Higgins.

McCormack got the first of two goals with Powell assisting midway through the third period, Small scoring from Warren to make the count 3-2.

McCormack fired the clincher late in the frame.

Gananoque drew four penalties, all minors with the city youngsters being assessed seven with Healy being given a major and a game misconduct.

Indians Ready For Peace Pow-wow

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) The defiant Springfield Indians appeared ready to accept advice of counsel and end a rebellion today against Eddie Shore, hard-nosed owner of the American Hockey League club.

The Indians, who walked out to protest player suspensions Monday, returned to the ice for a one-hour noo-supervised practice Wednesday as Shore tried to obtain new players for a game with Providence Friday night.

The squad worked out after representatives conferred by telephone with Alan Eagleson, a Toronto lawyer who represents many hockey stars as individuals. Eagleson later flew to Springfield.

"I advised the players that they must, practice and play Friday night's game, and otherwise honor their contracts," Eagleson said. "I advised them of their legal rights and also their moral obligations. This is a complex problem with two sides to it."

Eagleson said he hoped to meet with Shore. However, the fiery club owner, still as tough talking as he was during days as a hard - hitting National Hockey League defenceman, gave no assurance he would see the lawyer.

"No attorney is going to come into my office," Shore said when told that Eagleson was on his way.

However, Shore called a noon practice for the team today. He said that the players can live up to their contracts or "stay out of the building."

The Indians have demanded that Shore reinstate four suspended players.

Defencemen Dale Rolfe, Bill White and Dave Amadio were suspended for alleged "indifferent play" Sunday after the club's fourth straight defeat. Veteran forward Brian Kilrea was suspended on the same grounds after the walkout.

Shore and Coach Harry Pidhirney ignored the practice session. Shore said he had "18 players coming in" for the game against Providence. It was learned that Shore had obtained on loan three players from Tulsa of the Central Professional Hockey League.

"We showed up for practice in good faith," said Gerry Foley, player-spokesman.

"The team has not decided whether to play against Providence or not."

Shore said that the four players were remain suspended.

However, close observers figured he might give ground in the interest of a settlement with his disaffected team.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

The word slump can be a nasty word, especially around our hockey club. We've had our troubles.

The thing a player least enjoys when his club has the stiggers is the question that interrupts over at almost every turn: "What's the matter with the club?"

It's almost impossible to answer a question like that in a sentence — or two sentences — or three. Usually a player slidesteps the question with a shrug and something simple like "I beats me" or "Darned if I know" or "I wish I knew the answer to that."

There can be many reasons for a slump and when a team staggers it is an accumulation of reasons. Perhaps the most puzzling thing when a team goes into a tailspin is the surprise. A club can be going along fine and then . . . boom. The first thing you know you've lost two or three games and the fat is in the fire.

Take our case. I think our slump hinged upon five things. Several of the players had mild scoring slumps and then it snowballed. We started pressing and that never solves anything. Then we were hit by injuries and at the same time we started running into some hot clubs. Then scheduling.

In case you've had the ice show in our building for a couple of weeks and couldn't practice. We also had a week without a game at the same time and some of the fellows, the older ones, lost their edge.

There is not a better tonic for a player than scoring a goal and if your team is winning its share of games, you go out on the ice and say to yourself, "I hope I get one tonight." You feel relaxed and eager.

When you are in a slump and pressing you feel horrible, and keep telling yourself before the game "I gotta score one, I gotta score one" and you don't.

Maybe this will help to understand why a player always shrugs and ducks that question "What's the matter with the team?"

Goalies Post Four Shutouts In 3 Games

Would you believe — four shut-outs in three games?

That is what happened in Belleville Minor Hockey Association novice division play here last night.

The highlights of the trio was a scoreless overtime battle between the Hornets and the Dukes.

Both goalies were outstanding with Ricky Hutchinson earning his shutout for the Dukes and John Siddall doing likewise for the Hornets.

Edward Finlay got the shutout in the Canadiens 3-0 victory over the Leafs.

Ricky Barbeau scored twice with Pat Wright counting the third goal. John Misner had an assist.

The Wings sunk the Police Rangers by a 3-0 score with Brent Babcock getting the shutout.

B. MacKay scored twice on assists from D. McCormack with D. Yates scoring the other goal.

In the midget division Canadiens and Leafs battled to a 2-2 tie with the Wings thumping Elks 8-1.

J. Mitchell and J. Drummond each had two goals for the Wings with Loffman and Beecher scoring singles.

G. Sero had two assists with Mulvihill and Mitchell getting singles.

J. Potts accounted for both Canadiens goals unassisted. McGillivary from Generaux and Janitsch from Bland scored for the Leafs.

Saith The Senator

"No Figurehead Commissioner"

TORONTO (CP) — Senator Keith Davey says he will not be a figurehead commissioner for the Canadian Football League and John Basset, head of Toronto Argonauts, says his club will not be pushed around.

These developments evolved Wednesday when Bassett, chairman of the board of the Argos, called a news conference and criticized several statements attributed to Davey in an article last Saturday in the Globe and Mail magazine section.

Two hours later Davey, who becomes commissioner of the CFL Jan. 1, issued a statement in which he said he does not intend to be a figurehead commissioner and refused to be threatened and Sam Berger president of Ottawa Rough Riders want one.

Berger Sunday rapped Davey for what he termed "premature statements" about the state of Canadian football.

Bassett said the Argonauts would not be threatened or blackmailed into changing their stand on gate equalization with in the CFL.

He said this was an attempt to "blackmail the Argos" into changing their position. The club said in the East this year, has urged that a $50,000 ceiling be placed on any gate equalization plan worked under the proposed single league.

The CFL now is divided into Eastern and Western conferences with teams in each main balkanized until the eastern cities, with their bigger revenues, realize they must share equally."

McPherson was quoted as saying refusal to increase the gate equalization "could kill the interlocking schedule. We're all partners or we're not."

Bassett criticized other remarks by Davey. He said he found it "upsetting that the commissioner-elect feels defensive football is garbage" and said he would like to be present at any meeting when the senator told coaches how to operate their teams.

Commenting on a suggestion by Davey that the CFRA might be induced to carry more football games, Bassett said the commissioner has nothing to do with television.

ANDY CAPP

Clair Has Prospects

Help Wanted; Coach, Quarter-Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders are in the market for a defensive coach and a second-string quarterback but they may not have far to look.

Coach Frank Clair already has approached five coaching prospects and said in an interview Wednesday he hopes to announce his choice by the middle of January. He would not identify any of the men being considered for the job except to say "most" of them are now coaching in the U.S.

His quarterback problem is a recent development but may not be even easier solution. Import Bill Cline, understudy to quarterback Russ Jackson for the last two seasons, is expected to be drafted shortly, leaving Clair with a hole at quarterback and at defensive halfback position.

The only quarterback prospect Clair has in mind is a Canadian, 23-year-old Dick Waring of Orillia. Waring is due to graduate from Bowling Green State University this spring and while he hasn't seen much action in his last two seasons due to injuries, Clair thinks he would be an ideal choice to groom as Jackson's eventual replacement.

"He's had good training and can throw the ball well," Clair said at a press conference to introduce the quarterback candidate.

But an even bigger factor in Waring's favor is the fact he is a Canadian. As such, he would be able to concentrate on learning the quarterback job without having to play regularly on defence as an import does.

Waring is only one of five Canadian players graduating from U.S. colleges, when the team opens its 1967 Canadian Football League training camp next summer.

They are:

Allen Iacbe, a 24-year-old 240-pound interior lineman from Sarnia attending Western Michigan University;

Eric Vivian, a 21-year-old 210-pound Ottawa fullback at Leonard Rhyne College;

Fred Hall, a 22-year-old halfback from Windsor, Ont., at Michigan Technological University;

Wayne Giardino, a 22-year-old fullback from Peterborough at Florida State University.

Ask Government Help

Horsemen Lost 11 Million

TORONTO (CP)—Owners and breeders of standardbred and thoroughbred horses in Ontario lost $11,000,000 during 1965 and have petitioned the provincial government for help.

A committee representing both groups said that the Ontario government receives 40 per cent of the pari-mutuel handle in addition to corporation taxes and hospital and sales taxes. It asked the government re-invest in the industry "an amount equal to three per cent of the pari-mutuel handle by way of additional purses, breeders' awards, equine research and—in the case of standardbred racing — financial assistance for the improvement of facilities of fairgrounds and small track premises where short meetings are conducted."

The petition, presented Tuesday to Premier Robarts and Wednesday to the Racing Commission, said:

"The Ontario government collected $10,700,000 from the tax on wagering in 1965 or . . . 30 per cent of the total amount paid by the public for racing in 1965."

The study showed that, in operating losses alone, owners and breeders of standardbreds and thoroughbreds lost $3,900,000; depreciation costs not recovered equalled $5,100,000.

George C. Frostad of Burlington, an owner and breeder of thoroughbreds, said race tracks were not in a financial position to raise purse levels to the extent necessary to resolve the problems of owners and breeders.

At a news conference Wednesday, Frostad said:

"The racing industry is a 49-51 partnership between government, the racetracks and racehorse owners and breeders. The first 'partner, the government, with an investment in the industry, received $2,700 000 from the tax on wagering in 1965 and will receive a larger sum in 1966; the second partner, the tracks, with an investment exceeding $20,000,000, is receiving only a modest return on its investment; and the third partner, the owners and breeders, with an investment in excess of $50,000,000, lost $11,000,000 in 1965 and are in a deteriorating position.

TV Rights Worth Six Million

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico's Olympic committee will collect at least $6,400,000 for television rights to the two-week Olympic Games in October, 1968, it was learned unofficially Wednesday.

Rafael Caselias, spokesman for the committee, could not confirm the figures but said contracts have been signed with the American Broadcasting Co., and networks in Japan, Eastern Europe and Western Europe, for rights to transmit in their respective areas.

It was reported Mexico had sought $10,000,000.

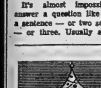
Will Levy Stiffer Penalties

NEW YORK (AP)—The Eastern Hockey League will levy stiffer penalties on players who assault officials, EHL president Tom Lockhart announced Wednesday.

The EHL board of governors, concerned over recent incidents, doubled fines for a first offence to $100—plus three days automatic suspension—and called for an indefinite suspension after a second offence.

Elorde, Torres Are Out

NEW YORK (AP) — Flash Elorde, 31-year-old world junior lightweight champion from the Philippines, was retired Wednesday by his own safety by the New York State Athletic Commission.



The commission also placed Jose Torres, the dethroned light-heavyweight champion, on the ill and unfavorable list because of his poor performance in losing to Dick Tiger last Friday and "his recent past history of relapsing pancreatitis."

Elorde, a wealthy businessman who has been a fighting pro for 15½ years, was knocked out in the 14th round of a lightweight title bout with champion Carlos Ortiz of New York at Madison Square Garden Nov. 28.

Warning To Packers

Cowboys' Big Four Thrive On Quarters

DALLAS (AP)—DeDas Cowboys' chances of beating Green Bay Packers Jan. 1 for the National Football League championship might well hinge on the performance of their front four.

For the information of Bart Starr, Green Bay's great quarterback, this fearsome foursome has been doing tough to quarterbacks that disconcert them, to put it mildly.

Coach Tom Landry of the Cowboys does not go in for blinding smoke.

"When you blitz, you weaken yourself for the big play," says Landry. "You have to rely on man to man coverage in the secondary."

But the pass rush of his front four is something else.

The quartet—George Andrie and Willie Townes at ends, Bob Lilly and Jim Colvin or Jethro Pugh at tackles—set a National Football League record for trapping the quarterback this year.

They did it 39 times during the season, three times more than the record set by Baltimore Colts in 1964.

Against Pittsburgh Steelers the front four trapped the quarterback 12 times—a single game record.

With Lilly not even in there, they took down the New York Giants quarterback also times last Sunday as Dallas won 17-7.

This foursome, averaging almost 250 pounds to the man, not only is the most effective in the league but also about the youngest.

Colvin is the oldest at 29. Lilly is 27, Andrie 26 and Pugh and Townes 22 each.

This means Dallas can expect to have the leading front four in the league for several years.

Rousseau, tied for fifth place with Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings going into Wednesday night's action, has eight goals and 19 assists for 27 points.

Stan Mikita managed to maintain his league lead over teammate Ken Wharram by scoring a goal against the Red Wings Wednesday. Mikita has 14 goals and a league-leading 29 assists for 43 points.

Wharram, Mikita's linemate, broke down second place with 28 points on 16 goals and 12 assists.

Quinte Stops Napanee

By ROBERT SNEVJELLA

Quinte Secondary School's basketball teams reversed last week's triple setback at the hands of BCI when they swept three contests from Napanee High School last night.

The seniors ran over Napanee 56-30 in a rugged battle, while the juniors registered an impressive 56-35 triumph. Quinte's bantams completely outplayed their Napanee counterparts in romping to a 56-16 victory.

The senior game was a scramble by all six, as both teams erred often.

Quinte roared off to a 15-2 lead in the first quarter, as their strong rebounding and stingy decence were too much for Napanee. With the outcome of the game decided, play slowed down. Quinte led 23-9 at the half, 31-12 after the third quarter, and coasted from there to the wire to win by 16 points.

Mike Reddick led all Quinte scorers with 12 points, while Dave Middleton was second - best with eight. Paul Duncan, Phil Buddle, Mike Mookrey, Terry Wellesley and Ted Clark also scored for Quinte.

Bonar and Taylor looped eight and seven respectively for Napanee.

In the junior game, Napanee had the edge on play in the first half, as they built up a 19-12 lead. In the second half, however, the visitors must have thought they were facing a different team. In the early moments of the third quarter Quinte tied the score and shot into the lead. Quinte had taken a 31-23 lead after three quarters, and they locked up the victory with 25 points in the final quarter.

Bob Brownlee triggered the Quinte comeback with a 22 point performance. Paul Goodfellow netted 17 points, while Leo Baker and John Mywaart had five each.

Legery and Froud led Napanee in scoring with 10 and six points.

Quinte's bantam veterans, Pete Middleton and Hugh Van Allen, blew Napanee's hopes apart with fine efforts in the lightweight contest. Middleton potted 21 points and Van Allen had 14. Tom Churchill also played well for Quinte, snaring 12 points. Steve Ogden contributed six more.

Cunningham had six for the losers.

Russ End Losing Streak

EDMONTON (CP) — Moscow Selects ended a three-game losing streak by downing an Edmonton all-star team 5-3 Wednesday in an exhibition hockey game before 2,500 fans.

The Selects, on an eight-game tour of Canada, lost twice to the Canadian national team and once to a Western International Hockey League all-star team.

Alexander Yakushev and Anatoliy Motowilov paced the Russians with two goals each. Victor Shuvalov added the other.

Gordon Jones and Brian Harper, both members of the University of Alberta Golden Bears of the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association, shared scoring for the Alstars.

Golden Bears players were supplemented by members of Edmonton Nuggets of the Western Canada Senior Hockey League.

The Selects led 1-0 after the first period, 3-0 after 40 minutes.

The Selects meet Regina Caps of the Western Senior League Friday in Regina.

Negro Will Lead The South

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A Negro quarterback will direct the South attack for the first time Monday when college all-star teams tangle in the Orange Bowl in the 19th annual North-South football game.

This will be Hank Washington, 6-foot-2, 205-pound West Texas State passer who was fifth in the nation during the last season with a completion average of 59 per cent and thinks he may become the first quarterback of his race in the U.S. professional leagues.

South coach Darrell Royal of Texas said he will open at quarterback with Bo Burris of Houston but Washington will see half the action.

Buckaroos Bump Victoria

PORTLAND, Ore. (CP) — A four-goal burst in the second period gave league - leading Portland Buckaroos a 6-4 Western Hockey League victory over Victoria Maple Leafs Wednesday night.

Len Lunde scored two quick goals midway through the second period and Portland's other goals came from Bill Saunders, Arlo Goodwin, Cliff Schmautz and Alain Caron.

Rollie Wilcox scored two Victoria goals and the others came from Andy Hebenton and Bruce Carmichael.

The loss prevented Victoria from moving into a three-way, fourth-place tie with California Seals and Seattle Totems, neither of which played Wednesday.

Blue-Gray Coaches Confident

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Coach John Bridgers of Baylor and North coach Glenn Dobbs of Tulsa are exuding confidence for Saturday's Blue-Gray All-Star football game at both put the final touches on Associated Press.

"This is the sixth All-Star team I've coached" said Bridgers, "and it's probably the best one."

Dobbs has had fewer injury problems than Bridgers, but he's taking no chances with those he's had.

He said his big running backs Jim Dewiler of Michigan, and Bob McElroy of Northwestern, have slight knee ailments, but both are expected to be in fine shape for the Christmas Eve encounter.

THE PIVOT

The pivot is executed by a sliding stop on the inside leg and a drive on the outside leg to reverse direction. You can practise by skating the length of the ice, pivoting around a pylon, then taking a shot on the net. It's excellent for catching an opponent off stride, giving you that split second advantage.

Young Satisfies Abel

CHICAGO (AP) — Howie Young's return to the National Hockey League failed to help Detroit Red Wings end their disastrous losing streak on the road.

But the former had boy's performance was satisfactory both to him and his boss, Wings manager Sid Abel.

"It took me almost half the game to get my wind and legs but all in all I think I did pretty well," said Howie, after Chicago Black Hawks' 6-4 victory over the Wings Wednesday night extended Detroit's winless streak on the road to 14 games.

Howie broke into the National League with the Red Wings in 1960, bounced up and down between the Wings and the minors for the next few years and then was traded to the Black Hawks in 1963. During his stay with the Wings, he established himself as a problem child through several escapades both on and off the ice.

When he wasn't missing games, planes and practices, he was getting into trouble on the ice. During the 1962-63 season with the Wings, he set a league record for penalty minutes with 272.

The Hawks kept him only half a season in 1963-64 before shipping him to Los Angeles Blades of the Western League.

Patriot Fullback Is MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Nance, the bruising Boston Patriots' fullback who stopped looking in the mirror for Jim Brown and started shedding weight for coach Mike Holovak, today was named the Most Valuable Player in the American Football League by The Associated Press.

Nance romped off with the honor just as he did with the AFL's rushing record, polling 20 of the 27 votes cast in the AP poll by three-man committees of sport writers and sportscasters in each of the nine league cities.

His only competition came from Kansas City Chiefs' quarterback Len Dawson, who guided the Chiefs to the Western Division crown, and his own team - mate, linebacker Nick Buoniconti.

Dawson received six votes and Buoniconti one.

But Nance outdistanced the field by easily breaking the league rushing record and finishing with a total of 1,458 yards gained on the ground—a record unmatched by any sophomore professional with the exception of Brown, who gained 1,527 yards for Cleveland Browns of the National League.

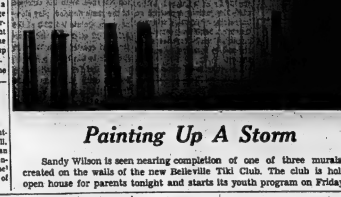
Food Dropped

"Save the Whales" Drive Starts

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — A drive to save a herd of beluga whales trapped in Eskimo Lake, 30 miles north of Inuvik, gained momentum Wednesday when 240 pounds of frozen food was dropped by a bush pilot.

Pilot Tex Andrian said the load included chopped fish and lamb chops. He also dropped wood to be used for a windbreak.



He said the hole through which the whales are breathing measured 10 feet long and only about 3½ feet wide, the smallest yet. It was impossible to tell if the whales were taking feed in the 10-below zero temperatures.

The drive began formally Monday when the Inuvik Lions Club launched a "save the whales" campaign in an effort to help the herd through the winter.

They have been in Eskimo Lake, about 1,200 miles northwest of Edmonton, since freeze up. There are 12 to 17 whales in the herd.

The Lions Club said a compressor will be taken to the hole to create air bubbles and bring warmer water up from the depths of the lake.

Christmas Excites Eskimos

RESOLUTE BAY, N.W.T. (CP)—When it comes to Christmas excitement, Kalmo children are no different from children anywhere.

In this settlement of 150 inside the Arctic Circle they have had the place jumping for days.

It started when an RCAF plane arrived from Edmonton, 1,500 miles southwest, with transport department employees and other workers threw a party for the kids.

Eva Jaybeddie came. So did Sarah Levi, Susan Idlout, Elizabeth Johanis, Jimmy Nasmelok and Martha Cathaiis. Other children came, too — by the snowmobile load, staging carols in Eskimo on the way to the Muskox Inn, the transport department's main staff residence.

And they weren't disappointed. Santa came. He came on the big Hercules from 435 Squadron that was making passes over isolated weather stations, dropping mail and Christmas gifts by parachute.

"Oh, Marksee, look," cried a child. "It's Santa."

From that moment, Resolute hasn't been the same.

NEAR CHRISTMAS STORY

Major Gordon Mercer and Sqdn. Ldr. Fernand Proulx told the children the Biblical story of Christmas. The chaplains had stopped over on a swing through the Pacific.

Little faces lit up as Santa distributed gifts and candies donated by the Hudson's Bay Co. and members of 435 Squadron.

The children gave, too. They presented a pageant that teacher Rod Harrison had prepared them for at the Eskimo school.

Then everyone sang and sang until it was time to go.

And so the day ends and a new one dawns with no change in darkness or freezing temperatures. But hearts are bright and pulses beat faster as the children prepare to hang up their mukluks Saturday night.

Now it's common to hear the Eskimo greeting, Kuvsalkvik — Merry Christmas.

Journal Urges Doctors To Practise Outside Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Organized medicine's dissatisfaction with the federal medical care insurance program has reached the stage that doctors are being urged to prepare for practice outside any plan put in force.

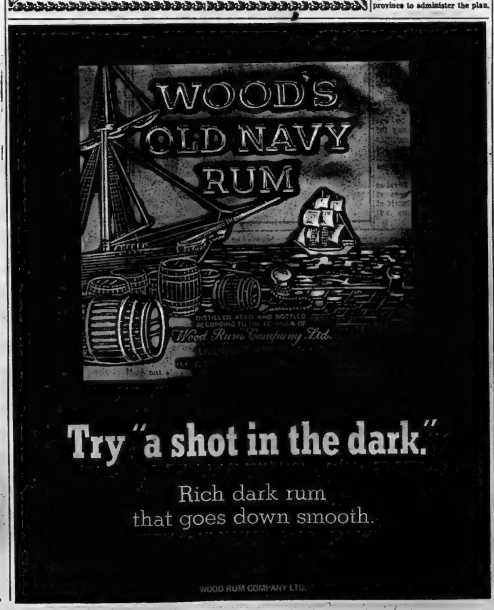
This suggestion is made to members of the Canadian Medical Association by B. E. Fremo, the CMA's economist, in a report in the current issue of the CMA Journal.

Mr. Fremo also predicts that the provinces will have serious problems in working out plans acceptable to the federal government while still meet the desires of doctors.

He suggests that perhaps the best way for doctors to organize their practice "is to deal directly with your patients."

In effect, this means that when medical care programs start under the umbrella of the federal legislation, doctors should bill patients and leave it to the patient to collect the insurance benefit from whatever agency is established by the provinces to administer the plan.

Most plans insure against 80-85 per cent of the doctor's bill. Some participating doctors accept the insurance benefit in full settlement. Others bill for the minimum sum.



For a doctor to practise outside a provincial plan which qualifies for federal cost-sharing means that the patient may be asked by his doctor to pay the amount not covered by the insurance benefit.

This "extra billings" procedure was the subject of earlier discussions between the CMA and federal authorities. In the fall of 1965, Judy LaMarsh, then health minister, warned that, if extra billings reach the point where public access to insured medical care is seriously affected, the federal government may have to take steps.

The steps weren't defined but federal authorities say Ottawa is reserved the right to disqualify any provincial program from the federal share of the costs if public coverage slips below the required minimums —80 per cent of a province's population at the start rising to 85 per cent in three years.

The federal medical care legislation is due to come into force on or before July 1, 1968. Under it, any provincial plan which meets certain conditions will qualify to receive half the per capita costs from federal funds.

Besides the "universal coverage" condition involving 80-85 per cent of a province's population, the provincial plan must insure against the cost of all services by a doctor, provide benefits that are transferrable from province to province and be administered by a non-profit agency responsible to the province and open to public audit.

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse; The stockings were hung by the chimney with care, In hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there; The children were nestled all snug in their beds, While visions of sugar-plums danced in their heads; and Mamma in her kerchief, and I in my cap, Had just settled our brains for a long winter's nap, When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter, I sprang from the bed to see what was the matter. Away to the window I flew like a flash, Tore open the shutters and threw up the sash. The moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow Gave the lustre of midday to objects below, When, what to my wondering eyes should appear, But a miniature sleigh, and eight tiny reindeer, With a little old driver, so lively and quick, I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick. More rapid than eagles his coursers they came, And he whistled, and shouted, and called them by name: Dasher! now, Dancer! now, Prancer and Vixen! On, Comet! on, Cupid! on, Donner and Blitzen! To the top of the porch! to the top of the wall! Now dash away! dash away! dash away all!" As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly, When they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky, So up to the house-top the coursers they flew, With the sleigh full of Toys, and St. Nicholas too. And then in a twinkling, I heard on the roof the prancing and pawing of each little hoof. As I drew in my head, and was turning around, Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound. He was dressed all in fur, from his head to his foot, and his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot; A bundle of Toys he had flung on his back, And he looked like a pedlar just opening his pack. His eyes—how they twinkled! his dimples how merry! His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry! His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow, And the beard of his chin was as white as the snow; The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth, And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath; He had a broad face and a little round belly, That shook when he laughed, like a bowlful of jelly. He was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf, And I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself; A wink of his eye and a twist of his head Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread. He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work, and filled all the stockings; then turned with a jerk, And laying his finger aside of his nose, And giving a nod up the chimney he rose; He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle, And away they all flew like the down of a thistle. But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight, Happy Christmas to all and to all a good night

Times Deal Gets OK

LONDON (CP) — The main rivals of The Times publicly accept—with some restraint—the government's approval of the newspaper's transfer to Lord Thomson.

"We can see no ground on which the monopolies commission or the government could have legitimately sought to set the deal aside," concludes The Daily Telegraph in an editorial today.

The monopolies commission has handsomely concluded that, although The Times will change in character, it may be in some respects an improved newspaper," says The Guardian.

But both The Telegraph, which is financially healthy, and The Guardian, which has money troubles, express doubts about assurances on the future editorial independence of The Times.

"The realities are what Lord Thomson wants to do and what he wants editor-in-chief Denis Hamilton to do," says The Telegraph, "for this is what, always conditioned by the interplay of these and other personalities, will be done."

NOT GUARANTEED

The Guardian, noting that Thomson has given assurances on preserving the editorial independence of his new newspaper, adds that "situations change and no guarantee can be perpetual."

The Telegraph describes as "startling" revelations by the monopolies commission about the structure of Thomson's British organization.

The Toronto-born peer maintains control over assets valued at more than $100,000,000 through a personal share-holding of less than one per cent valued at about $750,000 on the market.

Thomson holds the one per cent of the shares of Thomson Television Ltd. that give voting rights. The other 99 per cent are non-voting shares. The television company controls Thomson Scottish Associates, which in turn controls about 78 per cent of the shares of the overseeing Thomson Organization Ltd.

The Telegraph says this "inverted pyramid" control will pass eventually to Lord Thomson's son Kenneth, whom the government has been told intends to take up British residence, moving here from Toronto.

"This is perhaps an imperfect assurance of the permanent domicile in Britain of the control of a great newspaper with a great history," The Telegraph says.

WILL BE SEPARATE

The Times itself assures its readers that Thomson's Sunday Times and The Times will progress "as two independent papers, each having its own character and his own views."

The board of Times Newspapers Ltd., a new company controlling both the daily and Sunday newspapers, has five Thomson men, three named by Gavin Astor, previous owner of the daily, and four "national directors"—two appointed by Thomson, two by Astor.

Sir William Haley, present editor of the daily, is chairman of the new board and Kenneth Thomson his deputy. General manager is G. C. Rowell, a Thomson appointee, and his deputy is George Pope, who has been general manager of the daily.

Hamilton, the Sunday Times editor named editor - in - chief over both newspapers, is on the board along with Thomson executives James Collart and G. C. Brunton. Astor has named banker Kenneth Keith.

Four "national directors" on the board are Lord Shawcross, jurist who headed the 1961 royal commission on the press; shipping executive Sir Donald Anderson — both Astor appointments—Lord Robens, chairman of the national coal board, and economist Sir Eric Roll, both Thomson appointments.

Warrendale Report Now Ready

TORONTO (CP) — A special committee appointed to look into the September takeover by the Ontario health department of the Warrendale treatment centre for emotionally disturbed children has completed its report.

John L. Brown, former executive director of the treatment centre, said Wednesday members of the committee did not discuss the operation of the centre with him or any of the staff he employs at Brown Camps, Ltd., a network of private treatment centres.

Mr. Brown was dismissed from Warrendale following his announced intention to be a candidate for political office. His dismissal resulted in the mass resignation of the Warrendale staff and a takeover of operations by the health department.

Dr. J. C. Rathbun, chairman of the four-member study committee, said Wednesday in London, Ont., that the committee's 9,000-word report has been sent to Health Minister Matthew Dymond.

"I can't talk about the report," said Dr. Rathbun, who is head of the department of pediatrics at the University of Western Ontario. "Any statement would have to come from the minister."

Mr. Brown said the committee spent about one day at one of his camps.

"There was no real effort to investigate or understand what we were doing," he added.

Dief Likely to Run

OTTAWA (CP) — A veteran Conservative says John Diefenbaker may end the leadership waiting game about mid-January and is unlikely to resign.

This prophecy suggests Mr. Diefenbaker will call for a leadership convention in 1967, as voted for in November by the party association's annual meeting. And the 71-year-old leader would run again for the job he has held since 1956.

Reinforcing this view is the fact that Mr. Diefenbaker has spent much of his political career on the ropes in one way or another battling the odds. It would be out of character for him to go down now without a fight.

In his favor in any showdown leadership vote, Mr. Diefenbaker has a signed loyalty pledge from 71 of his 85 fellow Conservative MPs. Only a small caucus minority is firmly opposed to him.

There's also a large body of support within the Conservative association. At the November convention the pro-Diefenbaker candidate for the association presidency, Arthur Maloney, was defeated only by a narrow margin by incumbent Dalton Camp, who had campaigned for months for a leadership review.

Everybody has been waiting for either Mr. Camp or Mr. Diefenbaker to give some clear indication of what happens next.

One sure thing, informants say, is that a leadership convention will be held next year, although nobody is saying when.

Pension Boost And Medicare Become Law

OTTAWA (CP)—A bill to guarantee the old of Canada an income of $105 monthly became law Wednesday just before Parliament adjourned for the Christmas recess.

The legislation provides for a supplement of up to $30 to the present old age security pension of $75 monthly.

The medical care insurance bill, which probably won't become operative until July 1, 1968, also went into the law books.

It will allow the federal government to pay 50 per cent of the cost of provincial plans that meet certain requirements.

Later Mr. Justice Emmett J. Hall gave both pieces of welfare legislation royal assent, acting as deputy for Governor-General Vanier.

The Commons then recessed until 2:30 p.m. EST, Monday, Jan. 9.

Prime Minister Pearson told the scattering of MPs still in the House that "we have earned a Merry Christmas and I hope we will deserve a Happy New Year."

With tongue in cheek, Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) returned the compliments with the observation that new taxes may make a Happy New Year difficult.

He was referring to the levies contained in a mini - budget brought down earlier this week by Finance Minister Sharp, who said tax increases would pay the $280,000,000 cost of the old age pension supplement.

Henri Latulippe (Creditiste—Compton-Frontenac), a father of eight, told the House he will seek an increase in family allowances in 1967—a wish he wasn't able to realize in 1966.

Then French and English voices mingled in Christmas carols as MPs awaited the Senate ceremony.

The carolers were accompanied on a harmonium played by Tom Lefebvre (L—Pontiac-Temiscamingue).

Tax Exemption Does Not Cover Pension Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation to ensure that all social assistance payments based on means or needs tests are exempt from federal income tax was introduced in the Commons Wednesday by Finance Minister Sharp.

But contrary to what some officials said when the bill was first introduced, the exemption does not apply to the $30-a-month supplement to old age pensions based on an incomes test, adopted by the Commons Tuesday night.

On checking, an aide to Mr. Sharp said that the $30 supplement to the old age pension passed after long debate by the Commons "is included in income for tax purposes."

The exemption applies, according to the bill, to "the amount of any social assistance payment made on a means or a needs test basis under a provincial program provided for by an act of Parliament or a law of a provincial legislature."

This exemption, the aide said, is intended to apply to such assistance payments as the $75-a-month means - test payments made to persons aged 65 to 69, and shared by the federal and provincial treasuries.

On the basis of the $75 monthly basic old age pension that will be paid to everyone at age 65 starting Jan. 1, and the $30 a month supplement that will be paid to a pensioner without other income, a single person's entire income from pensions might be $1,260 a year. This would put him $160 over the basic exemptions of $1,100.

Shaping the Ship

Cunard Steamship Co.'s new 58,000-ton passenger liner is starting to take shape at Clydebank, Scotland. The vessel, with its steelwork already up to the promenade deck, will have a service speed of 28½ knots, the equivalent of 32 land miles an hour. About 2,500 men are engaged in its construction and 1,000 more will be needed before it's completed. (CP Photo)

Uranium Customers Advised To Shop Now for Savings

OTTAWA (CP) — Potential uranium customers are being advised to shop now and save in Canada or face higher prices and possible delivery delays in the future.

Two customers—Britain and Ontario Hydro — already have taken the plunge and others are expected to follow next year.

W. M. Gilchrist, president of government - owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd., said in an interview Wednesday: "Japan should come into the world market within a year. And France will have to find a source in a year or so."

The increase in demand already is pushing prices up and could lead to an early resurgence of the uranium mining industry in Ontario at Elliot Lake and Bancroft.

After several lean years in which the federal government was the only purchaser in uranium—at $5 a pound for stockpiling purposes — the world price now is above $6, except for long-term contracts already in force.

Each new contract will cut into the country's proven uranium reserve and should spark renewed interest in exploration and development of new mines. It could also mean reopening of old mines which closed when the price dropped from the $10.50 of the boom days of Elliot Lake and Bancroft.

"The U.S. already is taking about $10 uranium and the mines at Bancroft could be reopened at that price," Mr. Gilchrist said.

Japan is potentially one of the largest uranium purchasers. Power companies there plan to have about 25 nuclear power plants either in operation or under construction by 1975.

Japan will need about 4,000 tons of uranium for 1975 alone, and its annual requirement will be up to 11,000 or 12,000 tons by 1985.

The recent British deal provides for 10,000 tons of uranium over a 10-year period starting in 1971. But this average of 1,000 tons a year will not be enough to cover all British requirements by the end of that decade.

The U.K. Atomic Energy Authority already is looking for alternative fuel sources. It recently completed an agreement with Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. for a trial project to see if spent fuel from Canadian reactors can be reprocessed and re-used. If it proves successful it could open a new market for used fuel.

The Douglas Point, Ont., nuclear power station on the shore of Lake Huron is expected to go into regular operation early next year. It will have about 25 tons of spent fuel available each year.

The giant Pickering plant being built for Ontario Hydro just outside Toronto will add 120 tons a year to this total when it is finished.

Sale of used fuel is nothing new for Canada. During the nuclear arms buildup, Canada sold spent fuel from AECL's Chalk River, Ont., reactors to the U.S. for plutonium recovery.

If the U.K. recovers any plutonium, however, it will not be used for weapons. Both economics and inspection controls will see to this.

But the plutonium could be valuable to Britain's nuclear power program as fuel for its breeder-type reactors.

The spectre of Canadian uranium turning up in nuclear weapons has been the big stumbling block in the way of sales to France. The Canadian government insists on the right to inspection on all contracts for foreign sales and France has resisted this.

UN Made Rhodesia Republic?

SALISBURY (Reuter)—Premier Ian Smith said today as far as he can see Rhodesia already is in effect a republic—but he will not declare it so until he has consulted advisers about a referendum.

He told a press conference that in his view Rhodesia has been a republic since the United Nations Security Council last week adopted Britain's call for mandatory sanctions against her.

"From that time onward we were de facto (in fact) no longer under the control" of Britain and no longer a member of the Commonwealth," he said, adding:

"If that does not mean that we are a republic, I do not know what it does mean."

Rhodesia's white - minority government broke away from the status of British colony Nov. 11, 1965, with a unilateral declaration of independence. At that time Smith swore continued allegiance to the Queen.

Smith told his press conference he does not anticipate any precipitate action — "certainly nothing until the new year."

Smith said he would need a ruling from constitutional advisers on Rhodesia's changed position, but added:

"Judging from newspaper reports it would seem to me that whether we like it or not the action taken by Britain and the resolution that was passed last Friday has put us in the same a republic at that time. position that we willy-nilly be- This is my interpretation."

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — A teachers' in-service training course for teachers in the Mohawk school last week was attended by three teachers from the Tyendinaga Reserve, four from Alderville, and the seven from the Tyendinaga Reserve schools. There are three one-room schools, and the remaining four teach in the Quinte-Mohawk school.

W. R. Wilson, district superintendent of Education for the Department of Indian affairs for this area was chairman and spoke briefly on the changes in education today. He is responsible for arranging the meetings and organizing the programs.

During the afternoon the teachers had an opportunity to learn the latest findings in audio-visual education. The speaker was a public school principal from Smith's Falls, Robert Nish, who had brought with him all the latest equipment. He demonstrated the use of these aids, and answered many questions. The teachers were especially interested in the use of the film strip.

At noon a group from the Reserve served a delicious dinner with a choice of ham or turkey. The Guild Hall in the Council House was the scene of the happy occasion.

The Quinte-Mohawk school has four classrooms, with two additional rooms also equipped for teaching household science and industrial arts. It has 115 pupils from grades one to eight, brought in by buses. The three one-roomed schools average 25 pupils each. Enrolment in the kindergarten in the industrial arts room is to be equipped as a kindergarten, with classes starting when school re-opens.

This school now has a projector and over 100-film strips; record players, and radios, and the use of a tape recorder. A television set will be purchased coming early in the New Year.

"A Christmas Memory" Notable Show by ABC

NEW YORK (AP)—It would come, a bright November day when the little boy's friend would cry with delight, "Mr., it's fruitcake weather."

Together, the little fellow and the distant cousin, a woman old in years but with the mind of a child, slipped under the hatched wire of Callahan's pecan grove, past the "no trees passing" sign to gather the windfalls.

Then they could their nose-pinchers, dinner even an occasional dollar scraped and earned—to buy enough candied pineapple, ginger, cherries, vanilla, eggs and even bootleg whisky for 30 beautiful cakes.

So began Wednesday night's A Christmas Memory, with man Capote, the author and narrator, lending his love and almost longing to this brief and warm relationship in his lonely childhood.

AS SEEN BY BOY

The dramatization of the memoir was handled as if seen through the eyes of a little boy.

"My friend," as Capote called the child-like eccentric, and the boy treated their holiday like a precious secret kept from the world—"The Other People in the house," they were coldly called.

She called him Buddy, after another little boy he had known years before. Together they packaged and mailed their cakes to "people who struck our fancy"—President Roosevelt, a missionary couple in Borneo they had once met, a California couple whose car had broken down in front of their farm house.

Then, as Buddy and Friend were celebrating with just a sip of the left - over fruitcake whisky, the Other People — a pair of stern, hard-eyed spinsters — walked in and were furious and made Buddy's friend cry. But not for long—she suddenly thought of pine needles and a distant grove of evergreens.

CUT TREE

So they went there and cut a tree, so high that a boy could not steal the star from the top, and they decorated it with paper chains and tinsel, and because Buddy liked to draw cats.

On Christmas morning, after opening the usual gifts of the Other People—socks, a Sunday shirt, a subscription to a religious paper—they were invited to the kitchen and opened their real presents—kites they had made for each other.

Then, laughing, they ran into the open fields and flew their new kites in the winter Alabama sky.

It is a deeply touching and delicately sentimental tale. Geraldine Page was fine as the middle-aged woman and so was Donnie Melvin as the little boy.

The hour was one of the big ones in the season of ABC's Stage '67 series.

Disney Ran Up Many Deficits

The following is the fourth of five articles on Walt Disney by Associated Press columnist Bob Thomas, author of two books on Disney.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Walt Disney's philosophy as a film producer was summed up in his oft-repeated phrase, "We can lick 'em with product.'

Lick 'em? The major studios with whom he competed for theatre dates, the bankers who urged him to stop chasing dreams and run a more businesslike, economic operation. These were the forces, plus other invisible ones, that goaded Disney on to bigger, more ambitious productions.

"Money never meant anything to me," said Walt, and he ran up deficits to prove it. But

Movies on Trains Proposed

Seven Arts Moves Into Big Time

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian railway passengers soon may while away the hours of those long transcontinental trips watching Canadian-made films in a special theatre rail car.

If so, it will be due at least in part to the salesmanship of Seven Arts Productions Ltd., which is aiming both for the development of Canadian films and their viewing, along with other movies, on trains and aircraft across the country.

Seven Arts, a seven-year-old Canadian company whose main business has been distributing American and British feature films to television stalldom, last month pulled off the biggest business deal of its career, and one of the biggest in Canadian entainment field in recent years. It bought one-third of Warner Bros. Pictures Inc. for $32,000,000.

All but one member of the Seven Arts board of directors is an American, and its operations and policy are centred in New York.

But Charles S. Chaplin, vice-president and Canadian general manager for the company, says it hopes to expand in Canada.

AWAIT FEDERAL BILL

"We have plans for co-producing both feature films and television productions there if the federal film financing bill goes through," he said in an interview recently.

This bill, drafted by Prof. O. J. Firestone of the University of Ottawa after discussions with Seven Arts, among others, would provide a $10,000,000 loan fund 40 "those of proven ability" to produce feature films in Canada.

"Until now film-making in Canada has been a hit or miss business—mostly miss," says Mr. Chaplin.

It now thinks solid financial backing, and an assurance of competent film-makers, could change the picture.

Seven Arts has co-produced a number of films in the U.S., among them The Defector, starring Montgomery Clift, and The Sleeping Car Murder, with Simone Signoret and Yves Montand, as well as several television spectaculars.

The fund would also like to put feature films and its own system of piped music (nine channels, tuned individually by the passenger) in trains, planes and buses. It has already sold its feature film services and distribution equipment to Air India and Mr. Chaplin thinks the idea is a natural for Canada's long - distance travel routes.

"The train theatre car might even become a sort of nightclub, with live entertainment," he suggests.

So far, he says, the railways say it's a good idea, but haven't signed for anything.

Since it bought the Warner Bros. shares from Jack Warner and related interests, Seven Arts has increased its feature plans in the U.S.

However the shares are believed to be a controlling interest in Warner's, which not only produced theatrical and television films but has extensive recording interests in the U.S., owns part of a theatre chain in England and an interest in British television.

With its new look, Warner's could turn to increased production of films for television, Mr. Chaplin said, and is hoping to build a new TV station in Philadelphia.

He has come a long way since 1957, when it took over the corporate shell of an old Toronto firm, Donnell, Carman and Madge, which had operated a travel agency.

It was known first as United Telefilms, where its initial venture was the production for $60,000 of distribution rights to 786 pre-1948 Warner Bros. films for television. Later its name was changed to Creative Telefilms and Artists Ltd., then, in 1960, to Seven Arts.

At one time it had a $5,000,000 interest in Grand Bahama Development Co., including part of the Lucayan Beach Hotel, which figured in the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance last year. It sold these interests in 1964, at a $1,200,000 profit.

Today, says Mr. Chaplin, Seven Arts' interest are "exclusively in the entertainment field."

Its last balance sheet showed assets of $86,000—not bad for a seven-year-old.

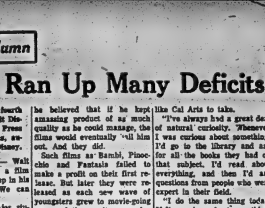
"I've always had a great deal of natural curiosity. Whenever I was curious about something, I'd go to the library and ask for all the books they had on the subject. I'd read about everything, and then I'd ask questions from people who were expert in their field.



"I do the same thing today. If I'm curious about something, I pick up the phone and call someone who knows about it. I always get an answer. You'd be surprised how nice people can be when you show them you're interested."

France Still NATO Ally Says Allard

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean-Victor Allard, Canada's chief of defences staff, said Wednesday that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization still can count on France as an ally despite her withdrawal from the NATO command structure.

Gen. Allard said in an interview he is certain France would back the other NATO nations if Soviet moves went against France's interests.

Boy Crushed in Shaft On First Day Missing

TORONTO (CP) — Wesley Watson, a 10-year-old suburban North York boy who was the object of a massive 10-day search, suffered a crushing injury to his entire body, pathologist Dr. Fred Jaffe said Wednesday.

The boy's body was found earlier at the bottom of an elevator shaft in an apartment building 150 yards from his home.

Dr. Jaffe said the boy suffered the crushing injury to his head, chest, abdomen and left thigh. He also received a fractured skull, presumably from a fall.

Police think Wesley was trapped inside the elevator near the 15th floor and tried to escape. When the car started to move, they believe his body was forced into the hallway, then toppled down the shaft after the car passed.

Dr. Jaffe said the boy was dead "in excess of four days." The body was discovered at the bottom of the shaft by Joseph Osborne, an elevator maintenance man, who was making a routine check of the elevators.

Police have ruled out any possibility of foul play. Coroner Dr. Gil Cass said it appeared obvious the boy's body had been in the elevator shaft since the day he disappeared.

William Jardine, elevator inspector with the Ontario department of labor, said the inner doors of the elevator could be opened by pressing the "door open" button. The outer doors could be opened by moving a latch at the top of them, he said.

Mr. Jardine said a person inside could then escape by jumping to the hallway floor.

Wesley called nearly every day for his friend, Bruce Shesbury, 10, who lived on the 15th floor of the apartment building.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are driving to Florida this winter. What will it cost us to drive down? Also the average cost when we arrive in Florida? — O. H., Belleville ANSWER: The average cost for gas and oil would be $70 return. The average cost of motels for two nights each way would be an additional $50. Once you are there the average tourist will spend around $15 a day for accommodation, food and entertainment. Fall prices stay in effect until Dec. 15. After that you pay top prices everywhere. Municipal golf courses charge $5 green fees during the winter season. During the off season it is half that.

QUESTION: What are some of the attractions on the East Coast of Florida?

ANSWER: If you are a member of the Ontario Motor League we have books which are free of charge to our members and list all the places of interest in Florida and the way down.

Here are a few main things to see. For example, on the way down the East Coast of Florida there is the city of St. Augustine, the oldest city in the U.S. It is more than 400 years old and has one section that has been fully restored to Spanish Colonial days.

Down the coast further is Cape Kennedy and Merrit Island, where the US space program is carried on. Cape Kennedy has daily bus tours now through this once "top secret" area. There is Marineland at Daytona Beach and the Seaquarium at Miami. Both have dolphin acts.

Cypress Gardens near Winter Haven is very popular. It has exotic tropical plants and a water-skiing show by a team of champions. There is the Monkey Jungle south of Miami which is interesting. There are also the parrot jungle, Hialea race track and the Florida Keys.

QUESTION: We are driving to New York City and do not wish to use the New York Thruway. Could you suggest another highway for a leisurely drive? Also an alternate route back. — L. F., Trenton.

ANSWER: Going down: No. 81 to Cortland, N.Y., 11 to Binghampton, N.Y., 17 to New York City, to George Washington Bridge.

Coming back use: 9W out of New York City to Albany, N.Y., 2 to 81, 81 home.

While Ontario motorists who have cars equipped with this new winter equipment have not been bothered, it is important to know that under existing statutes they are illegal in some states bordering this area. Their status varies: They are illegal in Michigan and Illinois, both of which enforce the statute. They are also illegal in Indiana, but enforcement is doubtful. In Ohio, New York, the New England states and the District of Columbia they are legal.

College Offered Room In School

Board Ready To Help

Rooms in the new Centennial Secondary School in West Belleville will be made available for temporary use by the College of Applied Arts and Technology if there is a request in Belleville for such accommodation.

Members of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board this week agreed to provide temporary space in the new West Belleville school if it was required.

The college board of governors is known to be looking for classroom accommodation for commencement of classes next September but so far there has been no announcement regarding location. Neither has any decision been made on a permanent site for the new college buildings.

However, municipal representatives in the Bay of Quinte area are making every effort to have the college located in the Belleville-Trenton area.

Belleville Mayor J. R. Ellis who with Mayor James MacDonald of Trenton has headed up local efforts to have the new college located in the Belleville area said he was "tickled" that the high school board had agreed to provide accommodation at the Centennial school if it was required.

"If instant education, so to speak, is necessary to get the College underway next summer, the Centennial school would be ideal", he said.

Mrs. Spence Womacott, one of the two Belleville members on the College board of governors, said the matter of accommodation at Centennial Secondary School had been presented to the board but no decision had been made.

No decision on the location of even temporary quarters for the college would be made prior to the next meeting of the board of governors in Peterborough on January 18th, she said.

Mrs. Womacott admitted, however, that accommodation in the Centennial school would be a "marvellous idea".

The new Centennial Secondary School has been in partial use since last September when approximately 450 Grade 9 and

Whether You Eat Turkey or Eel, Joyful Dance or Praying Kneel, It's Christmastime Everywhere

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

From bustling Japanese department stores to Brazilian beaches and an Arab checkpoint in Jerusalem, people of the world are making ready to celebrate the birthday of Christ.

Many Christmas customs are familiar in many lands. Others, such as street dancing in Ghana, are not. But all add up to the holiday formula: faith, feasting and festivity.

Thousands of pilgrims will line up at Mandelbaum Gate in Jerusalem to cross into Jordan for services in Bethlehem at the Church of the Nativity, over the grotto where—tradition says—Jesus was born.

Depending on the country, the feasting will include roast suckling pig, carp, eel, goose, lamb or—more and more—turkey.

Here is a sampling of Christmas observances around the world:

Japan—Christmas has no religious meaning but store owners cashing in on an exodemic upswing have made it a commercial success. Sales. Christmas trees, Santa Clauses and recorded carols have Japanese to department stores in record numbers. Thousands of Christmas cakes with Merry Xmas written in chocolate across the top are sold at prices up to $2.

Italy — Few Roman Catholic priests spoke out this year against the growing use of the pole tree instead of the creche and the trend to Santa Claus instead of the good witch Befana who brings children gifts on Ephiphany Day, Jan. 6.

Soviet Union—For the first time, Father Frost, Russia's jolly, bearded version of Santa Claus, is making house calls. So are his granddaughters, the snow maidens. Father Frost traditionally put gifts under Yule trees as children slept Christmas morning. The Communists changed that, and now his day is New Year's.

Cuba—Religious observances and Santa Claus are being deemphasized in favor of year-end fiestas and celebration of the eighth anniversary of Fidel Castro's victory Jan. 1. Food, drink and gifts are in short supply and rationed.

Jerusalem—Israeli and Jordanian officials set up tents at the border to cope with the 12,000 pilgrims—2,000 more than last year — who applied for three-day permits to visit Bethlehem.

Jail-breaks Are Easy

LONDON (CP)—Five prisoners cut their way out of a Liverpool prison Thursday and another escaped from a London prison today in ironic confirmation of an official report published hours before which said no British jail is escape proof.

The government shortly afterward announced its intention to implement urgently the recommendations in the report, including construction of an escape proof island prison and appointment of a prison "supremo" to take charge of the whole prison system.

The result was the result of a government-ordered investigation into Britain's prison system headed by Lord Mountbatten, uncle of Prince Philip.

It was ordered after the escape of top Soviet spy George Blake from a London prison in October, one of 300 escapes this year.

Mountbatten's report was hardly made public when the five sawed their way out of Walton Jail at Liverpool with tools they had learned to use in the prison's carpentry shop.

"The world is laughing at this farcical situation," The Daily Sketch said.

The home office said last month 86 men who escaped since 1962 are still free. These included Blake, who kicked open a window and fled from London's Wormwood Scrubs prison Oct. 22; "Mad Axeman" Frank Mitchell, who walked away from a working party outside Dartmoor last week, and Charles Wilson and Ronald Biggs, two of the great train robbers of 1963.

Liverpool police boarded ships and searched sailors' cafes as northwest England organized a hunt for the most recent escapees.

Police said they could be dangerous.

Home Secretary Roy Jenkins denied on television he would resign because of the escapes. He said he saw in Mountbatten's report "a tremendous challenge to reshape the prison service."

Mansfield Fears Thailand May Become New Battleground

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mike Mansfield, U.S. Senate Democratic leader, sees in troubled Thailand the seeds of another Vietnam-style war.

The early ingredients of the Vietnam war are there, he said Thursday. U.S. troops were being sent to help cope with rebel forces, and, as was once the case in Vietnam, they were cast as advisers, not combatants.

"We could very well have in prospect another Vietnam," Mansfield said in an interview.

"Our policy in Thailand seems to be treading the same path."

Mansfield said U.S. efforts at peace have produced "no progress toward a fair settlement" and the danger of expanded conflict has increased in the last year.

He Had Monkey On His Back

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) It was the monkey on his back that caused the crash, a motorist told Judge William T. Sharp of Municipal Court.

Charged with driving under the influence of alcohol after his car hit another auto, the defendant told Sharp Thursday he recently traded his blind horse for a monkey To get acquainted with the new pet, he took it to a tavern where both had a few beers, the man continued.

On the way home, the monkey climbed on his shoulders and gave him a monkeybug from behind. Thus, with the monkey's arms around his eyes, the defendant couldn't see to steer the car.

"Not guilty," Sharp ruled. "It was the most original story I've ever heard."

France May Give RCAF Base at Lahr in Reich

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations with France for Canadian takeover of a French air base in West Germany are expected to be completed by the end of January.

If they fall through, Canada's entire NATO military effort in Europe may be put in jeopardy.

Canada's 6,300-man infantry brigade and 5,300-man air division in Europe are supplied by air through the Canadian base at Marville, France.

Under new French policy, all NATO troops must leave France next year—April 1 is the target date but it is fairly flexible—and Canadian officials have been casting around desperately for a base in Germany to replace Marville.

The base in question has been identified by External Affairs Minister Martin as Lahr, on the Rhine near the French-German frontier and much closer than Marville to the air division airfields at Baden-Soellingen and Zweibruecken.

Lahr now is used by the French but they are apparently willing to vacate it in favor of the Canadians.

The subject was discussed during the recent NATO council meeting in Paris by Mr. Martin and French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville, by Defence Minister Hellyer and by Gen. Jean V. Allard, chief of the Canadian defence staff, and his French counterpart.

One source said Mr. Martin is reasonably optimistic that the plan will go through.

With the departure from Marville, the number of RCAF CF-104 jet bomber and reconnaissance squadrons will be reduced to six from eight. But the six remaining squadrons at Baden - Soellingen and Zweibruecken will be larger than the usual 18-plane units.

The "fattened" squadrons at these two bases left no room at all for air transport operations. Thus the need for Lahr.

With the big shuffle, the strength of the air division will be reduced. The headquarters at Metz will be closed as well as Marville and not all the staff will be needed at the bases in Germany.

German Magazine Plans to Use Original Text of Kennedy Book

NEW YORK (AP)—An official of Look magazine said today he plans to go to West Germany to try to dissuade the magazine Stern from publishing the original version of Look's serialization of the book, The Death of a President.

The Look official, Joseph Wurzel, the magazine's syndicate manager, said he did not know exactly when he would be going to West Germany.

Henri Nannes, editor in chief of Stern, said Thursday in Hamburg Stern's rights were not affected by Look's agreement with Mrs. John F. Kennedy for deletions of passages she considered too personal. He said the contract between Stern and Look made no provision for any changes or cutting of the text. Stern, a weekly magazine in West Germany with a circulation of about 2,000,000, said it had agreed to pay Look $72,500 for the German-language rights to the serialization.

Under the agreement with Mrs. Kennedy, Look must control the material that is serialized elsewhere.

Christmas Scene - Parliament Hill

MUSICAL MOMENT — Retired after lengthy school service record, K. N. Bird relaxes with wife Evelyn at piano. For many years Mrs. Bird played for special events at schools where her husband taught.

K.N. Bird Teacher 40 Years

After more than 40 years of teaching within his own home area, K. N. Bird yesterday was given travelling papers.

That's not as blunt as it sounds.

The papers were expenses-paid passports to Expo '67 given the local educationist yesterday as tribute to his school service.

The presentations were made by the staff and students of Bayside public school where Mr. Bird formally bade farewell to a career that began in mid-twenties.

Born in the Oak Hills area, he was the son of Irish pioneers who helped settle the area in the 1830s by founding a farmstead on clergy preserves.

Mr. Bird was educated in Sidney — at the Marsh Hill public school and Stirling Secondary School — then passed on to teacher's college at Peterborough.

After graduation he took up a teaching career — starting in Sidney township — in the mid-twenties.

He remained here for 34 years, as teacher and principal.

With annexation of the area by Belleville he moved east and returned to Sidney township.

The transfer made him principal of Avondale school and supervising principal of Bayside, Quinte View and Belcrest schools.

In all that time he wasn't the only family member in Sidney. Mrs. Bird — the former Evelyn Reddick, of Sidney township — is an accomplished musician and once sang solo in Bridge Street United Church. As such, she always attended the schools where her husband taught to play the piano for student sing - songs at Christmas, Easter and other special occasions.

Now that he's retired, Mr. Bird hopes to be able to spend much more time at his favorite twin hobbies — conservation, and reading.

As to the former, he continues to be actively interested, being a past member of the Moira Conservation Authority and responsible for pre-foresting more than 20 acres of the old family homestead in the Oak Hills area.

His favorite reading is biography — focused on lives of great public leaders.

"My favorites are Lincoln, Laurier and Winston Churchill — in that order," he says.

However, while Mr. Bird enjoys his retirement at his home — 18 Hutton Drive — the family name is still actively represent in district teaching rosters.

The Birds' son, Richard, is an honors science graduate from Queen's University.

He's now in his third year teaching - at Quinte Secondary School.

IN MEMORIAM

ANDREWS — In loving memory of our dear father, Alexander Andrews, who passed away Dec. 23, 1962.

Father, I know you're in a better world

A better mansion that knows no guilts,
Where you can find that all was right,
His love to make some other world
If sick or suffering one by knew,
Where you can find that all was right,
Where you can find that all was right,
Where you can find that all was right,
I know it's filled with deeds of faith.

—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Betty, son-in-law Ivan and grandchildren Donny, Wilfred and Glenda.

REID — In loving memory of a dear little son, Brian Douglas, who passed away on Dec. 23, 1956.

Two little hands are resting,
Two feet at heart at rest,
A little son we loved is waiting,
In our hall and not the hill.
Sadly but fondly remembered by Mommy, Daddy, Grandpa, Timothy and Donna Lee.

SHARP — In loving memory of my dear husband, Charles Sharp, who passed away Dec. 23, 1966.

Dear husband, keep their watch up there
Please God just let me know
That we down here do not forget,
For I think of you each day
And remember you by wife Florence and daughters.

ANDREWS — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, Alexander Andrews, who passed away December 23, 1962.

Dad, we would give it we could
Your voice,
Dad, in the same old way,
To hear your voice, see your smile,
In spite with you dear dad we'll
Remember you, our father,
Christ has him safely
Now in the care of the heavenly Father.
Till we see his vacant chair.
Sadly but fondly remembered by son Fred, daughter-in-law Dorothy and family.

Bus, Train and Auto

Travel Takes Over From Shopping

Christmas travel is expected to peak today as most Canadians are granted the boon of a Saturday Christmas Eve.

Scores of them will arrive and depart the Quinte district. Thousands more will pass through the area which is serviced by the main east-west Canadian National Railways passenger line and across - Ontario highway and bus routes.

At the CN Rideau Division head offices in Belleville, passenger sales officials were estimating a fair - sized increase in volume over Christmas 1966.

"We're figuring on a 15 to 20 per cent increase above last year," one official estimated. Today is the peak day and we'll be using every bit of equipment we have today and tomorrow."

Extra sections will be added all passenger trains plying between Toronto and Montreal.

Scheduled times of arrival in Belleville for trains in the city today were:

Eastbound 12:15 p.m. and 6:45 p.m.; westbound 1:23 p.m. and 8:47 p.m.

"They're running pretty well on time right now," CN station ticket seller Godfrey Donoghue said this morning.

Parlor car reservations have been booked solid "for some time" and any possibility of available space hinges on last-minute cancellations.

Travel by road is also peaking with buses meeting a heavy holiday demand, a city ter-minus operator reports.

Eight coaches, bound east and west, stop in Belleville daily and in the past 24 hours were "pretty full", he said.

Meantime, the trend to more personal travel also is up.

Belleville travel agent Tony Warren said Christmas trips abroad were "very much up" — particularly to warmer southern regions.

The geographic emphasis this year was still on Florida but with a growing interest in Caribbean cruises.

CHRISTMAS RUSH is anticipated by Belleville CN ticket seller Godfrey Donoghue as he prepares to meet peak travel demand today. Extra train sections are being added to handle increased passenger volume on east and west bound trains.

Correction

An item in Thursday's Intelligencer incorrectly listed Gary Bulpit, 27 Pearl St., as one of three city persons charged with the theft of Christmas tree lights by city police.

The correct name is Cary Bulpit, of the same address.

Jail Inmates to 'Fare' Well

Inmates of the Hastings county jail are going to "fare well on Christmas Day.

In fact jail inmates will fare as well during their Christmas dinner as will the members of many families on the outside.

Jailor W. J. Theriault has the Christmas Day fare all lined up and the holiday menu reads something like what might be expected at a downtown restaurant.

Breakfast will consist of orange juice, cereal, bacon and eggs, buttered toast and jam, together with coffee sugar and cream.

Christmas dinner will consist of Tomato juice, roast turkey with dressing and gravy mashed potatoes, turnips, peas and cranberry sauce hot rolls Christmas pudding and tea or coffee.

For supper there will be cream of turkey soup a combination salad plate hot rolls ice cream and Christmas cake.

SPECIAL MUSIC

And that is not all.

Also during the day jail inmates will be visited by Provoy Brum Humphreys, correctional services officer for Hastings county, who will make double certain that those in custody are not overlooked.

There will be special music and carol singing at the Sunday morning service. All inmates will receive the customary "Santa Ann" Sunshine bags filled with fruit and candy. The Salvation Army will also check to see that the children of any of the inmates are not forgotten.

By way of entertainment the jail inmates will see a special 20th Century Fox film -alone with a number of travelogues from the Corby Public Library.

Fossil Recovered Form of Plant Life Existing Years Ago

TRENTON — While digging a sanitary sewer on Front St. two weeks ago a power shovel operator brought to light evidence life existed in the form of plants here some 450 million years ago.

Part of a fossil recovered from a solid limestone 10 feet underground was sent to the Royal Ontario Museum to be identified. Yesterday the sender town assessor, Al Smith, received word from a museum curator that the discovery is part of the stem of a crinoloid or sea-lily and the remains are quite frequently found in rocks of the Ordovician Age scientists say is nearly a half billion years old.

The sea-lily like the crinoloid found here was really an animal that looked like a plant. As a matter of fact Mr. Smith was informed some of the species are still found living in the deep part of oceans. The body skelton is generally found in the end of a stem made of button like discs and held to the sea floor by root like arms. Apparently they retrieve food for subsistence from their salt water environment.

Mr. Smith said the part of the fossil he kept is on display in his office and is available for the public to look at.

Postmen Weighed Down By Catalogue Delivery

Belleville postmen yesterday probably had the heaviest day of the Christmas rush — in more ways than one.

Cause of the extra weight was not so much Christmas cards as catalogues.

"Yesterday," said acting postmaster Jack Smith, "was the day the annual mail order catalogues from Simpson's and Eaton's were delivered."

Regular Christmas mail deliveries at the Belleville sorting office are beginning to taper off, he reports.

But people still are mailing cards in a last - minute effort to pass along seasonal greetings.

Most in - city mailings will probably be delivered in time, said the acting postmaster, although it was difficult to make a similar promise for deliveries outside the area.

Meantime, today's 5.30 a.m. mail train from Montreal has been delayed with technical trouble at Kingston, said Mr. Smith. He expected it might be added is the afternoon eastern mail which arrives about 2 p.m.

Small Mobile Crane Upsets

TRENTON — An incident at Front and Dundas Sts., corner yesterday provided anxious moments for those concerned with unloading steel girders at the Toronto-Dominion Bank construction site.

A small mobile crane upset and came to rest on its side while the operator was transferring the girders from a truck during the delivery operation. The commotion which resulted did not last long, however, since a larger crane at the location righted the overturned vehicle in what appeared to be an effortless lift.

Trial Period

High School to Offer 2-year Business Course

A two-year course in business and commerce will be offered on a trial basis to students at Belleville Collegiate next year. The decision to offer the course was made this week by members of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board at their final meeting of the year.

Schools superintendent E. A. Orr said the course would be offered to students who might not desire to take the four or five year business course. The course will include merchandising, art as related to display, record keeping, penmanship, and typing.

The board also approved the outline of the health and sex education program forwarded from the Ontario department of education. The study will be given in segregated classes as part of the physical education course.

A request will be made to the Belleville Public Utilities for the installation of street lighting on Palmer Road and Harper Drive in the vicinity of the Centennial Secondary School grounds.

Plans also call for a system of flood lighting for the front of the school and lighting for the school grounds. Cost of the lighting will be paid out of the school construction contingency funds.

The official opening of the new high school has been set for Feb. 24. The guest speaker for the opening ceremonies will be Donald H. Smith from Air Canada. A special committee headed by schools superintendent E. A. Orr has been appointed to make arrangements for the official opening.

Caretakers at the four high schools will receive a boost in salaries next year.

The new salary schedule calls for a salary range of from $3,500 to $4,600 for regular caretakers and from $4,900 to $5,800 for building supervisors. The present salary range is $3,300 to $4,200 or caretakers and from $4,500 to $5,400 for supervisors. The overtime rate for caretakers has been increased to $3 per hour.

The new working agreement also calls for four weeks holidays after 15 years service.

The high school board will hold it's committee of the whole organizational meeting on Jan. 4 with the inaugural meeting on Jan. 11.

Police Cleared Of Charge

Charges of brutality on the part of city police officers have not been substantiated, the Belleville Police Commission reported yesterday.

Police Chief J. B. McLauchlan began an inquiry last Thursday into allegations against city police officers involved in the arrest of Patrick Marshall, 19, a city youth charged with burglary.

Following receipt of Chief McLauchlan's report at a police commission meeting this week, Judge J. C. Anderson, chairman of the three - man body, said: "There is no need for further investigation into this matter."

The claims were made by a relative of the accused. No formal complaint was laid.

Girl Who Lost Arms Drawing, Painting

OTTAWA (CP)—A little girl who lost both arms in a baying accident last July is coloring Christmas pictures at her farm home this week.

Myrna Blair, a fair-haired, blue-eyed, five-year-old, feeds herself and draws and paints with two artificial arms fitted at the Toronto Crippled Children's Hospital where she had been since September.

Her mother, Mrs. James Blair, 28, said in a telephone interview it was the first time anyone has ever been fitted with two artificial arms above the elbow.

Myrna came back to a Sunday school party Wednesday night, and was outside playing in the snow with her two younger brothers and sisters at the time of the interview.

"She can do almost anything with her arms, and has learned to do jig saw puzzles with her feet," Mrs. Blair said. "She's working on one with 200 pieces now."

The little girl is hoping Santa Claus will bring her skates for Christmas.

Myrna lost her arms when she was run over by a hay mower operated by a neighbor on her father's farm about 40 miles west of Ottawa.

UNICEF Shop Now Closed

TRENTON — The UNICEF shop in Trenton closed on Wednesday but last minute shoppers for cards and calendars can still obtain them at the location for the project at Evelyn's Beauty Salon on Dundas St. W.

Mrs. E. D. Magnus local chairman for UNICEF said the volunteers who manned the greeting card counter were most encouraged by the more than $1,000 they took in from this year's sales. She credited the continuing support they received to industries increased interest in sending cards and calendars as gifts while the general public always gives the appeal an enthusiastic reception.

Another Bus Tragedy

The death of a number of children in an accident involving a school bus and a tractor-trailer near Windsor is yet another of those tragedies that seem to plague our society at holiday time, be it Christmas or any other season of the year.

Thus for some, Christmas brings heartbreak. And in this context we might also mention the case of the boy who died in the elevator shaft of a Toronto apartment block.

It is believed the boy may have lost his life as the result of simple daring-do. It seems that big city children have learned how the elevators of these apartment blocks work and they play a game of chicken, jumping out of the elevators stopped between floors. They have even been known to ride up and down the heavy counter-weights.

Now this raises obvious questions. What about parental control of such activities, for example? And the need for more recreational activities that would afford a proper outlet for youthful energies?

Apply this situation to Belleville. At the moment the city does not have any high-rise apartment dwellings of the type seen in the larger cities. And if it did, existing recreational facilities are perhaps more adequate than in the big new complexes of Toronto and similar places of large population.

Moreover, next year's capital works program in Belleville envisages construction of a new arena which would have a standard ice surface and ultimately facilities for either basketball, badminton or volleyball.

Belleville then is not so large, or so impersonal, that its young have to dream up such perverse modes of recreation as playing chicken in elevator shafts. On second thoughts perhaps they do. We consider their hovering around the rail tracks and jumping clear just before trains pass.

It all adds up to what we were saying earlier about lack of supervision and lack of suitable recreational outlets. If the latter are available, then the youngsters are not organized to take advantage of them in the way that they might.

Currency Seizure

The rebel government of Rhodesia, in spite of its defiance of the overall authority of Westminster, has professed no animosity for Her Majesty the Queen for whom Premier Smith and Rhodesians at large have the highest regard.

But circumstances are conspiring even to dim even this remaining link with Britain. This Christmas the Queen's traditional message will not be relayed by the Rhodesian Broadcasting Corporation. Instead, Rhodesians will hear greetings from Clifford Dupont, the Salisbury government's nominee as the Queen's representative.

Meanwhile, further economic sanctions brought to bear on Rhodesia as the result of Britain's appeal to the United Nations have unfolded a sorry situation which shows how loyalties and traditional ties can be changed overnight.

The Germans, whom Rhodesians fought alongside Britons in the last war, have been phoning currency to the rebel government. Now West German authorities acting on the request of the British Embassy in Bonn, have seized 28 tons of Rhodesian currency. The shipment was ready to be flown to Salisbury when it was seized at Frankfurt airport, and the remainder was taken over at a printing firm in Munich.

This is the kind of thing that is going to make life in Rhodesia increasingly difficult. About the only official friends the country has left in the world are South Africa and Portugal, and even they must step cautiously lest they too find themselves the target of economic boycotts.

House of Mafia

Sicily has the dubious distinction of being the homeland of the Mafia, whose twisted code of ethics has brought death to many a son and daughter of this Italian island territory.

The latest to run foul of the Mafia includes an 18-year-old girl, Francia Viola, who refused to marry a young man who had abducted and assaulted her.

Miss Viola's sultor apparently thought the girl would regard his show of masculinity in a favorable light. Instead she took him to court where he was sentenced to 11 years in jail.

But knowing the Mafia, this likely will not be of much benefit to Miss Viola. Even if she escapes vengeance it is said that under Sicilian code no other man is likely to marry her.

A Stepped-Up Plea For Recognition

A Link With Albert College

James Aitcheson in The Belleat Telegraph

It was a Ballymena man who taught Canada and indeed the world how to conduct business. He was Timothy Eaton, who was born near the Braid Water in 1834. Twenty years later he emigrated to Canada and entered partnership with teb of his elder brothers, Robert and James in a dry-goods business.

In 1869 he established the famous T. Eaton Company in Toronto where, by selling for cash at definite prices, he revolutionized commercial methods and established one of the world's greatest stores.

Eaton was only one of many Ulstermen who made their mark in Canada. Another was William McMaster, born in County Tyrone in 1811. His father was a linen merchant and William mastered the trade before emigrating. There, however, he established a wholesale dry goods business in York (the old name for Toronto), eventually becoming head of the prosperous firm of William McMaster and Nephews. Turning to a career of pure finance, he founded the Canadian Bank of Commerce in 1867 and became its first president. McMaster was also chiefly instrumental in founding the McMaster University, first located in Toronto and later in Hamilton. Ontario, and he left the bulk of his large fortune to his university.

Then there was John Macoun, the naturalist who was born in Marallin parish, County Down in 1831. Emigrating to Canada about 1856, he farmed for several years and then decided to devote himself to the study and teaching of botany.

He was appointed Professor of Natural History at Albert College, Belleville, Ontario, in 1868. He made his first voyage of exploration in 1872. This was in the Canadian West. He accompanied Sir Sandford Fleming's party as far as Edmonton and continued separately to be Pacific Coast through the Rocky Mountains via the Peace and Fraser rivers. In 1875 he accompanied the Selwyn expedition in the reverse direction.

Macoun joined the Canadian Geological Survey in 1875 to observe plant and soil conditions on the prairies. A mountain in the Selkirks and 48 species of flora and fauna were named in his honor.

"Lucia Bride" Is Irish

Portland Oregonian

For several years the Scandinavia Men's Club has chosen a young lady of Scandinavian descent to represent Portland and Oregon as "Lucia Bride" in pre-Christmas festivities in the capitals of the north European countries. The "Lucia Bride" from Portland have uniformly been attired in costumes of goodwill for this region.

This year, the club decided not to limit candidates for the honor to girls of Scandinavian descent. The result was that a charming young lady named Patricia (Pat) Casey was selected to fly this month to Copenhagen, Stockholm, etc.

Now, Pat Casey is about as non-Scandinavian as name as anyone could imagine. No doubt there's Irish blood in the veins of Portland's 1938 Lucia bride. But what better demonstration of America's distinctive and successful blending of ethnic groups could be given the people of the old country than by sending a colleen there as Portland's flicka.

Life's Challenge

To be truly challenging, a voyage, like a life, must rest on a firm foundation of financial unrest. Otherwise you are doomed to a round of traverse, the kind known to yachtsmen, who play with their boats at sea — "cruising." It is called . . . 'I've always wanted to sail to the South Seas, but I can't afford it.' What these men can't afford is not to go.

— Hollywood actor Sterling Hayden in his book 'Wanderer.'

December's Rare Charm

New York Times

It wasn't an outdoor poet who coined the phrase "bleak December," it was someone who probably slept late, had a lagging circulation and was afraid of catching cold. December was bleak because it wasn't June, loud with bees and bright with blossoms.

True, December can be raw and cold and its days sometimes are dark, but is neither bleak nor colorless. Go at outdoors soon after sunup, which now comes late, and even on a lowering day you probably will find a frosty scene of dazzling beauty. If the day is clear it can be a world transformed by frost or snow, newly created, fragile as spun glass, ephemeral as the passing hour.

Go to the woodland and see how the green of pine and hemlock is twice as bright against leafless gray ash and maple. Understood like those in a symbol ancients, running pine and ground cedar, greener than summer grass and the evergreen fig partridgeberry is gay not only with evergreen leaves but with clusters of bright berries. Some ac has fat clusters of bloodstone-fruit. Black Alder's stems are decked with garnets. Bittersweet is festive with bangles of coral and carnelian. The barberry bushes are loaded with topaz and rubies.

The meadow grass is bronze and antique gold. Empty milkweed pods are lined with feathery-soft pearl. Praying thistle beads are spun silver. The grey beach trees's crisp leaves are pale yellow.

Taken on its own terms, no December day is really bleak. December wasn't meant to be June.

BC Teachers Seek Bonus

Vancouver Sun

Wait until the babysitters' union hears about the demand by Vancouver elementary school teachers for a bonus to compensate for lunch hour supervision.

The teachers are seeking lunch money amounting to one-hundredth of their salary for each time they are forced to eat sandwiches in the classroom. At present scales this would run anywhere from $4.02 to $10.31 per sitting.

What does this add to the case put by one Philip H. Weller of Surrey, whose plea for a babysitters' minimum wage of $1 per hour was regarded regretly by his local labor council as Labor Minister Leslie Peterson? Mr. Weller's ambitions were no higher than 50 cents an hour per cradle between 6 a.m. and 9 p.m. and $1 an hour for handling four or more sibs.

Perhaps this is too-cheap labor. Or, better still, the school board could hire Mr. Weller's sitters for lunchtime and save up to $9.31 an hour.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 22, 1906 . . .

Wake Island, a U.S. Navy airfield in the Pacific Ocean, surrendered 25 years ago today—in 1941—after a gallant defence by the garrison of 377 marines and afew civilian workers. The U.S. troops and five Japanese warships and a submarine when landings were first attempted and were subjected to 15 days of heavy bombing, fighting back with four fighter aircraft, all of which fell in action. The commander ordered Wake's surrender after six hours of fighting against 1,100 Japanese invaders.

1771 — Marie d'Youville, founder of the order of Grey Nuns, died at Montreal.

1834 — Joseph Hanson of England patented the Hansom cab.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916 — the British desert force routed Turks at Magdhaba in the Sinai Peninsula, taking 1,500 prisoners; the Belgian government endorsed President Wilson's appeal for the belligerents to state terms for peace.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—Wake Island surrendered to the Japanese; Ottawa announced Brig. J. L. Ralston, Canadian commander at Hong Kong, had died in action; Japanese air raids caused 400 civilian casualties at Rangoon, Burma; Russian counter-attacks advanced 20 miles south of Tikhvin.

Arms Control In the U.S.

Boston Globe

Unlike some nearby states, Massachusetts has fairly strict laws on the licensing of small arms and automatic weapons—including machine guns. But we have nothing to control the sale or ownership of artillery rifles and shotguns — or of items like bazookas and mortars.

The most serious by New York police of an arsenal of military - type weapons, while standing on right - wing extremists, focuses attention again on the right of private citizens to own firearms and other weapons.

Repeated efforts in congress to enact some kind of sensible uniform arms control law have been stymied, so powerful is the National Rifle Association. What kind of horrible new disaster involving gunplay will it take to shock sufficiently the conscience of the nation? Lawmakers have been apathetic about it much too long.

To Your Good Health

Skin Rash May Result From Too Much Sun

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Seventeen years ago my daughter visited Florida and got a rash all over her. Since then each summer it she is in the sun her face and arms break out so much that she is compelled to stay indoors. Can you suggest anything? — H. W.

Yes, although nothing of a home remedy nature.

This time of year most of us are longing for next summer. Others dread it. Sunshine does different things to different people.

Some skin diseases are benefited by sun, psoriasis, acne, and pityriasis to name a few. Yet the sun is useless for others.

Quite aside from sunburn, some people develop an allergy to sunlight, and often break out with hives as a result. In others, a toxic reaction occurs in the cells due to the rays.

Treatment varies considerably from one case to another, and the patient should follow the advice of a skin specialist. In any event, most of the medicines which are definitely effective are prescription drugs.

In the allergic type, antihistamines may help. In the other type of sensitivity, drugs used to combat malaria have proved to be useful. These of course, have to be used under a physician's direction.

Drugs of the psoralen type sometimes are successful but they have to be used with considerable care. These drugs encourage tanning of the skin and are taken, in limited doses, a few hours before exposure. At the beginning of the season the first exposures usually have to be limited to a matter of minutes, especially if the skin is extremely sensitive.

There can be side effects, which is another reason for caution, and in some instances the drug can cause excessive tanning which does not fade at the usual rate. Thus one must not be started with excessive optimism, but sometimes results are very good.

It doesn't seem to apply in today's case, but I might mention that some people have abnormal sensitivity to sun while taking drugs — the birth control antibiotics, and some of the thiazide diuretics. And sometimes certain perfumes and lotions contain substances which activate a toxic effect when the user is exposed to the sun.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son 21, is a track star but has trouble with leg cramps so I suggested that he take calcium capsules and it seems to help. (Name and address withheld.)

Many non-physicians says he does not need the capsules and that if he continues to take them he will have a heart attack by the time he is 30. What is your answer? — Mrs. F. M.

Neither the cramps nor track work will contribute to heart disease later on. Heart attacks are from other factors: Heredity, condition of the arteries, obesity diabetes, etc.

Why not suggest that your husband leave it to your doctor as to whether the young man should keep on taking calcium?

Dear Dr. Molner: My niece is only 18 but she has a large bust, size 46 to 48 but otherwise is nicely shaped. What can be done for her? She is 5 feet 6 and weighs 130. This situation has made her very unhappy and shy. — Mrs. S. H.

Her weight is about average for her height and it is quite understandable that her bust size would create a psychological problem.

Plastic surgery may be able to correct the situation to some extent, and I suggest that she discuss it with her doctor who can refer her to a suitable specialist.

Tactful Reminder

Ottawa Journal

Not very jolly but polite and useful was that letter sent out by G. W. Hunter, deputy Minister of Defence Production, to organizations with which his department deals. "I rely on your good judgment to refrain from offering gifts," said Hunter and Judgment, of course, is what is involved. There may have been a time when public officials could see no harm in a turkey from a contractor made a difference to Christmas and there undoubtedly still are such gifts quite in order. That time is long past and the Civil Service has a tradition firmly which should make the man doing business with the Government very hesitant to offer gifts. Hunter has done useful service with his friendly warning that presents can be, at least, embarrassing.

Strike Only Half-Settled

Montreal Gazette

Even if the members of the railroad brotherhoods now convened vote to approve the settlement that has been reached by the negotiating parties under Mr. H. Carl Goldenberg's mediation, this is not to say that the matter has been settled. In fact it may be said that the matter has only been half-settled.

What has happened is that the rail workers have been granted costly increases. But the railroads have not been given a chance of earning enough money to pay for them.

Indians Benefit

Ottawa Journal

Better health services are a factor in the rapid growth of Indian population, which was 211,000 in 1964 compared to 136,000 in 1949. Two years ago, about 36 per cent of the Indians were under 21 years of age compared with 42 per cent in 1964, another example of whole. Instead of being the oldest Canadians, Indians bid fair to be the youngest.

Strictly Personal

Christmas and Brotherhood

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Everyone says that what is wrong with Christmas is that it is "too commercial" — but that is not the whole truth. What is wrong with Christmas is that it is "too spiritual" — is the wrong way.

The commercial aspect of Christmas can easily be ignored or repudiated by anyone who wants to, since this happens rarely. But the false "spiritual" aspect is harder to separate from the true message.

The three wise men, and the star of Bethlehem, and the baby in the manger, and the mystery and the miracle — all these are tempting and easy for us to forget and refer to God.

And the whole story — the whole messiahship — can be summed up in two sentences from Jesus' own lips:

"If anyone says 'I love God,' and hates his brother, he is a liar." (I John 4:20)

"Inasmuch as you did it to one of the least of these my brethren, you did it unto Me." (Matthew 25:40)

This is what Christmas — the mass of Christ — must mean, if it is to mean anything. If it does not mean this to us, then what we worship is superstition and idolatry.

You cannot love God without loving every fellow creature He made; and an act of contempt or rejection or injustice or neglect toward the least — the poorest, the dullest, the weakest, the dumbest — is an act against Him.

This certainly does not mean this, it means nothing. If this central fact is ignored or slurred over, Christianity is only a whole structure of Christianity falls apart, and we are left with nothing but another primitive "magic" religion.

And it is not the impious, the pagan and unbelievers, who must be most on guard against forgetting this message. It is the believers, the spiritually people, who mistake form for substance, prayers for performance, worship for service.

For Christianity is not a "spiritual" religion. like some religions of the East. It is intensely "practical" religion having its moral roots in the practicalities of human life. It is not designed to change the way men think or believe as much as to change the way they act.

It is easy to think Christmas, and easy to believe Christmas; but it is hard — and supremely unbelievable — to act Christmas. It is not our false commercialism that prevents it, but our false spirituality. Not the clang of the cash register but the jingle of bells; not the tinsel sentimentality, and reducing us from the grim, pastoral, yearround task of brotherhood.

$50,000,000 Loss

Shoplifters Hit Peak in Holiday Season

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto housewife tried to walk out of a downtown store early in the Christmas season wearing a $2,700 mink coat she had stolen.

She was caught, but hundreds of shoplifters across Canada, both amateur and professional, are escaping unnoticed.

Police estimate more than $50,000,000 worth of goods will be stolen from Canadian stores this month. Merchants will lose more than $200,000,000 in the course of a year, but activity reaches its peak during the Christmas rush.

Police fit shoplifters into three categories—the first-time steal-ers who yield to impulse, the amateurs who steal a few items for personal use and the professionals who may rove between cities picking up goods to sell.

Three shoplifters from Chicago were caught recently in Toronto and police found $2,000 worth of goods from Ontario stores in their hotel rooms.

In the last two weeks, about 200 persons have been charged with shoplifting at a suburban shopping centre, where police have established a special two-man bureau.

Arrests have been fewer downtown. About 100 suspects have been questioned in an office set up by police at city hall.

Superintendent Charles Bond of the Metropolitan Toronto police department says about 50 per cent of the persons arrested for shoplifting charges in this month were juveniles.

"There appears to be a lot of impulse-stealing by amateurs at Christmas," he said. "And I think a lot of stealing is done by people who just can't find a clerk to serve them. They wait, look around, try to find a clerk and then just walk away with the stuff."

Canadian insurance spokesmen say they cannot estimate losses because there is no insurance against shoplifting.

"It is classified as a mysterious disappearance from inventory and no insurance covers that," said a spokesman for the Underwriters Adjustment Bureau.

The fight against the shoplifter is being conducted on several fronts. Some Canadian stores have studied electronic devices which emit signals, allowing store detectives to follow the stolen article.

Other merchants approach shoplifting from purely economic terms.

One Toronto store owner said he could hire four more clerks at a weekly cost of $200, but he chooses to operate with a skeleton staff, hoping that shoplifters are not getting more than $100 worth of goods a week. That leaves him $100 ahead.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate

"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

The phrase "100 per cent financing" holds a special fascination for real estate professionals. The letter from Mr. S. explains a rather simple but effective way it can be achieved for qualified home buyers.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: A real estate firm in our area advertises "qualified buyers can purchase from our listings without cash." Their method appears so simple that I'm selling your realization before I buy.

The house in which I'm interested sells for $20,000. A $15,000 mortgage goes with the transaction. I will be required to sign a note, my payments are increased by $25 per month and no money is required.

It's not that I'm short of cash, for I have over $10,000 in a savings account, but on my income I can easily manage the extra $25 per month. It appears to be a painless method of buying a home. Why are not other brokers using this method? What do you think? — Mr. S. N.

ANSWER: The above appears to be an excellent merchandising method. I can assure our correspondent that after exposure in this column, other brokers will use this technique.

The down payment is represented by a loan arranged by the broker at a commercial bank. The added payment of $25 per month represents the interest on the loan. Two considerations may impair this smooth working of this method.

The loan, of necessity, is only for a short period. (Usually, one year.) Sooner or later it will have to be paid off. Continued extensions, if the bank is so inclined, may give it some appearance of permanency.

The second point to consider. Is that mortgage brokers are reluctant to or will not grant a mortgage if they have knowledge that the down payment is being secured by borrowing. However, within these two limitations, this technique has the potential for a new financing method for buyers whose credit and income status allow them to qualify. Actually some brokers are now using this method but usually for special situations.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I almost signed an agreement of sale with the following clause "the buyer (meaning me) agrees to pay all settlement costs of the seller and all other costs attendant with the transfer of the property."

I maintain that any broker that would allow a clause of this type in a contract is a cheat. What do you think of the propriety of such a clause? — Mr. A. B.

ANSWER: I must admit that it is a harsh and unusual clause from the buyer's standpoint. By no stretch of the imagination, however, is it indicative that the broker is a cheat.

In the first instance our correspondent forgets that in the typical real estate transaction, including this one, the broker is the agent of the seller. The clause, although harsh, is for the advantage of the broker's principal (the seller).

More important, the terms and conditions of any contract are arrived at by negotiation between the parties. The fact that one of the parties proposes or insists on tough terms is not indicative of his morals or ethical standards. The second party has the complete liberty to reject, modify or accept the contract. This is normal bargaining. What is important is to have competent advice so that one understands the terms of the bargaining.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Ever since I bought my house I'm slowly becoming a pretty competent mechanic. I love doing carpentry work best of all.

One little problem has been puzzling me. Sometimes wood will readily split, at other times it can drive all the nails I want without any split. What causes the differences? — Mr. L.

ANSWER: The two major causes of nails splitting wood are (a) either the nail you are using is too large or (b) the wood is very dry. Splitting is especially prevalent with hard woods. If faced with the possibility of splitting the wood, professional carpenters avoid the problem by drilling small pilot holes first.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I moved from the suburbs back to the city. I bought a town house (row brick type) which had been rehabilitated.

I'm happy with the building except for one fact. After every rain the plaster on the front and back wall actually feels wet to the touch. My husband says it's my imagination. Is it? — Mrs. C. R.

ANSWER: There is nothing wrong with your imagination, the walls are probably wet. In many old buildings, the plaster is placed directly on the brick walls with no air space or vapor barrier between the plaster and the brick. With this type of construction, the bricks absorb moisture during a rain, and it passes through the wall causing dampness.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I was raised in a stern family which had as a guiding principle "waste not." One manifestation of my early training is that I'm always running after my husband and family, turning off the light even if they step out of a room for a moment.

Most of the lights in our home are fluorescent. Are you (given smart because he is now a high school senior) tells me that my habit is wasteful because the constant turning on and off is shortening the life of the fluorescent tubes. Is he right? — Mrs. T.

ANSWER: After reading this reply you will be safe in good conscience to sit comfortably instead of chasing after your family shutting off the lights. The life of a fluorescent lamp is shortened by constant turning on and off. A fluorescent lamp wears out when the phosphorus coating inside the tube is used up. Phosphorus coating are consumed at a much faster rate during the starting period of the lamp than during continuous use.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Christmas dinners instead of the traditional goose. The teddy bear remains the favorite child's gift. The Bank of England says there is more cash in circulation than ever before, despite the economic crisis, and Christmas spending promises to set a record.

Herald—Parents' are wondering how to pay for the gifts Papa Noel (Santa Claus) leaves in children's shoes. Toy prices have nearly doubled in two years. The tradition of turkey costs $1 a pound and ham is slightly cheaper.

Philippines—A 14-per-cent increase in food prices over the last year has not dampened Christmas, the country's most festive holiday.

West Germany — A Duesseldorf shop offered a jewelled, silver Christmas tree for $250,000 but most retailers reported a trend toward practical gifts and away from impulse buying. Most big sales increases of previous years were not noted. Most families are staying with the customary Christmas lineup and Christmas goose but some plan to try turkey.

Ghana — In the first Christmas season since Kwame Nkrumah was toppled by an army revolt last February, Ghanaians are able once again to buy toys, guns, rockets and fireworks. Nkrumah banned these items after an attempt on his life in 1962. Thousands will dance in the streets of Accra, the capital.

The Wall Unbreached

BERLIN (AP)—The absence of thousands of West Berliners has taken much of the Christmas bustle out of East Berlin this year.

For the first time since 1963, the divided city faces the prospect of no Communist passes allowing West Berliners to visit East Berlin relatives during the holidays.

Hundreds of thousands have made the round trip through the Berlin wall each previous Yuletide.

The streets seem vacant by comparison this year and there is plenty of room in the stores.

Board Ready to Help

10 students registered for classes.

Tradesmen are still busy at the school but even after the building is completed early in the New Year it will not go into full use. Many of the 50 teaching areas will be idle until enrolment builds over the next two years.

School board members feel that the idle rooms at the school could be made available to the college on a temporary basis.

Rev. H. J. Maloney, of Brucraft, chairman of the college board of governors, said it was "interesting and encouraging" that classroom space could be made available at the Centennial school.

"The amount of space required will of course depend on the number of courses to be offered," he said.

Father Maloney said that the board of governors would respect the Belleville school officials' wishes in this matter.

Dec. 28th but did not expect that any decision would be made until the next meeting of the board of governors early in the New Year.

Father Maloney said that no other "real" form of temporary accommodation had been received by the Board.

"The Board appreciates what has been done for us at Belleville," he said.

It is still indefinite just what accommodation for college classes might be available at Centennial Secondary School, although Principal James Musgrove is now attempting to estimate the number of high school students who might register next September.

REGISTED CHANGE

It is thought the Mayan Indians of Central America never exploited the invention of the wheel because of protests by a well-organized porters' guild.

The Belleville Transit Commission hereby advises the public that regular bus service will cease on December 24th at 7.45 p.m. in order to allow the drivers to spend some time with their families.

No service will be available on Dec. 26th or 27th, as the latter date, Boxing Day, has been proclaimed a holiday by the Mayor, January 2nd, 1957, New Year's Day, will also be considered a holiday.

Regular service will be available through the Christmas Week, commencing Wednesday, December 28th and continue until December 31st inclusive. This service will also be provided on January 3rd.

At this time, the Commission would like to extend to all a Very Merry Christmas wish and a Happy New Year.

May a full measure of Happiness and Peace of Mind and Contentment of Heart be yours at this Yuletide Season.

Gibson – Carruthers

Rev. Canon R.B. DeBlois Wright officiated at the wedding ceremony in Christ Church, on Saturday December 17, when Victoria Lynn Carruthers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Albert Carruthers, Belleville, became the bride of John Malcolm Stirling Gibson, son of Dr Stirling Gibson and Mrs. Gibson, Belleville. Mr. J. Withers, church organist rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the 12 choir boys in appropriate nuptial selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a full length gown of white French silk peau de soie featuring an Empire styled bodice of peau design with full length Kabuki sleeves. The bell shaped skirt flowed into a graceful chapel train. A crown of lace studded with pearls and adorned with crystals was caught in a flowing veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids mingled with stephanotis and ivy.

Miss Deborah Carruthers, sister of the bride as maid of honor and the bridesmaids Miss Mary Beth Follwell and Miss Pamela Carruthers were dressed in gowns of holly red silk peau de soie with peau d'ange lace bodices styled similarly to the bride's. They wore white fur crowns and carried matching fur muffs adorned with sprays of holly and ivy.

Mr. Robert Gibson attended his brother, while the ushers were Mr. Larry Martin, Syracuse, N.Y., brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Mr. William Sprague of Belleville.

A reception was held at The Belleville Club where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing an imported ensemble of embossed French silk brocade in rose shade with matching turban and a white gardenia corsage.

She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a dress of honey grey brocade with matching jacket having pink and gold accents, matching hat, and a cymbidium orchid corsage.

For the wedding trip to the Laurentians and Chantecler, St. Adele, Quebec, the bride chose an imported suit of Italian double knit in gold shade, antique brown accessories with fur coat and a corsage of gardenias.

Upon return Mr. and Mrs. Gibson will take up residence at 1 Westdale Avenue, Apt. 5, Kingston, Ontario.

The Experts Say

Modern Turkey Spends Most of His Time Lolling Around Turkey House

OTTAWA (CP) — Your Christmas turkey has come a long way from the first gobbler blasted out of a tree by a pilgrim Father.

The modern bird is usually white, for one thing, definitely not suitable for creeping around the woods. And he can't really fly because he's also a lot rounder and plumper than his gamy forbears.

This turkey spends most of his time lolling around the turkey house, nibbling his super-nutritious food, quaffing his hygienic water or sorting through the litter on the floor.

Dr. August Johnson, animal research co-ordinator at the Dominion Experimental Farm here, says the modern turkey spends a lot of his day "just standing around." That's about all he can handle mentally.

"They're fairly happy in their ignorant way. The general impression of a turkey is that it's quite stupid You wouldn't have one for a pet." NEVER SEES MOTHER

The turkey's infancy and adolescence is a marvel of electronic child-rearing. He begins life as a brown-speckled egg, about a third bigger than a chicken egg. But he'll never see his mum.

The egg is popped into an incubator, with up to 10,000 prospective Christmas dinners. After about 28 days at a room-temperature-controlled 99 degrees, the baby turkey breaks through the shell.

Now he's a poult. All fuzzy and cheeping, he's whisked into a box of 200 poults and shipped off to a turkey farmer, probably somewhere in western Ontario or Quebec.

There he skips about under a brooder, a big flattish cone shedding light and the tronic heat he would normally find under mother's wing, if she didn't step on him and squash him first.

After eight weeks of starting ration, he moves out from under the brooder to grow up inside, in an insulated pen, or outside, in a square of pasture.

Sex doesn't play a large part in the life of the average turkey. Most breeders prefer to order either all males who grow up into heavier birds, or all females, who finish lighter but faster.

The payoff comes at about 16 weeks for girls and 21 for the fellows. After a program of finishing rations they are dispatched to the rewards of the faithful. Then comes the plucking, gutting and freezing to your Christmas party.

A few selected birds, those that survive the disease death rate of five per cent and the higher rate of festive mortality, go on to become—the mothers and fathers of next year's crop. Even they will only last about a year. It doesn't pay to keep them longer.

But here again the research labs have played a cruel trick on the once-proud bird. Breeding turkeys broad and plump, they have also bred them awkward and ungainly.

Therefore, turkey farmers find it more efficient to make it test tube the father of their chicks.

So the large-scale farm keeps a small flock of Toms strictly segregated from the hens.

Both groups occupy themselves with working out a pecking order. One bird can peck anyone else in the house without any back-chat. The rest can peck certain housemates but not others, or are lonely outcasts who have to take the pecks of all and never strike back.

And so it goes, a turkey's life, from the feeding trough to the water bowl, from the roost to the community nest, from the incubator to the oven.

They've been used before. A fuzzy Santa from the year "baby" was two . . . a silk covered apple Grandma made to weight down a limb . . . a not-so-silver-any-more horn that used to toot 'til the year the puppy pulled the tree over.

So, like the treasured old ornaments, let us unwrap again the oft-repeated phrases that are the essence of the Christmas celebration . . .

May your Christmas be Merry and your New Year filled with Happiness

Always Be Consistent With Complexion Care

By Kaka and Bonnie Churchill

1. Your complexion is a beauty report card. It's always on view to rate your eating and exercise habits, to protect you or your emotions, and to broadcast your cleansing routine. How well do you score? If, like actress Cheryl Miller of MGM-TV's "Daktari" series, your skin glows with vibrant health and silky texture, you pass with an excellent rating. However, if you indulge in a steady diet of rich foods, drink few liquids, except at mealtime, follow an erratic exercise schedule and indulge in a hit-and-run cleansing program, you're headed for a failing grade.

2. To improve your rating, investigate the ABC's of a flawless complexion: Always Be Consistent. Most skin needs at least one daily cleansing, with excessively oily complexions necessitating three or more washings. Prior to such sudsings, loosen and dissolve cosmetics with a make-up remover. Follow the same "route" whether applying it or soap. Begin at the chin and gradually stroke cleanser to the forehead. This upward movement keeps muscles from sagging, improves circulation and helps smooth fret lines. When soap is used, select equal time to rinsing and drying.

3. During winter, most complexions, even oily ones, need some form of lubrication. Frequently, dermatologists suggest the following beauty timetable. If skin is oily, they recommend a liquefying cream that instantly dissolves, performs its helpful work in seconds, and then is linsed off. If complexion is normal, a lightweight face creme penetrates and softens. Two applications, plus massage, takes less than seven minutes. If flesh is excessively dry, a super-rich emollient creme, that can stay on the face longer, may be the answer. It too is designed to "refuel" dehydrated tissues.

Successful Living

Providing Slippers and Mats Solves Problem of Soiling Expensive Rugs

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am a bachelor living alone. I have just moved into a bachelor apartment which I had to furnish myself. I covered the living room with expensive wall-to-wall carpeting.

Now my question is, is it proper to ask your guests to take their shoes off before allowing them to enter your place, or would that be offending to them? I am sure, Doris, that there are many readers who would like an answer to this question. — Bachelor.

Dear Bachelor: In today's mail comes an answer borrowed straight from Japan. The lady says: "I keep washable rubberized-back rugs at the entrance and those 79 cent slippers. It saves fresh lumbosized carpet and folks feel more happy, I think. So do I."

Doormats and rubbers help solve the problem, but then of course there are some folk who neglect to wipe mud off your shoes, even in slush and worse. I don't think we can courteously go further than to supply mats and maybe leave slippers at the door for a hint.

The sooner we can emulate the Japanese the better. But meanwhile there are rug cleaners.

Dear Doris: Up until these last two years my husband, Joe, and I had a very happy marriage. We both seemed to enjoy our family, and had occasional parties with our social friends. Suddenly Joe started making smutty remarks to my girl friends in my presence, and eyeing them as if he wanted something more from them.

Recently we haven't been invited out very often, and when we are, people seem to find it difficult to be at ease in my presence. Joe still keeps up the same sort of embarrassing pratile, as if he is trying to make me feel inferior in front of others. I find myself holding up a resentment that is making me completely indifferent to any advances he does make when we are alone.

After years of happiness it seems so strange to have this feeling of repulsion boil up inside me. I feel as if I never want him to touch me again.

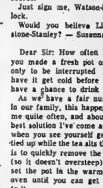
In Need of Advice.

Dear In Need: To accept the caresses of one who belittles and betrays is against nature.

The sudden change of attitude on Joe's part must be related to some change of circumstances: his mental or physical illness, or a temptation of which you are not aware; or your own subtle or new assumption of a role which makes him feel inferior.

Perhaps the change has been so gradual as to make you unaware of what happened.

Talk honestly with him first. If nothing gives, discuss it with your doctor and his. Marital or psychiatric counselling may be needed to get at the root of the trouble.



Confidential to Help Wanted: Now that you are sure it was Chuck who made the calls you will probably know his voice the next time.

Say something like this: "Look, Chuck, it is flattering to have a secret admirer, but you are going the wrong way about it if you ever want me for a friend. I simply wouldn't consider a date with a boy I don't know. Now can you take a hint?"

Susanna's Family Fare

Where's Other Sock?

Dear Susanna: To help combat the problem of continually finding one child's sock (only) in the wash, I hang a shopping bag in each young master's bedroom cupboard and ask them to put their soiled clothing and socks in there.

Superb Choice

I check the bag before I remove the contents from the bedroom so that if a mate to something is missing, I can track it down right at the source.

Just sign me, Watson-Sherlock.

Would you believe Livingstone-Stanley? — Susanna

Dear Sir: How often have, you made a fresh pot of tea only to be interrupted and have it get cold before you have a chance to drink it?

As we have a fair number in our family, this happens to me quite often, and about the best solution I've come across when you see yourself getting tied up while the tea sits there, is to quickly remove the bags (so it doesn't oversteep) and set the pot in the warm in a oven until you can get back to it.

Half an hour or so later it is still quite delicious.—Emily

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Recipe for Pineapple Cheese Cake

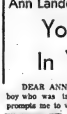
QUESTION: Sometime ago — and I mean that — several years I believe really, you printed a recipe for Pineapple Cheese Cake. I have it more or less, the ingredients at least, but seem unable to get them together properly. The crust was graham wafers plus sugar, butter, cinnamon. Then the crushed pineapple, creamed cottage cheese, 2 eggs 2 tbsps. gelatine, vanilla, pineapple juice. Could you print this recipe again? I have tasted any number of Cheese Cakes but nothing as good as this one. — Mrs. Bessie S.

ANSWER: Obviously I was pleased to hear you remembered and wanted a repeat of the 1958 Pineapple Cheese Cake. (repeated from May, 1958)

PINEAPPLE CHEESE CAKE

One and one-half cups very finely rolled graham cracker crumbs, 1-3 cup each butter and brown sugar, ½ tsp. each salt and cinnamon, ¼ tsp. nutmeg, 1 tsp. water, 2 tbsps. (2 envelopes) plain gelatine, 2-3 cup sugar, ¼ tsp. salt, 2 large eggs, separated and whites separated, 1 tsp. grated lemon rind, 3 cups creamed cottage cheese forced through strainer, 1 cup best quality crushed canned pineapple and juice, ½ pt. whipping cream.

This took me ¾ hour to make and I work quickly — so plan accordingly. Roll the graham crackers — I think I used 15. In a large saucepan melt the butter; low heat — do not brown it — and add the sugar and stir until sugar melts, then add in crumbs, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and water. Butter generously an 8-inch round pan. I used an old-fashioned 8½-inch tin tube pan. Press half of the crumb mix on bottom and sides. Soak gelatine in crushed pineapple 5 minutes. Add sugar and ¼ tsp. salt and heat and stir over lot heat until smoothly thickened. Remove from heat and stir in lemon rind. Cool, stirring often. Stir in sieved cottage cheese. Chill but not until set. Fold in stiffly beaten whites, then stiffly beaten cream. Turn carefully into crumb-lined pan; sprinkle remaining crumbs over top evenly. Chill until firm or overnight. Carefully unmould. Dip quickly in hot water if necessary, but loosening with heated knife will probably do. Garnish around base with pineapple crescents and reserved halves and maraschino cherries. Make a sunburst effect on top with pineapple or apricot "petals" and whole blanched almonds or pecans and quartered maraschinos. Serve very cold.



PRIZES FOR SCIENCE

MONTREAL (CP) — Cash prizes and scholarships totalling more than $3,500 will be awarded to high school students at the seventh annual Montreal Science Fair in 1967, Dr. Wladimir Paskievici, the fair's chairman, says the awards are designed to encourage more youngsters to undertake independent science projects.

Ann Landers

Youth Entangled In 'Lolita's' Snare

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the 20-year-old boy who was trying to get away with that big-brother act prompts me to write this letter. Our son is also 20 and he is dating a 14-year-old girl, but he has made it plain that this is no brother-sister relationship.

ANN LANDERS

My husband and I have done our best to point out the dangers of this set-up, but to no avail. We have warned him that if the flesh proves too much for him, he is taking statutory rape charges and / or sudden marriage. Our son says I am overly critical of the girl and not to worry.

What are parents of boys supposed to do? I'm afraid that warning him again would make as much sense as telling a pup not to eat a piece of horse manure that has been set on the floor. — BLUE IN THE FACE MOTHER.

DEAR BLUE FACE: I congratulate you on your realistic evaluation of the situation. There isn't a thing you can do now except to hope the boy's common sense will triumph over the chemistry. Good luck to all of you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a very nice person. We have always been happy. He has always been the one I could trustworthy so far as I know, but I'm terribly worried about something. I suspect he is stealing. I hate the word but I don't know how else to say it.

My husband works in a store. Two nights a week he closes up. On these nights he comes home with huge bags of merchandise. We are having a hard time making ends meet but we are not destitute.

I don't dare accuse him of stealing because I have no proof but I know how much money we have in our purse. He can't possibly be paying for these enormous bags of merchandise out of his salary.

I am terrified one day he will get caught, but I'm afraid to bring up the subject. Please tell me what to do. — GETTING GREY.

DEAR GREY: Tell your husband you know he is not paying cash for the merchandise he lugs home and that you shudder to think of the talk that's coming up. Tell him from now on unless he shows you a receipt for cash you are going to return everything the next day.

Confidential to BEST LAID PLANS: Of course they sometimes go astray. But my fool can stumble along by guess and by golly. Bright people plan ahead. Remember, the future has a habit of suddenly becoming the present and if you're wise, you'll prepare for it.

* * *

Confidential to HUMILIATED AND AFRAID TO TRY AGAIN: Every bride has had a similar experience and even experienced cooks have occasional flops. What you need is a sense of humor. Your husband should have said what he did even if the dinner looked like Andy Warhol's garbage, but you should not have taken his remarks to heart.

Women Have Made Strong Mark On International Politics in 1966

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Women made a strong mark on international politics in 1966, but the new year opens on an ominous note for the woman who succeeded to one of the world's most challenging offices — prime minister of India.

Mrs. Indira Gandhi, 48-year-old daughter of the late prime minister Pandit Nehru but no relation to India's famed Mahatma Gandhi, was elected leader of the world's biggest democracy last January on the death of Lal Bahadur Shastri.

She immediately faced a devastating famine in the densely populated sub-continent of 225,000,000 persons — disaster that rumbled on throughout the year and was complicated by religious and political troubles that resulted in a cabinet crisis, seriously weakening the premier's authority.

By year's end, commentators were predicting Mrs. Gandhi, buffeted on all sides by accusations of weakness and indecision, might lose power as early as February.

Feminine impact on politics of a different and highly unwelcome sort came to Canada in March with the sex-security furore involving blonde Gerda Munsinger from East Germany and former Conservative cabinet ministers.

SHE LIVENS CABINET

In Britain, redheaded Barbara Castle, 55, a small slender woman with a vibrant personality and passionate left-wing convictions, moved up in Harold Wilson's cabinet from minister of overseas development to minister of transport, infusing that traditionally masculine preserve with color and controversy.

Women even began to contribute to the grim ideology of Chinese politics, though hardly in the person of Chinese Madame Mao Tse-tung, glamorous onetime movie actress who married the Chinese Communist leader during his revolutionary struggles in the caves and harrowing but frequent appearances on political platforms.

She is regarded as a leading figure in the so-called "cultural revolution" that swept through Chinese life in 1966, a ruthless purging of old thoughts, habits and customs in favor of a renewal of revolutionary zeal.

Flier Sheila Scott revived the romantic exploits of Amelia Earhart and Amy Johnson when she became the first British woman to fly solo round the world last May. Blonde, attractive Sheila, 38, broke two world records and 12 others in her 29,000-mile trip, covered in 33 days, three hours in a single-engined plane.

NOVELS MAKE NEWS

Women made news in the arts. Dame Rebecca West, doyenne of British women intellectuals, published her first novel in 19 years, a highly-praised tale of exiled Russian conspirators before the First World War.

Francoise Sagan's latest novel, La Chamade, made the electrifying disclosure that in Paris nobody makes love in the evening any more — they are all too tired. Instead, executives with illicit liaisons have to fit sex into their lunch-breaks.

Sarah Churchill, 33-year-old actress daughter of Winston, had a runaway success with a slim volume of poems and wrote a personal memoir of her father — "my loving testament" — to join the flood of Churchilliana that poured from the pen of brother Randolph and others.

The book, A Thread in the Tapestry, will be published early in 1967. It is based on childhood memories and letters Sarah wrote her mother when she accompanied Churchill on numerous wartime conferences.

SKINNY LOOK PREVAILS

Vanessa Redgrave, Britain's boldest box-office attraction, scored London's stage success of the year with her portrayal of an eccentric Scottish school teacher in The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie. France's Simone Signoret scored the critics' flop of the year-almost directed William Gaskill of London's Royal Court Theatre got most blame—for picking Miss Signoret in an accent like Maurice Chevalier's.

It was the skinniest year ever for fashion models, with high-born Chelsea chicks trying to emulate the starved look of Twiggy, a 17-year-old Cockney kid—real name Lesley Hornsby—who lives up to her nickname with measurements of 32-22-32 and weighs a meagre 91 pounds.

No wonder Canada's entry in the Miss World stakes lost despite heavy ante-post betting. Blonde Diane Coulter, 18, of Ancaster, Ont. measured an imposing 36 inches around the bust.

The title was won by Miss India, a poised and lovely medical student named Reita Faria, and the runner-up was Miss Yugoslavia, first girl from an Iron Curtain country to compete.

Rate Consumer Revolt Over High Prices As Biggest News Story of Year

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

The consumer revolt over high prices is rated by Canada's women's editors as the biggest news story of the year directly involving or affecting women.

Their second choice is the book by Isabel LeBourdais that led to a Supreme Court review of Canada review of the murder conviction of Steven Truscott.

No. 3 on the list is the birth control story.

The women's editors of 107 newspapers, radio and television stations voted in a Canadian Press year-end poll in which Mrs. LeBourdais was picked as the country's most newsworthy woman of 1966.

The top women's page story of the year began making headlines in September when organized protests against rising food prices gained momentum, about the same time the Senate-Commons committee on prices started its hearings.

Most of the protest groups were formed to boycott retail stores in an effort to force them to lower their prices.

One of the best-known boycott leaders is Mrs. Lawrence Wilson of Manotick, Ont., who employed a method used by several organizers. She went on an open line radio broadcast to ask if anyone was interested in joining a boycott group. Response was immediate.

MEET IN OTTAWA

Despite doubts about the effectiveness of boycotting, groups have been formed all across the country. In December, Mrs. Wilson called a meeting of their leaders in Ottawa, and 22 attended, representing 50 groups. They organized the Canadian Consumers' Protest Association to boycott products on a national basis.

Mrs. John O'Brien of St. John's, Nfld., began as a boycotter in the same way Mrs. Wilson did. When Premier Joseph Smallwood said he would appoint a provincial commission on prices and asked Mrs. O'Brien to sit on it, she agreed. She says boycotts can have, at best, only temporary effects.

Two women are on a joint commission on prices appointed in the Prairie provinces in December: Mary Batten of Saskatoon, the chairman, and Dr. Shirley Weber of Winnipeg.

Boycott groups are expecting to present a brief to the Senate - Commons committee in January.

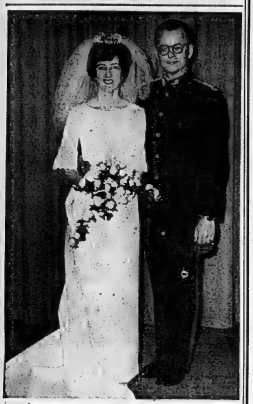
In the meantime, the story continues with a flood of advice on how to shop, argument and accusation about who should be blamed for high prices.

The story of Mrs. LeBourdais and The Trial of Steven Truscott really began six years ago when she started to write the book. After many difficulties, it was published in March 1966.

Steven Truscott, now 21, has served seven years of a life sentence for the 1959 rape-slaying of 13-year-old Lynne Harper near Clinton, Ont.

As a result of demands stirred by the book, the federal government asked the Supreme Court to review the case. At October hearings, it broke precedent by hearing new evidence.

Final arguments will be presented in January, after which the court will either uphold Truscott's conviction, order a new trial or acquit him.



There are a number of elements in the birth control story. Throughout the year the physical and emotional effects of the Pill and such devices as intrauterine loops were debated.

There was also discussion of the role played by birth control pills in the declining birth rate. While it was conceded the Pill was at least partly responsible, there was little solid information, perhaps because the census-takers were reluctant to cover such personal matters in their questionnaires.

The most controversial aspect of the birth control story was that involving the section of the Criminal Code that outlaws the sale or advertising of contraceptive devices and information on how to prevent contraception. Efforts by organizations and individuals to have the section amended continue and increase.

The story is set against the background of the population explosion, world hunger and the debate inside the Roman Catholic Church about the morality of birth control measures.

In a brief to the House of Commons standing committee on the subject, Catholic bishops in Canada said they would give cautious support to a move to amend the law. They said, in part, that the law is unenforceable and therefore a bad law.

Just about now — if it hasn't happened already — a tribe of crestfallen puck warriors who wear the regalia of the Springfield Indians, will be lip-locked through the honky dells that surround the city back to their stadium wigwam.

And holding their figurative scalps in his hand will be the "toughest, meanest and best" hockey operator, Eddie Shore, the big chief they decided to desert en bloc the other day because four of the tribe had been suspended.

They should have known — and probably do now — that in the sea of hockey operations, the "big chief" stands out like a Rock of Gibralter.

True, they may emerge with a crushed iron the fable of the argumentative seal, that he became they demanded it. It will be a gift pure and simple from the man who "takes nothin' from nobody, "unless he is cowhazed they are right.

Shore was one of the toughest, meanest and one of the game's best in his hockey heyday. He has won four Hart Trophies which has been equalled only by Gordie Howe who has five.

As one columnist puts it: — "Shore is an amazing character. An individual in the core, dealing in the traffic of professional hockey players who are notorious individualists, he has critics and detractors by employing the wildest group therapies and camp techniques."

What did the daffy dissidents expect Shore to do in answer to their demands, Cringe and crawl before the collective accusing fingers? Tsk, Tsk, what fools some mortals be.

Didn't they realize that their action in walking out as a team would rally the NHL and other pro managerial sources solidly behind Shore. Help efforts were not long in coming.

Many and colorful are the stories and anecdotes told about the guy who once canked 'the Toronto Maple Leafs' Ace Bailey, causing him to retire from hockey permanently. Canonsns of players who have passed through his hands is, the minority who believe he is gifted as a genius — the greater majority — simply a nut.

The tribal walkout story sent sports editors and scribes scurrying to the archives to dig out some of the colorful dust.

Mr. Shore has been known to lock players out of buildings, lock them in, keep them in dressing rooms, withhold pay, and deduct money from their salary for misuse and abuse of equipment.

He has made them scrape the ice at practices, attend practices at incredible hours of the day and night, refuse to let them come to his office and above all to insist on defencemen standing and skating in that peculiar stance known as the Shore crunch.

Shore once traded a player for a set of goalnets and claimed he got the worst of the bargain. He once kept a Belleville player out of hockey for two years exercising the authority of law. He set most vicious pieces of paper ever invented in sports circles, the "C" form.

For all that, Shore is a shrewd judge of talent. He has beaten many an NHL bridge in the event of the hinterlands outslaying and outscoring them all down the line. He has sold players to the big time on numerous occasions.

One of the Shore stories state that he wakened his players at 7 a.m. and had them tap-dance in the hall of a Hamilton hotel in their underwear.

When the Philadelphia Hockets had their training camp in Belleville several years ago, Shore came down to look over the crop.

One afternoon he had just stepped on the ice from a players' bench when a guy travelling at top speed with his head down hit Shore and spilled him half-way across the ice.

The player stopped, went over to Shore as he was getting up and started to apologize. He only got halfway through the apology.

Brother, what a chewing-out Shore gave the guy. He blistered, blasted and blew. "Never apologize to anyone. If the King of Siam comes out on the ice where players are, he should be ignored. If I come out like that again, you do the same thing — but don't come to me or anyone and say you're sorry."

Marlies, Wings Brawl

Draw Penalties Galore

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros literally fought their way into second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Thursday.

The Marlboros, bothered all season by injuries to key players, had three of their players heavily penalized in a third period brawl with Hamilton Red Wings but still came out on top to defeat the Wings 7-5.

The win moved the Marlboros into a second place tie with the Red Wings, one point behind league leading Kitchener Rangers.

In the other series game, Peterborough Petes threw a three-goal lead and had to settle for a 4-4 tie with London Nationals.

The third-period rumpus at Hamilton started when the Red Wings' Dan Lawson and Toronto's Cam Crosby tangled. Before play resumed 20 minutes later, referee Bill Brethauer had dealt out 74 minutes in penalties, including two minors, six majors and three game misconducts.

The Uprising Over; Shore Scalp Intact

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) Springfield Indians, their weeklong revolt over suspensions by owner Eddie Shore ended, a return to American Hockey League action tonight against Providence Reds with several regulars benched.

Shore, who searched for replacements in Canada and the United States after the Indians walked out Saturday, said five newcomers from the Central League will dress for the game tonight against the Reds.

He said the remainder of the team will be "augmented with some of the present players."

The Indians reluctantly agreed Thursday to end their walkout on the advice of Alan Eagleson, a Toronto lawyer who represents many hockey players as individuals.

The 64-year-old Shore, hardnosed owner of the AHL club and one of hockey's all-time great defencemen, refused to give ground in pro hockey's first full-scale player rebellion since 1925 and rejected demands that he reinstate suspended defencemen Dale Rolfe, Bill White and Dave Amadio and veteran forward Brian Kilrea.

He also insisted that the team's 19 other players honor contracts. The 19 threatened to continue the walkout until their four teammates were reinstated.

The three defencemen were suspended by Shore after the Indians suffered their fourth straight defeat in a loss to Quebec Aces last Saturday. Kilrea, who acted as team spokesman, was suspended for indifferent play when the players walked out Monday.

Eagleson said the Indians were "not overly enthusiastic" about playing while four players remained suspended. However, he said, "they are professionals and know they're expected to go out and play well."

He said he plans to return to Toronto for the holidays, but will continue to try to negotiate by telephone the cases of the suspended four.

Shore earlier had refused to admit Eagleson to his office but conferred with the lawyer for 20 minutes at rinkside Thursday while the Indians practised under coach Harry Pidhirny for the first time since Monday morning.

Tulsa Oilers and Memphis Wings of the Central League responded to Shore's request for help when the Indians staged their revolt. Defencemen Doug Dunville and forwards Jean Payette and Jim Davidson were obtained on loan from Tulsa, the defenceman Doug Barrie and forward Larry Billows from Memphis.

"I managed to get calls through to other clubs canceling the loan of nine other players before they left for Springfield," Shore said. "However, if any show up, we'll dress them for the Providence game."

Santa In Reverse

TORONTO (CP)—The Yuletide season has become a topsyturvy in the National Hockey League.

It isn't enough that New York Rangers, perennial tailenders, are in a tie for first place, and the mighty Montreal Canadiens are in fourth.

An undetermined number of Christmas cards got out of the NHL offices, in Montreal, with "Merry Christmas" up side down.

Page Will Not Change Decision

VANCOUVER (CP) — President Fred Page of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association says the CAHA will not change its regulations at the two Quebec pee-wee hockey teams to tour Europe.

Trade Minister Winters asked the CAHA Wednesday to reconsider its recent decision to bar the tour by the teams from Trois-Rivieres and LaSalle, a Montreal suburb. The teams were to make the tour during Centennial Year as representatives of Expo 67.

M. J. A. Mongrain (ind.-Trois-Rivieres) said during an afternoonight Commons debate the CAHA action was taken in accordance with standing regulations and its motivation was "ridiculous and false."

"These are our regulations and we are going to adhere to them," Page said Thursday."

He said they felt they should not be forced by anyone into changing their regulations.

Centre Pete Mahovlich, also on loan to Pittsburgh, scored two goals.

Als Claim Mudra Still Coach

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes say Darrell Mudra is still their head coach although he signed Thursday as head football coach of the University of Arizona.

Joe Atwell, president and chairman of the board of the Canadian Football League club, says Mudra is not free to accept Arizona's offer. He indicated that the new appointment did not mean automatic cancellation of Mudra's three-year contract with the Als, which has two years to go.

Atwell told The Canadian Press in a telephone interview from his winter home in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., that the decision on whether or not to release Mudra to the U.S. college will be a matter for the club's board of directors.

"I feel at this point it's a matter for our board to decide and I wouldn't want Ted Workman and myself to make the decision."

Atwell said Mudra telephoned him from Tucson Thursday afternoon and "asked the club to release him if he is offered the job."

"He apparently feels they're going to offer him the job, but as far as I'm concerned if he gets it it's not automatic," referring to Mudra's release.

"There comes a time when we have to look at a contract and see if it is one and as far as I'm concerned he still has a job here.

"If the board decides to give him a release then it's OK, but otherwise we'll expect Darrell to honor his contract with us."

If Mudra, 37, moves to Arizona, he will succeed Jim Laslie, fired after eight years with a 41-37-2 record. The last two seasons, however, his teams won six and lost 14.

Mudra's appointment—if he is freed by Montreal—is for one year, as are all state appointments. His new contract is reported to call for $17,500, slightly less than his Montreal salary.

"There is no place to go but up," Mudra told a news conference after been named to the job at Arizona. "I know I'm happier in college ball."

Power-Play Hat Trick

First In Ten Years!

MONTREAL (CP)—When little Yvan Cournoyer rapped home three power play goals in Montreal Canadiens 6-2 win over Toronto Maple Leafs here Wednesday night, it was the first time such a feat had been accomplished in the National Hockey League since Nov. 5, 1955.

Montreal fans also were on hand for that one.

Jean Beliveau, the Canadiens' skill captain and centre, rapped home three in a row within 44 seconds to stun the visiting Boston Bruins that night.

With the visitors leading 2-0, Boston's Cal Gardner drew a penalty at 19:36 of the first period. Team-mate Hal Laycoe was chased at the 11-second mark of the second period to leave the Bruins two men short.

Beliveau then proceeded to score at 42 seconds, 1:08 and 1:26 to turn the tide. He later picked up his fourth goal of the night to give the Montreal club a 4-3 win.

Bert Olmstead, now coach of Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League, assisted on Beliveau's first three goals.

Beliveau's power-play feat was accomplished before an NHL rule change by which a minor penalty now ends when the offending player's team is scored on.

Bill Named AFL Rookie Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Burnett of Buffalo Bills today was named Rookie of the Year in the American Football League by The Associated Press.

The 23-year-old halfback won the crown in a tight battle, polling 13 votes to nine for Mike Garrett of Kansas City Chiefs from the three-man committee of sports writers and sportscasters in the nine league cities.

The other two players receiving votes were Oakland Raiders' guard Jim Harvey, who was named on two ballots, and New York Jets' tight end Pete Lammons, named on one ballot.

Garrett, the Heisman Trophy winner when he was at Southern California, proved a finisher performer than Burnett, rushing for 801 yards, including a 75-yard romp that was the longest from scrimmage in the AFL this season.

But Burnett undoubtedly impressed the voters with his steady performances for the Bills as he gained 985 yards, scored four touchdowns and added running power to the Buffalo attack.

Blasingame said he would receive 7,600,000 yen, or about 120,000, to play for the Hawks. He will report to the Japanese club in February.

The infielder, who has played with St. Louis, San Francisco, Kansas City and Washington, has recently been working in public relations at a bank.

The Glen Ross Rebels took over first place and the Wallbridge Warriors absorbed their third defeat in a row in Centre Hastings Hockey League action last night.

The Rebels took the measure of the Warriors 8-4 in a game played at Tweed while the Foxboro Lumber Kings turned the Thomasburg Thunderbirds 6-4.

The Rebels now top the loop with 18 points. Ivanhoe has 14; Wallbridge 11; Foxboro 7; Frankford and Plainfield six each and Thomasburg 2.

The Rebels' Andy Faulkner with three goals and an assist leaped into second place in the league scoring. Garry Mason had two goals and two assists; Ross Anderson two and one with Jack Wright scoring the other goal. Ken McConnell and Fred Keating each had two assists, Dave Potts, one.

Ron Geen, Tom Bennett, Bill Dudgeon and Allen Johnson were the Wallbridge marksmen, the first three drawing assists. Dennis Gould had a pair of helpers.

Mikita; Four Mid-Season Top Spots

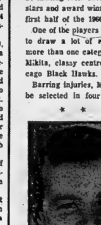
By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sports writers and broadcasters in the six National Hockey League cities will soon be making their choices for allstars and award winners for the first half of the 1966-67 season.

One of the players who is sure to draw a lot of attention is more than one category is Stan Mikita, classy centre with Chicago Black Hawks.

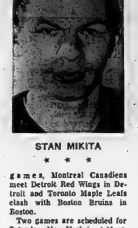
Barring injuries, Mikita could be selected in four categories in the mid - season balloting: first-half scoring leader, Lady Byng Trophy for gentlemanly conduct, centre on the first all-star team and most valuable player in the league.

Mikita holds a 14-point lead over team-mate Ken Wharram in the individual scoring race and should he continue to lead at mid-season, he would get $500 as the first-half leader.



His blistering pace could also help him draw votes for centre on the first all-star team.

COULD WIN BYNG TROPHY



The five-foot-nine, 165-pound centre, born in Sokolce, Czechoslovakia, also appears to have the inside track on the Lady Byng Trophy, awarded "to the player adjudged to have exhibited the best type of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct combined with a high standard of playing ability."

Mikita's performance has also helped the Hawks to remain tied for first place in the NHL standings with New York Rangers and—this could help him win the Most Valuable Player Award for the first half of the schedule, if not $250.

Mikita doesn't get a chance to continue his sparkling performance until Sunday when the Rangers play the Black Hawks in Chicago. In Sunday's other games, Montreal Canadiens meet Detroit Red Wings in Detroit and Toronto Maple Leafs clash with Boston Bruins in Boston.

Two games are scheduled for Saturday, New York is at Montreal and Boston is at Toronto.

Should Mikita make the first all-star team at the centre position, he could have Wharram as his linemate on the "dream team" at right wing. However, Rod Gilbert, New York's flashy right winger enjoying one of his best seasons so far, could also be selected at that position.

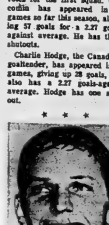
And Bernie Geoffrion, making a comeback after two years as coach of Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League, might get some attention at the right wing spot. In 22 games so far, Geoffrion has seven goals and 15 assists.

There aren't many candidates so fan this season for left wing honors on the first team, but Dennis Hull could get a chance at the position.

In 26 games with Chicago this year he has scored 12 goals and also has 11 assists for 23 points. In 80 previous NHL games, the young left winger, younger brother of Bobby Hull, the Hawks scoring sensation, had only 11 goals and nine assists.

Harry Howell, veteran defenceman with New York, might get a chance at making the first-star squad. Howell is enjoying one of his best seasons with six goals and 14 assists in 28 games. He had only four goals last year.

PILOTE A CANDIDATE



Pierre Pilote could be the other defencemen on the first team, but Montreal Canadiens fool Tarpet has been a consistent performer this season and deserves a chance on the team.

The Maple Leafs feel that Tim Horton has been having a good season also and he could get some attention from the voters.

Ed Giacomin, netminder with the Rangers, might get a lot of votes for the first squad. Giacomin has appeared in 26 games so far this season, allowing 57 goals for a 2.27 goals-against average. He has three shutouts.

Charlie Hodge, the Canadiens goaltender, has appeared in 13 games, giving up 28 goals, and also has a 2.27 goals-against average. Hodge has one shutout.

Management Wants Bigger Take

Americans Bet 4 Billion On Nags!

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK (AP) — What's the outlook for horse racing in the United States for 1967?

Judging from the record $4,600,000,000 bet this year on the thoroughbreds and harness racers, the $2 better will continue to pour his money into the pari mutuel machines.

On the management side, officials apparently will step up their efforts for legislative relief to reduce the state's take on wagering to help meet demands for higher purses by horsemen.

This picture developed from Thursday's Associated Press survey which showed $4,201,608 wagered $4,454,149,633 in 1966 in the States permitting legalized betting. Of this, $2,223,572,212 was bet on the thoroughbreds; by 40,634,162 and $1,437,516,721 on the pacers and trotters by 22,878,446.

The grand total was up from the 1965 aggregate of $4,454,482,455 bet by $59,272,489.

TAYLOR PUTS CASE

E. P. Taylor of Toronto, the retiring president of the Thoroughbred Racing Association, put the case for management.

"It is high time that the states which benefit so richly from the thoroughbred racing began to put something back into the business of which they are profit-sharing but non-contributing partners," Taylor said at the recent TRA convention in Phoenix, Ariz.

"Racing's economic picture is not good and neither is the prospect for the future," Taylor added.

James Cox Brady, chairman of the New York Racing Association, disclosed that the NYRA, which operated Aqueduct, Belmont and Saratoga, has been threatened with strikes by the horsemen in 1967 if higher purses are not put into effect to offset the horsemen's increased costs.

Brady warned that if legislative relief is not granted purses at the NYRA tracks "cannot be maintained even at their present levels."

This situation also prevails in Canada where a record $154,000,000 was bet this year. Owners and breeders have petitioned the Ontario provincial government to help offset a loss of $11,000,000.

Minor Hockey

Led by Muldoon and Murray with two goals each the Rangers defeated the Bruins 8-3 in Belleville Minor Hockey Association midget division play last night.

Muldoon also helped on three other goals with Murray drawing a pair of assists.

Sled, Bridge and Wilkinson also scored for the winners with Bridge getting an assist.

Pope scored two of the Bruins goals with Fairbairn the other Scott, Ralston and Dempsey drew assists.

The Bruins had four of the seven minor penalties handed out.

that's how a gin should be!
That's how White Satin is. Still made to Sir Robert Burnett's original 1770 London Dry formula; still exactly as dry and satin-smooth today as it ever was. After all, when great taste can keep a gin famous for generations on both sides of the ocean—we wouldn't dream of changing it. What we have done, though, is change the White Satin bottle. It's the best way we know to salute a celebrated gin. Have a look. Have a buy. White Satin! That's how a gin should be.

"Halt" Galt Tonight!

Belleville fans will get their first chance to see young Mr. Steve Rexe in goal for the Mo-Hawks tonight.

Rexe, who finally got a shot at the job against Galt Saturday, is playing as if he wants to keep it.

The Hornets, in some corners considered the team to beat in this Senior "A" grouping, will visit here tonight at nine o'clock gunn.

Galt fired 43 shots at Rexe last Saturday. He allowed four goals and had no chance on them.

Against Kingston Tuesday, the junior-age pochatopper faced 42 shots — and one got by — that a screened shot.

"Steve is playing great hockey and another fellow who is coming into his own is defenceman Greg Marchen," Mo-Hawk coach Floyd Crawford said.

Rexe and his mates need to be at their best tonight. They have bowed to the Hornets three times and this marks the final scheduled meeting of the two clubs.

The Hornets have a solid defence that knows how to use the body, pretty good-keeping from Ron Boomer and a potent attack, led by smoothie Ron Hergest. It is hard to find a weak spot in the Galt armor but the Mo-Hawks will be looking for one.

"This is a big game. We need a couple of wins and I would love to get one against Galt," Crawford said. He hopes to have a full lineup, with the exception of himself, for tonight's battle.

"We can beat any club in this league if we skate and give it a 100% effort."

And fans are reminded of tonight's special Christmas treat. Any child accompanied by an adult will see the game free of charge.

After tonight, the Mo-Hawks rest until next Friday when Toronto Varsity Grads play here.

ANDY CAPP

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

Merry Christmas is just a word when you're playing for the day. And quite often hockey players are not at home on Christmas is, of course, they are not happy about it.

I know there are a lot of people who have to work on Christmas and hockey players as a group are not the only ones to suffer. But the point I'm making is that I'm sorry for everybody who has to work on Christmas is, of course.

Last year, I remember, we played the Canadiens in Montreal on Christmas Day. We flew to Montreal on Friday, because Christmas Day, if you remember, was on Saturday.

It was pretty bleak walking up in a hotel room on Christmas morning and wondering what was happening at home. Of course, the hotel people were in the same boat with us and we kept walking around wishing everybody "Season's Greetings".

That night after the game we went to the midnight train, which gets us back to Detroit in the early afternoon. We had another Christmas Day meal with the Canadiens. They had a car on the same train.

When I'm away like that on Christmas we open our presents at our house before I leave on the trip. But it's never the same.

This year our game is at home and I'm happy about it. My wife, Colleen, makes sure we have our Christmas dinner at the proper time before the game and the only flaw in the whole thing for me is I have to stick to the white meat of the turkey and not dig into the stuffing.

I think if you were to take a vote among the players in the National Hockey League on playing Christmas Day they'd all vote for the day off. I know I would.

May Use Orr In Centre Spot

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins awaited final medical clearance on rookie Bobby Orr today as they headed into a weekend home-and-home series with Toronto Maple Leaf.

The 18-year-old Orr, who received a reported $40,000 to sign a National Hockey League contract, was given a morning check by doctors to determine his availability.

Orr, sidelined with strained knee ligaments since Dec. 4, worked out with the Bruins Thursday. He drilled at centre on two lines.

He isn't skating 100 per cent yet, but if he can play at Toronto Saturday I probably will try him at centre for a couple of turns," coach Harry Sinden said.

Teen-Ager Bowls Perfect 450 Score

A Peterborough teen-ager realized the dream of all bowlers the other day. That's when he rolled a perfect (450) five-pin score.

Joanne MacCallum, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray MacCallum of Peterborough accomplished the feat bowling in a junior a.m. league at the Peterborough Brookdale Lanes.

A Toronto bowling authority states that Joanne is the youngest female to roll a perfect game 14 league play in Canada.

The grade ten student received a $450 savings bond from the Brunswick Brookdale Lanes, a Brunswick trophy and cresl and several gifts from city merchants.

"The highest I ever bowled before was 316," said the happy youngster. She has been bowling eight years and has a 199 average.

Miners Win First Tilt Overseas

DRESDEN (CP-AP) — Drumheller Miners of Canada edged East Germany's national team 3-2 Thursday night in their first of two exhibition hockey games.

The Alberta squad, 1966 Allan Cup champions, had 24-21 at the end of the first period.

The official East Germany news agency ADN said indecisive shooting kept the host team from drawing even in the last two periods.

Drumheller goalie Murray Dodd, 35, who ended a five-year retirement to make the European tour, was singled out for special praise for returning repeated East German shots.

The Canadians launched several attacks in the closing stages, but a succession of magnificent saves by the East German goalie stopped them from scoring again.

Top Teams Tie In "Gas" League

Mustangs clung to their lead in the Gas Industry Hockey League last night playing to a 2-2 tie with Sunoco.

In the other game Marysville shaded Comets 3-2.

Doug Boote and Hughie Petrie scored for the Sunoco with Stewart Craig, Gerry Brennan, Rusty Logue drawing assists.

Jim Horwood and Jack Garvin counted for the Mustangs with assists going to Norman Richards and Don Reycroft.

Jim Woodcock paced the Marysville attack with a hat trick with Bob McCauley getting the other. Bruce Pascoe had a helper.

Dave Hurst and Duke Doerm were the marksmen, Harold Woodcock and Glen Heagle getting assists.

According to a league spokesman the Mustangs now have seven points, Sunoco nine, Comets eight and Marysville six.

CLIPPERS GET SEILING

BALTIMORE (AP) — New York Rangers of the National Hockey League sent defenceman Rod Seiling to their American Hockey League affiliate, Baltimore Clippers, on option Thursday. Seiling, 22, a native of Elmira, Ont., played in 12 games with the Rangers this season, scoring one goal and assisting on one.

Title Close To Gomez

TORONTO (CP) — Avelino Gomez is home with his family hoping for two things: the North American riding championship and his Canadian citizenship.

"I've applied for Canadian citizenship and I'm waiting for them to call me," said the Cuba-born Jockey on his return from Mexico City where he rode a 113th thoroughbred winner this week.

Gomez, 39, must wait until the end of the year before knowing if he has won the title, but he's in a good position. His closest rival, with 298 winners, is Brasilio Baeza of Panama who went on vacation Dec. 19 at New York's Aqueduct track and does not expect to resume riding before next Monday.

Another threat is Jorge Velasquez, another Panamanian, who resumed riding Thursday after a five-day suspension at Tropical Park in Miami needing 28 victories to catch Gomez. He had nine racing days to do it.

9 Nations Will Send Top Skiers

TORONTO (CP)—Top skiers from France, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, Sweden, Japan, United States and Canada will compete in Canada's international skiing championship this winter.

The 1967 events will be held Jan. 29 and 30 at Whistler Mountain, Garibaldi, B.C., and Feb. 3-5 at Mont Orford, Magog, Que.

Head coach Honore Bonnet of the French ski team has confirmed to the Canadian Ski Association that a two-man team, headed by either George Mauduit or Louis Jauffret, will compete in the championships. Both were medal winners when France swept the world championships at Portillo, Chile in August.

France will also send two women skiers who will be chosen from the French team's top five skiers.

CASA race director Keish Nesbitt says France's entry means a field of the best international skiers ever assembled in Canada.

PERUVIANS PLAN TOUR

TORONTO (CP) — The Peruvian national women's volleyball team will play a series of exhibition games in Canada early in the new year before leaving for the women's world championships in Tokyo, it was announced Thursday. Anisa Furlani, secretary of the Canadian Volleyball Association, said the exhibitions will include games in Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver and possibly Ottawa.

MPs Take Break in Productive Session With More Work Ahead

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—The current session of Parliament, which resumes Jan. 9 after a two-week holiday break, could become the most productive and longest in Canadian history.

Before adjourning Wednesday night, the Commons and Senate passed 65 items of government legislation. These included 30 major bills expanding the welfare state and setting up new agencies of government.

But the MPs and Senators face so much unfinished work that the 1966 session likely will stretch well into the Centennial Year.

Long debates are expected on massive bills to revise the Railway Act and the Bank Act, on the controversial unification of the armed forces and on three measures revamping the civil service.

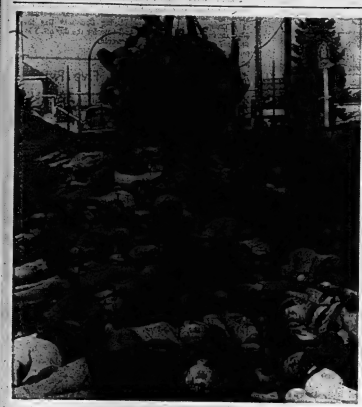
Also coming up after the recess are the new tax-sharing agreements with the provinces, two bills to implement the tax increases that take effect Jan. 1, creation of a deposit insurance plan for lending institutions, research grants for industry and expanded government guaranteed credit for smaller business enterprises.

Since the session opened last Jan. 18, the Commons has gone through 130 sittings and the more leisurely Senate, 83.

The longest session, dominated by the marathon flag debate, ran for 368 days in 1964 and early 1965. The previous record of 174 days was set in 1960-61 when the Diefenbaker government waged a long battle to oust James Coyne, then governor of the Bank of Canada.

Several major inquiries are planned by parliamentary committees.

These will involve proposals to revise immigration, broadcasting, election and anti-combines laws.



Other committees will investigate the stock dealings of Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court and study the various lyrics of O Canada.

The 1966 session has concentrated so far on social welfare and farm legislation, most of which was based on Liberal campaign promises in the 1963 federal election.

Besides the welfare field, Parliament enacted a federal-provincial medical care insurance plan, a pension increase for needy old age pensioners, the Canada Assistance Plan, a $500,000,000 fund for health education facilities, increases in university grants and the student loan fund, creation of the Company of Young Canadians and higher vocational training allowances.

For farmers, laws were passed to set up the Canadian dairy commission and the feed grain board, to create a $30,000,000 fund for rural development in depressed areas and to broaden farm credit and crop insurance coverage.

Other bills that became law this year reorganized eight government departments, expanded housing loans, ratified the Canada/U.S. auto treaty and set up the science council of Canada.

Centennial Church Kits Mailed

OTTAWA (CP)—Making 22,000 trips around a table has become an exercise in interfaith on the second floor of the Berger building here.

The object of the dizzying exercise is to get 22,000 Centennial church service kits mailed to the clergy of the country by Sunday, Jan. 1

Numbed volunteers traipsed about the table Thursday night, putting 14 separate pieces of material into each kit.

The kits then go into envelopes that must be stapled twice and dumped into provincially-designated boxes for mailing.

Evaline Gilstorf, executive director of the Canadian Interfaith Conference, her staff of three, and whatever volunteers they can shanghai are doing the work.

"I see these kits in my sleep," said a neighbor of Mrs. Gilstorf's, staggering with fatigue. The neighbor made up about 300 kits Thursday. Some 5,000 have been mailed since the work began a week ago.

The interfaith conference is supported by the federal centennial commission and has brought together 34 religions in the last 18 months.

By some miracle, they have composed a series of prayers, hymns and anthems acceptable to not only a spectrum of Christians, but to Jews, Hindus, Jainists and Buddhists as well.

The material is now being divided to such diverse groups as the Moravians of Labrador, an Episcopal religious that emerged in Bohemia in the 15th century, and the Doukhobors of British Columbia.

About the only church that has refused to join the conference is that of the Jehovah's Witnesses.

Mrs. Gilstorf said the Witnesses feel that the world is coming to an end and there won't be anything to celebrate in 1967.

The conference calls itself "one of the greatest interfaith adventures in history" with plenty of justification.

Arranging a luncheon for a meeting of the 18-member board of directors is an exercise in egg-stepping. Sunday is to one religion what Saturday is to the next. And one man's meat is another's perdition.

Mrs. Gilstorf has found the safest course to be poached salmon.

The word ecumenical seemed naturally suited to the conference until a member gently pointed out that all weren't.

Inuvik Busy – Butchering Reindeer

REINDEER STATION, N.W.T. (CP)—Reindeer might suggest Santa Claus to most people, but to Canadians in the Arctic they mean good eating.

The annual reindeer slaughter is under way at this point near the mouth of the Mackenzie River, and demand is great in the nearby arctic communities of Inuvik and Aklavik.

A preliminary thinning-out of the 4,500-animal herd in this area was under way Thursday to provide Christmas roasts for those who prefer reindeer to turkey.

The main slaughter, controlled by the northern affairs department and carried out by station manager Sven Johansson and six herders, is set for Jan. 5.

The animals wintering about 10 miles east of Inuvik, 1,200 miles northwest of Edmonton, comprise about half the 9,000 total. The other half of the herd is moving across the barren lands southward from Tuktoyaktuk without human attendants.

Already, 27 carcasses have been taken to Aklavik, 45 miles west of the kill site. Reindeer provide a high - quality meat which has no taste of game and is cooked in the same manner as beef.

The kill, carried out as a herd-management practice to control the degree of excellence of the animals, now provides only enough for demand in the immediate area.

When the herd reaches the projected population of 20,000, the annual thinning-out should permit residents in southern sections of Canada to enjoy the delicacy, a northern affairs spokesman said Thursday.

'O Canada' May Become Anthem

OTTAWA (CP)—The minority Liberal government that brought the maple leaf flag into being Feb. 15, 1965, is expected to make an all-out effort to have O Canada adopted as the official national anthem during the centennial year.

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Wednesday that the matter of the anthem, which promises to be almost as controversial as the flag debate of 1964, will be sent to a special parliamentary committee early in 1967.

A resolution has been on the order paper since last Jan. 31 to make O Canada the official anthem and God Save the Queen the royal anthem.

The prime minister said he hopes to see O Canada become official "well before Canada Day in our centennial year." That is next July 1, the 100th anniversary of Confederation.

The United States took more than 150 years to choose its anthem. It didn't get around to adopting The Star Spangled Banner until the 1930s.

The anthem became a campaign promise when the present Pearson government was running for office in 1963.

Year of Growth, Says Mayor, on Looking Back at 1966

The year 1966 has been a year of steady growth and achievement, a year of roads and bridges, sanitary sewers and watermains.

It has also been a year of heightened interest in public services and recreation, a year of many changes and also one of careful budgetting.

This is the way in which Mayor J. R. Ellis sums up the past 12 months in his year-end report to the citizens of Belleville.

In the realm of public works, Mayor Ellis notes the completion of North Front Street to Highway 401 and Pinnacle Street greatly enhanced the city's appearance and improved traffic flow. The College Street bridge will further enhance traffic flow in the northern part of the city this spring.

Also during the year a new public school has been erected, the new Centennial Secondary School is virtually completed and construction of the new addition to the Belleville General Hospital is on schedule.

In the east end of the city traffic is being disrupted due to the installation of storm sewers and curbing prior to paving next year.

Commenting on the city's industrial outlook, Mayor Ellis said the Industrial Commission had been very disappointed when the Gosnard people purchased the holdings of a bankrupt competitor in Toronto rather than build in Belleville as had been agreed. However, recent developments in the commission indicate that a new industry will locate in the city next year.

During the year the city has welcomed the Automatic Signals Company and the commission has been active in assisting existing industries.

The district executive committee, comprised of the mayors of Trenton and Belleville along with the wardens of Hastings and Prince Edward county had been an effective facet of municipal life.

Examples of joint community co-operation included the new Hastings and Belleville Health Unit, soon to be amalgamated with the Prince Edward County Unit, the addition to Hastings Manor; a joint application to the Ontario Water Resources Commission resulting in a survey now under way regarding piping of water from Lake Ontario and a joint approach to have a college of applied arts and technology located in the Quinte district.

The Mayor said that commencement of construction for secondary sewage treatment was being held up for the repeat on Lake Ontario water so that plant size could be determined.

During the year the public utilities service building at the corner of Sidney and College street west had its operation and construction was started on the new chemical building at the water filtration plant.

Installation of water meters in areas now served under flat rate was continuing at an accelerated pace and was expected to be completed in about 3½ years.

Fluoridation of water was undertaken and the 36-inch watermain to surround the city was extended to Moira River south of College Street.

The mayor had words of commendation for the police and fire departments which he said were as efficient as those in any city the size of Belleville.

The city continues on a good financial basis and had been fortunate to sell nearly $2,000,000 worth of 5¾ per cent debentures in the United States before interest rates climbed. Debentures for school construction were being handled by the Province of Ontario in co-operation with the Federal Government pension fund.

The mayor said he was pleased to report the matter of business tax arrears was now well in hand.

This, he said, did not mean that all accounts have been collected, but of those uncollected 11 accounts have been placed with the credit bureau for collection, nine have been placed in Division Court and 16 accounts totalling $21,162 have been placed with the city solicitor for court action. Forty nine small accounts totalling $830 will be recommended for write-off.

In the future the mayor said it was hoped that interim payments of business tax would be established and would mean an end to such tax arrears.

To all the citizens of Belleville I extend my warmest, best wishes for the Holiday Season.

Sunday School Lesson

That Most Unusual Visit

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Christmas time is visiting time. Cars whiz along highways. Fiancs, trains, and buses are filled to capacity as millions of people rush to spend Christmas day with family or friends.

Some will pause to remember a visit made two thousand years ago by a carpenter and his young wife to his native town of Bethlehem. The entire world is different because of what happened during that visit of these two devout people.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 25: "Born this Day . . . a Savior," Luke 2:1-40.

It all began in Rome. "Caesar issues edict that all under Roman authority must be taxed." "All taxable males required to register family in native city." These are some of the headlines Joseph and Mary might have read if there had been a newspaper in their day. It was not a convenient time for Mary to travel as she neared the time for the birth of her child. But one did not argue with Caesar. When Caesar spoke, his subjects obeyed. And so the visit was made to Joseph's native village. If there had been newspapers in that day, perhaps few would have noticed a small item tucked away on a back page, "Baby born in stable to couple from Nazareth." Yet in the light of history, the birth of that baby was more important than any edict issued by mighty Caesar.

SERIES OF STRANGE VISITS

Two groups are reported to have visited that baby after His birth. First a group of shepherds came from near-by fields claiming they had seen a strange vision concerning this Child. Later there came wise men from the East saying they had been led by a star to come and pay homage to Him.

But this was not the most important visit that was made when Jesus was born. Millions believe that God Himself visited mankind in a special way in the coming of this particular Child. This belief was first expressed during Jesus' lifetime. As people saw the wonderful works Jesus did, when they saw evidence of His miraculous powers, they remarked in amazement, "God has visited His people." (Luke 7:16 RSV)

The Christian faith did not begin with a system of man-made logic or a set of theological propositions. It began with a life that was so luminous, so full of spiritual power, that when people saw Him they said, "God has visited His people."

Many could not believe that God would manifest Himself so fully through one who had been born in such humble circumstances to one of their own men. Some said of Jesus, "We know where this man comes from: and when the Christ appears, no one will know where He comes from." (John 7:27 RSV) But Jesus' birth is a reminder that God continues to visit His people through the commonplace experiences of life.

SEEK DRAMATIC EVIDENCE

Many people wish they could have some dramatic experience that could convince them beyond a shadow of a doubt that God is real. They want a Damascus road kind of vision like Paul experienced, or an evidence as convincing as the stigmata of St. Francis. But God seems to be very sparing in giving men a dramatic mystical experience. To most people He reveals Himself in the commonplace things of life — the miracle of birth and growth, the wonder of love, the prickings of conscience, the peace that comes through forgiveness. Many want God to shout in a dramatic victory over evil, but to most He whispers in a "still, small voice" calling them to evidence love, and overcome evil in the world.

Moreover, God still visits His people through dedicated lives. It was the life of Jesus, the way He lived and died, that convinced people He was in perfect union with God. Even the centurion who supervised His crucifixion said of Jesus, "Truly this was a Son of God!" (Matthew 27:54 RSV)

Too much religion today is long on words and short on deeds. It was schoolboy Jesus did, not just what He said, that made people say, "God has visited His people." It is when the Christian church reaches out in mercy to minister to the needs of men that they are given evidence of the presence and power of God in people's lives.

God still wants to go visiting. What He did so perfectly in Jesus, He wants to do to the limits of men's faith and love today. As Martin Luther once put it, He wants people to be "little Christs," reflecting the compassion and faith that were revealed so perfectly in Jesus, so that once again people will say, even if in a more limited way, that God is visiting His people.
